DEATH WARNING TO DISTURBERS ISSUED BY SPAIN'S DIRECTORATE

"Summary Action" Against Promoters of Revolution — Unrest Spreads While Premier Rivera Is at Fighting Front in Morocca— Catalonia's Move for Separation Deplored.

CENSORSHIP OF PRESS CONTINUES

MADRID, November 11. — Admiral, the Marquis De Magaz, acting head of the Spanish military directorate, last night in an address to persons concerned in the submersive movements towards Spain, declared that they will be summarily dealt with.

The speaker characterized as suicidal the attitude of the Catalonian separatists and as treason against Spain, the activities of other Spaniards who in the name of liberty have "organized bands composed of the debris from the world war which are now being hurled against Spain to bring about a revolution."

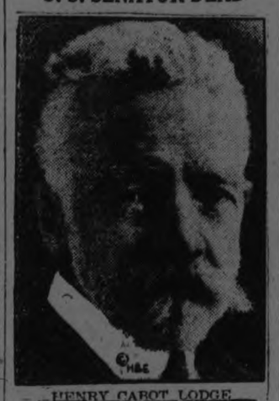
The admiral delivered his address at a conference of "olive oil merchants and growers." He drew a sharp contrast between the delegates present at the conference, who he said, were working for the betterment of Spain, and the youthful leaders of the intellegencia who do nothing but spread alarm and foment pessimism.

"While the president of the government is in Morocco personally fighting for the solution of the great problems confronting Spain, we at home must deal with the traitors as we would deal with cancer," Admiral Magiz declared. "With syndacalists and anarchists running wild, firmness is necessary to deal with the situation, and the government cannot, and will not, be influenced either by pity wrongly applied or by a desire for reprisals."

In concluding the admiral made a plea for collaboration by all the social classes in order to make Spain great and potent. An official note was issued last night by the government denying the request made by the Spanish newspaper publishers and Journalists for the lifting of the press censorship.

The refusal of the government to acquiesce is qualified by the declaration that the state of political friction would make it extremely difficult to withdraw the censorship, as such action would amount to the government renouncing the work it is now carrying on for the salvation of Spain.

U. S. SENATOR DEAD



HENRY CABOT LODGE.

Senator Lodge died in Cambridge, Mass., at 11.14 p.m. Sunday following a stroke of paralysis last Wednesday. He was 74 years old and was a Republican. Elected to the Senate in 1893 and remaining there continuously until his death, Senator Lodge was the veteran of the upper chamber, and his term is believed to have been the longest of any member of the Senate, in which he was floor leader of the Republican party.

Lodge was an implacable foe of President Wilson and led the attack in the United States on the League of Nations.

BIG DECLINE IN CORN YIELD OF UNITED STATES

MORE POTATOES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press). — The smallest corn crop since 1913 was the reward of United States farmers this year who planted the fifth largest acreage to that crop in the history of farming. Not only was the harvest substantially below those of the last four years, but the merchantable quality of this year's crop is the lowest in 30 years, with the exception of 1917.

Preliminary estimates of production issued Monday by the Department of Agriculture placed the crop at 2,477,538,000 bushels, the acreage at 105,604,000, or 1.4 per cent. more than last year, and the merchantable quality of the crop as 63.2 per cent. Corn production during the last four years has averaged more than 3,000,000,000 bushels.

Potato Increase.

The white potato crop, estimated at 454,119,000 bushels, is slightly larger than the big crops of 1917 and 1922, yields in Northern States running far above earlier expectations because in some regions the crop escaped frost and continued growing far into October. Per capital production this year is 4.08 bushels, compared with an average of 3.76 bushels per capita during the last twenty years.

There will be an ample supply of good potatoes at moderate prices, Government officials declare, and because of low prices in some Western States some good potatoes will be fed to livestock. There are indications that some of the crop may not be even harvested. The average yield ran to 121.0 bushels per acre as compared with 99.1 bushels the 10-year average.

Flaxseed Record.

Flaxseed production returned this year to the high level of the period from 1902 to 1908 and a total crop of 30,652,000 bushels is estimated, passing the record crop of 1902 by more than 1,000,000 bushels.

Tobacco production is 261,000,000 pounds less than last year, with a total crop of 1,213,975,000 pounds estimated. Bright tobacco shows a decrease of 115,000,000 pounds, cigar types 63,000,000 pounds, and Maryland and Eastern Ohio export types 1,817,000 pounds.

PEACE KEYNOTE OF ADDRESS BY PRIME MINISTER

SPAIN MENTIONED

LONDON, Nov. 11. — (Canadian Press).—Great Britain's first Labor Cabinet did not hold office long enough to have the privilege of appearing at the time-honored Lord Mayor's banquet. Thus, Stanley Baldwin, the new Prime Minister, the principal guest at last year's banquet, was again the guest of honor last night at the Guild Hall when all the Conservative Ministers and their wives gathered together. The United States, Spanish, Italian and Japanese Ambassadors and the Chilean Minister were also present. While the guests were assembling in the library it was observed that Austen Chamberlain, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, was in animated conversation with the Spanish Ambassador. Later, Mr. Chamberlain, toasting the foreign Ambassadors, emphasized the Empire's desire for peace. Alluding to the United States, he said:

"We rejoice at the co-operation of the United States and trust that that co-operation in whatever form might appear fitting to the President and Senate will not be withheld from us in the difficulties we have to face."

Reference to Spain.

He also made reference to the great services rendered to humanity by the League of Nations. He was happy, he said, to couple with the toast the name of the Spanish Ambassador, to whom he paid warm tribute for his personal qualities, which had won him the regard of the British people.

The Spanish Queen, the Foreign Secretary pointed out, was a Princess of the British Royal House, and Spain a country with which Great Britain was intimately associated by ties of peaceful industry, and between Spain and Britain there existed nothing to disturb the harmany of their relations.

Senor Alfonso Merry Del Val, replying in behalf of the diplomatic corps, expressed deepest gratitude to Mr. Chamberlain for his allusions to the Spanish Sovereigns. He mentioned that this was the first time the foreign envoys of every nation had had the opportunity of speaking to Mr. Chamberlain in his capacity as Foreign Secretary. It was no exaggeration for him to say that they all considered Mr. Chamberlain's appointment as a most happy thought and they looked forward confidently to their future relations with him.

Baldwin's Address.

The Lord Mayor toasted His Majesty's Ministers. In replying, Premier Baldwin made a passing reference to the elections and created laughter by saying that just as the ancient forms of Gog and Magog presided over this banquet, so, he had placed two giants, and over the Treasury to guard the pockets of the people and the other at the foreign to guard the policy abroad—this being an allusion to Mr. Churchill and Mr. Chamberlain.

Because he had just come into office he must omit the customary review of the situation at home and abroad. He could say, however, with the full approval of his colleagues, that the main object of the Government's foreign policy would be stability and continuity.

"We stand by the peace treaties," he said, "and will cultivate good relations with all foreign countries on the basis of those treaties. That this is no policy of stagnation is shown by the action taken by the last Unionist administration which led directly to the Dawes report and the London conference, that under the able direction of Ramsay MacDonald proved so successful."

"Not only was the conference valuable in itself, but it had special significance, in that it marked the reentry of the United States into European affairs. His Majesty's Government, while fully understanding the peculiar circumstances which render difficult continuous co-operation of America in European affairs, cannot but express their appreciation and gratitude for the leading part played by America in the negotiations which culminated in the London protocol, now in a fair way towards execution."

Friendly to France.

The Prime Minister then paid warm tribute to Premier Herriot's statesman-like moderation and loyalty, which merited Europe's gratitude. The British Government would

CABINET COMPLETED BY PREMIER BALDWIN

Viscounts Peel and Cecil Chosen for Remaining Vacancies.

LONDON, November 11 (Canadian Press). — Premier Baldwin completed his new Cabinet yesterday by appointing Viscount Peel as First Commissioner of Works and Public Buildings, and Vicount Cecil as the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

King George called a meeting of the Privy Council at the Palace yesterday, and Parliament was further prorogued from 18th November to 2nd December.

This postponement was made for the purpose of enabling the new ministers to become acquainted with their departments before the meeting of the new Parliament.

When Parliament does re-assemble many days will be spent in swearing in the members and electing a Speaker and other officials. Only when these formalities have been completed will the King formally open Parliament with a state ceremony.

With the completion of the Cabinet yesterday, Premier Baldwin will call the ministers together in council on Wednesday morning in order to discuss the general lines of policy.

The addition of Viscount Cecil to the Cabinet is considered of importance owing to his deep interest in the League of Nations. It is also regarded as showing that the new Government's policy with regard to the League will remain unchanged.

BODY TO BE CREMATED

F. C. Wade, Agent-General of British Columbia, Died in London.

LONDON, November 11 (Canadian Press). — Bishop Perrin, formerly of British Columbia, will conduct the service at the cremation of the remains of the late F. C. Wade, K.C., Agent-General of British Columbia, which takes place on Thursday.

The ashes will probably eventually be conveyed to British Columbia.

Messages of sympathy have been received by the family from every department of the Dominion Government.

P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner, has sent a personal letter of sympathy to the widow.

BOY KICKED BY HORSE

Struck It With Pail When It Ate Hen's Grain.

LINDSAY, November 11. — The twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent O'Connell, of Downeyville, is in the Ross Hospital suffering from a fractured skull as a result of being kicked by a horse at his home a few days ago.

The little lad wes feeding the hens, when a horse came up and started to eat the grain.

The boy hit the animal with a pail, when it turned and kicked him in the head.

The injured boy has been in an unconscious condition, but the latest report from the hospital is to the effect that his condition shows improvement.

EARL LYONS SHOT.

Son of Hon. James Lyons Had Hand Amputated as Result of Shooting Accident.

SAULT STE MARIE, Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Earl Lyons, 17 year old son of Hon. James Lyons, was so badly injured in the left hand through an accidental discharge of a duck gun here yesterday that it was found necessary to amputate the hand at the General Hospital.

Young Lyons, it is understood, was taking the gun from a boat when it was discharged. The left hand caught the whole charge of duck shoot and a few pellets entered the left side of his face, narrowly missing his eye. These wounds, however, are not serious.

OIL WELL ON FIRE.

CALGARY, Nov. 11.— Imperial Oil Company's Royalite No. 4 gas well at Black Diamond is on fire. The new well, which has been belching forth wet gas at the rate of twenty million cubic feet a day since Tuesday, Oct. 14th, suddenly burst into flames just before noon on Sunday, and in a few minutes a huge derrick was a mass of blazing timber. Half an hour after the fire started, a mass of twisted steel and charred wood was all that remained of the derrick and burning gas was shooting high into the air with a roar that could be heard for miles.

ROUMANIAN OIL STRIKE.

BUCHAREST, November 11 (Canadian Press). — The Standard Oil Company subsidiary, the Romano-Americano, brought word of well at Runco which is flowing over 15,000 barrels a day, it was reported here.

LODGE MOURNED IN WASHINGTON

LONG CAREER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Grief at the death of Henry Cabot Lodge was voiced in Washington yesterday by public men and friends of the Massachusetts senator.

President Coolidge in a formal statement spoke of him as "one of the great men of our time," while members of the cabinet and colleagues in congress in expressing regret at his passing, referred to his attainments and to his long career in senate and house.

Arrangements were at once made by Mr. Coolidge to be represented at the funeral, he requesting secretaries Hughes and Weeks anw Captain Adolphus Andrews, his naval aide, to attend in that capacity. At the same time officials of the senate and house made plans for delegations to represent those bodies officially at the services.

Although the passing of the veteran leader is recognized as requiring a new appraisal of conditions which will confront the senate upon its convening for the short term next month, because of the absence from Washington of many Republican spokesmen at the capitol, definite plans for a re-organization of the Republican party structure there are expected to be delayed for a longer period than might otherwise be the case. In the determination of questions surrounding the problem of leadership in the senate, however, President Coolidge through the mandate given him at the elections of last week will have an opportunity to wield the dominant power. Any advice he may care to give is expected to be a powerful factor in deciding whether the old guard, of which Senator Lodge was a veteran, is to remain as the directing force of the senate or whether new elements will come into the position of command.

CHINESE CONFERENCE

Leaders Opposed to Old Regime Meeting in Tien Tsin.

LONDON, November 11 (Canadian Press). — Sun Yat Sen, head of the Government of Southern China, arrived yesterday at Tientsin, where a conference of several of the principal figures opposed to the former military regime in Pekin is about to be held, says a despatch from Tientsin.

Chang Tso-Lin ,the Manchurian War Lord, also arrived for the conference.

Feng Yu-Hsiang, the Christian General, had previously reached Tientsin ,where it had been announced that he would confer with former Premier Tuan Chi-jui, Chang Tso-Lin, and Chang Huash-Liang, son of Chang Tso-Lin.

There are more than 2,000,000 acres of peanuts under cultivation in this country.

TOWN FIRE-SWEPT

WINDSOR, N.S., November 11. — Fire early on Sunday morning swept through the business section of this town, destroying thirty buildings, causing damage estimated at $350,000, and rendering forty-two families homeless.

The blaze was first noticed in a wharf on the water front at 1.15 a.m. It was not brought under control until daylight when apparatus had been brought from Halifax, Dartmouth, Wolfville and Kentville.

BATTLE IN BRAZIL

Thirty Revolutionists Killed and Many Wounded by Loyalists.

PORTO ALEGRO, Brazil, Nov. 11 —Thirty revolutionists were killed, and a large number were wounded in a battle on Sunday in western Rio Grande Do Sul, in which the loyal forces were victorious, according to an announcement made yesterday by the state government.

The dead are said to have included the revolutionary civil governor, Antonio Montero.

It was stated that the government troops lost four dead and six wounded.

3 DIE AS AUTO HITS TRAIN.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 11. — Three youths were killed and another probably fatally injured late Saturday night, while returning from a dance at Lutherville, when their automobile crashed into a Pennsylvania Railroad train at a crossing in Lutherville.

CHURCH DESTROYED.

MONTREAL, November 11. — St. Vincent de Paul Chuch, one of the oldest Catholic churches in this city, situated in the eastern part, was completely destroyed by fire on Saturday evening. The damage is estimated at over $300,000.

THEATRE SELLS CANDY AS FOOD

London House To Give Seats Free to Purchasers of Chocolates.

FIGHTS CABARETS

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The management of one of the principal London theatres yesterday announced its intention, beginning next week of giving each purchaser of a box of chocolates a free seat at the play. The cost of the chocolates will range from 10 shillings, entitling the buyer to a seat in the stalls, to 15 pence, which will carry a seat in the gallery.

The management explained it was taking this action as a protest against the system which charges a heavy entertainment tax to theatres, but permits the giving of elaborate cabaret shows to dinner and supper guests without the payment of such a tax. The theatre claims that these cabaret shows ostensibly are mere adjuncts of food, but are advertised in the newspapers the same as theatrical shows.

It is contended that the constant multiplication of the cabaret entertainments is becoming a serious menace to the theatrical profession. The management who originated the chocolate idea intends to defy the authorities, it was declared, to tage action against a theatre selling candy as food as giving a free seat to a performance, unless similar action is taken against hotels and restaurants.

STRIKERS DEPORTED

Driven From Town in the State of Washington.

SEATTLE, Wash., November 11 (Canadian Press). — Sheriff C. F. Conn of Skagit County, and six deputies conducted 150 industrial workers out of Concrete, Washington, yesterday, and telephoned for six motor trucks to carry them to the Snohomish County line, says a despatch to the Seattle Times.

The men have been on strike for three weeks, and it was reported that they refused to permit others to take their jobs.

CRUSHED BY POST.

MONTREAL, November 11 (Canadian Press). — Seven-year-old Wilfred Belair, 3973 St. Dominique Street, was instantly killed yesterday when a heavy wooden post on the premises of a nearby garage under construction fell on him and fractured his skull.

Following the crowd will get you there—after the crowd.

THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER'S MESSAGE.

You have honored the bones of the Unknown Dead,
You have hung a wreath on his marble tomb—
"Without stone whereon to rest his head"
Is many a living hero's doom.
Have you heard the voice of the Unknown Dead,
When you knelt with others beside his grave?
"Where are my brothers, who live?" he said,
"All that I offered, they also gave.
You called them heroes and spoke the truth.
When you led them out of the sun to fight
For you they squandered their splendid youth,
They are destitute in their blinded night.
They were stalwart lads when they heard your call,
When they offered their bodies to be your shield;
You asked for their strength—they left it all
With their shell-torn limbs on the battlefield:
You have used them up and thrown them away,
You have drained the sap of their life in a day.
On guard at the tomb of the Unknown Dead
Are the ghosts of the living who also bled."

—Rhoda Walker Edwards, in the New York Times.

BEACON OF DISTRESS SET FIRE TO BARLEY

BRANDON, Man., Nov. 11.—One thousand bushels of barley went up in smoke Saturday when Harry Withers, of this city, suffering from a compound fracture of his right leg, which was also frozen, crawled to a haystack and set fire to a small portion of it, in hopes of summoning aid. A granary was on the other side of the stack and was completely destroyed by the blaze.

On Friday Withers was motoring near Moosomin, Sask., when his car stalled and as he stepped out of it he slipped and fractured his right ankle. Using the car cushions as crutches he spent the night looking for a farm house and managed to reach the stack early in the morning. Walking around in this way he caused a compound fracture of his leg and it may have to be amputated.

LIBEL SUIT BY WOMAN MEMBER

ELECTED IN 1923

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The fur coat and pearls belonging to Lady Terrington, former Liberal member of parliament, were exhibited in court yesterday during the trial of her libel action against the Daily Express for the publication during the 1923 campaign of an interview which she asserted desribed her as "a vain, frivolous and extravagant woman who is unfit to be a member of parliament."

The trial was held before Lord Darling, a jurist famous for his humor and the spectators were treated in addition to a view of aristocractic wearing apparel, to a flow of badinage on the part of judge and counsel—and even the former woman parliament member herself —in which the proprietry of wearing flesh-colored hose, tight skirts and other modern fashion innovations in the staid old house of parliament was both seriously and lightly discussed.

She Did Wear Them.

Lady Terrington denied flatly that she had discussed what she would wear in the house with the interviewer who was said to have quoted her as saying she would wear her best clothes, furs, pearls and ospreys when she attended the sessions. She admitted, however, that although she never wore or owned ospreys, she had worn furs and pearls. Incidentally ,she revealed that while on one occasion she wore two strings of pearls, one was an imitation and the much-discussed fur coat was five years old.

Asked by counsel for the defense "if it has been one of your boasts that, although you now are a member of the aristocracy, your own beginning was from the people," she replied:—"Certainly, we are all from the people."

Court Repartee.

An exhibition of her photograph showing her dressed as a mannequin brought an explanation from Lady Terrington that she had appeared in this garb for charity. Upon this explanation the judge remarked that "charity covers a multitude of sins" and the opposing counsel interjected "and dispenses with lots of clothes. The case was dismissed.

STEEL TONNAGE INCREASE.

NEW YORK, November 11 (Canadian Press). — Further improvement in the steel industry was reflected yesterday in the United States Steel Corporations's report of unfilled orders at the end of October, showing an increase for the month of 51,490 tons to a total of 3,325,270 tons.

JUDGMENT IN LOCKIE CASE

This was an action brought by Miss Elizabeth Moffatt under section 69 of the Surrogate Court Act wherein she claimed to be entitled to remuneration for services to the late George Lockie of North Monaghan.

The late George Lockie died on the 14th of August, 1923, and under his will he appointed Joseph Madill and Herbert Cunningham his executors.

By his will among other bequests he gave Miss Elizabeth Moffatt the sum of $2500, and gave his farm to his niece and the residue of his property after payment of some small legacies to Miss Moffatt.

The case was tried before His Honor Judge Huycke who gave judgment for $900 in addition to the $2500 legacy.

From this judgment an appeal was taken to Mr. Justice Hodgins, who in effect directed a new hearing before His Honor Judge Huycke and upon such hearing judgment was given against the executors for $3250 and costs, and the legacy under the will was disregarded and the Statute of Limitations was not given any effect to.

From this judgment the executors appealed and the same came on before Mr. Justice Lennox who confirmed His Honor Judge Huycke's judgment but varied it to the extent that the legacy she received under the will was to be accepted by her as part payment of the judgment.

The executors then appealed to the Court of Appeal and the same came on before Latchford C. J. Middleton, Masten and Orde, J. J. A.

Elizabeth Moffatt described in the will as his "housekeeper" gets $2500 legacy and the residue, although the latter is probably of no value.

She made a claim for $1000 in addition to the legacy, as a creditor, and at the hearing her claim was amended and she asked for $2000.

She was examined for discovery and again on the hearing.

The claimant said she went to live with Mr. Lockie in 1910, acting as his "housekeeper". He was then an old man of 80 or 81 years of age. On her examination for discovery she stated the situation in few words.

"There was no mention of wages. I was to have my home there."

Q. What did he pay you?

A. He did not really pay anything for that, except I had my home there. I was to be paid upon his death.

At the trial this was considerably supplemented but not materially changed.

Q. Was anything ever said about paying for your services on the farm?

A. Well he said that if anything happened to him I would receive $1000.

It appears that a cheque for $1000 was given to the plaintiff and held by her for some time.

Q. What led him to give you this cheque?

A. In case anything happened to him.

Matters stood in this way for some years, when the plaintiff thought she ought to have more and a will was made in 1915 giving her $1500. She says she was satisfied at that time with the provision made in this way.

Later on a new will was made and the $1500 increased to $2500. She says she knew of this, but did not think it was enough and now presents this claim.

There is no question, but that she faithfully discharged her duties as housekeeper and rendered services of good value to the deceased, but she had a good home where she had to work as a farmer's wife would have. Two children, a nephew and niece, that she was looking after were brought up without expense to her, and the deceased gave her the greatest latitude. She got various sums amounting altogether to about $800 the largest amount of $500 she unfortunately forgot to mention on the hearing.

The real bargain was that the remuneration was to be fixed by will. If he failed to remunerate or implement his bargain, or if what he did was inadequate and illusory, it may be she would not have been bound to accept it, and she could at most decline to accept the legacy and assert her claim for remuneration. If she did this she would only recover the value of six years' service, and on no reasonable view of her evidence could she hope to establish a claim for more than the legacy, she would be worse off. She has not repudiated the gift, and she cannot have both. Snyder & Carleton 35 O.L.R. 246.

There is no necessity of giving her the right to make a formal election, as the benefit conferred by the will is obviously to her advantage. The appeal must be allowed, and the plaintiff's claim must be dismissed with costs to be paid by her both here and in the courts below.

R. R. Hall, K.C., appeared for the appellant executors who were also represented by their solicitor, Mr. G. W. Hatton, K.C. Mr. W. F. Huycke appeared for the plaintiff, Miss Moffatt

A NATIONAL ASSET.

As the greatest transportation company in the world, the Canadian Pacific Railway has maintained a national service in the Trans-Canada Limited which is second to none and on the conclusion of the summer schedule of this crack train has transferred the equipment to the Vancouver Express which leaves Toronto every night at 10.10 p.m. on its trip across the continent, via Winnipeg, Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise, the spiral tunnel, Sicamous and parts of the Canadian Pacific Rockies famous throughout the world, on its way to Vancouver, where the travellers are unanimous in their praise of the service of the Vancouver Hotel. The Canadian Pacific also operates a steamship service to Victoria, the Mecca for winter tourists.

Not only does the Vancouver Express carry tourist and standard sleepers, but it also carries a compartment-observation car complete in itself, while a parlor car is added from Revelstoke to Vancouver.

Added to this national service is a feature service from Toronto to Montreal via the Lake Shore Line, which has been entirely reballasted with crushed rock and relaid with 100 pound rails, insuring a maximum of comfort for travellers at night as well as an absence of dust in daytime. Trains leave Toronto Union Station at 9.00 a.m. daily, 10.00 p.m. daily except Saturday, and 11.00 p.m. daily. Arriving at Windsor station, the traveller has the benefit of immediate facilities in the women's rest room, lunch room and barber shop, which cannot be duplicated in any other station in Montreal. An added convenience is offered those who wish to travel to Montreal from North Toronto, in the 9.45 p.m. train, daily except Saturdays, from Yonge street station.

Canadian Pacific agents will gladly make your reservations and supply you with any information you require. They are fully qualified to offer a "second to none" service to the public.

GOVERNMENT CRISIS.

(By Thomas B. Morgan — United Press Staff Correspondent).

ROME, Nov. 11.—Faced with what many believe to be a serious Governmental crisis on the eve of the assembling of Parliament which meets to-morrow, Premier Mussolini to-day addressed a gathering of Fascist and pro-Fascist deputies and declared that all was well.

"Despite unrest among the working classes and the sporadic incidents of November 4th (Italian armistice day) the fact is that order has not been seriously disturbed," the Fascist Premier declared.

"The nation continues working in accelerated rhythm."

Armistice Day Service Held on Sunday Evening—Leo Bush Won the Marathon Race for Third Successive Year.

CAMPBELLFORD, November 11. — A large crowd gathered at half-past eight in the Regent Theatre, Campbellford, on Sunday night, for the armistice services. Major J. M. Bygott was in the chair. Captain Fisher of the Salvation Army, read the hymns, the band leading the singing.

Rev. W. Elliott, pastor of the Methodist church, led in prayer.

Mr. W. Henson then favored the audience with the solo, with "The Trumpeter."

Rev. G. C. Clarke, rector of Christ Church, said there is always a danger that we forget what the soldiers have done for us. But we are not apt to forget as long as we have such gatherings as these. He gave a few thoughts on the Bible verse, "Let us run with patience the race that is set before us," laying aside that which would hinder, selfishness and thoughtlessness.

The audience then enjoyed a duet "The Battle Eve," by Mr. Collison, and Mr. Parish.

Major Bygott then introduced Col. Boggs. He said we are liable to forget what the boys suffered and did for us, and we ought always to keep in our minds the memory of the men, said Col. Bogg. He told of several incidents of the war coming under his notice, and of the wonderful bravery of the soldiers, and the miraculaus victory that was won over the Germans. Col. Boggs received very hearty applause.

The chairman then made a few remarks and closed them with moving a vote of thanks to Captain Hyland for the use of the Regent Theatre, and asked the audience to show their appreciation, which they did by a hearty clapping of hands.

The meeting closed with the hymn "Abide with me," and the National Anthem.

The following officers attended the meetings at Havelock and Campbellford: Col. F. D. Boggs, Major Belford, Major Webb, Major Bygott, Captain Quinn, Captain Hyland, Capt Kelley, Capt. Pearce, Lieuts, Hircock, Pepino, Evans, Mack, Sergeant, Belfort and Holcombe.

Twelve boys started out on the Annual Marathon Race on Thanksgiving Day in Campbellford, namely Leo Bush, Berthold McPherson, Harold Dooker, Gerald Plumpton, Thornton Ibey, Percy Bland, George Smith, Eric Nicholas, James Heptonstall, Jack Crawford, Teddy Ilaf, John Poulton. The distance to run was five miles. Leaving Wood's Drug Store corner, they went to West's corners, turned one concession south and coming in on the Grand Road by A. E. Caddy's back to the Herald office.

Besides the silver cup, there were five other prizes given. The winners being: 1st, Leo Bush, 2nd, Thornton Ibey; 3rd, Jack Crawford; 4th, John Poulton; 5th, Percy Bland, 6th, Berthold McPherson.

The prizes have not been selected and the list will be given later.

An accident happened to one of the boys running. James Heptonstall was tripped and fell on his arm, hurting it so that he had to return to town and have the doctor attend it.

In the large number of cars, returning from the race, two of them ran against each other doing some damage to the fenders of one of them.

Leo Bush wins the Silver Cup for the third successive year. His time for the five miles was thirty-one minutes.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. McDonald and daughter, Lily, and friend, Lena Hendry, motored to Campbellford and spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Neil Thompson.

Mr. Harry Boyd, of Toronto, spent the Thanksgiving holidays at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. Boyd, Margaret street.

Mr. and Mrs. Yorke of Corbyville are spending a few days with their daughter, Mrs. D. A. Montgomery, Tice street.

PULL-ON GLOVES.

The light or fancy glove is not nearly so much in evidence as the pull-on model of heavy kid or antelope that matches the stockings.

UNIQUE AND PRETTY.

This picturesque and feminine little frock departs from the straight and narrow and certainly no one could mind it in the least. It is of lustrous black satin with basque waist and full skirt with a corsage of roses in natural color appliqued on the waist and bands of rose colored velvet on the skirt. About the hips is a bit of embroidery in gold thread.

COUNT IN AMERICA.

Husband of Millicent Rogers Is Very Non-Committal.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—(United Press). —Count Halm von Hoogstraeten, husband of Millicent Rogers, New York heiress, arrived here to-day and sat in the lobby of the Ritz Hotel, ostenstatiously reading a letter with an American post mark. The count refused to reply to questions as to whether he was on his way to America, and whether a reconciliation with Millicent and her parents, Colonel and Mrs. H. H. Rogers, is imminent.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestents

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

AN EASY WAY TO BECOME MINISTER

Organization at Los Angeles Issued Certificates For $150.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press.—Nation wide investigation of activities of more than a dozen purported spiritualist church organizations will follow issuance Friday night of criminal conspiracy warrants for ten officers and directors of National Independent Spirintualist Association, inc., and discovery among documents, seized at head-quarters of the concern of ordination certificates signed in blank from church corporations in half dozen states.

Indicating wholesale business even far beyond enormous scope already revealed, finding of certificates brought about hurried telegrams from city prosecutors office to officials throughout the country seeking information as to reputation and credibility of associations involved.

Criminal conspiracy and lesser offences are charged in warrants totalling nearly fifty, issued for the Directors of the Association and the clairvoyants. To-day, the police say, will complete the rounding up the defendants, many of them advertising clairvoyants. Warrants reveal that to become a minister of the gospel with all functions of office was a mere matter of $150, price or "ordination."

For $150 also went a long neatly engrossed certificate similar to mining stock certificate.

Among the new organizations to make their appearance in the field of inquiry are: "Church of Eternal Truth, Christ Spiritualist Church of San Francisco, Second Spiritual Church of San Francisco, the Church of Occult Thought, Los Angeles and Bodies bearing similar names.

All of these organizations are ordaining spiritualist ministers under various corporate constitutions and by-laws the prosecutor has discovered. How many thousands of persons have been victimized in addition to the large file list already in his possession as result of the N. I. S. raids there can be no telling. Nearly all of these organizations, prosecutor has found, have their centres in California Corporate Statutes with respect to non profit associate bodies.

WARSAW BUILDINGS BURNED TO GROUND

Barns and Contents a Total Loss, Also Stock.

WARSAW, Nov. 11.—On Monday evening the barns of Mr. Harold Darling were destroyed by fire from an unknown cause. The fire was discovered burning in the centre of the barn and strenuous efforts to save some of the contents were futile. In addition to the season's crop of grain, hay, straw, the loss includes three horses, seven cows, pigs, poultry and nearly all of the implements, including buggy, sleighs, etc. A small amount of insurance was carried. The house was saved. The farm is situated about two miles east of Warsaw.

Empire Marches On.

Armistice Day is a day for review. There are a great many people, pessimists, who believe the great British Empire is ready to fall to pieces. Talks of independence and autonomy are small matters to us who have served. We are optimistic regarding the British Empire, for we have marched shoulder to shoulder with units of the British Army long known and renowned in history; and with our cousins from Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. We have gradually become bound in union and in enthusiasm of what a great empire ours was, is, and is yet to be.

It is a day of reckoning. The settlement and treatment of the returned men is not yet finished and will not be finished till the last man who gave his service in the Great War has passed to his last reward. Canada has done a great deal, for a country with a small population and few developed sources of wealth. Perhaps she has even accomplished great things for her returned men. But we ask you not yet to forget the returned man is still with you, and so far as the effects of service are concerned, his needs must be met.

Zero Hour's Best Men.

Digressing to denouce the practice he said prevailed of discharging returned soldiers from hospitals because of breaches of the rules, General Ross told his audience that the best men when zero hour sent them over the top were often the most troublesome at rest billets. Men are today being thrust out of hospital because they got drunk once or twice or were awol for 20 minutes. He told of a man who was contstantly in trouble behind the line, but was twice recommended for the D.C.M. for service in attacks. Can you expect him to be an angel here? But because he is not, is that any reason why he should not be given the treatment his war service demands? He has earned it and it is his right. I want to ask you people on whom we depended so much, judge these men by their service; not by their conduct.

"You should remember the great army of Canadian dead because of the honor they have brought to the great British race. Today we stand in communion with the spirits of those who have passed away. I wish to speak a word of encouragement through the sorrow of those whose boys lie at the front. At Vimy Ridge 5700 wounded Canadians passed through the clearing station for treatment and I never heard one expressing regret for what had happened to him.

General Ross spoke a commendatory word on the work of the chaplains with the Canadian forces. No Canadian soldier, he said, passed away without a chaplain to speak a word of encouragement to him.

Pierced the Line.

From the day the news flew over the world that the Canadians held the line there were many days when the word "Canada" became known and honored all over the earth. In March, 1918, when the great German attack swept over some of our armies, men and women wondered what the end would be, and whether the British name would be scratched off the scroll of the world's history. Canada did not fail in that crisis, and on August 8, when 'flu had almost decimated the whole British army, when a selection was made of troops to go into that final thrust it was found that the Canadian Corps was up to strength. On August 8 the Canadian Corps was made the needle of that great attack. On our right was the strongest French corps that could be selected and on our left was our cousins from Australia. At zero hour the Canadians swept over the front line and broke it for the first time—shattered is so that the Germany army never assembled again to fight effectively. That day brought nearer the Armistice, and Canada was first in the attack. At the Drocourt line the Canadians were again chosen as the spear head and they there fought the last real battle of the war.

"If you had nothing else to remember but Canada's work on August 8 and 26 you have enough to make Canadians proud for generations to come," General Ross declared.

Still Hold the Line

We remember today our fallen comrades. They are still holding the line, there in the fields of Flanders. Their spirits are in communion with all the Empires armies. They are watching today what we are doing if we are holding the line. The stability of Canada depends on the men of the Canadian Corps.

Let us have a little pride in victory; let us remember our heroic dead, but to be a great people we must be a religious people. There is a God above Who, will stay, with us. This fact has made us great in the past and will help us in the future.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P.

Mr. Bradbrun, rising to speak after the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee.." He said I believe we are closer to God because we are here to do honor to the memory of the men who lies in Flanders' Fields at peace with their Maker.

The Provincial member for West Peterborough expressed pleasure in the knowledge that the city's war memorial is actually in preparation, plans having been approved and the contract let.

Lieut.-Col. Price.

Lieut.-Col. Price introduced by Mr. Bradburn as the man who mobilized the 204th Battalion in Toronto in the face of difficulties, and took it overseas, congratulated the veterans on their magnificent turnout and splendidly conducted ceremonies. "It is a great treat and opportunity," he said, "the citizen has to see the veterans form up—those who have actually borne the brunt of the war. It brings us to the biggest point of exhiliration when we think of those tremendous sacrifices our men made in the great conflict closed six years ago. It is to men like General Ross and these veterans with medals on their breasts that we owe what we have today in Canada and the British Empire. Men of all shades of politics may fight each other on the hustings, but when it comes to dear old Canada and those who have performed services for it, we are all one.

What were we in Canada before the war?—We had had a great era of prosperity. Your city was growing with all other cities in Canada, and we were rather proud of ourselves—not, however, for our service or sacrifice for humanity or for our country. Tell me what great sacrifice you or your people had made up to that time. Great Britain had carried the flag of freedom to all parts of the world, taking up nations, low in education and morals and building them into sturdy powers. Great Britain was the great policing force of the world. It was our pride to have the Union Jack fly over us, but outside our service in the Boer war and in 1866 and 1885 there had been no outstanding position taken by our country. We were lulled into security by prosperity. We thought nothing could happen to mar our peace.

Then came the chastening hand of God. If you and I believe in the great Divinity of the Almighty we must take out of all catastrophes that which will help us to have faith in the human race and its destinies.

"What shall Canada do?" was the question asked.

Everywhere today where you see the medals of the boys who answered the call you see what Canada did."

Immortal Roll of Honor

The boys who had fallen placed their names on an immortal roll, the speaker said, and there is nothing too good for the mothers and wives who have lost their loved ones.

Those who returned from overseas service often grumble, but that is scarcely the way to look at it. "You had a sacrifice to make overseas and you have a continuing one here. Many a boy came back disheartened to find others away ahead of him at school and desk. You can't overcome the natural law that you have lost four years training. You must obey the natural law and buckle in just where you left off, and that's your sacrifice."

To the young men who have just entered the militia, Col. Price said it seems a long way when they look at the old veterans of fifty and sixty years ago. "But there's a crowd of veterans here today wearing medals—veterans who came out of the war six years ago. Some day they will be sitting up in the gallery like our pals of '66, and you young chaps will be holding their places. I hope you won't be wearing medals, for I hope there won't be another war.

You must look with pride on those who have fought so tremendous a fight and are now going to carry us on to victory in civilian life."

Col. Price remarked that he does not believe in the promiscuous rearing of war memorials, but believes in the erection of a monument at a central point in the municipality where all citizens can gather to remember Armistice Day.

Rev. Capt. Costello.

Rev. (Captain) Paul Costello of St. Peter's Cathedral was introduced as an overseas padre, beloved by his men.

He was given an ovation, and his bright opening sentences were greeted with clapping and cheers.

"This is the first time since 1919", he said whimsically, "that I have had occasion to put on this old suit, and I had my troubles in getting into it. (laughter). In fact I missed the parade. (renewed laughter).

"I am proud of being one of Canada's veterans and pleased to be associated with the Great War Veterans' Association of Peterborough. It is an honor to me personally, because I am among the willing veterans who went through mud and fire and water and upheld the great principles of the greatest country under the sun—Canada."

The message he had for the gathering, Captain Costello said, was the message that might be sent back by the men in whose memory the cenotaph is erected: "Honor God; Honor the King."

"Consider the fifty thousand dead; Canada's very best manhood, who have nurtured the soil of old France and Belgium as it was never nurtured before. If those fifty thousand men rose up today they would say to you: 'Fellow veterans, love God.' It does me a great deal of good to hear Brigadier General Ross say to you to be religious men; for where there is not religion that country has not the solid foundation it should have, and it will turn to anarchy.

"The second great principle is is 'Honor the King.' Obey the laws of our country. Give unto Caesar the things that are Caesars, but do not forget to give unto God the things that are God's.

We owe no man anything as citizens of Canada. We have the finest country on the face of the earth. In the Name of God let us build it up, always and foremost remembering that God is above us.

"In honoring our comrades who have fallen let us never minimize their deeds. They gave the best they had — their very life's blood — for what we have in this country today. In standing up for God we are standing up for them. 'Obey God's commandments', those fifty thousand Canadian dead tell us. 'Obey the laws of the country; stand by the country.' We have room in Canada for millions of people, and we welcome every good type of citizen. But when God's commands are cast aside, then confusion takes place and wars come. We envy no man outside."

The speaker told of the religious lives of the great leaders of the Allied armies, and said that on August 8 when the Canadian army pierced the German line, the Generalissimo was on his knees asking God to bestow success on the Canadian forces.

Never a day passes, Captain Costello concluded, but the men of that legion 50,000 strong come up before him. On Monday morning he would say the greatest mass he could say for the men who lie in Flanders covered over by poppies, that peace and rest might be theirs.

Any SKIN TROUBLES In Your Home?

Then Zam-Buk is your surest means of securing once more perfectly sound tissue and a blemish-free skin. Zam-Buk owes its signal triumph over skin disease to its unique herbal composition. This rare antiseptic balm expels all harmful germs that have secured lodgment beneath the cuticle, banishes sores and eruptions, and grows healthy new skin in a way done by no mere pore-clogging ointment or fatty salve.

ECZEMA ON HANDS.—Mr. J. E. Cusick, of 349, Wilson St., Hamilton (Ont.), says:—"Every winter eczema appeared on the back of my hands. The intense itching and pain was most severe, and the disease got so bad, I was unable to work. Even a sample box of Zam-Buk proved its worth, and I at once bought a supply. I never could have believed if I had not experienced it, how quickly Zam-Buk completely healed my hands."

BURNS & SCALDS.—Mr. E. Webster, of 519, Seigneurs St., Montreal, says:—"As I was lifting a pan of boiling water off the stove, my son Eddie ran towards me, and knocked the pan upwards, severely scalding his neck. We tried several so-called remedies, but they all failed to give him relief. We then applied Zam-Buk and this acted like a charm. It drew away the pain and soon healed Eddie's terrible scald."

POISONED HAND.—Mrs. Geo. Boorman, of 906, Selkirk Avenue, Winnipeg, says:—"I cut my left hand while using a pair of scissors. The deep ugly wound bled so profusely, and so long, I was afraid an artery had been severed. Inflammation set in, and my thumb turned black with poison. Zam-Buk soothed the acute pain directly, drew out all inflammation and discoloration, and soon healed the wound."

Stomach Bloated With Gas Was His Worry

Mr. D. Zelinka of 15 East 26th Street, N. Y., writes: "I want you to know that no day passed for months and months that did not find my stomach bloated with gas and shooting pains darting through my stomach. I felt hungry at times, but as soon as I started eating, food nauseated me and I became bilious. My tongue was coated, had bad taste and breath was offensive. I never thought this could all be from my liver, but my liver it must have been, for the very first day after taking your wonderful Carter's Little Liver Pills I felt like a new person. The small dose makes them easy to take, too."

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1924.

SIX YEARS AGO.

This morning at two minutes to 11 o'clock Britishers the world over stood silently for one hundred and twenty seconds as a tribute to the memory of the men who died in the Great War.

That was ended six years ago—yet now fresh are all the details of the memorable eleventh day of November, 1918.

What citizen of Peterborough will forget that wild day of rejoicing, the first shrill sounding of the factory whistles, the clang of church bells, the little knot of Salvation Army bandsmen in the cold grey light of the late autumn morning playing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow," the impromptu parades at first and the better organized ones later in the day, the blare of martial music, the shouting, the firecrackers, the flags, the unrestrained exuberance of a people mad with joy?

The more observant will remember, too, the minor note of sadness, the tears running down the faces of those who had lost loved ones, of those who realized that in the glad home-coming that this celebration presaged there would be no re-union in which they would take part.

A wonderful day, November 11th, 1924.

THE G.W.V.A.'S PART.

Once again it becomes necessary to thank the G.W.V.A. for furnishing a community opportunity for the observance of Armistice Day.

The celebration of this most outstanding anniversary would, it is to be feared, have fallen flat had it not been for the programme so well planned and so successfully carried out under the auspices of the Peterborough branch of the association.

The sale of poppies enabled citizens to wear this bright-coloured token of remembrance, while the church parade on Sunday morning and the memorial service in the Grand Opera House in the afternoon were two functions that drove home the significance of the occasion.

There is no particular reason why the whole task of commemorating the end of the war and the sacrifice of the men who laid down their lives should be left to the war veterans.

They might well feel that they had done their part while the hostilities were raging, and that in the piping days of peace they might be given a comfortable seat in the grandstand, as it were, while their home communities assumed the responsibility of observing the anniversary.

But, fortunately, the ex-service men have taken a different attitude, and each year they supply a fitting programme for the celebration of Armistice Day.

For the success of the 1924 celebration the local G.W.V.A. deserves the thanks of the community.

THE HERO OF VIMY.

The citizens of Peterborough, no doubt, have received with pleasure the announcement that the city is to be favoured with an official visit by Lord Byng of Vimy, Governor-General of Canada, who is to be the guest of this community on November 28th.

A visit from the King's representative in Canada is always a most interesting event, but in this case Peterborough will not only have an opportunity to welcome Canada's Governor-General but also to honour one of the outstanding British leaders in the World War, and moreover a General under whose clever leadership the Canadian army in France won imperishable fame.

Baron Byng's record in the war was a brilliant one, and no chapter was more creditable than the capture of Vimy Ridge when he commanded the Canadian corps.

He has proven as successful as the King's representative in Canada as he was as a war general, and has lost no opportunity of acquainting himself with the problems of the Dominion and of studying the conditions in various sections of the country.

On his present tour he will visit a number of Eastern Ontario centres, and Peterborough will be glad that this city is to be included in his itinerary.

The hero of Vimy should be given a welcome fitting his official position, his own personality and his war record.

THE "NIGHT-RIDERS."

If the reports of the activities of the Prohibition Vigilance Committee in Haliburton are correct, the Attorney-General should have something to say in the matter.

It is stated that a party of hunters en route to their camp was waylaid by the "vigilantes" and six gallons of liquor confiscated.

The right of hunting parties to have liquor at their camps, involving, of course, the question of whether or not a hunting camp is a legal place within the meaning of the Ontario Temperance Act, does not enter into the situation.

What does matter is that a band of citizens with a misguided conception of their duty have apparently usurped the prerogation of the law's rerepsentatives.

That kind of conduct cannot be tolerated in this Province.

Ontario wants no Ku Klux Klan methods in her law administration, whether in dealing with the Ontario Temperance Act or in enforcing any other measure on the statute books.

If over-zealous prohibitionists actually seized a quantity of liquor, as alleged, they should be arrested immediately on a charge of highway robbery.

The Ontario Temperance Act must be enforced in respect to the expressed will of the majority, but it must be enforced by the officers of the law—not by fanatics who think they are justified in taking the law into their own hands.

The Attorney-General should institute an immediate inquiry into this Haliburton story.

There must be no further outrages of that kind in Ontario.

The slogan of the new British Government is: "Coats off and no arm chairs." Sounds as if it might have been borrowed from the Labour party.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS.

Towards the close of October a more hopeful view was taken of the business situation, as a result of a much greater liquidation of debt in every part of the Dominion than at that time last year, says the monthly letter of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Some allowance has to be made for the fact that all over the Dominion the actual proceeds from the harvest have been unusually late in coming to hand. Nevertheless, cash payments on account of outstanding obligations have been received in larger volume than for some years past. Mild weather in Eastern Canada has militated against the sale of many articles of merchandise, but there is no doubt but that with the coming of colder weather business generally will improve.

It does not appear to be generally realized that all over the Dominion the returns from the crops have been above the average. In the Maritime Provinces, for example, apples and potatoes have given a bumper yield, while in Ontario, generally, the crops have been much better than for a number of years. The yield of grain from the Prairie Provinces is less than a year ago, but the advance in prices has made the total cash proceeds approximately equal, while the cost of handling the crop is considerably less. Another hopeful feature is the good demand for our dairy products during a season when the pasturage has been more than ordinarily luxuriant.

In Europe progress seems to have been made towards a more orderly state of affairs, which should help to make the foreign market for Canadian products more reliable. It is also cheering to note that the foreign trade of the United Kingdom continues to expand. British imports for September were £27,624,419 greater than a year ago, while there was an increase in the excess of imports amounting to £16,731,006. For the nine months ending September exports amounted to £692,149,174, or about £50,000,000 more than for the corresponding period in 1923, and the excess of imports was £217,297,309. To the United Kingdom, as well as to practically all other countries abroad, Canadian products are finding their way in growing volume.

During the summer months there was a steady decrease in the number of workmen employed by Canadian industries, but it would appear that towards the end of October this tendency was arrested. At many industrial points factory employment has shown a slight increase and, generally speaking, there is a more optimistic sentiment in anticipation of larger purchases by rural districts, in the majority of which conditions have obviously improved. There is no indication, however, that business will be buoyant, as the public appears to be exercising more than usual care in the matter of personal expenditures. The disposition towards economy is particularly marked in rural districts, where it extends not only to personal expenditures but also to the outlay for farm implements. It may be noted that in some of the best agricultural districts of the West not a single binder has been sold this season, and in practically all districts the demand for agricultural machinery has been confined to necessary purchases.

THE CHINESE SCREEN.

The departure of Wu-Pei-Fu, probably for Shanghai, and the adhesion of several of his generals to Feng-Yu-Hsiang, the "Christian General" now in possession of Peking, may serve to clear somewhat the muddy waters of China's civil war. Wu, in retiring to Shanghai, apparently seeks the protection of his ally, Chi, who so recently drove General Lu out of that great commercial city. Whether he will find him still an ally when he gets there, is something on which no one conversant with recent events in China would like to bet. Feng was in ally when the war opened.

It is easy to infer that there is an understanding between Feng, the Christian, and Chang, the Manchu ex-bandit. But the inference might be wrong. Feng seems to be a powerful general on his own account, and he may think that he can replace Wu as the master of central China without calling in the help of Chang. Chang's attack in the north undoubtedly offered him his opportunity to stab Wu in the back and so secure his mantle; but if he collects enough strength from the shattered legions of the Wu armies, he may easily decide to risk telling Chang to go back to Manchuria and leave Peking to him.

All accounts from China describe Feng as a remarkable man. He has been one of the most effective supports of the Wu regime. His army—small but well equipped and drilled—was not kept as an idle mob of soldiers, not so very much different from the bandit class into which most Chinese provincial armies so easily relapse, but was taught to work and compelled to produce when it was not fighting. To a fair extent, it was a self-sustaining army in peace-time; and this may account for the fact that Feng seems to have none of the troubles of his fellow-Generals through being unable to keep their soldiers paid. Feng's soldiers earned their own pay.

The talk of an all-China Conference seems to come chiefly from Sun-Yat-Sen, who is not very much considered by any faction in the north. Those who know China best say that a strong central government is impossible. They say, further, that it never existed. In the days of the Manchu Emperors, the Manchus ruled—not by a single powerful hand—but by skillfully playing one province against another. The provinces were always practically independent. Diplomacy and not bayonets is what is needed at Peking.

Sun-Yat-Sen is a western idealist, and naturally dreams very sincerely of a united China. He is supported by a group of idealists, mainly centred in Canton and Shanghai. But even in Canton his power is intermittent and based—when it exists—upon a crude militarism. But there is little talk of union from the men of power in the north, except union under each of them. Nothing short of outside pressure can drive China together into a solid and formidable national unit; but it is only fair to say that "white" invasions, insolences, interferences and insults may some day amount to the necessary outside pressure.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

And now what about that Chistmas shopping?

Flags were as scarce in Peterborough over the week-end as cheers in Germany six years ago today.

As a contemporary puts it, some people buy spare automobile parts and others live near railway crossings.

Perhaps some of our weather sharps can tell us whether that Arctic owl seen near Woodstock is a sign of a cold winter.

It looks as if fight promoters may shortly be able to book a scrap between Hon. G. H. Ferguson and J. A. McCausland, M.P.P.

A THOUGHT.

THAT BELONGED TO YOU.

A tired body can do little toward bolstering a tired brain. When a body is worn from lack of necessary rest—when th enight before casts its depressing influence on the day at hand—when you lack physical power, you put a big load on your mental energy.

The night before belonged to you, but to-day you are selling a service that belongs to someone else; and depending largely on what you did with the night before (that belonged to you—tells what you will do with the day that belongs to someone else.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Novemebr 11 (Canadian Press), — Smashing high price records for the season took place in the wheat market yesterday as a result of buying rushes due largely to a sharp advance in Liverpool quotations and to the continued adverse crop reports from Argentina and Australia.

Closing prices here on wheat were strong at 17-8 to 33-8 cents net gain, December $1.53 5-8 to $1.53.7-8 and May $1.60 to $1.60 1-2, with corn 7-8 to 13-8 cents up, oats showing 3-4 to 7-8 cent advance, and provisions ranging from 20 cents decline to an equal upturn.

Both the December delivery of wheat and the May delivery as well went quickly beyond any top point heretofore reached this season. Notwithstanding that heavy selling to realise profits was encountered on the bulges in price the market showed unusual power to absorb offerings and finished either at the day's top level or not to exceed 3-8 cent down. Most of the selling was based on the fact that values were up about 16 cents compared with last week's lowest figures.

Special significance was attached to the circumstance that the Liverpool wheat market yesterday had risen about 5 cents and was leading the advance in all other markets, despite immense world shipments, chiefly clearances from this country.

It was estimated that new export business yesterday amounted to one million bushels or more. An increase of 4,850,000 bushels in the United States visible supply total failed to bring about any lasting setback in prices.

HOT WATER AND CALOMEL

Cleans and Tones Up the Whole System.

You need not fear any bad aftereffects, no salts or Seidlitz are needed when you take the new tanol calomel. It is the best medicine in the world for headaches, indigestion, gas on the stomach, constipation, high blood pressure, bad taste in mouth, rheumatism, poisoned system, etc. One tanol calomel tablet before meals or two at bedtime and a cup or two of hot water first thing in the morning will wash all the previous day's wastes, gases and toxins from the system making you feel better, and better, work better, digest beter, and be 100 per cent. better in every way. Get a few of these simple tablets from Webber's Drug Store, and you will be surprised how effective they are.

AT Y.W.C.A. POOL.

There was a splendid attendance at the Y.W.C.A. Pool on Friday evening for the closing swimming exhibition of the season, and much enthusiasm was manifested over the excellent work of the swimmers, pupils of Miss C. Littlefield, who went through a series of difficult swimming tests with skilful despatch.

There were many competitors in every one of the tests.

The exhibition was opened by Mr. G. A. Gillespie, who spoke in eulogistic terms the good work done at the pool and of the appreciation felt by the girls for the conveniences afforded them at the "Y."

An examination for the silver award of merit, the senior prize of the Royal Life Saving Society, was taken with much success by Miss Eleanor Hiland and Miss Mary Dunlop, and Miss Hiland also won the silver cup given by Mrs. E. E. Harvey to the swimmer winning the most points in all the contests.

In a number of the contests, prizes were presented to the second or the third successful competitor, a rule forbidding the award of more than one prize to the same person. The prizes were very dainty, and were donated by the members of the Swimming Pool Committee, and presented by the convenor, Miss E. Morrow.

A handsome silver cup and four sterling silver teaspoons engraved with the "Y" crest were given by Mrs. E. E. Harvey.

FINED $10.00 FOR BITING TWO GIRLS

Evidence is evidence, and a court had to inspect it all.

Ethel Bieleseld and Frances Cutrone, comely damsels both, were in Coney Island court testifying against William Patton, alleged to have bitten both girls painfully.

The evidence was all covered up, but Judge Folwell decided he would have to see it. Blushing, Ethel and Frances went into the judge's chambers to reveal the evidence, accompanied only by the court, the lawyers and the court stenographers.

After examing the evidence closely, Judge Folwell fined Patton $10, and immediately afterward Paton was served with papers of a $10,000 damage suit.

The evidence now goes to the jury.

Is 10% Too Much?

When a man has 100% of his income with which to supply his family's needs and his own, shouldn't he arrange it

90%—as a maximum for present expenditures

10%—as a minimum for care of family in case of his death or for his own old age if he lives.

Even the small proportion of 10% of a man's salary will continue a goodly amount of income to his family under our Jubilee Monthly Income Policy.

For example, a man age 30, earning $250 a month—by investing 10% in a London Life Jubilee Policy can guarantee to his wife (aged 30) at his death, an income of $100 a month as long as she lives.

If you are not adequately insured, your family carries the risk of your death by accident or disease, not yourself. Transfer the risk to the London Life and provide for "the monthly cheque that never fails."

GAVE PRESENTATION.

Bible Class of George Street Church Honor Mrs. T. Clements.

The Co-Workers Bible Class of George Street Church met at the home of Mrs. A. Allison 877 Water Street, on Thursday evening, and presented Mrs. Thomas Clements with a beautiful silver cake plate and the following address:

Dear Mrs. Clements,

We, your friends and classmates are desirous of expressing a slight degree of the esteem and the affection we entertain for you as by your sojourn amongst us and it is with regret we learn of your removal from our midst. We therefore ask you to accept this cake plate, not for its monetary worth, but as expressing our sincere kindliness of feeling we as a class have for you. We trust and pray that in the home your choice has led you that you may meet with success and friends who will appreciate you as much as those you are leaving behind.

Signed on behalf of the Co-Workers' Bible Class, George Street Methodist Church, 6th November, 1924.

Mrs. Clements made a suitable reply, thanking her friends for the gift and well wishes.

After a most enjoyable time was spent dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and the evening closed by singing "For she's a jolly good fe" w."

TWO NEW FALL PLAYS

By ALICE ROHE.

NEW YORK (United Press), Nov 11—There seems to be a decided penchant for domestic birds on the part of the Dramatists Theatre, Inc. Last year they swung their most laudable undertaking into success with "The Goose Hangs High." This year they hav followed that hit with "Cock of the Roost."

The new play at the Liberty Theatre is by Rida Johnson Young, which is of course in line with the intent of the organization of giving the Americ an dramatist a chance, even more interesting than the production of Miss Young is the promise of an approaching play by that most entertaining of dramatists, James Forbes of "The Chorus Lady" and "The Famous Mrs. Fair," fame.

Indeed, Forbes directs the productions of the Dramatists Theatre, Inc., of which Edward Childs Carpenter is president. In the present instance he has done an excellent job in the way of direction with a play which has what is, for lack of better qualification, called a popular appeal. It centres around a cocksure young man who preaches the doctrine of eliminating fear. He demonstrates his theory. Only at the last, before the thought of losing the girl he loves, he wavers. He is pulled out of his fear in time, by his everyday disciples and the play ends happily. Of course, modern life, with its commercial success in contrast with the success of art and beauty and love, is brought out in amusing and stirring dramatic incidents as well as humorous characterization.

It does seem too bad that 'Star' Young's first venture as a playwright should have been so badly acted. While "The Saint," produced by the Provincetown Players at the Greenwich Village Theatre, is not by any means a good drama, there is enough beauty of thought and of lines to warrant a better cast. Yet there is one thing which more than justifies a visit to the Greenwich Village Theatre for those who yearn for perfect realistic visualization on the stage. I very much doubt if anything finer than the Good Friday procession has been seen on the American stage. This may seem unwarranted enthusiasm, but for conception and direction I would like to see its equal. That slowly moving procession with its discordant music, the bearers struggling under the burden of the dead Christ's image, and of the tinse led Madonna, the shuffling veiled figures—passing as it does at the beginning and the finish of "The Saint's" wordly drama—it is one of the most gripping and stirring bits of realism to lend itself to suggested symbolism.

In this Mexican border setting, Helen Freeman, as Marietta, temptress of the student who leaves the monastic school to follow her to the circus, screams her way unpardonably. For here is a play that depends upon its wistful quality, its peoetic suggestions, its elemental feelings, struggling with the spirit. Louis Casavant, as the showman, is another menace to the human ear drum. Leo Carillo, playing the student (The Saint) of Marie Ouspenskaya of the Moscow Art Company, is like a white finger on a black glove. An elaborately finished performance stands out in too striking relief against the rest of the acting. But the poetry of Stark's play, the stage sets, the music and, above all, that marvellous procession, cannot be entirely dimmed.

EPINARD.

The owner of Epinard refused $300,000 recently for his famous horse. The price amazes people. Bitter comparisons are made with the value of a man. But there's only one Epinard. At 4 per cent interest, $300,000 would yield an income of $12,000 a year. Any man who makes that is "worth" as much as Epinard.

Multiply your year's income by 25 and you have your actual financial worth on a 4 per cent basis. Are you guarding and caring for your body and mind as much as you would a machine, house or business of the same value.

GIANT.

The tallest building in the world is being erected—not in New York, but in Rome, Italy. It will rise 408 feet higher than the Woolworth Building.

The gigantic structure will contain 4,500 rooms, 100 halls, theatre, gymnasiums, swimming pools, etc. It will be used mainly for sporting events and training athletes. Its name will be the Mole Lictoria. Building a Tower of Babel in the interests of sports rather than science is quite appropriate in our Generation. However, for one Mole Lictoria we have thousands of laboratories and universities.

Every dog has his day—but not every dog knows that he's having it.

THE BAT NOT A BIRD; IT IS A MAMMAL

Although it is rarely seen except when in flight, the bat is not a bird. It is a mammal, and zoologists say it is, in physical structure, man's nearest relative amongst British animals. In many respects it is a very extraordinary creature.

Though a mammal, it possesses the bird's faculty of flight. Yet, unlike any member of the bird family, it hangs when asleep head downwards. It is also hibernating in habit. Its sense organs are a perfect triumph of nature. The animal appears to live in an absolute bath of vibrations. In the dusk of the evening bats waken from sleep, and may be watched winging their way, one after the other, in the same direction. Investigation proves that they go unerringly to the place where, upon that particular evening, most abound. How the information is communicated to them remains a mystery. It would almost seem as if wireless news gets to them, and as if Nature had here anticipated man once more.

Not Blind.

"Blind as a bat" is a familiar saying, but there are grounds for believing that it is founded upon a mistake. Should its young be attacked by a rat, the parent bat will defend them with a dexterity and spirit which argue great powers of vision. The eyes of the bat are probably adapted specially for its nocturnal habits, and it has been noticed to fly in the daytime with its eyelids almost closed, just as we ourselves almost shut our eyes when observing some illuminant of great brightness. But it is practically certain that the bat has keen sight.

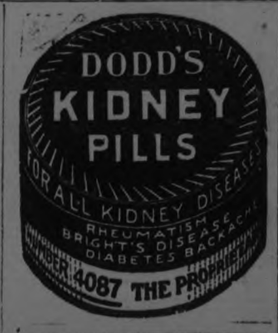
Playing With Children.

During a summer evening bats will intervene in children's games, and will nose-dive around their heads, just failing to crash on the ground by skilful flying, and affording wonderful examples of perfect calculation and exact observation. A bystander once tried to capture such a bat with a white cloth, but without success. They the party employed sticks to drive the bats away. This only seemed to make the creatures enter with increased zest into what they apparently regarded as an exhilarating pastime. The sticks were made to whirl as fast as possible, but the bats dashed in and out of the vortex with ease and complete safety. So far from their sight being defective, they seem to require for the exciting exercise a particularly keen vision. One has related how a small bedroom in a house which he was visiting seemed to become the headquarters of a multitude of bats every evening. The window was usually left open after nightfall. No sooner had he retired to bed than leathern wings began to course up an down the room a few inches from his face. Sleep became impossible, and something had to be done. He frequently whipped the restricted space of the room for half an hour with a towel before he managed to capture a miscreant. Although the window was open, not a single bat ever left the room of its own accord. The animals appeared to possess a positive sense of humor, and they only seemed to revel the more keenly in the bright light which was put on in the room. Their tactics sometimes resembled the nose spin of an aeroplane, with the sudden flattening out when the desired descent had been duly accomplished.

Fine Senes.

Bats, however, evidently rely upon other means for guidance besides their eyes. As an experiment the eyes of a bat were onse sealed up temporarily and painlessly by a naturalist, and the creature was released in a room across which fine wires were stretched at intervals. The sightless animal flew up and down, but never once collided with the wires. It looks as if bats may possess some sense of perception akin to that of many blind people when they are walking along an unknown road bounded by a wall or hedge. It is also known that the bat's sense of smell and touch is extremely acute, and this may perhaps account for its extraordinary cleverness in finding out the best hunting grounds.

Bats have wonderful powers of concealing themselves during the day. Perhaps the most remarkable instance of this is the experience of the pianotuner who once found a bat clinging to the wires of a piano. The cry of the bat is generally said to be the highest note audible to the human ear.



FASHIONS & FOIBLES
by Shirley Sharon

The two-piece frock with a tuck to break the straight skirt at the side is the French idea of the correct day dress for la jeune fille.

THOUGH not every boarding-school insists on a uniform, the best finishing schools demand a uniformly simple type of dress for school hours. The two-piece frock has replaced the middy dress and is really a trimmer, smarter version of it. Young girls like it for it is not too miss-ish since women, if they are sufficiently slender, wear the same garçonne style. It is made in jersey tubing, soft cashmere dress goods or light-weight flannel and can be trimmed with stitching, contrasting bands, collar and cuffs. Brown is smart with henna and navy blue can be stitched or trimmed with scarlet, emerald green, royal blue or rose.

1,500,000 PEOPLE AT NATIONAL PARK

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (United Press).—The lure of America's national parks and monuments attracted more than 1,500,000 people during the 1924 season, according to the Interior Department. By virtue of the fact that the attendance at parks this year was 160,000 in excess of last year, the Department believes that national reservations are steadily growing in popularity.

This new high in visitors was attained even though there was a decided dropping off in two California parks, due to outbreaks of the hoof and mouth disease, and reports of numerous forest fires which deterred many people from going to various other parks.

Rocky Mountain National Park, Colorado, with a visiting list of 224,211 people, headed the list as it did last year. Hot Springs, Ark., was next, with 164,175 visitors, and Mount Rainier, Wash., was a close third, with 161,483. Four other parks—Yellowstone, Yosemite, Grand Canyon, and Platt, Okla.—each were viewed by more than a hundred thousand visitors, and six of the parks showed a travel increase of 25 per cent. or more.

National monuments drawing the greatest number of visitors were Muir Woods, Cal., with an attendance of 92,391; Petrified Forest, Ariz., with 42,781, and Scott Bluffs, Neb., with 20,000. Capulin Mountain, N. Mex., showed the largest increase, in jumping from 1,000 in 1923, to 7,000 this past year, while the Devil's Tower, Wyo., had 7,800 this year against 3,000 last.

The Natural Bridges, Utah, drew 62 visitors. Considering that it required a saddle and pack trip of a little over brhundred miles to make the trip to the a idge and return, the Interior Department, considers attendance there "a remarkable record."

MAKING HOMES HOME-LIKE ON THE PRAIRIES.

Excellent results are being secured by the Tree Planting Division of the Interior Department with the planting of conifors in Western Canada. An inspection of the plantings shows that of the several varieties, a very high percentage have succeeded in establishing themselves. The species, and results are as follows:—

White spruce—planted 1916, height 6 ft. 93 per cent. living.

Lodgepole pine—planted 1916, height 7 ft. 2 in. 100 per cent. living.

White spruce—planted 1918, height 5 ft. 97 per ent. lihing.

Scotch pine—planted 1918, height 5 ft. 4 in. 94 per cent. living.

White spruce—planted 1922. 96 per cent. living.

Scotch pine—planted 1922. 94 per cent. living.

Undoubtedly these hardy evergreens are particularly suited to prairie planting, and, once established, seem withstand all kinds of neglect, though they respond readily to cultivation.

FRIENDS ATTEND SILVER WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. T. Kemp of Lindsay Were Married in Peterboro.

The silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. T. Kemp, celebrated on Friday evening, October 31st, Hallowe'en, at their home, 64 William street north, proved to be a most enjoyable event. Over fifty relatives and intimate friends from Lindsay and outside points were present for the celebration. The house was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves and flowers and garlands of orange and black, pumpkin heads and other symbols were in keeping with Hallowe'en.

Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Kemp and later the guests spent the evening dancing and playing games.

Among the guests were about ten or more who were present at the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Kemp, which took place at the bride's home in Peterboro on October 31st, 1899. Mr. J. C. Fowler, who acted as groomsman at the wedding 25 years ago, was also present at the silver wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Kemp have been residents of Lindsay for the last thirteen years.

Mr. and Mrs. Kemp were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts of silver.

Among the guests from out-of-town who assisted in the observance of the anniversary were the following: Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Roberts, Mrs. J. Flannery, Miss W. Kemp, Mr. and Mrs. H. Allin, Mr. and Mrs. W. Flannery, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Kendry, Mr. W. H. Lyons, all of Peterborough, also Mr. W. E. Greene, of Windsor.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmothers' time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays by asking any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur of Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore color and beauty to the hair.

Well-known druggists say it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applitd. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and gray.

PEACE KEYNOTE

continue to furnish M. Herriot with the most friendly and consistent support in the execution of a policy he himself had so largely facilitated. The Premier expressed full confidence that the London agreement would enable Germany to become a factor for peace and stability in Europe.

The British Government, continued the Prime Minister, welcomed the opportunity recently given to Germany to enter the League of Nations in a manner consistent with her dignity, and he trusted that the admission of Germany would not be long delayed.

Referring to the Arabian difficulty, he asserted the Government had no intention of departing from strict neutrality in the struggle for the holy places of Islam, nor did they intend, either directly or indirectly, to put themselves forward as mediators.

Regarding Russia and Egypt, the Government considered it premature to make any pronouncement as yet. They intended to ask Parliament to ratify the Jubaland convention with Italy, and they hoped to render even closer the present friendly relations with Italy.

"If any opportunity arises which, in our opinion, would make it possible for foreign influence to help China," the Premier declared, "we shall lose no time in consulting the other powers."

Empire Policy.

After lengthy reference to the difficulties in India, on which he hoped before long to make an announcement, Mr. Baldwin turned to Imperial and home affairs. He did not mention Singapore, or national defences, but said there were large questions of policy affecting the Dominions such as preference and defence which needed to be reviewed by the present Government. He also intimated that if the Dominions and the great industries were ready to do their part, the Government was ready to make provision for reopening the Wembley Exhibition next year.

Concluding with a general reference to home affairs, adverse trade and housing troubles, the Premier went on to say that the Government would do everything possible to improve the lot of the masses along the lines the country had hitherto pursued, and "not by changing the basis of out system, by which we should fall into a pit of poverty and misery."

The Air Minister, Sir Samuel Hoare, was able to re-assure the citizens of London that, thanks to the continuity of the policy of his predecessor, Lord Thomson, the air defence of British shores was substantially better than a year ago.

GOOD NEWS FOR BRONCHITIS SUFFERERS!

Deep-Seated Chest Troubles Yield to PEPS.

BRONCHITIS lays hold of the chest in a slow insidious way. Do not, therefore, neglect to take prompt measures to counteract the first symptoms of this ravaging ailment—the first difficulty in breathing, the occasional made-up feeling in the throat with its accumulations of phlegm. Be warned by that irritating cough and those frequently-returning colds.

Get a box of Peps, the well-known breathing remedy. After removing the silver wrapping place a Peps tablet on the tongue and breathe in the healing fumes as the tablet dissolves.

Peps are simply invaluable for allaying that teasing, tickling cough; for softening and loosening the phlegm, and soothing the irritated and semi-inflamed bronchial tubes. Every day as you breathe in the powerful germicidal fumes which are emitted from these Peps, a healing influence is extended deep into the lungs where liquid cough mixtures cannot penetrate.

The regular use of Peps at bedtime will ensure healthy slumber undisturbed by bouts of coughing. By day, the treatment should be continued on the assurance that the throat, bronchi and lungs are all being healed and strengthed by this medicine.

Peps are guaranteed to be absolutely free from opium, laudanum, chloral, morphia and any harmful ingredients of the old-fashioned cough medicines.

Dr. GORDON STABLES, M.D., C.M., writes:—"Fear every little cold. Keep Peps handy and you will ride triumphantly clear of bronchitis. Peps are invaluable for soothing and healing semi-inflamed bronchial tubes. Peps tablets are more of an inhalation, and go directly to the seat of injury."

Whilst PEPS are an expensive remedy to produce the demand has become so great that it has now been found possible to have the price reduced from 50c. to 25c. Get a box to-day! All druggists.

PEPS The Great Breatheable Remedy

DISCOVERED IN 1513.

Four hundred and eleven years ago an intrepid Spanish explorer and adventurer, Juan Ponce de Leon by name, first set foot on a land of luxuriant sub-tropic growth, known to-day as Florida.

Since that time, Florida has become perhaps the most alluring Winter Resort in the world. A warm-watered ocean offers bathing at its best; a few miles off-shore the monstrous and sporty Tuna and Tarpon await the more adventurous disciples of Izaak Walton; a marvellous beach fringed with exotic palms, broad motor highways, scores of green, velvet-smooth golf courses—the whole steeped in glorious sunshine and perfumed with the fragrance of fruit blossoms and sub-tropical flowers.

Nature has lavished her bounties on Florida, and man has moulded them for his convenience. There are facilities for every summer recreation—surf-bathing, deep sea fishing, boating, golfing, tennis, riding, motoring, bowling and dancing; beautiful hotels, splendid apartments and bungalows house the visitor in luxurious comfort.

Canadian National Railways can offer a splendid service in helping you plan your visit, together with many choices in routing. Any Agent will gladly supply full information and make your reservations. 11-19

CANADA'S OYSTER INDUSTRY

Oysters have been known and used as food from the periods of Greece and Rome. In many countries they are now, due to depletion of the oyster beds, almost a luxury. Canada has shared, in large measure, in this depletion, and what were at one time productive oyster areas are now supplying but a small proportion of the output of earlier years. Canada's total production of oysters in 1923 amounted to 22,949 barrels, while in 1910 it was 29,727 barrels, and in 1900, 46,226 barrels. In 1882, Prince Edward Island alone produced 57,042 barrels, the total Canadian output for that year being 66,646 barrels.

The great reduction in the output of Canadian oysters may be traced to several causes, says the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior. One of the chief of these is over-fishing, due to the high prices that were obtained. In the early years of the Canadian oyster fishery there was considerable indifference to its possibilities, oysters were used by few people, and then more as a novelty than as a staple article of food. In the meantime, however, improvements in transportation had made it possible to place the product on the inland markets, which at onse created a heavy demand. The at first locally abundant cheap oysters rose in price, and this incentive to greater production led to the search for and exploitation of all the possible oyster-bearing areas, until it was feared that the beds would be depleted and the oyster fishery pass into history.

On the Atlantic Coast of Canada oysters occur at many places—from Chaleur Bay, along the coasts of New Brunswick and of Nova Scotia to near the Straits of Canso, on both sides of Prince Edward Island, and in the Bras d'Or Lakes. At River Denys, on Bras d'Or Lakes, William Monbourguette, of Halifax, has a number of prolific beds, from which oysters are being shipped to Great Britain. The British importers place them on their oyster beds to asquire the flavor to which the trade in that country is accustomed, after which they are harvested and marketted.

New Brunswick is now the largest producer of oysters in Canada, and has been for some years. Last year the output of that province was 14,584 barrels, while in 1922, 10,753 barrels was produced.

Prince Edward Island, due to a number of cuases, has for some years been showing a reduced output of oysters There is evidence, however, according to the fisheries inspector for the island, that some of the beds, especially those of the Richmond Bay district, appear to be recovering. Large districts that were formerly heavy producers, are so badly silted that the spot cannot catch. The inspector reports that oyster culture work is much needed, and it is hoped that early attention may be given to the revival of the oyster industry, not only in Prince Edward Island, but also in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, where the possibilities of developing a large and profitable industry appear to be excellent.

The Dominion Government is establishing a fisheries school in Halifax fo which an appropriation of $70,000 has been made. Judging from an incident reported by the Prince Edward Island inspector, this should have beneficial results. It appears, according to his report, that "oyster beds in the Orwell River were not fished, as the oyster meat showed a greenish tinge, and it was feared by the fishermen and buyers that the beds were diseased. An examination, however, showed that the tint was the result of local food conditions, and that, instead of having a detrimental effect on the quality, the tint was of distinct advantage. Oysters of this character are highly esteemed by epicures, as the meat is usually plump and palatable. Thus, due to lack of technical knowledge of the oyster industry a considerable loss was sustained by the fishermen and those who are catering to the higher class of oyster consumers.

CAN DECAY IN WOOD BE PREVENTED?

Some of the eldest buildings in Canada now standing were built of wood. Flour and grist mills of wood construction, that have served generation after generation, are still turning out their product, and will, no doubt, do so for many years yet. This is, however, not always the case. Wood, unfortunately, like practically everything else, has its enemies, and probably the most destructive of these are fungi. To secure exact information as to the conditions which facilitate the action of various wood-destroying fungi on woods used for interior construction in mills, factories, etc., and to work out procedure and methods by means of which the decay may be prevented, the Forest Products Laboratories of the Department of the Interior have been carrying on investigations for some years. Expert technical knowledge on the prevention of decay has been secured as a result of decay studies in some hundreds of large buildings.

What is almost of equal importance to Canadian industry is the series of mechanical and physical tests which the Laboratories is conducting on the strength of Canadian timbers. Data have now been obtained for practically all Canadian timbers of any commercial value, and these are available to architects, engineers, builders and others interested in construction work.

Eighteen thousand citizens in New York state will not be allowed to vote this year. The reason? They flunked the literacy tests. New York has a state law by which a would-be voter must demonstrate that he can read and write as readily as the average child who has finished six years in school.

Technically, this may not be democracy. But many think it is common sense, a protection against government by ignorance.

In all the world
no food like Fry's
for growing children

They're brighter at school,
They're stronger at play—
Red cheeked and happy
When fed the Fry way.

What a wonderful difference it makes in the home, when the children are brimming over with health and vigour! Yet, as any doctor will tell you, health is so largely a matter of feeding.

FRY'S Cocoa contains nourishment in rich concentrated form, for every department of the human body—for muscle, tissue, flesh, nerve, brain and bone. It furnishes in rich abundance, energy for work and play—and materials to build the body with. And all this in such delicious form that every child takes FRY'S eagerly.

Be sure you get FRY'S—made in Canada and famous the world over for purity and quality. Cheap, unknown cocoas haven't its purity and richness.

Armistice Day In Peterboro

MOTHER ERECTS TABLET TO SON KILLED IN WAR

All Saints' Church Was the Scene of Impressive Service on Sunday.

ONE OF THE BOYS

Mrs. McCabe Was Present at Unveiling, Performed by Col. Johnston.

Mrs. McCabe stood up with the congregation of All Saints' Church on Sunday while a tablet was unveiled in memory of her son, Sidney Veness McCabe, killed in action a short month before the Armistice was signed. She was surrounded by Peterboroug h veterans wearing medals that showed they had served side by side with this comrade, and the Church could not hold all who wished to honor the member who had given his life and the mother who had given her son, in the great cause.

The memorial is inscribed:

In loving memory of
Sidney Veness McCabe
5th Canadian Mounted Rifles
Killed in action
4th October 1918
Aged 21 years
Erected by his mother

Lieut.-Colonel T. J. Johnston, who commanded the 93rd Battalion, Peterborough's unit, performed the unveiling ceremony with many overseas officers grouped around. He told of the services rendered by the soldier in whose honor it is erected and gave credit for the splendid record made by Canada's army to the mothers who, like this mother, uncomplainingly gave their sons to the country.

The plaintive notes of Lord Lovat's lament, played by the Caledonian Pipe Band, filled the church with unusual melody and wrung a poignant sigh from the unitedly reverent congregation. Then the "Last Post" was sounded, the soldier's hightest requiem, followed by the stirring "Reveille" that spoke of new life and hope.

The altar was prettily decorated with chrysanthemums in memory of Miss Chamberlain, and a wreath of poppies was placed on the tablet by the Chruch Wardens.

Lieut-Col. C. Ackerman read the first lesson; Captain S. Whatley read the second lesson, and the sermon was preached by Rev. J. D. Paterson.

Special anthems by the choir were "Give Peace" and "What are These"?

This is True Greatness.

No caste has any monopoly of true greatness, Col. Johnston said, No matter how humble the man, if he plays his part well he is truly great. Our comrade did his part. He did his duty. He gave up his very life.

Every man on overseas service played his part when he put his life on the altar in offering his name. The world is starving today for the very qualities these men had. It is not through their acts in the war or since the war that the world is in its state today.

Colonel Johnston pictured the mothers and wives of the overseas soldiers as they fearfully watched the mail man approaching with what tidings they knew not, and yet not complaining. "No wonder", he said, "that our Canadian soldiers with mothers like they had played their part so well."

A Great Vision.

In his sermon, based on the text "Take unto you the whole armour", Rev. Mr. Paterson pointed the fundamental lessons of Armistice day.

Today marks the beginning of the great celebration that centres around November 11, he said. There have been dates that have been remembered through the ages, such as Hallowe'en, Guy Faulkes day, May 24, July 1 in Canada, July 4 in the United States. But greater than Confederation Day; greater than the birthday of a glorious Queen, is the day we remember on Tuesday when war ceased and the pent-up emotion of the nation broke loose. It is well for us to recognize that Armistice day should be a day of thanksgiving, and we pray that it may never be forgotten.

To the veterans, Mr. Paterson said: The world needed you ten years ago, and it needs you today. It was a great vision you saw and fought for, and your comrades in arms died for, and there is the same great vision today if you catch it. The world is filled today with the same evils.

It was in a spirit of absolute unselfishness that our men went away, and we have to look to you for the lesson of unselfishness. As long as you men live you will be honored in the hearts of every real man and woman in this dominion, and you will be all the more honored if you are giving the same service in peace as you did in war. It is to you men in our midst who have learned the lesson that we must look.

Some Need Help.

The day makes men and women consider. We have not done enough for the men who have given their all. In the congregation of All Saints' there is a man who has lost his arm, and while others grow fat he is out of work. Some men are shattered in body and are eking out a precarious living by selling at the lowest possible figure the work of their mained hands. We must make it our personal business to share up with the brother who is in need. It may be only by buying a poppy, but do it in the spirit of helping a man who has given the best of his life for you.

Turning to the boys and young men who sat around the newly unveiled memorial, the speaker remarked that they had read through history of the acts of great men and honored them. The memorial in the boys' corner is not to a great man, he said, but to one of All Saints' boys—just a boy who went to Sunday School. I ask you to keep your corner for ever the boys' corner and see that there be found among your number those who are ready like him to serve their King and country and follow in his train.

The bugles sounded the 'Last Post' to signify the end of the day's work for this one of you number. His work was well done. t is a call to the well deserved rest God gives him. Then the 'Revielle' tells of a bright and glorious morning, and in proud memory and deep thankfulness we hear the Reveille sound to him, who is among that glorious company that we in our ignorance call the dead, but who we know are the forever living."

Canadians Were Foch's Pets.

Had the Hammer-Head Positions in Every Big Attack.

"I don't suppose you know it, for the world generally doesn't know it, but the Canadians were the hammer-head of all the great final attacks. They were always put into the place of the greatest danger. They used to be called "Foch's Pets." But I've never heard them boast that Canada won the war. For four years and a half they fought from Ypres to Drocourt, but I never heard them boast about it."

So says W. J. Dawson in his book, "Chalmer's Comes Back," where the American denounces as parochial the boasting done by some Americans.

A SCRAP OF PAPER.

A scrap of paper—"Killed in Action", So
Die all the dreams of happier days to be!
And yet, thank God, you were the first to go
When Empire called for Men to keep it free.

* * *

Thank God for that pure, manly heart and true
That kept your face for ever towards the light,
That lit the only path you ever knew
And made you victor still in death's despite.

* * *

Not all our sighs, not all our loving tears
Can call you back, but you whose clear young eyes
Looked on the promise of the coming years,
You never grudged the final sacrifice.

* * *

A scrap of paper? Nay, a sacred scroll,
A great and glorious treaty, signed and sealed
In your heart's blood, wherein our Empire's soul
For those who shall come after stands revealed.

Canadians Capture Mons As "Cease Fire" Sounds

Carillon in Town Rings Out "Tipperary"—Citizens Hail Deliverers.

"The Mons Road!" What tragic significance lies in those three words Pictures they present of those glorious days of August 1914, when the flower of the British Army threw itself in the path of the invader, halted there the wheel of his victorious chariot, and afforded France a breathing space to make ready for the Battle of the Marne.

For four years these cobbled pavements ring to the hoof of the conqueror; for him it is the Road to Paris. And then August 1918 issues in a change, a cold blast from the direction of Amiens. The tide of traffic sets in the reverse direction. Back with all their impedimenta of war come those discomfited legions. Back too with them, brittle thread woven into their iron texture, come the French people of the evacuated areas. The Mons Road, clogged with sweating horses and cursing men, is filled to overflowing with the flotsam of deserted villages.

That was yesterday, six years ago. From the palisaded road the belfry in the city can be seen through the mist. The hand of the great clock points an hour ahead of our time.—Boche time.

Six years ago yesterday the Mons Road was Boche Road—six years ago to-day it is Canada's road. The President of the French Republic has accepted Valenciennes from the Canadian Corps who captured it. All along the road from Valenciennes to Mons are freed peasants who cry "Vive les brave Canadiens!" By six o'clock on the morning of the 11th., November the town has been cleared of the enemy and the Canadian lines are established beyond its limit on the east. Then comes the massage "Hostilities will cease at 11.00 hours November 11. Troops will stand fast on the line reached at that hour. Defensive precautions will be maintained. No intercourse of any kind with the enemy."

The Grande Place of Mons is thronged. Here at 11 o'clock the "zero' hour of peace— as the "Cease Fire!" sounds, the Mayor presents the keys of the city in honor of its recapture. Bands play "La Brabanconne," Belgium's national anthem, and "O Canada." The carillon of the belfry plays "Tipperary"—the players having practiced silently since the British troops marched away to its tune four years before. They knew the British would come back, they said.

Sir Douglas Haigs last war communique stated, "Canadian troops of the First Army have captured Mons."

Getting Too Fat? Try This—Reduce

People who don't grow too fat are the fortunate exception. But if you find the fat accumulating or already cumbersome, you will be wise to follow this suggestion, which is endorsed by thousands of people who know. Ask your druggist for Marmola Prescription Tablets and follow directions. One dollar is the price the world over. Get them from your own druggist or send price direct to Marmola Co., General Motors Bldg., Detroit ,Mich. By doing this you will be able to reduce steadily and easily and pleasantly, without starvation diet, or tiresome exercise. Start taking them today and get slender.

Although a soldier by profession, I have never felt any sort of fondness for war, and I have never advocated it except as a means of peace.

Take my word for it, if you had seen but one day of war, you would pray to Almighty God that you might never see such a thing again.

PUBLIC MEMORIAL SERVICE IN THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE RECALLS ARMISTICE STIR

Order to Cease Fire Echoes Back From the Great Eternity to Stir Hearts of Veterans and Citizens Who Remember Peterborough's Noble Dead.

DAY OF THANKSGIVING AND MEMORY

Provincial Treasurer of Ontario, Brigadier-General Ross and Local Parliamentarians Among Speakers at the Mass Meeting.

"We should be false to our country; faithless to our great traditions, and unworthy the great people we represent if we should forget the suffering and the heroism of our comrades."—BRIG.-GENERAL A. E. ROSS.

"We are closer to God because we are here to do honor to the memory of the men who lie in Flanders' Fields at peace with their Maker."—W. H. BRADBURN, M.P.P.

"Men of all shades of politics may fight each other on the hustings, but when it comes to dear old Canada and those who have performed services for it, we are all one."—LIEUT-COL. W. H. PRICE, M.P.

These are some of the outstanding statements of the speakers when Peterborough war veterans and Peterborough citizens on Sunday crowded the Grand Opera House to honor the memory of the soldier citizens who gave their lives in the Great War that ended six years ago today.

It was the biggest parade of returned men the city has seen for this occasion, and the galaxy of speakers, each brilliant in his individual way, covered every angle of the celebration with distinction. Massed bands of the Salvation Army and the 57th Regiment co-operated in the success of the day's proceedings.

The meeting was held immediately following the veterans' ceremony at the cenotaph, and the same officials who took part there were present at the Opera House, having joined in the parade. One box was given over to the members of the City Council, while across from them, in another box, sat the grand old men of '66, heroes of Ridgeway and the border fights with the Fenian raiders. Six in number, they gazed down on hundreds of the veterans of this younger generation and joined with them in the rememberance of all those who died for Canada.

Captain R. E. Layfield.

Captain Layfield, commander of the local branch G.W.V.A., and chairman for the occasion, said:

We are assembled today to celebrate possibly the happiest day this old world ever experienced—Armistice Day, November 11, 1918. We can all remember the mad joy that swept over the continents and seas when the news was flashed that fighting had ceased.

We are honored by the guests we have with us today—they will have messages of special interest to all citizens as they are men who have gained honor in the late war and in the political and civil life of our Dominion and Province, Brig.-Gen. A. E. Ross and Lieut.-Col., the Hon. W. H. Price, are men whom Ontario delights to honor.

We welcome the presence of the Hon. George N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons; W. H. Bradburn, Esq., Member of the Provincial Legislature; Judge E. C. S. Huycke; His Lordship Bishop M. J. O'Brien, and Honorary Members of the G.W.V.A. We have also with us representatives of the City and County Councils, Ladies of the Provincial Command G.W.V.A., and members of the Local Ladies' Auxiliary.

We have almost a full turnout of our grand old veterans of 1866. We all know what we owe to these citizen soldiers, who when called were ready, almost 60 years ago. Possibly one of the greatest benefits the men of those days performed was the organization and maintainance against great difficulties of the active militia of Canada, which coupled with the veterans of the Imperial service was the foundation of Canada's wonderful fighting army in the Great War. We all join in greeting you, comrades of 1866, Col. J. W. Miller, George Stenton, Henderson Nesbitt, Richard Sanderson, J. D. Collins, J. W. Fitzgerald H. Rush, R. Smith and R. Tivey.

The G.W.V.A.

The G.W.V.A. was organized prior to the ending of the war. It has been the recognized association that has obtained great benefits for Canadian and Imperial soldiers residing in Canada. Both political parties have looked to the G.W.V.A. for guidance and assistance in the measures that they have passed for the benefit and reconstruction of the returned soldier. Both political parties have been hampered and handicapped by the Pension Board and the Senate from carrying out the wishes of the people of Canada but we look forward for the situation being properly straightened out by the Dominion Government with the assistance we can all give.

The local Branch of the G.W.V.A. has performed a big task in the city and county of Peterboro. Hundreds of claims have been adjusted or are in the process of settlement and claims settled amount to nearly $500,000.

We have through the generosity of the citizens of Peterboro, the finest soldiers' home in Canada, and it is absolutely free from debt. Community and social work has not been neglected. We stand back of every good cause in the city. There is hardy a day passes that we do not have some problem to solve effecting the lives of returned soldiers, soldiers' widows or the dependents of soldiers.

We are proud that no soldier of the Empire lays in a pauper's grave in Peterboro, the G.W.V.A. have seen that Peterboro honors its soldier dead. Our plans for the year include the erection in each cemetery of a simple monument and it is planed to enclose in a metal box in these monuments a copper scroll containing the names of all the Peterboro soldiers dead and buried away from home and also the names of those buried in each cemetery. This scroll will be added to as comrades depart this life. Once a year on decoration day it will be our duty to call this roll of Honor.

We have tried to show Peterboro citizens and especially the returned men that the Peterboro Branch of the G.W.V.A. is worthy of giving your support to. In unity there is strength, and a strong association will be needed as the next ten years will be the hardest for ex-service men as they break down due to the strain while in service.

G. N. Gordon.

Mr. Gordon said the object of the Armistice Day celebrations is to do honor to the dead and show gratitude to the living. It is a time of rememberance and of reminiscence. "We can recount those things that have made the name of the Canadian Expeditionary Force famous," he said, "and we can consider the problems of those who returned needing help and having earned it. If the war veterans in Canada were given the encouragement and assistance they are given in the United States there would be no problem concerning their clubs and associations because there would be concerts and entertainments to see that the clubs were free from debt. The great majority of the people would be glad to help all they could to make things comfortable for those who have done so much for them."

Mr. Gordon referred to the splendid hall given the war veterans through the generosity of the citizens, as the finest in Canada. He introduced the next speaker as a man who had served overseas as head of the medical services of the Canadian forces. Mrs. Ross spent some years as head of the nursing services in the Dardanelles.

Brig.-Gen. Ross.

In expressing the pleasure given him in this visit, Brig-General Ross congratulated the veterans on having one of the healthiest organizations he knows in Canada, and mentioned the splendid co-operation that exists between the returned men and citizens generally.

Armistice Day should not be forgotten as time goes on, the speaker said, but should be remembered more deeply every year than in years before. The days of suffering and sacrifieed numbered in the four years of war should come back on this occasion.

People put forward two reasons why Armistice Day should not be celebrated. They say it is an exhibition of our own conceit in victory, but after the long history of the British race, with its glrious traditions handed down to us as subjects of our great Empire, few will take any notice of that complaint.

Others say these ceremonies tend to the maintenance of a martial spirit within the empire. I may speak as a man who has served through two wars, seeing the sacrifice and suffering of those days of combat, and I can assure you, and I am expressing the mind of the veterans here, that it is our wish that war should be known no more.

But we should be false to our country, faithless to our great traditions, and unworthy the great people we represent if we should forget the suffering and the heroism of our comrades, some of whom have returned and are here today and some of whom we left in Flanders' Fields.

Armistice Day is a day of thanksgiving. If I could take you back over those four years of service with all the horrors of those years, and bring us as citizens to the front of that army on the morning of Armistice Day, forgetting the thankfulness of people at home, to see the thankfulness of that great host, you would say it is right to maintain the celebration of Armistice Day.

It is a day of memory. We remember especially those who were stirred in the first day—the days when the call came that if we were to be faithful to the traditions we held sacred we must offer ourselves to the service of the country. We remember the day of assembly, when train after train carried the sons of Canada to Val Cartier plains. We remember the enthusiasm as we embarked on that great armada—the greatest assembly of ships that ever sailed the ocean, carrying 33,000 sons of Canada to aid the Motherland. We remember the first thrust at Armentiers, and the recall to the Ypres salient. With what enthusiasm the Canadians marched through the French villages—marched out to face and endure the greatest trial that ever met an army. Ten days later saw the sons of Canada drowning in the German gas. We remember the vicious attacks at Festubert and Givenchy, and from that time Canada's place was established in the British army—we were seasoned soldiers.

Trumpeter, what are you sounding now?
(Is it the call I'm seeking?):
"You'll know the call," said the trumpeter tall,
"When my trumpet goes a-speaking.
I'm rousin' 'em up, I'm wakin' 'em up,
The tents are astir in the valley;
And here's no more sleep with the sun's first peep,
For I'm soundin' the old Reveille."

* * *

Trumpeter, what are you sounding now?
(Is it the call I'm seeking?):
"Can't mistake the call," said the trumpeter tall,
"When my trumper goes a-speaking.
I'm urging 'em on, they're scampering on,
There's a drummin' of hoofs like thunder;
There's a madd'nin' shout, as the sabers flash out,
For I'm soundin' the charge, no wonder."

* * *

Trumpeter, what are you sounding now?
(Is it the call I'm seeking?):
"Lucky for you if you hear it at all,
For my trumpet's but faintly speakin'.
I'm calling 'em home, come home! come home!
Tread light o'er the dead in the valley
Who are lyin' around, face to the ground.
And they can't hear me sound the Rally;
But they'll hear it again in a grand refrain
When Gabriel sounds the last Rally."

England's Epic Day Gets Straight Deal

Six Hundred Thousand Dead On Six Battle Fronts In Three Continents.

In his book, "A Straight Deal, or the Ancient Grudge," Mr. Owen Wister has told, for the benefit of his American fellow-countrymen, the part played by Britain in the great war. "Tell them," states Mr. Wister, "that in May, 1918, England was sending men of 50 and boys of 18½ to the front; that in August, 1918, every third male available between those years was fighting, that eight and a half million men for army and navy were raised by the British Empire, of which Ireland's share was 2 3-10 per cent., Scotland's 8 2-10, and England's more than sixty per cent.; and that, taken proportionately to our greater population, would have amounted to about thirteen million Americans. Through four frightful years she fought with splendour, she suffered with splendour, she held on with splendour. The second battle of Ypres is but one drop in the sea of her epic courage; yet it would fill full a canto of a poem. During 1917-18 Britain's armies held the enemy in three continents and on six fronts, and co-operated with her Allies on two more fronts. Her dead — those 658,000 dead—lie by the Tigris, the Zambesi, the Aegean, and across the world to Flanders fields. Between March 21 and April 17, 1918, the Huns in their drive used 127 divisions, and of these 102 were concentrated against the British. That was in Flanders. Britain at the same time she was fighting in Flanders had also at various times shared in the fighting in Russia, Kiaochan, New Guinea, Samoa, Mesopotamia, Palestine, Egypt, the Soudan, Cameroons, Togoland, East Africa, South-West Africa, Salonica, Aden, Persia and the North-West Frontier of India. Britain cleared twelve hundred thousand square miles of the enemy in German colonies. Of England's women several million were engaged in work on munitions and other necessaries and apparatus of war. They worked at home while their husbands, brothers and sons fought and died on six battle fronts abroad—658,000 died, remember; do you remember the number of Americans killed in action — fewer than 36,000."

SOLDIER DEAD AMONG SAINTS

RENEW PATRIOTISM

MARMORA, Nov. 11.—The memory of the illustrious dead was enlivened on Sunday by a memorial rally and service at the neighboring town of Havelock, to which Marmora G.W.V.A. sent a goodly representation. Headed by the 40th Regiment Band of Campbellford, officers and men marched to the Town Hall where a most impressive service was held. A united choir led the singing of the hymns and a male voice quartette rendered beautifully, "Soldier, Rest in Peace."

Major Belford's Address.

A very appropriate and striking address was given by Major J. F. B. Belford, M.P.P. for East Northumberland. He said there was a tendency to forget too readily the things of the past. The sacrifice of the 1914-1918 period is the greatest ornament in this nation's crown today. We were true in the hour of trial. The speaker in appraising the work of the I.O.D.E. paid respect to the womanhood of Canada. Whilst the war was on the men moved from circumstance to circumstance and had various changes but the women at home sat in the quiet homestead from which the loved ones had gone forth into the strife. "Women of Canada," he exclaimed, "you have a record behind you which none other can beat."

What we stand in need of now is true Canadianism. Such commemorations as the present one help to bring that fact out. The ignorant of the old world are being brought to our shores. We do not need to have our population multiplied at this cost. We want more of the Anglo-Saxon people among our immigrants. Few were probably aware that out on the Western prairies more than a thousand Sunday schools had been established for teaching Red anarchy. The first reason for the perpetuating of these memorial services, he would say, was that Canadians should keep the stream of patriotism warm in their hearts. The second reason for commemorating the glorious past was the spiritual side of it. Men gave their living bodies as a great barrier against the tyranny of militarism. The effect of it all is apt to be lost if the memory is not revived yearly. The third reason for keeping the day was that it was a Peace day. We trust that it stands for a perpetual peace.

Hope In The League.

Major Belford believed that the League of Nations in time would be the key to solving the problems and difficulties of the nations. We fought that the standard of peace be raised over a unified world. In addressing those who lost sons in the war Major Beiford said: "It is a proud thing for you to know that amongst the saints and martyrs, your boy's name has been inscribed. Out of that confusion God was working out a far more exceeding weight of glory. Therefore, on the foundation that had been laid of loyalty, let there be built up a structure of glorious manhood."

He concluded with a most sympathetic reference concerning the disabled returned soldiers bidding his hearers remember that no one came out of the struggle his original normal self.

Col. Fred Boggs.

Col. Boggs also gave a splendid address in which he reviewed the circumstances leading up to the war and pointed out that it is left to us to do the unfinished work.

Following the service, officers and men paraded to the memorial arch, where poppy wreaths were placed at the base. A firing party, under Capt. Percy Gray, fired three volleys, following which the band played softly, "Nearer My God to Thee."

With dismissal, visiting comrades were invited to a supper in the basement of the Town Hall. Members of Marmora G.W.V.A. attending incinded Capts, C. A. Bleecker and Percy Gray, Lieut, H. R. Pearce, Sgts. L. Rundle, H. Osborne, J. Laird, R. Cronkwright and W. J. Cottrell, Ptes. M. Peenery, G. Kerr, H. Yatton, H. Naylor, etc., in addition to which many post-war soldiers attended.

VETERANS HELD SIMPLE SERVICE TO THEIR DEAD

Cenotaph Was Scene of Military Rites Accorded Those Who Die in Battle. IMPRESSIVE SCENE.

Peterboro veterans of the Great War paid their own simple tribute to their dead comrades on Sunday, when they gathered at the Cenotaph they erected on Murray Street and performed the military ceremony that is their highest requiem.

After an inspection by Brig.-General A. E. Ross and Lieut.-Colonel W. H. Price, with the ladies of the Women's Auxiliary and the veterans of 1866 holding the position of honor near the monument, and ranged behind them the veterans of 1914-1918 and the newer militia units, the last salute was given and the troops stood immobile while the Salvation Army and 57th Regiment Bands played a dirge.

It was an impressive scene. The women wore poppies—symbol as much of their sacrifices in giving up their men as of the men's sacrifice. The veterans of '66—six of them—stood with their grey heads bowed, remembering not only these youngsters who fell in the European war, but those other soldiers of Canada with whom they fought side by side before the men of Canada's Great War contingent were born.

The Great War veterans, with the medals and stripes and wounds that showed the extent of their service, dressed in the faded and often torn uniforms that they had worn in the forefront of the last big attack, were carried back to the lonely graves where they had stolen at evening time to bury their comrades. And the youngsters of the militia, sturdy and smart in their newer uniforms, honored in a way that was thrilling to them the men whom perhaps they had known as elder brothers and chums.

The massed bands played "Meditation." The Union Jack fluttered down to half mast and the Veterans' flag dipped to the ground. The trumpets sounded "Last Post," the call that ended every day and floated over the grave of every soldier of the Empire on the six battle-fronts where the British flag was carried. There was a moment of poignant silence. Then the echoing "Reveille" told of a new day and new era. The Union Jack crept up until it was mast high, and the ceremony was over.

Its thrill touching the spectators who stood with bared heads through out, the great significance reached only the men who had followed their comrades, with reversed arms, as they were laid in the well-kept cemeteries behind the lines, or had slipped out under cover of darkness and under machine gun fire to bury their pals whom they had left on the wire.

And as they had done in those other days, so they did on Sunday. Their tribute paid, they marched off to a stirring tune, eyes set on the future and looking only ahead.

Biggest Parade.

It was probably the biggest parade the Peterboro veterans have held on Armistice Sunday, and they were joined by more representatives of City, County, Provincial and Dominion politics than ever before. At the Cenotaph and in the long parade were ex-Mayor W. H. Taylor, Aldermen R. Morrison, W. Stocker, M. J. Maher, M. McIntyre, N. Phelan and J. Crowe, representing the City Council.

Salvation Army Band Performs Kindly Act

While the war veterans were waiting to form up on their parade on Sunday afternoon the body of little Dorothy Louise Humphrey, only child of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Humphrey was carried to a waiting hearse.

The Salvation Army Band, drawn up on the G.W.V.A. lawn performed one of the thoughtful actions that has made the organization beloved and respected by all creeds and classes. The bandsmen faced the house and played softly and sweetly, continuing until the cortege had moved away.

Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey live in Viceroy, Saskatchewan, and the funeral of their daughter took place from the home of Mrs. W. Yelland, 207 Murray street, to Lakefield Cemetery. Many members of the Masonic order were present.

SOME VERY CLEVER ANIMALS

A householder recently met a hedgehog on his garden path, and noticed that it was carrying something in its mouth. Curious to find out what the something was, the observer approached within a couple of feet of the animal, and crouched on his hands and knees. The hedgehog stopped at once, dropped its booty, and prepared to curl up. The mysterious object was one of those lumps of toffee which are transparent and have a large piece of nut embedded in the centre. The observer crept behind a bush, from which he took stock of the position without being seen. In a few moments the hedgehog seemed to regain confidence, and seized upon the delectable object once more. The noise of crunching was plainly heard for a little, then the creature departed. The observer afterwards returned to find that the toffee had vanished, but that the nut had been left behind untasted!

A Dog That Listens In.

Visiting an acquaintance who was an ardent wireless enthusiast, a gentleman found him busy listening-in. Close beside him, with another pair of 'phones over his head, was a large collie dog. The animal was obviously enjoying the music—an orchestral piece—to the full. He continued absolutely engrossed in the programme, and now and then he would shake his head as though to arrange the headpieces more comfortably. The gentleman expressed his surprise at the novel sight, and his friend stated that he always shared his enjoyment of the programme with his dog. If by any chance he put on the 'phones without supplying another pair for the creature, the latter protested by howling and pawing his master, until the position was rectified to his satisfaction.

Seals.

The fondness of seals for music is well known. Sitting on a rocky shore, a holiday-maker in sport started singing softly "The Eriskay Love Lilt." The song has a haunting refrain, "Vair me oro." Thirteen seals gathered, some even rising half-way out of the water in their eager interest. Then when the music dropped and the words came: "Sad am I without thee," they all sank down under the water. The singer began again, when up popped the thirteen heads. Some of the seals swam hurriedly past, watching intently as they went; but at the top notes they always paused and listened keenly. Each time the low-pitched "Sad am I without thee" came, the heads sank beneath the water. It seemed an uncanny perception of the sense.

The Wolf.

The wolf has a bad odour and an evil reputation, but he is undeniably a very brainy creature. Of two wolves, one was noticed by an observer to lie down in a ditch, while the other walked away over the open plain. The latter deliberately went to the far side of a herd of antelopes and drove them, as a sheep-dog would a flock of sheep, to the very spot where his companion lay in ambush. As the antelope crossed the ditch, the concealed wolf seized a doe, and for the ensuing meal was joined by his astute colleague.

In Lake Superior in Canada the fishermen set lines for trout through holes in the ice. Waiting till the lines are arranged and the fishers gone, a wolf will take hold of the stick laid across the hole and attached to the line, trot off with it along the ice, till the bait is brought to the surface, and then return and devour the bait and the fish too, if any happen to be on the hooks. Should a wolf be captured and see no other chance of escape, he wil lie down and pretend to be dead. If the trick deceives the hunter and he turns his back for a moment, the wolf will jump and show a very slean pair of heels.

Dog.

Talking of trickery in animals, one recalls the Skye terrier which at one time had had a very sore leg and had received a great deal of petting. Always afterwards, when he had been in any mischief, he used to come to bis master, running on three legs and holding up the one which once was sore. He was as arrant an imposter as the sailor who used to go begging with one leg tied up under him, to look as if he had lost it.

The intelligent faithfulness of the sheep dog in the following story can hardly ever have been surpassed. A shepherd had brought fourscore sheep in the market, and having to remain another day, committed the drove to the care of his collie, a female, bidding her take them home, a distance of seventeen miles. The animal, when a few miles on the road, dropped two pups, but devotedly drove the sheep a mile or two further. She then allowed them to stop, returned for her whelps, and carried them about two miles in advance of the sheep. Leaving her family the collie then went back for the sheep and drove them onwards a few miles. This she went on doing alternately carrying her pups and taking charge of the flock—until she reached home.

Elephants.

In India, elephants are frequently taught to make a salaam with their trunks, by way of saying "Please" for food. An exceptionally large elephant was thus trained, and thereafter was brought to the London Zoo. Fully seventeen years subsequently, a man, who had in youth been in India, recognized the elephant as an old acquaintance, and showed him to some children. One of the latter, being about to offer the animal a bun, the man said: "Make him first say 'Please.'" He then told the beast to "Make a salaam." The creature eyed the hand which held the bun, then memory seemed to awake—up went his trunk, and he made a most correct salaam. The keeper said for all the seventeen years, the animal had never heard the magic words, but had taken food without this mark of good manners. During all that period, however, he had remembered.

Of another elephant the following is recorded. He was ordered to drag a tree which proved too much for his strength. Urged and excited, the poor beast at last broke the chains by which he was fastened and ran away. All assumed that he had escaped to the jungle, where he would mix with the wild elephants and be seen no more. But in about an hour the animal returned, accompanied by two other elephants; and by their united strength the tree was easily removed. After the work was done the two recruits disappeared, and the first clever one alone remained.

Birds.

That birds have a language which enables them to communicate with each other the following incident would seem to prove. In a recent North American winter, crows appeared to be dying from hunger, and in desperation they gathered in considerable numbers on the blocks of ice which go floating down the St. Lawrence River, and enviously watched the bits of food in the water. The poor creatures could not stand still on the ice lest their feet should freeze fast. They therefore shifted from one leg to the other in a manner which gave them the appearance of dancing. Around them, with screams and flapping of wings, flew a flock of gulls, snatching fragments of food from the water. A kind of understanding soon arose between the black birds and the white ones. While the former pranced and danced, the seagulls picked up bits of food and placed them within reach of their starving neighbors. The birds could not have been so "dumb" as we usually suppose.

A Wonderful Cat.

Though born in Scotland, a certain cat was believed to be of Russian descent. One of the surest signs of its Russian lineage was held to be its unusual and decided fondness for water. In the long, severe winters, Russian cats have to try to break through the ice with their paws in search of fish for food. This oat would sit on the window-box when it was being watered, trying to catch the water with its paws. It would also be found quite often in the bath, and even in the kitchen sink, sitting fascinated by the drops which fell from the tap, if the water had not been properly turned off. When its owner washed his hands, it would jump up and sit close to the basin. If the tap dripped it would reach out a dainty paw and pat the falling drops. Its owner would turn on a gentle flow of water and the cat would watch it as though fascinated. Every now and then it would pat the silvery trickle and then draw back its paw with the same delicate flick. The Russian forebears of this cat had formed a curiously clever and unique habit and hereditary influenced had perpetuated his defiance of the strong dislike of water for which the feline species is notorious.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS.

Box Social Held In Sentinel Hall Was a Big Success.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Nov. 11.—The box social held in Sentinel Hall, L.O.L. No. 2322, at Petherick's Corners, on Wednesday evening was a grand success.

The hall was filled to its capacity and everyone reported having had a good time.

The programme for the evening was as follows: Chorus—"Maple Leaf Forever," by audience; chairman's address; selling of the boxes; solo—"That Old Gang of Mine," by Rev. C. Daniels; reading by Mrs. H. Little; character song—"Jane Dear," by Mrs. Harold Simpson and Mr. Fred Barnum; comic duet—"Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake and Make Yourself at Home," by Roger Lain and Ed. Anderson; encore —"Beautiful Genevieve"; solo—Rev. Chas. Daniels; the gentlemen sought their partners and retired to some cosy corner to partake of the dainties which were packed into the handsomely decorated boxes; a play entitled: "When Your Wife's Away" was staged by a number of the young people. The characters were: Mr. Thomas Armstrong, Mr. Morley Pethick; Mrs. Thomas Armstrong, Miss Agnes Thomson; Dorothy Armstrong, Miss Hazel Brown; Mr. Jack Dulaney, Mr. Everett Fairman; Mr. Harry Scarum, Mr. Raymond Fry; Mrs. Henry Gladstone, Mr. Verna Barnum; Genevieve Gladstone, Miss Jennie Fry; Jane, the waiter, Miss Cora Irwin. The play was in three acts; the first act opened up with Mr. Armstrong seated at his desk, reading some bills and ridiculing Mrs. Armstrong for being so extravagant, but Mrs. Armstrong enters and, after a heated discussion, Mrs. Armstrong and Dorothy decide to go away for the summer. In the meantime Jack Dulaney and Harry Scarum drop in to see Mr. Armstrong. Jack is dressed as a clown and deceives Mr. Armstrong by telling him that Harry is his stenographer. Mr. Armstrong fully believes him, as Harry is dressed exactly like a girl. Mr. Armstrong falls in love with this girl and just in the midst of his glory Mrs. Armstrong walks in and catches him. She at once applies for a divorce. Jane, the waitress, receives a telephone message which she misunderstands and gets Mr. Armstrong into further difficulties. In the midst of all the mix-up Mrs. Henry Gladstone and her daughter Genevieve enter. Mrs. Gladstone boasts of her fine clothes and their fine apartment, but the innocence of her daughter gives her away. Mr. Harry Scarum then explains to Mrs. Armstrong how it was that Mr. Armstrong was deceived and Mrs. Armstrong apologizes for what she had said. Jack and Dorothy make up friends and Harry asks permission of Mrs. Gladstone to marry her daughter Genevieve.

The proceeds of the evening were $185.75. The lucky ticket in the contest for the dishes was drawn by Mrs. Robert Fry, the winner being Mr. C. H. Nadoo of Campbellford.

Happiness is something that we had yesterday, and hope to regain to-morrow, but which always eludes us to-day.

BRONTOSAURUS OR TRICERATOPS? SCIENTISTS HUNT IT IN ANDES

DID YOU EVER MEET ONE?

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—It was in the wilds of the Patagonian Andes, where no stronger beverage than water is obtainable, that Lieutenant Commander Bevilaqua of the Argentine navy saw, or thought he saw, a brontosaurus.

Bevilaqua was hunting. In the Andean foothills he stumbled on a rail of enormous footprints which he followed to Lake Esguel and there, frisking in the water, was this 50 or 60-foot Brontosaurus. At least that's what Bevilaqua took it to be.

Before he could fire a shot the creature submerged and that was the last the lieutenant commander saw of it.

A few days later, however, Martin Sheffield, an American oil prospector, had a glimpse of the same animal or one a good deal like it, but in his opinion it was a triceratops.

Indians Saw It Too

Inasmuch as scientists previously had supposed the brontosaurus and triceratops families to have been extinct for some millions of years, Onelli was tremendously interested.

The first thing he did was to send a party into Patagonia to investigate. The party found no monster but did run across 11 Indians who said they had seen it.

Now a group of scientifically curious Americans have undertaken to see if they can't solve the mystery. They have engaged Gayne Dexter, an Australian explorer, to lead an expedition to Lake Esguel and try to capture one of the reported animals.

Dexter has just sailed for Buenos Aires to organize this party. His theory is that the brute, if any, is an allosaurus.

Museum Builds Effigies

No photographs of real live brontosauruses, triceratopses, trachdons, or allosauruses are available, nobody living ever having seen any such beasts, with the possible exception of Lieutenant Commander Bevilaqua, Martin Shefield and the 11 Patagonian Indians. And they had no cameras with them. But the American Museum of Natural History has made effigies guaranted by scientists to be just about as good as the originals.

The museum's experts, starting on one of thees effigies, first build a wooden skeleton, pad it out with cotton and then drew a rubber skin over the whole thing. Bits of papier-mache are pasted on next, to represent scales, warts, wrinkles and what-not. A coat of varnish finishes the process.

These make-believe animals look natural enough to scare anybody. They're life size, too.

A big brontosaurus was about 75 fees long and weighed around 40 tons but he was a vegetarian and not a bit quarrelsome. The triceratops was not more than half a brontosaurus' size but a dangerous fighter. The trachodon, like the brontosaurus was herbiverous.

Of all prehistoric animals the allosaurus was the meanest. He was about 40 feet long, with a six-foot head and teeth that could have bitten an iron bar into two if they'd had any such thing then. He was a meat eater.

YUCATAN GETS EASY DIVORCE

Only Month's Residence Required and Americans Take Advantage of It.

SOCIALIST STATE.

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 11.—The Yucatan system—easiest possible divorce, complete socialism—is spreading through Mexico, declares Luis Torregrosa, leader of Yucatan's progressive socialists, making his first visit to America.

"We are in the states of Campeche and Tabasco," he explained. "We intend to spread throughout the nation and to give Mexico another party." He has directed the Socialist party in Yucatan and is a deputy in the Mexican Congress.

"Ours is a new kind of socialism," Torregrosa continued. "We work slowly, up through the old, casting away what is bad and retaining the good. In a nutshell, we believe that before a country can be socialistic it must pass through the kingdom of capitalism.

"We recognize our enemies, the trusts. We cope with them through our own trust—a trust of the people, the government.

"McCormack, the International Harvester millionaire, used to control our sisal industry. Now he no longer tells us what to do; we tell him. Our government controls the sisal crop generally and its manufacture, and we sell the product.

"We are the trust of the workers and every man belongs to a union—the government union. However, we still have some private ownership of land and property."

* * *

Here are the highlights of the socialistic government now established in Yucatan, according to the Socialist leader:

Easy divorce.

Marriage a social procedure.

Practical education, teaching one tests of liquor and prevention of work and to keep order. Education in the social and economic first, individualism a natural result.

Prohibition. Laws against the sale of poison bring about government tests of liquor and prevention of bad "bootleg" liquor being sold.

* * *

Divorce is made easy in Yucatan "for the protection of the women," he explained.

"It can be obtained simply in Yucatan in a quiet procedure, in only a month. Scores of Americans are flocking into Yucatan to take advantage of this phase of our laws.

"The integrity of the parties wishing a divorce is looked into," said Torregrosa. "During the month's residence, the credentials of the parties are looked up, and care is taken to see that no injury will be done anyone. When there are children, divorce is more difficult; we take great care to see that the children are well protected.

"Our divorce laws favor women. Because we, in Mexico, believe that in our country, at least, women get the worst of it.

"Women in Mexico have not yet attained a 50-50 standing with men. No doubt it is because Mexican men, traditionally the conquerors, the 'conquistadores,' have kept women down, regarding them as their prizes, their chattels, to a degree.

"We are trying to elevate the women. Co-education was a hard struggle, but we finally attained it. We have three women in our national congress, and we are looking forward to equal representation of the sexes."

Marriage, according to Torregrosa's ethics, is no longer marriage when love has gone. Hence easy divorce, which enables a man and woman to maintain only alliances of true love.

SAFETY ON THE ROAD.

New York's Ten Commandments.

1. Never cross streets at other than regular crossings. This is "jay-walking." This reckless practice causes one-half our street accidents.
2. Don't cross the street directly behind a street car. There may be another on the opposite track, or an automobile you cannot see.
3. Before stepping from the curb see that vehicular traffic is at a standstill. "Threading" traffic is inviting injury or death.
4. Avoid cutting diagonally from corner to corner at street intersections. Two lines of traffic to watch doubles your risk of injury.
5. Always look both ways when crossing streets. The sidewalk is safe, but death lurks in the roadway.

Motorists are adjured as follows:—

1. Look out for children! Though playing on the sidewalk, they may suddenly run into the street. Many are injured yearly in this manner.
2. Give the pedestrian a chance. Even if he is careless, you will deeply regret any injury he may suffer. Most auto accidents occur when driving fast—better delay than death.
3. Accidents are always "unexpected",—therefore drive carefully at all times, using chains in slippery weather.
4. Keep your brakes in good order. Your life and the lives of many others depends on your ability to stop instantly. d You can't do it with neglected brakes.
5. Study traffic rules. Obey them. Ignorance is no excuse. They are written for you, and may be had a any police station.

Be content. An ass that carries is better than a horse that throws.

LINCOLN

When Araham Lincoln ran for president his campaign fund was only $100,000. Douglas spent half as much.

McKinley held the record for a single candidate, his fund in 1896 being $16,500,000. The 1924 funds will be known later.

If you study the lives of great men you will come to the conclusion that it is easier to be a genius than a gentleman.

EAGLES AND BIRDIES

Chick Evans Was Disappointed When He Failed To Bag Them on First Air Trip.

WICHITA, Kas., Nov. 1.—Playin g here recently in an open champion ship, Chick Evans, noted amateur go lfer, was persuaded to take his first trip in an airplane. (You hardly sus pect Chick was that old-fashioned.) Evans explored the clouds for many minutes and was enthusiastic about his experience. "But I didn't bag an y eagles or birdies," he lamented.

HINTS ON BUYING APPLES.

Fruit Specialists Name a Few Varieties For the Winter.

Housewives are advised by fruit specialists at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva about the kind of apples to buy for eating purposes or for cooking. Using the variety of apple best suited for a particular purpose will give much greater satisfaction than buying "just apples," declare the station specialists.

"When you buy your supply of apples this year, make it a point to call for those varieties which you like best or for those which have special virtues at certain times of the year," says the statement. "For example, if you desire a fancy eating apple for use in November and December, ask for the McIntosh. This is perhaps the finest dessert apple grown, being juicy, crisp, white-fleshed, and having a pleasant aroma. Incidentally, it makes beautiful white apple sauce. Or if you want an apple that is good to eat and which at the same time bakes well and makes good apple sauce and delicious pie, ask for the Rhode Island Greening, which is at its best during December, January and the fore part of February. The Baldwin is another variety with the same qualifications and is in season from January to March. Not only is it a good all-around family variety but is usually one of the less expensive sorts.

"Perhaps the favorite apple for particular people is the Northern Spy. It is a bit more expensive than the other varieties, because it is not easily grown and the supply is relatively short, but it is prized so highly that many are willing to pay a premium for it. It is in season from January to March, and is rated as perfect both for cooking and eating.

"The Delicious is a crisp, juicy variety, rather coarse-fleshed but highly aromatic. It is not rated especially high in quality but it is attractive to a great many people who desire a mild-flavored apple for eating purposes during December. It is not valued for cooking. For those who like a more sprightly apple of a little longer season than the Delicious, the Jonathan is to be recommended. For later in the year, February to April, the Yellow Newtown is an excellent variety. Most apples by this time have lost their flavor and are more or less 'flat.' The Yellow Newtown is one of the few sorts that retain their brisk flavor.

"Finally, for those who wish to put away a bushel of apples for use at any time from December to April and for any purpose, the Rome Beauty is suggested. It is not of high quality, but it is a good, mild-flavored sort which keeps well, is good for general culinary use, and is fit for use over a long period."

COBOURG DEDICATES MEMORIAL TO FALLEN CITIZEN SOLDIERS WHO HAVE JOINED IMMORTALS

School Children Join With Veterans and Citizens In Ceremenoy.

CROSS OF SERVICE.

Many Prominent Speakers Refer To Cobourg's Part In Great War.

COBOURG, Nov. 11. — Cobourg citizens to-day left the mundane things of everyday life to gather in Victoria Park for the unveiling of a memorial to their soldiers who fell on overseas service. The beautiful and impressive ceremony with the chaste cross bearing its sword of service brooding over all, cast a spirit of reverence upon the multitude that had gathered to honor the men in whose memory the monument is raised. No less in the faces of the people than in the addresses of the prominent speakers could be read the conviction that these men are not dead but live and the memorial is more a tribute to their valor and deeds than a stone to mark their graves.

"To the Glory of God
In grateful tribute
To those from Cobourg
Who served.
In loving memory of
Those who died
For King and Country
In the Great War.
1914 — 1918.

This memorial has been erected by their fellow citizens."

On the reverse side of the monument is this inscription:

"Standing beneath the Cross
Of service, we remember,
And must charge our children
To remember, that as our
Dead were equal in sacrifice,
So are they equal in honor,
For the greatest and best
Of them have proved that Sacrifice and honor are
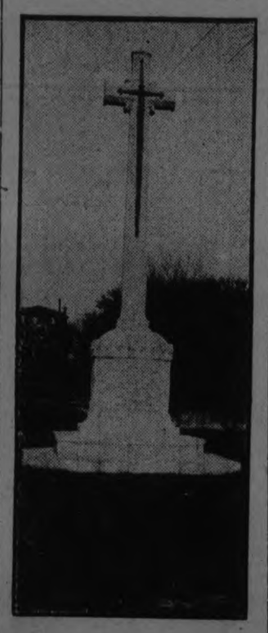
No vain things, but truth,
By which the whole world lives."

Among the speakers at the unveiling ceremony were Mayor Bogg; Col. MacNachtan, C.V.O.; Col. W. H. Floyd and Col. J. W. Odell. The monument was unveiled by Miss Effie Bolster, returned nurse, and others who participated were Rev. R. F. Stillman; Rev. J. N. Norton; Rev. Canon Scott, the Grand Old Man of the First Canadian Division, and Rev. Monsignor Murray. Albert Hircock sang 'Kipling's Recessional' and school children joined in patriotic songs. The parade was led by the Cobourg Garrison and High School Cadets, followed by Public and Separate School children. The citizen's band and the Salvation Army Band joined in the function.

TO THE GLORY OF GOD.



In Grateful Tribute to those from Cobourg who Served, and in Loving Memory of those who Died for King and Country.

SAMUEL MULLIGAN IS LAID AT REST

Had Lived in Peterborough Fifty Years—Mourned in Church and Among Friends.

The funeral took place on Saturday of Samuel Mulligan, 88, a resident of Peterboro for fifty years, and an honored member of Knox Presbyterian Church. Mr. Mulligan was born in Ireland, and came here from Scotland, where he had lived for some time.

Rev. M. C. Mackinnon and Rev. R. Pogue officiated at the funeral which took place from the residence of the deceased's son, Robert Mulligan, 262 Sherbrooke Street. The pall-bearers were J. F. Morrison, James Waldie, Grant Richardson, Arthur Ringer, John W. Buyers and Wilbert Smithson.

Those from out-of-town who attended the obsequies were: Mr. and Mrs. James Mulligan and Miss Lucy Mulligan, of Toronto; Thomas Mulligan, of Preston, and Mr. M. Weir and Miss B. Weir, of Keene. Many friends of the family accompanied the remains to Little Lake Cemetery where interment was made.

ROTARIANS ARE TOLD OF FAMED ENGLISH PLACES

Capt. State, To-day's Speaker, Enthusiastic Over Motherland and Its People.

HISTORIC INTEREST.

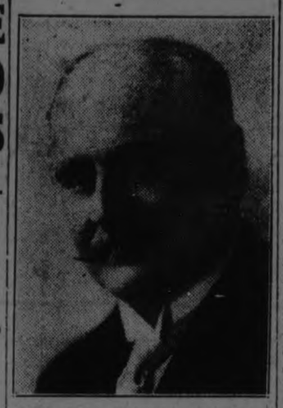
Canadians Are Advised To Try and Visit England and See For Themselves Its Beauty.

Captain H. M. State, of the passenger department of the Canadian National Railways, was the speaker at to-day's luncheon of the Peterboro Rotary Club, giving a most interesting talk on "England." Capt. State, although a native-born Canadian, is by reason of his duties a frequent visitor to the Motherland, and has in fact lived there many years, so that he is in a position to deal accurately with the subject upon which he spoke to-day.

President J. W. McDermid presided, and the speaker was introduced by Rotarian Alpine McNab, the local Canadian National station agent.

Captain State's talk was a series of word pictures of some of the famous spots in England: Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's, Stratford-on-Avon, the celebrated "Cheshire Cheese," the little churchyard where Gray's elegy was thought out, Carnavon Castle and other points remarkable either for their beauty or their wealth of historic interest, or often for both. The speaker made no secret of his intense admiration for England and for the English people, and he strongly advised his hearers to make a trip to the Old Land, assuring them they would come back better Canadians and better Britishers with a message for their fellow-citizens.

The speaker was heartily thanked for his most interesting address.



HON. MR. JUSTICE RIDDELL, LL.B., F.R.S.C.,
President Canadian Social Hygiene Council, who will address a meeting, his lecture bearing on the above work, G.W.V.A. Hall, on Friday evening, November 14th, at eight o'clock.

MUTINEERS' FATE NOT YET DECIDED

Battleship Sao Paulo Overtaken When Fuel Ran Short.

MONTEVEDIO, Uruguay, Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press).—The fate of mutineers who seized command of the Brazilian Battleship Soa and Paulo at Rio Janeiro, a week ago and steamed her out of the harbor while exchanging shots with shore batteries has not yet been decided by the Urugnayan authority. The Soa Paulo ended her sensational voyage yesterday when she entered roadstead under Uruguayan pilot who had been sent in response to a wireless message from the battleship. The mutineers decided to end their adventure when they found both fuel and provisions nearly exhausted with pursuing Brazilian squadron only about 200 miles astern. The pilot found twenty-five year old Lieutenant Perculino Cascardo in command of the big fighting craft, Uruguayan cabinet after discussing the questions of International Law raised by the arrival of Sao Paulo, decided that the mutineers should disembark for internment pending ultimate disposition of their cases.

UNVEILINGS COMMON.

Two Minute Silence Was Observed Everywhere in Canada To-day.

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Having merged its observance of thanksgiving and armistice into one public holiday yesterday and patriotic and religious ceremonies throughout the Dominion having been celebrated on Sunday or Monday, Canada went about its work-a-day life on this sixth anniversary of the ending of the war. Sellers of poppies were in evidence in all cities and towns from coast to coast, the proceeds of the sale to be used on behalf of the needy survivors of the war. At eleven o'clock the two-minute silence was everywhere observed. Unveilings of memorials to men who were killed in action were common throughout the country.

SIR ADAM BECK TO HEAR 39 CHARGES

Full List of Charges Laid by E. C. Settell Were Made Public This Morning.

TORONTO, November 11 (Canadian Press). — Thirty-nine charges made against Sir Adam Beck by E. C. Settell, his former secretary, were made public this morning by Judge Snider, Commissioner hearing allegations brought against the officials of the Hydro Commission.

When the session opened, Crown Counsel Brewster announced that the charges against Sir Adam Beck would be gone on with.

The charges are sweeping in their nature, running from the allegation of the wrongful disbursement of funds, smuggling goods across the border, and the practical theft of a motor car by one Simpson.

"That Sir Adam Beck was aware of the fact that Sothman, the former chief engineer, was doing outside work on the Hydro time; that in 1909 time of the staff of the Hydro Commission was employed on work relating to the artesian wells for the city of London, and the time was paid for by the Hydro Commission; that in 1909 there were irregularities in the purchase of motor cars from a Toronto company; that on 18th August, 1909, a contract was given to the Galt Malleable Iron Company, the highest tenderers; that the expenses of Sir Adam's trip to Berlin, Germany, were excessive; that Sir Adam's horse show expenses were paid by the Commission; that a motor car was purchased in England and was retained for a year, at the expense of the Commission for Sir Adam's family; that $25,000 was deposited in the Molson's Bank to offset a loan made to Sir Adam; that Hydro engineers were used on the construction of a factory in Toronto for Sir Adam Beck; that large sums of money were disbursed by the Commission to defray expenses of the purchase of remounts for presenthe purchase of remounts for Sir Adam during the war; that F. A. Gaby forced the purchase of an automobile for presentation by the Hydro Electric Union to Sir Adam, and that the car was paid for by the Commission and later billed to the Union; that the Commission spent $5,000 to furnish a Toronto apartment for Sir Adam; that the Commission has paid for a dinner to a hundred nurses that Sir Adam was supposed to be giving; that there were irregularities in the awarding of a contract to the London Rolling Mills; that about Christmas time a motor car belonging to the Commission was sent to New York at the expense of the Commission, loaded with presents by Sir Adam Beck, and returned to the Falls, and goods were smuggled across the border on Hydro trucks and reloaded into the motor on the Canadian side; that there was practical theft of a motor car by one Simpson; that the minutes of the Commission meetings had been changed to suit Sir Adam Beck; and that Hydro moneys were disbursed for the benefit of the London Sanitarium.

Evidence at this morning's session was given by H. E. Gillfoyle, Government auditor, dealing with the charge made by Settell that $20,000 had been deposited in Molson's Bank to the credit of the Co...mission to offset the loan made to Sir Adam Beck. Mr. Gillfoyle produced a copy of the ledger sheet showing such a deposit.

The deposit had been made on 31st December, 1913, and withdrawn in February or March of the following year.

On the charge that upwards of $5,000 had been spent by the Commission in furnishing the Toronto apartment for Sir Adam, Mr. Gillfoyle produced accounts showing that $2,100 had been spent in this connection.

The man who speaks much about his principles usually intends to make them pay interest.

U. S. OBSERVES ARMISTICE

To-day Was a Legal Holiday In Some of the States.

NEW YORK, November 11 (Canadian Press). — Observance of Armistice Day was general throughout the United States to-day, being a legal holiday in some States, while in others special ceremonies were carried out under the auspices of patriotic organisations.

113 UNEMPLOYED IN PETERBOROUGH

The weekly report from the Employment Bureau of this city shows that there is 113 persons out of work, while there is a considerable number of new applicants coming in each week. The city is full of small jobs, lasting for a day or two at a time, but steady work for the unemployed is very scarce, and a large number of the new-comers who came here with high hopes of getting work and big pay are now broken-hearted and many wish that they had never seen this country. Many people say, "What brings them to this country when they know there is no work," but that isn't the case, for in England they are told there is plenty of work in Canada. They land here with the expectations of finding a job right away, but before they are here long they find things much different than what they expected, and they wish they were home again.

The small jobs are helping considerably, but it is the cold winter months that are feared. Those who are living with relatives and friends who have work are all right and will be cared for during the cold spell, but what are the homeless to do?

The William Hamilton Company has secured an order that will keep some of their men busy for a while, but it is not likely that they will take on any outside hands.

Some of the other towns in this district report an advancement, especially in road construction work, but so far around Peterboro there is not much prospect of work in this line. A number of Belleville's unemployed have found work in this line but how long it will last is not known.

During last week there were 58 new applicants at the Bureau and 34 placements. A number of the placements were on small jobs. Already this morning there were 11 new faces appeared at the Bureau in search of work, but there was nothing for them.

A number of people seem to think that since the British and American elections are over there should be an improvement in this line.

During the past two weeks there have been very few work seekers from England and other countries come to this city, and it is the hope of the local Employment Bureau that there will not be any more until they find work for the men they now have on their list.

FIRE AT BRIGHTON.

BRIGHTON, Nov. 11. — This morning fire broke out in the premises occupied by Bates Brothers' Bakery. Smoke was noticed issuing from the second storey window and the alarm was given. Walter Bates escaped by means of a ladder. Most of the damage was done by smoke and water. Others who suffered were F. R. Sandford and George E. Karley.

NEWS OF HASTINGS

HASTINGS, Nov. 11.—More than fifty friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Waddell met at their home on Friday evening, Oct. 31st for the purpose of presenting their youngest daughter, Annie Evelyn, with a shower previous to her marriage on Wednesday. The gifts were numerous as well as beautiful and very useful.

Lunch was served during the evening and the guests enjoyed themselves by dancing and games until the early hours of morning.

PURCHASED STORE.

CODRINGTON, Nov. 11.— Mr. Foster, who purchased the Codrington store, has just finished painting the interior and putting in partitions generally, greatly improving the appearance of the place.

He has opened up for business and has a nice display of new goods on the shelves. As Codrington is considered a good business stand, Mr. Foster has a good future before him in the mercantile business.

CAR IN THE DITCH.

Machine Struck a Fence and Then Landed in the Ditch.

ORLAND, November 11.—An auto accident occurred on the county highway, two miles south of here, at a very dangerous turn in the road coming down hill, into what is known as the Breakaway, when Mr. Albert Taylor, youngest son of Mr. Manford Taylor, a prominent farmer in the third concession of Brighton township, came very near losing his life.

He was driving a light truck northward when for some unaccountable reason it ran into the ditch striking a fence and a stump, turning upside down, breaking the windshield, and badly twisting the front axle.

Mr. Taylor escaped almost unhurt, having only a slight bruise on one leg.

He is of the opinion that the steering gear gave out as he was unable to control the truck.

SMOTHERED CHILD.

NANAIMO, Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Leslie Dickie, 60, a miner is held by the police in connection with the death of his two year old grandson Leslie Dickie at his residence on Saturday night. Chief of Police Harris alleges that Dickie suffocated the boy by placing his hand over his nose and mouth during the holding of a Pentecostal service in his residence. All thought the boy's mother, Mrs. L. Dickie, her mother, two sisters and three brothers were present at the time. No attempt was made to resist the act, police allege.

ALL ENGLAND MOURNED.

Two Minutes of Silence Observed at 11 O'clock To-day.

LONDON, Nov. 11. — (United Press). — All England observed two minutes of silence at 11 a.m. to-day, on the occasion of the armistice anniversary. There were ceremonies at the cenotaph in Whitehall and at the grave of the unknown soldier in Westminster Abbey. An unknown man continued walking on the stand after the signal guns had announced the beginning of the two-minute silence. After the two minutes were up the crowd rushed upon the man and attacked him roughly. The police rescued him and escorted him to safety.

Re-organization Needed.

Colonial Department of Government Has Been a Burden.

LONDON, Nov. 11. — (Canadian Press.—In a leading editorial the Times suggested reorganization of the Colonial department of the Government stating that the department has been an overburden with recent accretions like Ireland and the middle-east mandates. The editorials says; "Time is ripe for recognition of the fact that the colonial Office is no longer an appropriate channel for business between self governing dominions and the British Government. The Secretary of State for Colonies should be fully employed attending to the vast question of the development of the resources of the Empire".

GIVES HER COLLEGE AWAY

After spending years building up the physical property and scholastic standing of Cottey College at Nevada, Mo., (one of the buildings of which is shown at the left), Mrs. V.A. C. Stockard (right) has given it away. She donated the school to the Southwest Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. It has an enrollment of 200.

BRITISH EMPIRE'S DEAD REMEMBERED

Two Minute Silence Was Observed Throughout the British Empire T-oday.

LONDON, Nov. 11th— (Canadian Press)—Tens of thousands of people representing all parts of the empire gathered to-day around cenotaph in sorrowful, yet proud remembrance of their one million kin, who died, in the war that came to an end six years ago. Most of the people wore poppies bought with pennies and pounds to help men who came away, halt, lame, and blind from fields of flanders and other battle grounds of war.

In the heart of the crowd stood the king. He and his two elder sons, the Prince of Wales, and the Duke of York placed wreaths at the foot of the cenotaph just before eleven o'clock. On the striking of the hour there came a hushed silence and for two minutes the crowd stood in reverent quiet. Throughout the British Isles the same two minutes were given over to silent remembrance of the empire's dead. Memorial service was also held in Westminister Abbey

BAND CONCERT GREAT SUCCESS

Opera House Crowded To Hear Fine Programme Sunday.

The Armistice concert by the band of the Peterborough Rangers, under the direction of Lieut. W. H. Peryer, in the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening, was an outstanding success. The opera house was crowded to capacity and the splendid programme by the band and assisting artists was thoroughly enjoyed.

The band has rarely been in better form and its playing of such fine numbers as the two overtures, "Norma" and "Pique Dame" and the two outstanding marches, "The Contemptibles" and "The Vanished Army," the latter with its subdued strains of "Tipperary" and other favorite melodies, was masterly.

The selection "Reminiscenses of Grand Opera" was most effectively presented as was the excerpt "Meditation."

In memory of the unreturning brave, "The Last Post" and "Nearer My God To Thee" were played by a quintette of cornets, after which Corp. W. Layfield sounded "The Reveille."

Miss Doyle sang in excellent voice "There's a Land," and had to respond with an encore, "Land of Mr. Willis scored heavily in his solo, "Lead Kindly Light," and as an encore sang most pleasingly Hope and Glory."

Tosti's "Good-bye."

Mr. R. J. Devey played the accompaniments acceptably.

DREAMS WHICH EACH HAS ITS OWN MEANING

Women often dream they have lost their diamond rings. This leads them to be very cautious and if you were able to watch them closely you would see they keep their ring hand clenched, or always fingering the stone.

To dream of such a valuable stone, and that you have lost it, does not always mean an unfavorable omen. It often in a warning that you will profit by being cautions and watchful.

However, should the diamond, or any other valuable stone, appear to be cracked it signifies difficulty in love affairs or marriage relations.

Interpretations.

You should profit from all dreams that you have in which your birthstone appears to you.

The appearance of a cameo brooch will cause tears to come to your eyes in deepest mourning.

If you should lose an earring during your dream, you are about to suffer a loss that can be averted by cautiousness.

Wealth, love, health and happiness will come to those who in their dreams behold the gorgeous red of the ruby.

CANADIANS' RE-UNION.

300 Ex-Service Men of Canadian Forces Met in London.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Hastily arranged re-union of ex-service men of the Canadian forces here was held to-day in recognition of Armistice Day, and it was attended by nearly three hundred former officers and men of the Canadian army, where it had been anticipated that the maximum number would be about fifty.

Col. Garnet Hughes presided.

"Tired and Worried Nervous and Despondent"

Mrs. M. Chevalier, Belle River, Ont., writes: "For eight years I suffered from despondency and nervousness. Sometimes I could not sleep at night for worrying and the next day I would be so tired that my work was a burden to me. I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and can say I am now entirely relieved of the nervousness from which I used to suffer, and things do not worry me as they used to.

"Dr. Chase's Ointment also relieved me of eczema on my arms, which had bothered me for three years. My house is never without Dr. Chase's Medicines."

PLOWING MATCH AT ALDERVILLE

A. E. Wilson of Ontario Plowman's Association Was Judge of Indians' Work.

GETS INDIAN NAME

ROSENEATH, Nov. 11.—The Indians of the Alderville Reserve held their 2nd annual Ploughing match on the farm of Mr. Norman Marsden on Friday, November 7th, under the supervision of Mr. R. H. Abrahim, Agricultural Representative of the Indian Department also Vice-President of the Ontario Ploughman's Association.

Mr. A. E. Wilson of Perrytown, director of the Ontario Ploughman's Association acted as judge in a very fair and instructive manner, pointing out the deficiencies and giving advice to the contestants when necessary.

There were three classes, Class 1 consisted of men who had competed the previous year and Class 2 were men who had never entered a ploughing match before; and Class 3 were boys under 18 years.

All contestants were Indians and proved that besides their natural talents of hunting and fishing they are excellent ploughmen.

Mr. Thomas Marsden succeeded in capturing first honours which was $12 and also both specials of $2 each for the best strike-out and best finish. In last year's match, Mr. Marsdon won third place.

The chief, Mr. John Smoke who took fourth last year secured second place this year, winning $9. Mr. Ernest Crowe who was in the first place last year won third prize of $6 this year. Mr. Norman Marsden who ploughed last year but won no money, received the sum of $4 for fourth prize and Mr. Robert Franklin who won second last year took fifth money of $3. It might be said in fairness to Mr. Franklin that his plough was not adapted for sod ploughing.

Classes 2 and 3 were not finished as it became too dark but were to be finished the following day and the names of the winners will be given out later. A very good crowd of spectators watched the proceedings with interest.

Supper and Speeches.

Supper was provided in the Town Hall by some of the ladies of the reserve after which the chief, John Smoke took his place as chairman for the evening. He opened the meeting with a few introductory remarks and called upon Mr. Abrahim to speak. He congratulated them on their last year's performance and told them that this year they had excelled by far the previous record. He endeavoured to impress upon them that this ploughing match was not conducted for mere competition and entertainment but to educate them in the better methods of agriculture because, ploughing is the first and most essential part of the work and the crop depends mainly in the manner a man ploughs his land. The object was narrow furrows according to the width the share cuts, so that all the weeds will be cut and turned over also that the furrows should be set up with a good comb and solid. He quoted where at another ploughing match one half the field was ploughed, the rest being finished in the usual way afterwards. It all received the same amount of work but the crop on the part ploughed scientifically far exceeded the other half. He said, the man who ploughs his field well will do all the rest of the work well, also that a plough was the only implement that time did not change as we are using now practically the same kind of plough as was used in the time of the Egyptians., He said, that he had visited this reserve for the first time ten years ago when one stable would hold all the horses on the reserve and one barn house all the grain but now things were entirely different with many good horses and hundreds of bushels of grain. This reserve had made the most progress of any reserve in the Province in the last ten years.

Offers To Instruct.

Mr. Wilson also gave an address on ploughing which was very instructive stating that the ploughing done that afternoon was a credit to any place. He offered to give his services for a day next fall to instruct them fully and prepare them for the Ontario Plough meet when two members of this reserve will be chosen to compete at that match.

In honor of the work he has done for them Mr. Wilson was given an Indian name, Tahgawenene, meaning sportsman. This was done in the old fashioned way with an Indian pow-pow, the war dance being executed accompanied by the beating of the tom toms and interspersed with real Indian war whoops.

Each of the ploughmen made an address of a few words, after they had all received their prize money from the hands of their Indian agent, Mr. W. R. Cayle. Mr. Wilding, the missionary also made a short address in which he urged the parents to send their children to school regularly, so that he would have a chance to prepare them for their school fair next year, as they have never been prepared to hold one of the kind yet.

Church Anniversary.

On Sunday, the Roseneath Methodist church held their anniversary services. The day was very fine and as a result the church was filled at both services.

The special speaker of the day was Rev. G. A. McKee, of Baltimore to which everyone listened with a great deal of interest. A union choir of Methodists and Presbyterians rendered four appropriate anthems while Mr. Joseph Boddy, of Baltimore, sang a sole in the evening.

Instead of having a fowl supper on the following Monday night, it was decided to put the offering on the plates on Sunday. This proved very successful as the amount asked for was $125 and the sum of $175 was given.

The Presbyterian congregation are holding Sunday, November 16, for their anniversary services, when the same choir will provide the music for the occasion.

L.O.L. No. 261 Oyster Supper.

The oyster supper given in their hall on Wednesday evening, November 5th, by the local L.O.L. was a great success. A large crowd of people were served and the sum of $160 was realized.

After all were served they repaired to the town hall, where Goldring's orchestra of Cobourg, supplied the musical part of the entertainment.

Rev. Thos. McCord, Presbyterian pastor, occupied the chair and kept the crowded audience in good humor by his witty sayings and stories between the numbers on the programme.

The main speaker of the evening was the Rev. R. F. Patterson, of Fraserville, grand chaplain of both the Grand Orange Lodge and Grand Black Chapter of Ontario East. Mr. Patterson gave a very stirring address on Orangeism, which was greatly appreciated.

The other speakers were Rev. Mr. Pippin, Anglican minister of Hastings, and Rev. Wilding of Alderville Mission.

Mr. McDonald, one of the members of the orchestra, gave two comic songs which were heartily applauded.

After the concert the hall was cleared and the orchestra supplied music for dancing to a large crowd of the younger people who thoroughly enjoyed the good music.

LAKEFIELD TAG DAY A SUCCESS

Girls Made House to House Canvass—Shower for Miss Doidge.

RUGBY AT GROVE

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 11.—Saturday was tag day for the G.W.V.A. and a bevy of young girls did the work of selling the poppies, being, as usual, zealous and efficient in their duty and meeting with great success. The sweet-faced girls, each wearing a large scarlet poppy (emblem of splendid sacrifice), did their work carefully, each team taking a section of the village and making a house to house canvass with gratifying results. The girls were Misses Clarice Kidd, Beatrice Charlton, Pearl Young, Mary McFadden, Marion Wagar, Zetta Nixon, Lilian Stuart, Constance Stuart and Aileen Brown.

The ladies' committee were Mrs. W. W. Leonard, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the G.W.V.A., Mrs. Stuart, Mrs. Stenner and Mrs. Wannamaker. The tagging began at 1.30 p.m., and at 9.30 the receipts were counted by Comrades Stenner and McFadden.

Miscellaneous Shower.

On Thursday evening about fifty ladies of the Methodist Church gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Stabler for a social evening in honor of Miss Clara Doidge. Mrs. S. Sutton played the wedding march and Mrs. McMillan read a witty little poem expressing the good wishes of the ladies to the bride. During the reading of the address a dainty little chef, clad in spotless white, carried in a large three-story wedding cake and presented it to the bride with instructions to cut it. When cut it was found to contain a large number of useful articles, comprising a miscellaneous shower. Miss Doidge, although completely taken by surprise, made a graceful reply, thanking her friends for their kind remembrance of her on the occasion of her marriage. Mrs. William Millage played the part of the chef and received many compliments on her conception of the part. After a social hour, during which refreshments were served, the ladies dispersed to their homes, one and all expressing their enjoyment of the occasion.

Grove School Won.

The annual Thanksgiving Day football game between The Grove team and the Old Boys' team was played on Monday morning and resulted in a victory for The Grove. The score was 17-3. The Old Boys' team missed the services of Hugh Mackenzie, who was expected to play quarter but who was not able to be present. The line-up was as follows:

Grove.—Griffiths, flying wing; Rainnie, Christmas, Moore, half; Fawcett, Young, outside; Pedlar, Little II., middle; Pullen, Flick, insides; Barnard, quarter; Loosemore; Subs., James and Robertson.

W.M.S. Thankoffering.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church are holding their annual thankoffering meeting on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 18, at 2.30 p.m. Mrs. Mackenzie will give an address. The meeting will be held as usual in the school-room of the church and the members of the other missionary societies in the village have been asked to attend.

Fair of Nations.

The event of the season promises to be the Fair of All Nations, to be held on Dec. 11 in the Memorial Hall under the auspices of St. John's Church. Mrs. Lawrence H. Grahame is the convenor of the central committee.

The volunteer fire brigade did good service at the fire at the House of Refuge barn on Friday night but were handicapped by the great lack of water. A number of the boys remained on guard all night. The village is to be congratulated on the fact that the members of the brigade have such a broad and self-sacrificing conception of duty.

For Health

Try to include one leafy vegetable such as celery, spinach, cabbage or lettuce in your diet each day. It is invaluable for the health and complexion.

U.S. REPUBLICS COMING CLOSER

Next Great Conference Will Be the Third Pan-American Scientific Congress.

U. S. HAS BIG PART.

By HARRY W. FRANTZ.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (United Press).—Profound effects on the future relations between the American republics, resulting from the series of Pan-American conferences now in progress and being planned, are foreseen by observers here.

In years gone by there has been some skepticism regarding the actual benefits from the Pan-American conferences which dealt with political matters, as the agreements reached often later failed to secure ratification.

But all authorities are agreed on the tremendous advantages to be derived by all countries from the various technical and educational meetings which now are being plagued.

Within the next two years there will occur intra-American conferences dealing with numerous subjects, as sanitation, journalism, highways, science, codification of American law and standardization. While all of these conferences are conducted with the assent and support of the various American governments, the delegations usually represent experts of non-official character, who profit greatly by the opportunities for exchange of knowledge and the cultivation of personal acquaintanceships.

The next of the great conferences will be the Third Pan-American Scientific Congress at Lima, Peru, from December 20, 1924, to January 6, 1925. Simultaneously in the same city will occur a conference on standardization.

Already there has been great co-operation between scientific men of the American republics, particularly in the fields of medicine and surgery. Hundreds of South American physicians of highest rank have studied in universities in the United States or visited here for special training under auspices of the Rockefeller Institute.

This co-operation cannot fail to extend as the result of the conference at Lima, which will cover the following topics: (1) History and Anthropology; (2) Physical and Mathematical Science; (3) Mining, Metallurgy, Geology and Applied Chemistry; (4) Engineering; (5) Medicine; (6) Biology, Agriculture and Zoothenics; (7) Private, Public and International Law; (8) Economics and Sociology; (9) Education.

U.S. Has Big Part.

In each of these fields the United States will be represented by a foremost authority. In fact, the delegation of nine members probably will consist of the most notable group of American scientists who ever left this country to attend a scientific gathering. Besides the attendance of the official delegation many other American scientists will submit special papers to be read and published at the conference.

Among the contributions to be made by United States scientists will be a paper dealing with "The Velocity of Light," to be read by Mr. Albert Abraham Nichelson, Ph.D., president of the National Academy of Sciences, and winner of the Nobel Prize in physics. Proposals for closer co-operation of American republics in archaeological work will be made in a paper to be sent by Dr. John Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institute at Washington.

The United States delegation will be under the chairmanship of Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director of the Pan-American Union and president of the American Academy of Political and Social Sciences.

Other members of the delegation are Professor Marshall H. Saville, of the Museum of the American Indian, Haye Foundation at New York; Albert Abraham Michelson, Ph.D., President National Academy of Sciences, University of Chicago; Albert Sauveur, S.B., of Harvard University; Mr. A. W. Whitney, chairman of the American Engineering Standards Committee, New York; John D. Long, M.D., assistant Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service; Vernon Kellogg, M.S., secretary, National Research Council, Washington; James Brown Scott, J. U.D., president, American Institute of International Law, Washington; Samuel McCune Lindsay, Ph.D., professor of social legislation at Columbia University; Dr. Rufus B. Von Kleinsmid, Ph.D., president of University of Southern California, Los Angeles.

The Inter-American Scientific Conferences were first inspired by the Argentine Scientific Society, which convened a congress at Buenos Aires in 1898. After several conferences confined to Latin-American republics, the United States first attended at Santiago, Chile, in 1908, this being the first Pan-American Congress. The second was held at Washington in December, 1915, and was attended by over one thousand scientists.

HONESTY

Mrs. Max Museus accidentally threw $300 worth of jewels into her garbage pail. This happened in Newark, N.J. She phoned the city garbage department and recovered her gems. Mattie Duca, who found and returned them, refused a reward.

"All in the day's work," said her.

Such honesty is worth publicity. But it may not be as exceptional as most of us imagine. Evil gets the lion's share of the publicity. A few crooks in an honest world are apt to make us think the whole world is crooked. Plenty of good deeds, unheralded.

Wishes won't win, while work will when wedded with wisdom.

WEDDING BELLS

WEBSTER—DOIDGE.

LAKEFIELD, November 11. — A very pretty wedding was solemnised at high noon on Monday (Thanksgiving Day) at the home of the bride's parents on Chippewa Street, when Clara, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Doidge, was united in marriage to Mr. David H. Webster, also of Lakefield.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. S. Reddick, in the presence of the immediate families of the contracting parties.

After a short honeymoon the happy couple will take up their residence in the village.

CLEAN HEAD LOTION.

To rid children's hair of nits and vermin, use Parke's Skidoo. It is clean to use, not oily or sticky, does the work thoroughly and its use cannot be detected. Get it at Bond's Drug Store, corner George and Hunter Streets.

It's a great thing to be thankful for your lot—even if it's not a lot.

Life is always worth living; it's the way we look at it that's wrong.

OBITUARY

DAVID JOSEPH WHEELER.

The death occurred on Sunday evening, after a long illness, of David Joseph Wheeler, 2 Gladstone Avenue. The deceased, who was thirty-three years of age, was a veteran of the Great War, and served with the Canadian Expeditionary Force for four years. His passing will bring grief to a large circle of friends.

The funeral took place this morning with a service at the Church of the Sacred Heart, followed by interment in St. Peter's Cemetery.

WAR.

Six large women's organizations will meet in Washington, D.C., in January "to determine the cause and cure of war."

The cause of war (barring rebellions for freedom) is usually profit.

The cure for such wars is to take away the profit. Drafting factories and dollars, the same as conscripting human bodies, would work wonders.

The Affair at Flower Acres

by CAROLYN WELLS

© 1924 by NEA Service Inc.

CHAPTER XII.

"Cold-blooded premeditation, then."

"Yes—I suppose so—but it didn't seem to me murder—it didn't even seem wrong. It seemed only justice toward the man who had wronged me, who had wrecked my life—who had tried to murder me! Right or wrong that is what I came to Flower Acres determined to do."

"And so you poisoned him," Nan said, slowly, looking at Eva Turner. "Did he know it?"

"I'm not sure. I think he suspected it. That was why he gave me a large sum of money—in securities—if I would go away from here."

"He knew who you were, then?" Dobbins asked.

"Not at first. But I revealed myself to him—and then he was frightened. He begged me, pleaded with me to go away. But that was my revenge—to see him cringe and crawl. I'm not sure I really meant to kill him—I don't know. I wanted to have him ill—suffering—frightened—and then, if my revenge became satiated—perhaps I should have stopped the poison."

"But a true one," she returned. "And remember, I did not kill him. His wife did that—and I, for one, do not blame her."

She looked compassionately at Nancy, but in a cool, detached way.

The others present on this occasion were Finley, Goddard and Orville Kent.

Ezra Goddard was deeply interested. Malcolm Finley's countenance was impassive. Of them all, Orville Kent seemed the most disturbed. As always, when he was nervously excited, he sat twisting the corners of his handkerchief into spirals.

There was deep affection between this brother and sister, and Nan, the older, had always watched over her brother with devoted care.

Never a strong boy, Kent had grown to manhood only by reason of his own determined efforts to improve his health. Exercise, diet, medical treatment, all had been called on to make a strong, hearty constitution out of a frail one—and though the success was only partial, yet Kent, the man, was a decided improvement on Kent, the sickly child and delicate boy.

It was self-evident that it was the disclosures of Eva Turner that so upset Orry. He listened with flushed face and unnaturally bright eyes; he leaned forward in his chair to drink in her words, and then, as she admitted her decision to use poison on her unsuspecting victim, Kent fell back as if under a crushing blow.

Dobbins, too, was watching. Could it be, he thought, that Kent was in love with Miss Turner? She was—she must be—at least ten years or so older than he, though, as Dobbins knew, that might not prove an insuperable barrier to such a condition of things.

Again, Miss Turner, though a fine-looking wholesome woman, was in no way a charmer or even especially attractive in her appearance.

But, unless for some such reason, Dobbins couldn't divine why Kent was so desperately unnerved, even alarmed, the detective thought.

But as Eva Turner continued to talk it began to be more clear that, while she was confessing her own part in the affair, she was also making ready for a graver accusation against someone else.

She had said that Nancy Raynor had shot her husband, but now she came back to it, and made the definite statement that she was sure of it.

"Did you see Mrs. Raynor with the pistol in her hand?" Dobbins asked. "This is a grave statement you're making, Miss Turner."

"No; I didn't see that—for the simple reason that I didn't flash the lights on quickly enough for that."

"Tell me exactly what you saw when the lights did go on."

"Your testimony is of the greatest importance, Miss Turner, so I will ask you to be very careful what you say. You're sure Mrs. Raynor was fleeing—I take that word to mean running away from possible discovery?"

"That is exactly what she was doing." Eva Turner nodded her head with emphasis.

"Did Mr. Finley look frightened?"

"He looked more disturbed—bewildered, puzzled. I should say he picked up the pistol with the intention, of helping to shield Mrs. Raynor, either by taking the crime on his own shoulders, or, at least, by removing her finger-marks from the weapon. He was already rubbing it with his handkerchief when I looked at him."

"You have reconstructed this affair very definitely, Miss Turner. You must have thought over it a great deal."

"I have. I have lived that scene over and over in my mind——"

"With the idea of making up this poppycock yarn!" Orville Kent burst out.

And then Dobbins understood the distress Orry had shown. He had realized that, although Eva Turner bring the shooting back to Nan, and Kent was apprehensive for his sister.

He was, therefore, Dobbins decided making ready now to put up a bold fight, and he started in by trying to turn the tables and lay the crime at Eva Turner's door.

But, no; Kent did not go as far as that. He held up his hand, still shaking nervously and said:

"I protest this woman's testimony. I insist that it is not worthy of credence. She has admitted that she tried to poison Douglas Raynor—is it to be allowed her, then, to accuse someone else of bringing about his death? Is she not disqualified as a witness? Would she not lay the crime on anybody rather than that suspicion should rest on her. She says she saw Mrs. Raynor running out of the door. Suppose she was. Suppose Mrs. Raynor, hearing the shot, ran to the room to see what had happened. She entered in the semi-darkness, and then, when Miss Turner put on the lights, she saw the tragedy—and, of course, she ran from the room. The most natural thing to do. I make no accusation myself, I offer no suggestion—but I hold, Mr. Dobbins, that you must not take this woman's unsupported word for what happened that night."

"You are right," Ezra Goddard said. "I agree, Mr. Dobbins, that such a deeply interested party as Miss Turner cannot be depended on for an unbiased account of what occurred."

Kent looked relieved at this support of his own opinions, and settled back in his chair, still twisting his handkerchief, and now and then glancing sympathetically at Nan.

A short time previously Lionel Raynor had drifted into the room. He silently took a seat, and listened with attention.

At last he spoke.

"I suppose, as my father's son and heir, I have some voice in this matter," he said; "and I want to put it on record that, so far as I am concerned, I am willing to drop the investigation. I accuse no one, I make no suggestion, drop no hint as to who the criminal may have been. If it was any member of this household, I don't want to know it. And if it was some marauder from outside, I feel sure there is no chance of getting him now. So, Mr. Dobbins, you can call off your assistants—for I'm told you have other detectives on a still hunt for clues; I did, at first, feel a most natural desire to avenge my father's death, but for more than one reason, I now feel I would rather the matter be dropped. This, I think, will meet the approval of my father's widow, and I cannot see that there is anyone else to be considered."

"Oh, you can't!" exclaimed Dobbins, looking at Lionel curiously. "Well, let me tell you, Mr. Raynor, that the law doesn't work or rest at the dictation of a mere citizen! Justice calls for the utmost effort on our part to find the murderer of Douglas Raynor—and Justice must run its course."

Kent, who had nodded his head eagerly in affirmation of Lionel's speech, again looked cast down at Dobbins' words. He fell back in his chair, and as his fingers worked nervously, he looked at his sister with a face of infinite sadness and despair.

Detective Dobbins looked around the group.

He was a man of limited intelligence, but he had the wisdom to recognize his own limitations. And he sighed to himself as he realized that here was a big case, a big situation—but, alas, too big for him to cope with. He almost said as much, but paused in time, knowing that was not the part of wisdom.

"By a chance," he said, "we have here now the four people who stood at the four doors of the sun parlor at the time Mr. Raynor was shot. Oh, yes, I know Mr. Kent came to the south door about ten minutes after the shot, but I hold that even in the dusk he would have seen any one leaving by that door, so he was practically a guardian o that exit."

"Not at all, Mr. Dobbins," Orry's eyes glittered with excitement, but his voice was steady. "I came up from the bridge, and as I walked along I wasn't even looking toward the house."

"Where were you looking?"

"West—at the afterglow of the sunset. It was growing dark but there were a few silvery clouds fading to grey. And even if I had come up the hill looking toward the house I could not have seen anyone who had come out of that south door, if he had been careful to skulk along in the shadows of the shrubbery, which, doubtless, he would have done."

"That's true," Finley said; "and I agree, Mr. Dobbins, that you have that south door unaccounted for, and you must take into consideration the possibility that the murderer of Mr. Raynor escaped that way."

"Granting that possibility, to have been at the other three doors, and Mr. Kent, who appeared at the south door a very little later, would like a sworn statement from each of you as to what you saw and heard. Mr. Finley, will you speak first, and, remember, you are on oath."

"I heard the shot, I went from the east veranda to the east door of the sun room, I went in, and I saw Douglas Raynor on the floor, a evolver at his side. I picked it up—an involuntary act for which I have no definite explanation, and at that moment Miss Turner snapped on the lights."

"Did you see Mrs. Raynor in the room? Recollect, you are on oath."

"Coming in or going out?"

"As I was so amazed at the sight of Mr. Raynor, and a little blinded by the sudden ligh , I cannot positively answer your qu s ion. But to the best of my knowledge and belief she was coming in."

The quiet tones, the straightforward air, did more to carry conviction than emphasis could have done. Nan looked at him gratefully, and Orry showed relief at the words.

"You think she was going out, Miss Turner?"

"I know she was," said the nurse. "I saw her even before I saw Mr. Raynor, and I can swear she was hastening out of the room."

"Mrs. Raynor, do you care to testify?"

"No—I'd rather not!"—said Nan, in a voice so low as to be almost inaudible.

Eva Turner said nothing, but the triumphant look on her face told of her conviction of Nan's guilt.

"I haven't spoken yet," Kent said, deliberately. "I suppose I have a right to be heard, Mr. Dobbins."

"Certainly—I wish y u would recount what you saw when you appeared on the scene."

"I came in at the south door," Orry began, "and I found the scene much as you have all described it. Douglas lay on the floor, Finley stood near him, revolver in hand, Miss Turner was at the north door, or just inside it, and Miss Mattie was close to her. But as I came in at the south door my sister was just entering the west door. She was not going out—she was not 'fleeing' or running away, she was coming in—I saw her—her face horror-stricken with surprise and fright."

Miss Turner gave a supercilious smile.

"Mr. Kent is quite right," she said, "but it must be remembered that he came a few moments later than the rest of us. That was Mrs. Raynor's return he saw. I saw her leave the room, hastily, as I said, and I then saw her return, coming in at the door, as her brother also entered at the south door. This, I think, explains the seeming discrepancy in our accounts."

Kent looked baffled. More nervous than ever, he picked at his coat collar—pulled his handkerchief from his breast pocket and returned it there, drummed on his knees with his fingers, and finally said:

"Mr. Dobbins, you have only Miss Turner's unsupported word for that, and I hold that is not sufficient."

Poor Dobbins looked worried to death. He saw no loophole of explanation—it was all to him a deep, inexplicable mystery. The only definite or illuminating testimony he had was that of Eva Turner, and if he must discount that, his case was hard indeed.

"I think," he said at last, wiping his forehead, "that I must take some time to think this thing over. I must digest this new information that I have received from Miss Turner—I must report it to my superiors, and I must be guided by them in my next move."

"Am I under arrest?" Eva Turner asked, a little fearfully.

"No, no, Miss Turner, not yet. At least, not until I talk with the chief. But your case is grave—I cannot hold out much hope of leniency for you."

Eva Turner said nothing—her placid face seeming to conceal every thought or emotion of her brain.

"I am not sure Mrs. Raynor wishes me to stay here," she said, turning to Nan with an air half diffident, half insolent.

"I am not sure that I do," Nan returned calmly. "But I think it is proper that you should stay, and so I ask you to do so. . . . You may take the room you had before—and—I will ask you to respect my desire to be let alone."

The group broke up and Finley took Nan off for a walk in the grounds.

"Make no objections," he said, "you will be ill if you don't get out of doors more. Now you're going for a long walk all around the place, and if you say so, we won't mention the affair of the tragedy at all."

"Then I'll go," Nan said, and they started off.

CHAPTER XIV.

Pennington Wise.

The newcomer at Flower Acres was a good-looking, well set-up man of thirty-five or so, with thick chestnut hair, brushed back from his forehead, keen, blue eyes and a manner that inspired confidence.

Pennington Wise was his name, and he was a justly celebrated private detective.

Ezra Goddard had engaged him, for Ezra Goddard had come to several very definite conclusions. One of these was that Detective Dobbins couldn't swing the Raynor case, and another was that probably any other police detective would not do much better than Dobbins.

Malcolm Finley was, on the whole, glad, yet he felt a certain uneasiness as to what might transpire.

Miss Turner was frightened; Lionel Raynor was angry; and Miss Mattie, though affronted at not having been consulted on the matter, was deeply interested and agog with curiosity as to what the new development would be.

So she greeted Pennington Wise with cordiality and welcomed him to Flower Acres, while the others looked on with varying degrees of uncertainty.

"Wonderful place," Wise said, standing on the terrace. "Before beginning my work here I must beg for a few minutes to absorb this marvellous beauty."

With him had come a strange little being, who, he said carelessly, was his assistant. She was a small, scrap of a girl, slender as a willow wand, inconspicuous, unnoticeable, almost invisible, so persistently did she keep in the background. Yet she was always there, always at the beck or call of Pennington Wise, and her assistance was as valuable as it was unostentatious.

From a secluded alcove of the terrace, almost hidden by a tall palm, Zizi, for that was the girl's name, looked out, raptly, over the flowery acres. No one noticed her.

At last, Wise drew a long sigh, as of very surfeit, of the beauty before him and turned to the group, who awaited his questions, with widely different anticipations.

It was tea-time, always a pleasant function at the Raynor house, and Ezra Goddard had arranged that the first inquiries of the detective should be conducted under the guise of a social chat rather than an official grilling.

It transpired that the detective knew the history of the case.

"Be careful in your statements," he counselled. "There is nothing so uncertain as human evidence. If I am to get at the facts of this case, I must have the most meticulous efforts on the part of you all to speak the truth. Let us take this point of Mrs. Raynor's position when Miss Turner put the lights on. Miss Turner, can you swear that Mrs. Raynor was leaving the room?"

"Yes—Oh, yes."

"Was she frightened-looking?"

"Yes, indeed she was!"

"Ah—how did you observe this when her back was toward you? How do you know that she did not wear an expression of triumph——"

Eva Turner looked dumfounded.

"You see," Wise went on, "Miss Turner noted the frightened face of Mrs. Raynor, although she swears that Mrs. Raynor was going out of the door—fleeing—I believe she said. A person doesn't flee backward. Now, Mr. Finley, for your account of this moment. You entered at the east door—after you heard the shot?"

"Yes," said Finley, shortly. He was not gruff or annoyed, but he felt as if he were to be tripped up unless very careful, even though telling a straight story.

"You were inside the sun parlor before the light flashed up?"

"Yes."

"You had involuntarily picked up the revolver before the light appeared?"

"Yes."

"How could you see the weapon?"

"It was dusk—not entirely dark, and the metal shone clearly."

"Yes, it would. You could see Mr. Raynor——"

"As a huddled heap on the floor. Seeing the pistol, I knew what must have happened, and I picked it up——"

"Yes, I know; and then the light came, and—here is the point—you glanced at once toward Mrs. Raynor?"

"No—or, I don't know." Finley spoke slowly. "I should say I looked first at Mr. Raynor—naturally he caught my attention."

"Of course—of course," Wise assented. "and then?"

"And then—oh, I don't know! I suppose my eyes glanced round——"

"Try to think—your eyes glanced round and you saw Mrs. Raynor——"

"Yes."

"Going out or coming in at the west door?"

Finley fidgeted. It was one thing to tell a glib tale to Dobbins and quite another to meet these clear blue eyes with an indefinite statement.

"I don't know," he said at last, desperately; "I should say she was just standing there—neither going out nor coming in."

"Certainly not 'fleeing' then," and Wise nodded. "You saw her face, Mr. Finley?"

Again Finley paused.

"Mr. Wise," he said, "I cannot say. I was so startled by the occasion, and also so blinded by the sudden light, that I cannot say whether I could see Mrs. Raynor's face or not."

"That will do, Mr. Finley," Wise looked at him contemplatively. "You are uncertain because you want to be. You are uncertain of what to say—rather than as to what you saw. You are trying to think what will be best for Mrs. Raynor's interests."

"Are you a clairvoyant, Mr. Wise?" Finley asked.

"No, it is not necessary to be that to read your attitude."

"My attitude is more sincere than you think." Finley spoke angrily now. "I have no reason to speak other than the truth. But it is not surprising that I cannot remember clearly the details of the scene."

"That is perfectly true. Yet, the details you do remember are somewhat contradictory. The lights flashed on, you glanced first, and naturally, at the shocking sight of Mr. Raynor's body on the floor. With the light on you could see this plainly—could even see that he was evidently dead, or, at least, seriously injured. Is this not so?"

"Yes."

"And you looked at the revolver in your hand?"

"I dare say—I suppose so—yes, I am sure I did."

"Then, your glance turned toward the door where Mrs. Raynor stood."

"Yes."

"Yet, after the notice you took of Mr. Raynor, after the look you gave the weapon you held in your hand after these appraising glances—you state that your eyes were so blinded by the sudden light you could not see Mrs. Raynor clearly."

Malcolm Finley looked chagrined, and then, in manly fashion he accepted the situation.

"I fear I spoke hastily, Mr. Wise. Now, I can only say, that I agree that after the attention I paid to the sight of Mr. Raynor, and to the revolver, which I saw quite clearly, I could not have been dazzled by the light. But when I said that—I thought it was so Now, I will correct it by saying that I must have been dazed rather than dazzled, and dazed—stunned, almost—by the shock of the evident tragedy, and because of my bewildered senses did not see clearly—definitely, rather—the exact position or attitude of Mrs. Raynor as she stood in the doorway."

"Yet it seems probable that you should see the lady as well as that you should see the other scenes you speak of. You noticed Miss Turner?"

"Yes; she stood, her hand still on the light switch, her face horrified, and behind her came Miss Raynor, equally agitated."

"You seem to have noticed these two ladies much more definitely than you observed Mrs. Raynor. Why was that?"

"I cannot tell you," Malcolm Finley said, with dignity.

"Will you tell me," Wise said, turning to Nan, "whether you were leaving or entering the room when the lights appeared?"

"I don't know."

"Try to think—it may mean a great deal."

"I can't think—I can't remember."

"You were sitting on the terrace when you heard the shot?"

"Yes."

"You rose at once and walked toward the sun parlor?"

"Yes."

"Mrs. Raynor, then as you had been sitting in the dusk, your eyes were accustomed to it—not as if you had come from a lighted room—when you reached the west door of the sun parlor, was the door open?"

"Yes."

"What did you see?"

"Nothing alarming—at first."

"But you saw——"

"I saw——" she spoke like one hypnotized, then she seemed fairly to wrench her own gaze away from the detective's as she cried out, "I won't tell you what I saw!"

"Let her alone," said a soft little voice, and the girl, Zizi, glided to Nan's side, sank in a low seat beside her, and took her hand.

"As to incidental matters," the detective said, speaking on as if without interruption, "whose was the revolver?"

"It belonged to my brother," Miss Mattie said, eagerly, glad to take a part in this enthralling conversation.

Wise looked at her with interest.

"Where did he keep it?"

"Right in the table drawer in the sun parlor."

"Who knew the revolver was in that drawer?"

"Everybody in the house," Miss Raynor replied.

"Fingerprints?"

"None were found on it except mine," Malcolm Finley volunteered.

"I've been told you wiped it with your handkerchief, Mr. Finley, even while you were dazzled by the sudden light and dazed by the shock of the tragedy!"

"Yes; I did it unthinkingly."

"You did not do it unthinkingly," the detective said. "You did it purposely—to remove fingerprints—either your own or another's! Will you say which?"

"If I say which, I shall certainly say my own—for I have no reason to suspect anyone else."

"Did you shoot Mr. Raynor?"

"I am not obliged to answer that question, as you well know, Mr. Wise."

"And you prefer not to do so?"

"Now, as to the mark of the overshoe on the floor." The detective seemed to jump from one subject to another easily. "W saw it?"

"I did," Miss Raynor vouchsafed. "The other detective showed it to me. He said it was a clue."

"It is," Wise said gravely. "Was it a whole print of the sole?"

"Oh, no; just a partial print—of one side of the rubber."

"Which side?"

"Are the rights and lefts of overshoes so clearly defined?" asked Goddard.

"Oh, yes, they are nowadays. I can see it"—she closed her eyes—"I can see how it curves around—yes, the right foot—the right side of the right foot."

"And the footprint was pointed toward or away from Mr. Raynor?"

"Toward him."

"Miss Raynor, your testimony is valuable, indeed. You have unusual powers of observation and of description. The footprint has been washed away?"

"No," Miss Mattie shook her head. "It has not; but so many people have looked at it, and measured it, and fussed over it, that it is partly obliterated."

"Does that mean somebody came in—in from outside—and—and shot my husband?" Nan asked.

"Not necessarily, Mrs. Raynor," Wise said. "It may be it was a footprint made in the afternoon—had it been raining?"

"No," Miss Raynor said; "but the gardens are often damp, and a footprint would be possible."

"Was the footprint mud?" asked Zizi, sharply.

"I'm not sure," Miss Hattie said, thoughtfully. "It may have been merely the impress of the rubber sole on the stone floor of the room. It was dust rather than mud, anyway."

"Probably the footprint of a servant," Wise said, as he rose from his chair and strolled about. "You see, if there had been an intruder from outside, he would have left more than one footprint."

"No," Orville Kent remarked, "there was no floor space just there except between the rugs. Other footprints would have been on the rugs and so unobservable."

"You incline to the outsider theory, Mr. Kent?" the detective inquired.

"Yes," Orry said. "I realize now that such a man might easily have escaped my observation."

Orry was nervous, as usual, twisting up a bit of paper he was holding.

"I think," he went on, throwing the paper aside, and picking up a burnt match, which he proceeded to worry—"if you will turn your attention to some one outside this household, Mr. Wise, you will get on the right track sooner."

THEY QUARREL BY TURNS

George Kapoun and his wife, of Chicago, can talk back to each other on three separate days of the week. But on Sunday they must not quarrel, Judge Harry Lewis has decreed. It is the first of a "take-your-turn-at-battle" experiment which Judge Lewis is trying out to keep married folks out of the divorce courts. The Kapouns were on the verge of separating until this plan was suggested.

Your Estate

The Life Story of a Successful Man

At age 21 "'twas all the Estate he had."

At age 30 he wisely increases his insurance.

At age 50 he has no fear of hardship for himself or his family.

There is but one certain way of having an Estate, and that is through life insurance.

Canadian Government figures recently compiled show that out of 107,109 persons who died in one year, 100,031 left estates of less than $10,000. The vast majority left nothing.

Creating Your Estate

THE CANADA LIFE will guarantee to provide at your death an Estate which is twenty or thirty times greater than the amount of your annual deposit with the Company. And if you live—

Every dollar of regular annual deposit will be returned at the end of twenty years, and substantial dividends will be paid at intervals.

Our "Capital Return" Policy

1st. Deposits are made yearly. This is what you are saving, and at the end of 20 years the Canada Life guarantees the return of every dollar paid in.

2nd. Your life is insured from the day you make the first deposit—for $5,000, or whatever amount you decide.

3rd. Dividends are paid at stated intervals in addition to the return of all deposits at the end of 20 years.

4th. These dividends may be used to increase the amount of your insurance, or be allowed to accumulate at interest for 20 years.

5th. The cash value of Policy and Dividends represents a valuable asset, useful in business, and your "estate" is protected by the insurance.

6th. At the end of Twenty Years you can draw out all you have paid in, along with the accrued dividends—

BUDGET OF LIVE NEWS FROM THE OLD LAND FOR EXAMINER READERS

DR. HADWEN IS ACQUITTED AMID STIRRING SCENES

Gloucester Physician Freed on Manslaughter Charge by Jury

CROWD CHEERS HIM

Right to Freedom of Conscience Upheld and Position Fortified

Dr. Walter Robert Hadwen was acquitted by the jury after 20 minutes' deliberation at Gloucester on a charge of the manslaughter of a child supposedly suffering from diphtheria to whom he did not administer anti-toxin amid scenes of spontaneous and moving enthusiasm. When he made a start to go home he was lifted bodily into a motor car, which was surrounded by a crowd in which women were the most numerous and in the forefront.

Under severe cross-examination, Dr. Hadwen said he did not use anti-toxin because it was "useless and dangerous." When asked if he did not feel a sense of responsibility by going against the generally accepted view of the medical profession of the present day regarding anti-toxin, he replied: "The whole medical profession were at one time in favor of bleeding, etc."

OPINION ON ANTI-TOXIN.

Pressed as to his views on the germ theory, he said he regarded bacillus as the result of disease, not the cause of it. So far as anti-toxin was concerned, he said: "To inject poisoned horse blood into the human body is in my mind unscientific and contrary to the facts of nature."

Thus ends an epoch-making trial. Dr. Hadwen's right to freedom of conscience is maintained and his position in the community is undoubtedly fortified. Little could be said about it while the case was in court, but his supporters made no secret of the feeling that there was organized opposition against him, the principal witness for the prosecution being a doctor who was his bitterest opponent on the vaccination question last year, when he maintained there was no real cause for a smallpox scare, in the midst of which a demand for the enactment of a compulsory vaccination measure was vigorously, although unsuccessfully pressed.

OPPONENT OF VACCINATION.

Dr. Hadwen is well-known to Canadian people, as the result of his tour through parts of the United States and Canada in the autumn of 1922. He is a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in England and president of the British Union for the Abolition of Vivisection.

TAX ON SHOPPERS IRISH COMEDY

Lot of Donegal Women Who Visit Londonderry is Hard

When the Irish Boundary Commission sits the transfer of Donegal from the Free State to Ulster will be urged.

It is pointed out that Londonderry, which is in Ulster, is the natural trade centre for Donegal, leading to many anomalies owing to the Customs barrier set up by the Free State. Another difficulty is the 6d. duty on parcels recently brought into operation by the Free State, which means that wives of farmers or farm workers who go in from Donegal to Londonderry to do their weekly shopping have to pay the tax on each parcel which they take home.

It is a usual request in Londonderry shops for the housewife to ask that her goods be made up into one parcel, but as all the requirements of a household cannot be purchased in the one shop it is inevitable that the housewife returning to Donegal has to take with her several parcels on each of which the Free State authorities levy 6d. when she crosses the frontier. These duties affect every household.

King Alfred Treasure Trove Found in Staffordshire Cave

Fifty Saxon coins, 20 of them belonging to the time of Alfred the Great and others to King Ethelred's reign, have been found in a cave at Beeston Tor (Staffs).

The Rev. George Henry Witson, a Methodist minister of Chorlton (Lancs), the discovery. He also found gold rings and traces of skin or leather which had probably been a wallet.

The coroner of Leek and representatives of the Duke of Devonshire, Lord of the Manor, held an inquiry into the discovery, and found that 49 coins and three gold rings were treasure trove and the property of the State.

Mr. Witson told the court he thought the articles had been taken to the cave for safety during a Danish raid in the ninth century.

WOMAN AWAKES AT EDGE OF 30 FT. DROP

The side-wall of three old cottages in Stockport collapsed while the occupants were in bed.

She said she felt the pillow slip from under her head, and before she realized what had happened the side of the house had disappeared.

She and the other people in the cottages escaped unhurt. Most of the furniture in the rooms was destroyed.

TERRIER SAVES MASTER'S LIFE

Whilst dipping water from a deep, muddy pond on his farm, Thomas Barnes, dairyman, of Shorwell, Isle of Wight, had a seizure and fell unconscious into the water.

His terrier, by a frenzy of barking, attracted the attention of men engaged in threshing near by, and led them to the pond, with the result that Barnes was rescued just in time for life to be restored by artificial respiration.

EXTRAORDINARY SCENES WITNESSED AT MISSION OF HEALING IN ENGLAND

The spirit of Christ the healer of men lived again in the city of Bradford, says the London Daily Express.

Wonderful happenings were manifest before the eyes of sceptics and believers alike crowded in the little church of Frizinghall and lining the prosaic suburban street leading to it.

Hundreds of spectators stood in reverent awe as they saw the blind laughing joyfully for the promise of sight. Here and there crutches were thrown down, and those who had not walked for years demonstrated newborn powers before astonished eyes, crying aloud their praises to God and shedding blessings on all who stood about them.

Picture a street in the grey light of an October morning. The doors of the church are suddenly flung open, cheers and handclappings rend the quiet air, and out walks a middle-aged woman who was carried into the church but an hour or two before.

WOMAN'S CRY.

She had not walked for two years, for she had been crippled by rheumatoid arthritis. She was Mrs. Pinfold, of Wigan street, Westgate.

She had flung down her crutches in the church. "Look at me!" she shrieked in my face. "I have the use of my legs now! I feel a new woman."

In an ecstasy of delirious praise she was rescued from the pressing crowd and carried away.

At eight o'clock we took our seats in the chill church. It was the first morning of the first healing mission sanctioned by the Anglican Church.

Gradually the melancholy succession of sick, maimed, blind, crippled, and epileptic were borne in on stretchers and in bath chairs. Some were carried by nurses and ambulance men.

There were babies—poor, unfinished wisps of humanity—and scared children, crippled from birth, in a procession such as is seen at Lourdes. It wis a heartrending scene, and men's lips quivered and women wept openly.

Now and then the unhappy moans of a baby and the frightened sobs of the children broke the hush of the church. High up on the altar steps the stretcher cases were set one by one, their wan, tortured faces looking ghostly in the white lights of the morning.

The epileptic cases were hurried to the vestry. The organ sounded on a low note while bands of clergy and white-capped nurses hurried to and fro to reassure the supplicants.

Suddenly, the healer, James Moore Hickson, appeared in his virile manhood, his every feature exuding health and optimism. He delivered a short speech in a persuasive vein, and then in businesslike tones asked for continuous prayers throughout the ceremony.

He asked the supplicants to image Christ Himself in the church, that He had come Himself to heal them. A deep hush fell over all, and only the low prayers and supplications of the healer broke the stillness as he passed from one prone form to another, laying hands on each, and followed by the bishop.

Mrs. Pinfold was the sensation of this first day, then came Mrs. Crossland, an elderly woman, who had been blind for five years.

"CHRIST IS NEAR ME!"

"I know that I shall see," she said. "I truly felt the presence of Christ near me. He touched my eyes. I am filled with a new strength. Oh! I know that I shall see!

I then talked with Mrs. Lavender, of Stanningley, who told me she had been unable to use her legs and feet for the last fifteen years. Now she could move them and put her feet to the ground, which she proceeded to demonstrate for me.

I talked with Miss Wadsworth, a domestic servant, of Bradford, a woman aged about thirty. "Ever since I was born my arm has been paralyzed; look at it now!" she said as she waved it to and fro. "I feel so different, so strong, so full of faith and hope. Oh, it was such a wonderful experience!"

There were great crowds present for the final service mission.

Many invalids without tickets came long distances, and, the church being crowded, sat on forms in the churchyard awaiting an opportunity of seeing Mr. Hickson.

The Bishop of Bradford announced two more "cures."

A Keighley woman suffering from neuritis and arthritis is said to have completely recovered the use of her hands, and a Bradford woman who had been lame for twelve years is now able to move about the house comfortably.

Mrs. Vicarman, of Castle street, Shipley, paralyzed for eighteen years, threw her stick away at the church door and walked.

A great crowd sang the Doxology fervently.

Mr. Hickson is being earnestly pressed to arrange another mission, which may be held in Bradford Cathedral.

A thanksgiving service has been arranged for the end of the month.

Stirling Woman Past Century Mark Celebrates Birthday

Mrs. Janet Stalker, who resides at Craigmill, a little village overlooked by the Wallace Monument near Stirling, has celebrated her 103rd birthday, when she received many congratulations from her friends and relations. Mrs. Stalker, known as "Granny Stalker," is not now able to be up as a result of a fall about two years ago.

GREENOCK SCENE OF OXYGEN EXPLOSION

Thirty Homes Wrecked and Forty Casualties Suffered

STREET CAR AFIRE

Main Street Looked Like Miniature Battlefield

Forty people were injured, two tramcars destroyed, and 150 yards of house property damaged by an explosion of oxygen gas cylinders in Main street, Greenock.

Some of the injured are not expected to recover, and thirty families are homeless, their houses being wrecked. The explosion was heard eight miles away.

A lorry bearing the gas cylinders was being unloaded outside Greenock Dockyard when one of the cylinders fell and was broken. It exploded, and the metal fragments caused the other cylinders to burst with a terrific roar and a great flash of flame.

CRIES OF AGONY.

The next instant the street for 150 yards and part of the dockyard resembled a battlefield. Two tramcars with many passengers which were passing in opposite directions at the time received the full force of the explosion.

The street was littered with debris and fallen people crying out in pain; the two tramcars were on fire with the passengers struggling frantically toward the doors, and in the midst of it all the driver of the wrecked lorry was seen running with his clothing on fire. Workers from the dockyard rushed to his assistance with sacks, which they wrapped round his body to extinguish the flames. The man was severely burned.

People in the street within a hundred yards of the explosion were blown off their feet, and many houses caught fire.

A crippled woman was among the people struck by flying debris, and is now in a critical condition. A number of clerks and typists working in the shipyard offices were injured.

The fire brigade prevented the flames in the wrecked houses from spreading, but both the tramcars were completely destroyed. The tramcar service had to be suspended.

DR. LIVEING INJURED.

Dr. G. D. Liveing, Fellow and President of St. John's College, and "G. O.M." of Cambridge, who is nearing his 94th birthday, was knocked down by a woman cyclist.

Company Robbed of Huge Sum But Loss Wiped Out by Profits

It was revealed at a meeting of the British, Foreign and Colonial Corporation, Limited, that the defalcations of the former manager of the foreign exchange department had caused a loss of £97,291.

It was stated, however, that not only had this loss been wiped out by profits, but a further sum of £38,405 had been earned. No dividend, however was declared. The manager, Eric A. G. McDonald, was convicted, with an associate, last December and sentenced to three years' penal servitude, but a loss of only £11,216 was mentioned in court at the time.

The fraud arose in connection with certain speculations in marks and francs which McDonald had conducted two years ago unknown to the directors.

PEERESS' PEARLS UNDER HAMMER

One of the heaviest pearl necklaces in the world, the property of a peeress whose name is at present being kept secret, will be placed on the market after the general election.

The necklace has been hidden from daylight for years in the vaults of a bank, but, according to the auctioneer, it is unlikely that this will have caused any deterioration of the stones.

The pearls were at one time the property of a maid of honor to Queen Victoria. They are threaded in six rows, and among them are some of the largest stones known.

It is expected that American bidders will attempt to secure the necklace.

Alderman Miss S. M. Smee, J.P., has been unanimously selected as [illegible] for the ensuing year.

MURDER MYSTERY STIRS GLASGOW

Dying Boy Found in Garbage Can—Assailant Escapes

A boy of four, named Alexander Green, was murdered in one of the industrial areas of Glasgow today in mysterious circumstances.

He was found by a woman lying in an ashpit in St. Mungo street, Townhead, suffering from two wounds in the throat. The boy was taken to an infirmary, where he died within half an hour.

The woman had previously noticed a man standing at the entrance to the court, and afterwards saw him go across to the ashpit.

The boy's mother, who lives at Albert street, had taken him to visit his aunt in St. Mungo street. While she was having tea with her sister he went along with some other children to play in the back court.

The woman who found the boy immediately raised the alarm, and his aunt and mother carried him into the house.

The police were informed of the crime, and detectives hurriedly started investigations.

ADVERTISING PAYS, SAYS DIRECTOR

We cannot get along without advertising, said H. G. Hart, a director of Lever Bros., Ltd., at Port Sunlight, Cheshire, when entertaining members of the Anglo-Norse, Anglo-Finnish, and Anglo-Swedish Societies of London.

If you have a good trade and an expanding trade it pays you to advertise. I am reminded about the following:—

He who whispers down a well
About the goods he has to sell
Will never make as many dollars
As he who climbs a tree and hollers."

Up to date 2,059,229 people had visited the Palace of Arts at the British Empire Exhibition. Visitors to the Queen's Doll House numbered 1,515,347.

COSTERS FILL IN GRAVE WITH FLOWERS

After the service had been read over a Clapham flower-seller at Mitcham Cemetery mourners filled the grave with flowers. Two costers trampled down the flowers, while two others took the sexton's shovels and filled in the grave.

The flower-seller was Mrs. Louisa Kelly, of West Bury street, Clapham, who died of consumption, leaving six children. There were over 100 wreaths, one in the form of a coster's barrow, with real grapes attached. The wreaths had to be taken out and [illegible]

BUNDLES OF MONEY HANGING ON HOOKS

Aged Spinster of Gravesend Had Healthy Hoard of Cash

The Gravesend police have found thousands of £1 notes in a house in that town, the sole occupier of which has been Miss Agnes Ramsey Clarke, a spinster aged 70.

Found ill in the garden by a neighbor, Miss Clarke was taken to the infirmary in a half-conscious condition and unable to speak.

The police found the house in a neglected state. Two half-starved cats had been apparently the woman's only companions. There was no food except a few bananas in a paper bag.

In the underground kitchen the police found bundles of Treasury notes tied in parcels hanging on hooks in a wardrobe-cupboard. Hidden among a quantity of lace and hosiery were more packets of notes.

BAG OF SOVEREIGNS.

In a tin meat dish in the kitchen were two bags, one containing half-crowns and the other florins, amounting to nearly £100. In the bedroom under a mattress was a bag containing several hundreds of sovereigns and half-sovereigns. Wrapped in an old handkerchief were Bank of England notes.

A quantity of jewellery and plate was also found. The police conveyed the money and valuables to the police station, where the task of counting the former took several hours.

Miss Clarke, who is well known locally for her benevolence, has travelled a good deal. Born in 1854, she was baptised at Penang, off the west coast of the Malay Peninsula. Her mother, who formerly lived at 10 Vlumen-Strasse-Stuttgart, Wurtemburg, Germany, died in June, 1897, and was buried at Gravesend.

ONE FARTHING IS RESULT OF ACTION

A jury in the King's Bench Division London, found a verdict for one farthing damages for Captain Aubrey Leveson Dudley Ryder, of Elm Park Gardens, S.W., in his action for libel in a letter written to him by W. H. Tapp, trading as Messrs. W. H. Tapp and Co., motor garage proprietors, of Shaftesbury avenue. The question of costs was deferred and the actual judgment was postponed.

Captain Ryder's case was that he hired a motor car from Mr. Tapp, but had to leave it in a garage owing to engine trouble, and he informed Mr. Tapp of this fact. He received a letter from Mr. Tapp, in which police action was threatened if the car was not returned.

CANCER CAMPAIGN ON IN LONDON

Lord Mayor Opens Mass Attack on Dread Disease

EMPIRE MOVE

Preliminary Grants for Research and Radium are Voted

A strong appeal to the City of London on behalf of the British Empire Cancer campaign has been launched.

The campaign was organized a year ago, when distinguished surgeons, physicians, and scientists banded themselves together in the fight against the scourge. The grand council of the campaign is representative of all the bodies concerned in cancer research.

The Lord Mayor points out, in connection with the appeal, one person in seven dies from cancer, one in six above the age of forty. Deaths during 1922, according to the Registrar-General, included 46,000 from this cause.

The campaign committee has already made preliminary grants of more than £6,000 for research work; £5,000 worth of radium has been ordered; £1,000 per annum has been allotted for an emanation depot, and various research schemes are under consideration.

Generous support is essential. It is pointed out that if the death-rate remains as it is there will be in less than a generation more deaths from cancer than there was killed during the war.

"The advance in our knowledge of cancer during the past twenty-five years and the analogy of other diseases which have appeared equally intractable give every ground for hope that the conquest will be achieved." This is the considered opinion of the famous men who constitute the grand council and the committees. The sum of £1,000,000—the cost of five hours of war—might profitably be spent, it is urged, on a campaign of "correlating and extending all existing efforts in fighting cancer."

MOSQUITOES KILL TWO IN WEEK

The death of William Moor, 52, a valet, of St. James's street, S.W., from a mosquito bite was the subject of an inquest at Hammersmith.

It was stated that Moor was admitted to West London Hospital, Hammersmith-road, W., on Wednesday suffering from a swollen left arm. The medical staff came to the conclusion that he had been bitten by an insect. Two operations were performed, but he died from blood-poisoning.

The verdict was Death by Misadventure.

This is the second mosquito-bite death within a week. The other was that of B. Williams, a Reading schoolmaster.

Death After Leap From Mining Crane On Red-hot Ingot

Alternatives of a leap on to a red-hot ingot or into a bed of molten metal confronted Arthur Milligan when, twice in succession, he was trapped in an overhead crane at some Middlesbrough steel works.

On each occasion the crane had caught fire.

The first time Milligan chose the molten metal and escaped with his life, though he was away from work for five weeks, suffering from burns.

Next time, he chose the ingot, and was killed.

This story was told by the widow at an inquest on the man, which was adjourned until Friday.

Milligan, who was 53, lived at South Bank, Middlesbrough.

HOT AIR TO DRY HAY IS NEW IDEA

A hairdresser's "hot air" gave a quick-witted woman customer a bright idea. Would it not be possible to use the hairdresser's method of drying hair for the drying of hay and other agricultural crops?

The woman, Mrs. Owen, wife of Captain Owen, Director of the Oxford University Institute of Agricultural Engineering, passed the idea on to her husband, who proceeded to experiment.

The results have more than justified the research work based on Mrs. Owen's quick-witted suggestion.

Stacks of hay have been dried in ten hours by this process at a cost much less than the cost of drying by ordinary means. Captain Owen has stated that the results are so satisfactory that he is obliged to go on with the experiment, although he did not think much of the idea at first.

RYLANDS LIBRARY BEST IN WORLD

There is no more efficient library in the world than the John Rylands Library, at Manchester, said Lord Crawford and Balcarres, at the library's silver jubilee.

Dr. Cowley, of the Bodleian Library, Oxford, said that when he went into the Rylands Library he was moved with envy, and said to himself, "This is how it ought to be done, and this is how it is done here."

The name of Rylands would rank with that of Lorenzo de Medici, he added.

SUICIDE FASHIONS SUBJECT TO CHANGE

Explaining how great was the need of an accident ward at the West London Hospital, the medical superintendent says that types of attempted suicides "seem to run in cycles. As soon as we have to admit the first case of attempted poisoning by gas we fill up all available oxygen cylinders because we know more will follow. There is the poison phase, and then jumping into the river, and from windows. Monday is the usual day for suicide cases."

SHARKS CARRY AWAY NETS.

Nets anchored in Liscannor Bay by County Clare fishermen were carried away by two 600-pound sharks. The sharks had apparently tried to drive through the nets and killed themselves in the effort.

THANKSGIVING IN LONDON

Mr. James Duckworth and Jack.

They do not have a day set apart for national thanksgiving in England as we have in Canada. But they do have Thanksgiving Services in the churches, and people do go to them to say "Thank You" to God for the food the harvest has brought them.

In the "Old Kent Road," the costermonger vocalist Chevalier used to sing about, they had a grand Harvest Home service the other day. Costers, the men who peddle vegetables and fruits about the streets from donkey-carts, attended in great numbers, for St. Mary Magdalene Church, Old Kent Road, is emphatically the Coster's Church, and its clergy are the warm friends and admirers of these men.

The champion coster of London, Mr. James Duckworth, backed his beautifully decorated and well loaded little truck right up to the church door, unhitched Jack his donkey, and with the help of some of his mates ran the truck right into the church, where it formed the very central focus of the decorations. It contents went to cheer the sick and help the poor afterwards.

In the Thanksgiving service, Mr. Duckworth read the first lesson (Deuteronomy VIII.) and you may be sure that the costers and their wives listened attentively to the sacred words. The second lesson (St. Luke, 13-34) was read by Mr. Curtis, who keeps a public house in the neighborhood.

It is by giving such men a part in the church services that the clergy keep them and their friends interested in religious matters.

Tralee Man Says Britain Only Gives Ireland Fair Play

"We talk about new markets, but we have the greatest market in the world—Great Britain—within sixty miles of Dun Laoghaire," said J. A. Slattery, Tralee, speaking at a luncheon of the Council of the Association of Chambers of Commerce held in Cork.

"That market, in our trade of bacon, butter and eggs, is not developed enough," he proceeded. "People tell us about markets in America and Belgium and Germany and South America. The one place where we get fair play for our produce is Great Britain, and there is room for everyone there."

"You won't get a fair deal in Germany or in America, or in the Argentine or Brazil; I have been in all those countries. You will get a fair deal only in England."

LORD HALDANE ON ATHLETIC FEATS

The Lord Chancellor, Viscount Haldane, received at the House of Lords Sir Alfred Bower, the Lord Mayor-elect of London.

In his address Lord Haldane referred to Sir Alfred's athletic achievements and remarked that one of his own predecessors on the Woolsack was one of the most successful wicket-keepers in England, while another—still with them—had proved his prowess on horseback and on foot.

He himself in his younger days had walked from London to Brighton at the rate of four miles an hour, and so had probably established a record for Lord Chancellors on foot.

The record for the walk to Brighton is that of Mr. H. V. L. Ross, of the Carmelite A. C. and Middlesex Walking Club, who in 1909 covered the 51 miles 1,607 yards in 8 hr. 11 min. 14 sec. His speed varied during the walk, but may be taken at an approximate average of 6¼ miles an hour.

HUNT FOR RATTLE 120 YEARS OLD

The loss of a baby's rattle has been reported to Scotland Yard.

The baby had the rattle during a taxi cab drive with its parents from Kensington to Euston Station, but it was missed shortly afterwards. It is believed that the rattle was left behind in the cab.

The father, Captain T. V. Oldham, R.A.M.C., who offers a reward for its recovery, explained that the rattle was an unusual one. It had been handed down from baby to baby in an unbroken chain for more than 120 years.

It has an antique pear-shaped silver handle with an ivory ring at the top, and originally came from India.

"HIPPO" HUNT IN OLD DEVON TOWN

Half-a-dozen enthusiasts of the Newton Abbot Natural History Society are exploring some caves at Torbryan in the hope of finding a hippopotamus. A tooth of this animal was discovered in the middle of last century.

A man named Wedger, who then spent twenty years in exploring more of the caves, found the remains of a prehistoric bird of gigantic size, and of bears, wolves, lions, hyenas, and reindeer, besides the hippopotamus' tooth. Experts have argued for years over the finds, some of which are in the British Museum.

So far no trace of the hippopotamus has been found, but beneath a stalagmite floor, which took at least ten thousand years to form, were disclosed remains of hyenas with footprints and pottery giving evidence of human occupation.

BISHOP BARNES AND HIS CREED

Change in Christian Dogma Necessary Long Ago, He Says

YOUTH DEPARTING

Bad Scientific Ideas are Causing Church to Lost Ground

The new Bishop of Birmingham, Dr. W. E. Barnes, delivered a trenchant reply to his critics in his first sermon at the Pro-Cathedral in that city.

"I have," he said, "received a large number of letters from people who want to know how I reconcile my views with the solemn promises I made at my consecration.

"On that occasion I promised to put away all erroneous and strange doctrines, and my correspondents aver that that promise is inconsistent with my known views on biology.

"My correspondents aver that I place scientific experts higher than God's words.

REVELATIONS.

"My reply to that is that God's word is not limited to Holy Scripture God works through Newton and Darwin no less than through Isaiah and St. Paul. God's word is an ever-growing and ever-expanding revelation of Himself.

"Evolution, it is true, cannot be proved by Scripture. But one does not go to the Bible for science, but for moral and spiritual guidance.

"If the Bible were a scientific textbook it would inspire nobody.

"It is also true that beliefs are not necessary to salvation. God will not judge us on our belief or disbelief in evolution. Heaven is not reserved for highbrows.

"In consequence of the refusal of the Churches to cast off their bad scientific ideas the young are leaving the Churches.

"My creed is that faith in Christ is not less reasonable but more reasonable against the background of modern knowledge. Some change in Christian dogma has long ago become necessary. That change lies mainly in casting out the erroneous scientific idea with which the Church has for so long been associated."

LAURENTIC'S GOLD NOW SALVAGED

Gold to the value of £4,750,000 has been salved from the Laurentic, the White Star liner which, acting as an auxiliary cruiser, was sunk off the west coast of Ireland in January, 1917. The Admiralty salvage boat Racer is now at Portsmouth, having finished her task.

In addition, £250,000 worth of silver specie has also been recovered.

"There are still 27 bars of gold, each worth £1,500, lying embedded in the mud, but these cannot be got at without a great deal of trouble," said an Admiralty official to a reporter.

Work on the Laurentic commenced in 1919. At first the luck was not good. Two years later it changed, and each year has brought greater yields of bullion, which has all been safely transferred to the Bank of England.

It was suggested at Highgate Policecourt that a husband spent £1 a week on eau-de-Cologne to "make himself beautiful."

IRISH CLAIMANTS TO TWO FORTUNES

Great Stir Among Families of Edwards and Burke

NEW YORK LAND

Property of British Officer Said to Have Been Leased

A strong element of romance is associated with the valuable estates of two families named Edwards and Burke, in which a considerable number of claims have been received by Denis O'Carroll, Castlecomer.

In the former case, a man named Robert Edwards, who is supposed to have been born in Ireland, and was an officer in the British Army at the time of the American War of Independence, was stationed in Manhattan. For bravery in the field of battle, he was granted some lands, which lands were leased to the British Government by him for 99 years. After the conquest of the British by the Americans, the American Government took up the lease for the unexpired period.

On the lands most of the city of New York has been built, and it is stated that the lands are now worth over fifty million pounds. Robert died intestate, and his brothers became joint heirs. It is descendants of these brothers who will inherit the property.

DISCOVERY IN TRUNK.

In the second case, a man named Martin Edward Burke, a native of Ireland, and who was supposed to be a shoemaker when in Ireland, which he left about 41 years ago for Australia, died last year near Sydney. He had been a postmaster in the Commonwealth, from which post he retired on a pension.

He lodged in a boarding house, and owing to his retiring disposition and the poor manner in which he dressed, his acquaintances took him to have no means but his pension as postmaster.

Great was their surprise when they learned after his death that the authorities discovered in a trunk records of bank deposits to the value of £20,000 in Sydney banks, certificates in Government Stock to the amount of £12,000, and shares in banks to the value of £6,000, making a total of £38,000. He died intestate.

Claims have been made by a great many people in Great Britain, as well as in Ireland, but mostly from Counties Galway, Tipperary, Kilkenny and Sligo. The deceased at the time of his death was aged 80 years.

BRANDY FROM THE CELLARS OF CZAR

Rare Old Russian Vintage Sells at Fabulous Prices

Dozens of cases of rare old Russian brandy, believed to have been looted from the Imperial cellars at the Palace of the Emperor Nicholas II. in Petrograd at the time of the revolution, have recently been smuggled into England, says a London newspaper.

This has come to the knowledge of the Customs authorities, and the police are endeavoring to track down the receivers of this liquor, who are known to be engaging in sales of the brandy in the West End at fabulous prices.

The discovery of the presence of this brandy, and the fact that it had been smuggled in, was made as the result of a pure accident in the office of a man in the West End a day or two ago. He actually offered several of the bottles for sale at an enormous figure to a man, who communicated the story of how the brandy had arrived to the authorities.

Strenuous endeavors are to be made by the Customs authorities to discover how and through what port these cases of brandy were smuggled into the country. The brandy itself, which is of great age, is contained in bottles composed of glass obviously made many years ago, and the labels and seals upon it reveal the apparent origin of the liquor.

At the same time the police and the Customs authorities are considering the possibility that this may be a clever swindle by certain people who have faked the bottles and the labels and are obtaining huge sums for a brandy which though good, is not what they claim it to be.

Prospect Blackest In County Cavan Since Year 1847

When a motion was proposed at Cavan Rural Council, that the County Council be requested to borrow £60,000 for road work to provide employment in the coming winter, the Clerk said it was estimated that an additional expenditure of £9,000 would be required to provide home help this winter, the prospect being the blackest since '47; but it would be much better to spend money on reproductive work rather than in indiscriminate relief, which lowered the self-respect of the people.

Mr. F. Reilby said it was the duty of the Government to come to the rescue of the people in a famine year.

The Clerk said unless something were done speedily the "relief" might take the shape of coffins later on.

It was decided to have the matter considered at a special meeting.

MEN'S COMPLEXION CONTEST STAGED

A competition for men and women with the most natural complexions, and make-up reduced to a minimum, lent piquancy to a dance in aid of West London Hospital at Wembley.

Among the judges or guests were Lady Duff-Gordon, the Hon. Christabel Russell, Miss Pauline Peters, Mrs. Arthur Hamilton (the Channel swimmer), Miss Jane Ross, and Miss Marjorie Hume.

LOTS OF HERRING IN NORTH SEA

The North Sea is teeming with herrings. On Saturday at Lowestoft 240 boats landed 15,000 crans equal to 15,000,000 herrings, and yesterday another 14,000,000 were landed. Several boats secured £300 for a night's work.

The catch at Lowestoft from Sept. 1 is double that of last year, and the value over £112,000, compared with £88,000.

WAR MEMORIAL MAY BE READY BY NEXT YEAR

Peterborough's Dead Will Be Remembered in Most Beautiful of Monuments.

FAMOUS ARCHITECT.

Peterborough's War Memorial will be ready for unveiling next year, is the hope of the Committee of citizens that is attending to the details.

This is the intimation given on Sunday by W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. during his address at the G.W.V.A. Armistice parade at the Grand Opera House when he said the plans had been approved, the contract let, and work actually begun on the casting.

The history of the memorial dates back about three years, to the time when Mayor A. McIntyre called a meeting of citizens to appoint a committee to carry the work through. A design was agreed upon, and Walter S. Allward sculptor for the Dominion Government was selected to build the monument. Mr. Allward was then selected to design and erect the Canadian monument at Vimy Ridge, and his time was so taken up with this larger contract that it was feared he might be unable to continue with the Peterborough memorial. The citizens who had the matter in hand, however, prevailed upon the famous sculptor to keep on the work in connection with the City's monument, and the contract was signed. The bronze part is now being cast in France, and may be ready for delivery next year. The stone work will be done by local labor, and the completed memorial will be erected in Central Park, where the men in whose honour it is raised went through their training, and where they returned to be disbanded.

The monument, which is of beautiful and chaste design, has been conceived especially for Peterborough, and will be one of the most splendid in the Dominion.

KING OF WILD HORSES COMING.

At last the screen has a perfect actor—the actor that does not simulate emotions— the actor that follows no school of interpretation and acts with simple but telling naturalness.

This actor is the magnificent wild "Rex" that is now amazing and thrilling the thousands of picture fans. The Royal has been the fortunate theatre to book this attraction for Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Every lover of horses, of red blooded drama, of daring and thrills, of romance, should see this production. Two performances will be given Saturday night night at 7 and 9.

At a private screening it was voted the greatest novelty and out of the ordinary production ever seen in Peterborough. The theatre-going public are advised and warned not to wait until Saturday and be assured of being able to get accommodation.

TORONTO GIRL KEPT IN MONTREAL HOUSE

Runaway Girl Was Found in House in Montreal With Policeman.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press).—The story of a wayward daughter, who ran away from her home in Toronto, to live with a Montreal policeman, nephew of the Chief of Police Belanger was unfolded at this morning's session of the Montreal police probe by William Charles Radley, of Toronto, who journeyed from that city to testify at the proceedings which are being held under Justice Coderre, he also made other allegations against Arthur Belanger, who, he declared, had told him of various police irregularities. According to Radley's evidence he moved to Toronto some time ago and soon after his arrival there his daughter became dissatisfied and disappeared. Previously, in Montreal she had become friendly with Arthur Belanger. Sometime later Radley testified he received a communication stating that his daughter could be found under the name of Miss Ethel —— at an address on St. Urbain street in Montreal. He found out that Belanger, was keeping girl there, he brought the girl home, but when she reached the age of twenty one she again left and as far as he could tell was still in Montreal.

A FIVE YEAR TERM.

Another Lindsay Man Sentenced to Take a College Course.

LINDSAY, Ont. Nov. 11— At a session of the police court to-day, Harry Checkley was sentenced to a term of five years in Portsmouth Penitentiary for robbing the residence of Lady Hughes, last September. Russell Teevin, an accomplice was sentenced to a year in Ontario reformatory and Joseph Campbell was given suspended sentence for one year on condition that he will take a college course. William Checkley, father of Harry Checkley, pleaded not guilty was elected to be tried at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

HOME BANK TRIAL

TORONTO, November 11 (Canadian Press). — At the trial of C. A. Barnard, Home Bank director, this morning, R. S. Robertson, K.C., the defence counsel, cross-examined Major A. E. Nash, chartered accountant, who examined the books of the bank.

Major Nash is the last Crown witness, and it is expected that his cross-examination will be completed this afternoon.

Mr. Robertson endeavoured to get information concerning the connection of Mr .Barnard with the various big companies which made loans from the bank, particularly the Prudential Trust, hinting that Mr. Barnard in 1923 had nothing to do with the company.

Witness stated that while Mr. Barnard was connected with the Prudential, its loans from the bank were half a million dollars, which increased to a million and a quarter dollars at the time of the collapse of the bank.

ECONOMICAL RECIPES.

Here are two tested recipes that, in addition to being delicious and tasty, are unusually economical:

One Egg Cake.

One-quarter Borden's St. Charles Milk diluted with 1-4 cupful cold water; 1-4 cupful vegetable cooking oil, scant; 2-3 cupful sugar; 1-2 teaspoon salt; 1 1-2 teaspoonfuls baking powder; 1 1-2 cupfuls sifted flour; 1-2 teaspoon vanilla; 1-2 teaspoonful lemon extract; 1 egg.

Beat the egg light and cream with the sugar, salt and flavoring. Combine the milk, diluted, with the cooking oil. Sift together the dry ingredients and add them alternately to the first mixture with milk. Beat thoroughly, turn into lined, medium-sized pan and sprinkle nut meats, chopped raisins or cocoanut over the top. Bake in a moderate oven, for thirty minutes.

Eggless Mayonnaise.

Three tablespoonfuls Borden's St. Charles Milk, undiluted; 1-2 teaspoon salt; 1-4 teaspoon mustard; 2 tablespoons sharp vinegar; 3-4 cupful salad oil—any kind; 1-4 teaspoon pepper.

Combine the seasonings, add the milk and gradually beat in the oil with an egg beater. Then whip in the vinegar. Use as any mayonnaise. Transfer to a covered jar. This will keep indefinitely in a cool place. If too thick, thin with Borden's St. Charles Milk.

Very often the man who complains of hard luck has been having too soft a time.

GROVE SCHOOL HAS MEMORIAL

Chapel Was Crowded For Unveiling of Tablet to Memory of Boys.

PROMINENT SPEAKERS.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 11.—The Memorial Chapel at The Grove was filled almost to capacity on the occasion of the unveiling of the memorial tablet containing the names of boys of the school who made the supreme sacrifice, and to whom the chapel is dedicated. The tablet is the gift of the Women's Guild of The Grove, which was organized last spring in Toronto and of which Mrs. Loosemore is president and Mrs. Massie secretary.

The tablet was unveiled by Canon C. W. Hedley of Toronto, who was a chaplain overseas.

The service was simple in character and was conducted by Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, assisted by Rev. Walter Cox. The preacher was Canon Hedley, who delivered a forceful sermon which impressed all his hearers, old and young.

"The tablet," said Canon Hedley, "should be the pride of every boy in the school. For two years it was his privilege to share the life at the front and it is a matter to be thankful for that these war memorials are everywhere to be seen, in municipality, in school and in church, taking many forms but in every case being the personal and individual memorial to keep green the memory of the men who gave their lives in service to their country, and more than that, they are a reminder to everyone of the most splendid chapter of our history. Lloyd George on his visit to Canada said that the men and women of Canada had won the guerdon of nationhood which could never be taken away.

"In the war Canada found her soul. A nation's riches do not consist of the sums of money saved but in the sacrifices of her sons in a great cause. In British history there are so many incidents that inspire one to better things but there is no brighter chapter than that of Canada in the war. The name of Canada means more since the great war for the whole country east and west are bound together by the splendor of sacrifice and service which has made a new Canada, commanding a new and greater loyalty.

"What were the characteristics of the men at the front? Courage, which took the volunteer army and made it second to none in Europe: the courage which knows no fear. Endurance through the filth and squalor of the trenches; loving comradeship which caused many to give their lives for their friends. Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friend. Cheerfulness which turned hardships into humor and good cheer; kindliness to the enemy, offering him water when wounded and, in many cases, giving him first turn at the dressing station. One may say that this is idealizing those men, of course it is and don't they deserve it?

"People sometimes speak of the religion of the men at the front as a minus quantity, but they had a religion, and it was the kind Jesus Christ would have lived, for there was nothing of the pharisee in it, no hypocricy and very little profession, but when passing the wayside cross one always knew that the men realized its true meaning. The war cost Canada 60,000 lives of young men who died that their country might live and twice sixty thousand who are maimed and crippled, and who are not able to do the work they had been accustomed to. One cannot help but idealize these men. Canon Scott, that wonderful man with the poet's vision, said that without that vision he could not carry on.

"There is hope for the future of our land if we only live up to that great chapter in our history.

"Bishop Brent, quoting ex-president Elliott of Harvard University, said: 'Don't hold the past but gather the best from it, the present is too fleeting to hold but the future is yours, grasp it and make it what you will.' We have the inspiration, which has been given by those who gave their lives in the great adventure, to give his best for country, for those dear to us, for God over all, and for Jesus Christ our Lord and Saviour."

The service closed with the national anthem.

The tablet is of brass, mounted on oak, with the school crest engraved and this inscription: "To the glory of God and in proud and loving memory of the Old Boys of Lakefield Preparatory School who gave their lives in the Great War, 1914-1918. Anderson, Frederic; Broughall, Derick; Carey, William; Clarke, Esmonde; Crombie, Vincent; Cumberland, Keith; Dennistoun, James; Domville, William K.; Fearman, Melbourne; Graves, Thomas; Hilliard, Geoffrey; Kinlock, Ivan; McGillivray, Allister; Morris, William; Mewburn, Chilton; Nelles, Norman; Renfrew, George; Strickland, George; Stuart, Hubert; Sydney-Smith, John; Van Allen, Marsden. Sons of Britain, forget it not, there be such things as love and honor and the soul of man, which cannot be bought with a price and which do not die with death. Erected by The Grove Guild, 1924."

Among the Great War veterans present were: T. B. Marling, M.C.; M. P. Kennedy, M.C.; G. J. Elmsley, Archibald Lampman, Robert J. Webster, Walter Chappel, Charles C. Stenner, Fred Moon, Joseph R. Hill, M.M., Thomas Simpson, Gordon H. Grahame and Arthur B. Burrows. Among the out-of-town visitors were: Mrs. Massie of Cobourg; Mrs. Loosemore and Miss Marling of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Stuart, and Mrs. Arthur Stevenson of Peterboro'.

NEWS OF HARWOOD.

NORWOOD, Nov. 11.—A very enjoyable community event took place at Harwood on Friday night under the auspices of the Women's Institute, which is one of the most energetic body of workers in the district. There were dialogues, drills, choruses, duets, songs, etc. Miss Elsie Hall and Mr. David Hill of Cobourg were among those who took part. A dainty lunch was served and afterwards there was dancing. Everyone had a good time.

Beauty counts for more than brains when it comes to getting a seat in in a crowded street car.

A nickel in the collection plate and afterwards tell the preacher how much he enjoyed the sermon.

NEW WAR ?

Europe is in for considerable more trouble between 1925-1928, according to Abme T. Moreux, director of the Bourges Observatory in Germany. The sun spots indicate it, he declares. And he has studied them more than 20 years. It was he who predicted the World War several years before it started.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

King Vidor has given us another of his excellent character studies in a picture which is full of thrills and sudden climaxes. There is no doubt but what the youthful Goldwyn director has surpassed his first great Goldwyn success, "Three Wise Fools" in "Wild Oranges," his screen version of the popular Joseph Hergesheimer novel.

Vidor personally adapted "Wild Oranges," which opened yesterday at the Regent Theatre for three days. He has followed the theme of the story very closely in his adaptation and has not lost sight of his character, John Woolfolk, whom he leads through a series of unusual circumstances.

The story has to do with a man who loses immediate interest in society after the tragic death of his beautiful wife. He wishes to run away from it all, and becomes a recluse aboard an old yacht. He manages to avoid the everyday humdrum of life until he anchors his yacht in a little lagoon off the Georgia coast. The play opens at this point, where John Woolfolk unexpectedly meets a girl living with her grandfather and a half-crazed youth, who acts as handy man about the tumbled-down house which the trio occupies. Woolfolk finds himself falling in love with the girl, and leaves the place, trying to maintain his former attitude. He is unable to continue the secluded life and returns. A series of startling events keep the story moving as Woolfolk endeavors to take the girl away from her rude surroundings. The whole story is permeated with tenseness and provides plenty of thrills.

Vidor took his company to the Florida coast to obtain scenes which are remarkable in their beauty and fidelity to the story. The photography is excellent Virginia Valli, Frank Mayo, Ford Sterling, Nigel De Brullier and Charles A. Post form a good cast for this unusual photoplay.

AT THE ROYAL.

TWO SCREAMING COMEDIES AT THE ROYAL.

The large holiday crowds were surely kept in good humor at the Royal yesterday. Two clever comedies that brought screams of laughter are in the same programme with above reviewed feature. Larry Semon in "The Bakery," and Harold Lloyd's brother in "Poor Butterfly." It is some time since we heard such continuous laughter in any theatre. They will both be repeated tonight and Wednesday.

"SLAVE OF DESIRE" GOOD ENTERTAINMENT.

That the dawn of a new era in motion pictures has come may be safely asserted when great literary masterpieces are given fine screen presentations. Such is "Slave of Desire," the picture at the Royal Theatre. This is a lavish photoplay of Balzac's immortal story, "The Magic Skin," and although the title has been changed, Gilbert E. Gable, who produced the picture for Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan, has adhered to the great French novelist's story.

"Slave of Desire" is noteworthy because it affords an opportunity for three sterling film favorites to do the best work of their careers. George Walsh, one of the screen's handsomest men, Bessie Love, and Carmel Myers head the cast, the latter as the Countess Fedora, who had most of the men in Paris bewitched by her alluring charm.

Harsh critics of the films would do well to view "Slave of Desire" for in every way it is high above the average run of pictures. In dramatic and compelling story, fine acting, capable direction, and lavish and realistic settings this offering pleased many.

For the benefit of those who haven't read Balzac's story, it is about Raphael Valentin, a young poet and dreamer. He is in love with the Countess Fedora (like many other men) but she jilts him, and, his fortunes impoverished, he is about to end it all with a leap into the Seine when an old antiquarian gives him a magic skin. This precious talisman will cause his every wish to be fulfilled, the antiquarian tells Raphael, but with every wish it will shrink and when it finally disappears, Raphael's life will ebb away. Money, fame and everything he desired, came to Raphael, but with every wish the magic skin shrunk until finally it became no larger than an oak leaf. How Raphael escaped the curse of the magic skin through an unselfish wish which he thought meant his death forms a stirring dramatic climax.

In all the years of his wild, carefree, outlaw life, the beautiful, powerful Black had never known defeat among his own, or capture by man. He was of a breed that knew not bit nor bridle —a king among his kind—the vast plains for his kingdom, a herd of mares for his subjects, a high cliff for his throne, from which he kept eternal vigilance.

Many men had seen the Black and chased him, but none had ever caught him because, if some persevered long enough to drive him into a tight corner, he had one last trick—there was a gap that no other horse had ever leaped without plunging to death!

The Black is the beautiful, wild stallion whose story of love and fidelity is told in "The King of Wild Horses," a Pathepicture produced by Hal Roach, that it is said, brings to the screen something entirely unique in screen drama, and at the same time thrilling.

The horse, untamed and powerful, really a king among his kind, performs many daring stunts. Without a rider on his back he leaps across a broad chasm; he fights off a white stallion who tries to steal his herd; he rushes into the fiery furnace of a forest fire; he dives from a high cliff into a swerling whirlpool; he races like the wind leaving other horses far behind his dust. A magnificent, noble creature!

"The King of Wild Horses" will be the main attraction at the Royal Theatre, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Edna Murphy, Leon Bary, Charles Parrott, Pat Hartigan and Sidney De Grey play the leading roles. Fred Jackman directed.

SERGEANT WEST IN PERSON AT ROYAL TONIGHT.

Last night's turn-away audience at the Royal were given a pleasant surprise in the form of an added attraction. Sergeant West, a 76-year-old army officer, gave some really clever feats in swordsmanship and Indian club juggling. His cutting an apple in two on the back of his assistant's neck is a 'stunt' that requires nerve from both parties. Cutting in two a broom handle, being on paper loops from two razor blades, without breaking the paper loops, called for enthusiastic applause. Sergt. West, a veteran of the Boer and late war, is trying in this manner to raise money to return to his relatives in Australia. He will be in tonight's programme and also Wednesday.

AT THE CAPITOL.

1200 people saw the opening of James Oliver Curwood's romance of the Northland, "Jacqueline, or Blazing Barriers," at the Capitol theatre last night. Despite the enormous attendance, at least four hundred persons were turned away, as the house was filled by 8.15. The feature picture exceeded the expectations of the great crowd that witnessed the opening. It is indeed Curwood at his best. Fast moving action and thrilling incidents follow each other in rapid succession. A great forest-fire scene, with a daring rescue, and a thrilling ride through the rapids of a mountain gorge, are two of the most exciting moments in the picture. As a special added attraction, the Capitol offered The Aeolian Trio, in a delightful programme of musical numbers. Miss Muriel Gladman, pianist, Miss Kathleen Wallis and Miss Beatrice Prest, violinists, are the artists of the trio. As the young ladies are well known in Peterboro, their first appearance here was a looked for event and their playing delighted the audience. Will Rogers in "Our Congressman," a cartoon reel showing views of Old London, and Pathe News completed an excellent programme.

NIBLO'S "RED LILY" DISPLAYS BIG CAST

Ramon Novarro heads the cast of "The Red Lily," the new Metro-Goldwyn picture, which comes tomorrow and Thursday to the Capitol Theatre. "The Red Lily" was directed by Fred Niblo from an Original story of his own and adapted by Bess Meredyth.

Novarro's role in this picture is that of a young man of wealth who is diinherited by his father and turns thief in the underworld of Paris. Enid Bennett plays opposite him in an equally picturesque role.

BOBBY VERNON IN NEWEST COMEDY AT CAPITOL WED.

Bobby Vernon will be seen in his latest Christie Comedy, "High Gear" at the Capitol Theatre, to-morrow and Thursday. This is said to be one of the funniest comedies ever produced by this popular comedian.

AT THE GRAND.

"BRINGING UP FATHER IN IRELAND"

Peterboro theatregoers will have an opportunity of seeing their favorite Danny Simons this week, when he comes to the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday in his newest play, "Bringing up Father in Ireland." The talent of the local comedian needs no commentary. Everyone who has seen Danny in the various stage successes which have been his contributions to the boards during many years will remember just how much fun he can extract from any situation.

In the various "Father" productions, every season sees something new. All that is retained is the oringinal McManus pair, "Jiggs and Maggie," with "Dinty", of course, and some of the "Gang." A new scenic production with new faces and dances and electrical effects, likewise new music, makes it a national institution that will live for many years to come. Music-Comedy-Girl, is the nucleus of all that is pleasing to the ear and eye. "Bringing up Father' is in a class by itself.

"Bringing up Father in Ireland" has proved so far to be one of the most popular of the series. Naturally, one would suspect that Jiggs and Maggie are Irish. In this vehicle, Irish colleens are Jiggs' favorite diversion, and he has great difficulty in dodging the inevitable rolling-pin when he strolls through Dublin town. Scenes of rare Irish beauty afford appropriate settings for the "Old Sod" fun and humour.

The world-wide popularity of the "Father" series may be judged by the fact that an American sailor on one of the Standard Oil steamships, while on a tour to China, bought a pair of canary birds in a shop whose Chinese owner had christened them "Jiggs and Maggie." From China to South Africa "Bringing up Father" is patronized and liked. Some of the newspaper criticisms of Danny Simons' latest vehicle say: Sarnia Observer: "It makes them sit up and laugh. It is a superior show, with a clever presenting company. It left a better impression than any previous cartoon show appearing here." London Press: "A fine production, the company excellent—wit, snappy, handsomely staged, charming chorus, well gowned." London Advertiser: "Hilarious comedy cleverly and vividly staged. Captivating chorus."

PETERBORO CROSSED KINGSTON FOR TWO TRIES THAT WON GAME

Henry and Bookhout Were Ball-Carriers in Collegiate Victory.

BIG CROWD OUT

Kingston Fielded a Strong Team That Held Peterboro Scoreless for Two Periods.

As a result of their 13-5 victory over Kingston C. I. in the Interscholastic O.R.F.U. game at Riverside Park yesterday afternoon the Peterborough Collegiate team will have an eight-point lead to work on in the second game of the series in Kingston on Saturday. It is not a big margin, but, although they put up a stubborn defence, the Eastern collegians did not shape up like a fast-scoring machine, and Coach Brown's crew should be successful in weathering the series, particularly if Bookhout is in shape to go the whole route.

Yesterday's game was a hard fought engagement between two well-drilled teams, and the big crowd followed the play with keen interest. Both outfits used largely the same tactics, most of their attacking plays being through the line, either faked or straight, and added by good interference, neither was very successful in end runs, and the good tackling of both squads prevented the backs from running back punts, so that long dashes were conspicuous by their absence, yet with all that the game was always interesting.

Start Seemed Auspicious..

The Peterborough crew started in as if they were going to run up a huge score. Early in the game their plays netted them big gains, and when Cole's quick thinking gave them an easy touchdown after three minutes playing, it looked like the start of an avalanche of scoring. The visitors got down to work then, held the homesters scoreless for two periods and got a point themselves in the third quarter, only to fade considerably in the last period when Bookhouse was thrown into the game by P.C.I., and made his presence felt by crashing through for the most spectacular gain of the day, culminating in a try.

The visitors fought determinedly, and although they did not succeed in carrying the ball over P.C.I.'s line, made the garnet and grey work for all their points. The visitors' scoring was all done by the aerial route, two kicks to the deadline and a goal from the field making up the total, while P.C.I. scored two trys and three deadlines.

Bookhout Was Missed.

P.C.I. were without Bookhout, except for a single play at the end of the first half, until the last period. The big half-back was missed both for his offensive power and his work on secondary defence, and the P.C.I. crew became a different team when he was sent in for the final quarter. He not only telescoped the Kingston line for a touchdown, but gained repeatedly when called on, and in defence was a big help. Cole and Wood both performed nicely, the former's kicking being of much assistance, while Wood proved a splendid ball-carrier. Up in front the line-plunging of Rye was a feature. The P.C.I. captain was given the ball frequently, but he seemed to be tireless and almost invariably crashed through for a gain. Cheu, Outram and Yelland tackled effectively—in fact, the whole front line was excellent.

Buck Did Kicking.

Buck, who played right field for Kingston Circle Six against the Lakeviews in the O.B.A.A. series, was the most useful player for the visitors. His good kicking gave them all their points, and he caught everything that was kicked at him without the semblance of a fumble. Boyd was good at quarter, and the whole line was strong, with Saunders, Vince and Edgar particularly effective.

Kingston C. I.—Flying wing, Vince; halves, Buck, Harkness and Day; quarter, Boyd; snap, Joliffe; inside wings, Trowbridge and Breault; middle wings, Connolly and Gibson; outside wings, D. Saunders and Edgar. Subs.—McCartney, Gray, E. Saunders, Guy, Godwin.

Peterborough C. I.—Flying wings, Cheu and Outram; halves, Cole and Wood; quarter, Pogue; snap, Yelland; inside wings, Craw and Killaly; middle wings, Ebbs and Rye; outside wings, Fraser and Henry. Subs.—Bookhout, Goheen, Neal, Amys.

Referee—Bobby Armstrong, Toronto.

Umpire—J. Armstrong, Toronto.

The Scoring.

The P.C.I.'s first points were not long in coming. Soon after the kick-off, with the local students in possession at centre, Capt. Rye shot through a hole in Kingston's left wing and carried the ball 40 yards before being dragged down. The visitors' line tightened then and forced a kick, Cole sending a low bounding punt over the goal line. He followed up fast, and although he failed to recover the ball, he touched it, thus putting his teammates onside, and while the Kingston crew hesitated, Henry dropped on the oval for an easy try, which Pogue failed to convert. Peterborough C. I., 5; Kingston C. I., 0.

A fumble by the visitors gave the local students the ball at centre, and they started another dangerous attack, Wood galloping through Kingston's right wing for thirty yards, while P.C.I. added ten more on the next two plays. Cole, however, dropped the ball after making a good gain, and Kingston recovered on their twenty-yard line, getting out of a bad hole. K.C.I. uncorked some good line plays at this stage and made their yards twice in succession. The Petes stopped them then and forced a kick. Pogue fumbled Buck's punt, but Cole recovered at the Petes' 40-yard line, and play remained around mid-field for some time, until fast following up by the Kingston wings nailed Cole at the local 25-yard line. The visitors then gained possession by intercepting a pass on a P.C.I. extension run, and after two plunges for small gains, Buck kicked to the deadline for the visitors' first point. Peterborough C. I., 5; Kingston C. I., 1.

Nice gains by Wood and Cole and a Kingston offside enabled the Petes to work the ball out to centre, where they were held, and just as the quarter ended a long punt by Cole put Kingston in possession at their 5-yard line.

Second Period.

The second period was scoreless, although P.C.I. pressed almost continuously during the fifteen minutes. Kingston's stout defence and a tendency on the part of the garnet and grey crew to get offside at critical moments kept the Peterborough team off the score sheet. They were in position three or four times for an attempt at a field goal or to kick for singles, but they kept on gambling for the bigger stakes that failed to come through. Near the end of the period they advanced the ball forty yards on five downs, only to have Kingston stiffen and take the ball on downs. The visitors tried to plunge out of the danger line, and they in turn had to hand over the ball, giving the Petes another opportunity. Bookhout was thrown into the game at this stage and handed the ball on the third down, but K.C.I. stopped his plunge and recovered possession, working out of a dangerous position.

Third Period.

For some time in the third period the play was of mid-field variety, with neither team able to make any pronounced gain. Finally, however, a fumble on a P.C.I. end run gave Kingston the ball at P.C.I.'s 30-yard line. Buck tried a field goal, but kicked into his own line, and the local students were given the ball. They lost on downs in trying to buck out of danger, and the visitors were once more in a striking position. They could not gain through the line, however, and on the last down Buck booted one to the deadline for a single. Peterborough C. I., 5; Kingston, C. I., 2.

Fine plunging by Rye, Wood and Pogue started P.C.I. on a march down the field, and they worked the ball to Kingston's 35-yard line before the visitors succeeded in slowing up the offensive. Finally forced to kick, Cole punted over the line to Buck, who just managed to wiggle outside. The visitors carried the ball out to their fifteen-yard and then, just before the end of the period, punted, losing possession when the K.C.I. wings failed to give yards on the kick.

Final Period.

The opening of the last quarter, therefore, found the Peterborough crew in possession within the visitors' quarter, and after two plunges Pogue tried an onside kick, Kingston recovering the ball behind their line, giving the local students a rouge. Peterborough C. I., 6; Kingston C. I., 2.

P.C.I. continued to press and the visitors could not work the ball away, although they put up a stubborn resistance.

Finally, however, the ball was handed to Bookhout and the P.C.I. burly half crashed through Kingston's right end, dragged through two or three tacklers as the secondary defence tried to stop him and carried the ball 35 yards for a spectacular try, which Pogue failed to convert. Peterborough C. I., 11; Kingston C. I., 2.

After the kick-off P.C.I. started another offensive, but after two good gains a bad pass by Bookhout on an end run gave the visitors the ball at the local thirty-yard line. They failed to gain on two line plays, but on the third down Buck kicked a pretty goal from the field. Peterborough C. I., 11; Kingston C. I., 5.

Stung by this set-back, the P.C.I. crew took command of the game and had the visitors on the run. Rye, Bookhout, Outram and Pogue crashed through for big gains, but time was nearly up and the local crew played safe, Cole booting to the deadline for a single. Peterborough C. I., 12; Kingston C. I., 5.

Kingston could not gain and were forced to kick, giving P.C.I. possession forty yards out. On four smashing plays they carried the ball to the visitors' twenty-yard line and another try seemed certain. Only a few seconds were left to play, however, and the garnet and grey decided to make sure of another point, Cole booming one to the deadline just before the final whistle sounded.

Summary.

Second period—No score.

Final score—Peterborough C. I., 13; Kingston C. I., 5.

ST. MIKE'S BEATEN BY PRESBYTERIANS

KINGSTON, Nov. 11.—Queen's intermediates took another step nearer the championship yesterday when they defeated St. Michael's of Toronto by the score of 19 to 8, securing an eleven point lead for the return game in Toronto. The game was witnessed by a large crowd, and the tri-color showed a wonderful come-back after the first period.

St. Mike's started off as though they would pile up a lead, and for the first fifteen minutes had play almost constantly in Queen's territory. After a few minutes Lowery planted a nice goal, giving St. Mike's three points. Line plunges continued to gain for St. Mike's and on a fumble St. Mike's recovered, falling on the ball over Queen's line for a touchdown which was not converted, making the score 8 to 0. In the second quarter Queen's started their bucking tactics and held St. Mike's down for the remainder of the game. After gaining yards three times, McCrimmon crashed over for a touch, which Ada converted. In the third quarter Voss kicked twice for points, tieing the score.

The final quarter saw Queen's tearing St. Mike's to pieces, Lowery's kick was blocked, and Baird fell on the ball for a try which Ada converted. A few minutes later Norrie went through, and scored a pretty touch, making the score 19 to 8.

BENGALS AGAIN WIN BIG FOUR

Saturday's Game at Hamilton One of Fastest Ever Seen on Historic Field.

ARGOS WERE GAME

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 4.—Tigers are interprovincial champions for another year. A fighting spirit that came to the front Saturday when things looked worst for the yellow and black, would not be denied, and the Awrey clan pulled a thrilling battle out of the fire. The final count was 14 to 8, and 11 of Tigers' total came in the second when they showed real superiority after being outplayed by Argos in more than three-quarters of the first half. Breaks were plentiful and they rebounded in a reverse manner as those in the game at Toronto a week ago, the Bengals getting them on Saturday when they counted.

The second largest crowd in history saw the game. Although definite returns are not available yet a close estimate figures the total slightly over 9,000 or a few hundred less than the memorable Tiger-Varsity struggle of a decade ago. Argo fans made up a considerable part of this total.

The bitter feeling in the previous game was totally lacking and only two penalties were imposed by the officials, who handled the game in a faultless manner. It was the consensus of opinion that it was the fastest and cleanest championship struggle ever seen here.

Argos were never out of the fight until the two backfield stars were rendered helpless. Breen, Reeves, Fear and Dinsmore were Toronto's outstanding stars, while Johnny Evans was the best man on the field. The former Queen's star played a great game, and he was well backed by Carl Quinn, Timmis, Elford and the outside wings.

RIDEAUS WIN FIRST.

OTTAWA, November 11 (Canadian Press). — In the first of the semi-finals for the Canadian junior rugby championship played here yesterday afternoon, Rideaus defeated Westmount 15 to 2.

There was no question regarding the local team's superiority, and they could have amassed a much larger total had they employed different tactics.

VETS LOST TWO NEEDED POINTS IN SOCCER GAME

Richmond and Sharman Scored—Curtis and Frick Brilliant.

MANY INJURIES

The Second Half Was Full of Thrills and Fiasco Finish.

In ideal soccer weather, on Saturday afternoon, the Thistles defeated the Vets in a league game by three goals to two in a peculiar tussle. If the players do not alter their tactics when referees give their decisions, it would be as well to quit the game of soccer, because it is bringing disgrace upon themselves and those associated with it. The referee made his decision and abided by it amidst very uncalled for remarks. Mr. Jack Clark handled the game without fear or favor.

Vets Opened Up Strong.

There was no choice in winning the toss, and the Vets were at once aggressive through Hanson on the left wing. The Thistles gained possession on mid-field play by Carmichael, who sent Young along the wing. He tricked Mann in the corner, and swinging the ball across into the goal-mouth, Frick smartly fisted clear from amongst a bunch of players, but he failed to return in time to prevent Richmond opening the scoring.

Ding-Dong Battle.

From end to end the battle raged, the best try being from Sharman as the left outside shot across to his mate, who shot aimlessly when well-placed. The same performance was enacted at the other end as Williams missed an open goal when he lifted over the bar. At this period of the game Griffine arrived on the field and made his presence known with a stinging drive against the Thistle goalkeeper. Curtis kicking clear to the right wing, where Mann controlled the play to carry the sphere right against the Thistle defence.

Carmichael Injured.

Carmichael intercepted his progress to his bodily harm when Mann batted full force into the miniature centre-half. Captain Anderson drew Burgess to right-half, sent Dawson into centre-half and Carmichael to outside left, where he remained a spectator as he suffered in agony. Also, Dyer had to retire to receive attention, but resumed later as Crowe stepped out of the game with his old knee injury giving him trouble.

Vets Equalized.

Before the interval, Sharman got the equalizer. The Monks-Griffine wing carried the attack close upon the stalwart defence of the Thistles to gain the superiority in play. Monks kept hammering away until he tapped the ball along the ground to the centre-forward, who was standing close beside Anderson. The full-back claimed offside, but he was astonished to find that the Vets had equalized as he sent a swinging shot past Curtis. From the centre kick the Jags' attack bore down upon Frick without any success as the whistle blew for half-time. G.W.V.A., 1; Thistles, 1.

Half-Time.

To add to his already misfortunes, Carmichael gained another knock early in the second half that completely killed his usefulness. Crowe made his re-appearance to partner Wasson on the defence. A raid on the Thistle fortress saw Hanson make a bee-line for goal that was nullified from a tally as he shot for inside of the upright. Curtis grasped the sphere to give away an unsuccessful corner-kick that was put past by Vets' winger. At the other end, Frick was giving a sterling display between the sticks. It was thrilling to view the Vets' goalie in characteristic pose when he would pull down the sphere from the accurate shots from Young and McPhail.

Richmond's Ground Shot.

Mid-field play ensued until Richmond walked around Dyer and wasting no time sent a low ground shot inside the upright from about half way. After this excitement it would be sad to relate the illegal tactics that was used to the detriment of the game. For a few minutes it seemed as if the players were going to get out of control.

Griffine's Excellent Effort.

Play lagged a little after the brush-up, but it gained spice when Hanson negotiated a corner-kick off Ross. He placed into a mass of players, and Griffine waiting outside the mob, had no difficulty in beating Curtis with a rising shot that sailed in below the crossbar. Before the finish the Vets made the Thistles busy in their own half of the field; then it was reversed until near the end.

Awarded a Foul Against Frick.

Three minutes to go, the Thistles made a desperate attempt to gain the full points. The ball travelled from player to player in the Vets' penalty area. Young and McPhail closed in upon the defence, to be held in check by Wasson. Then Dawson stopped his headway as he lifted the sphere over to Richmond. Frick run out of his goal to make a clearance, and in so doing he committed an infringement that resulted in a penalty kick being awarded by the referee. A fiasco ensued thereafter which would necessitate columns of reading matter of unsportsmanlike methods which sent many spectators away disgusted. Eventually the field was cleared. Richmond took the penalty-kick and made no mistake with his parting shot as he rattled the ball in below the bar for the winning goal, amidst the Vets' protests. Thistles, 3; Vets, 2.

G.W.V.A.—Frick, goal; Crowe and Wasson backs; Logan, Dyer and Mann, half-backs; Monks, Griffine, Sharman, Gash and Hanson, forwards.

Referee—Jack Clark.

QUEEN'S THIRD RUGBY TRIUMPH

Kingston Collegians Defeat Varsity 14-13, Closing the Schedule Without a Loss.

HELPED BY A MUFF

VARSITY STADIUM, November 11. — A single point victory over Varsity on Saturday enabled Queen's to win their third consecutive championship in the inter-collegiate union.

The final score was 14 to 13, with Varsity carrying the battle to the very end and only missing what should have been a hard earned victory by the worst piece of luck imaginable.

An unfortunate muff in the third period at centre by Ralph Mills, the Varsity quarter back, when Queen's were backed into their own territory against the wind, gave the Tri-colour an unearned touchdown and the championship.

Queen's wings following up fast, profited by Mills' mistake, grabbed the loose ball, and ran half the length of the field for a touchdown.

Varsity Fought Back.

Despite this reverse Varsity fought back courageously and if either Somerville or Snyder had been able to drop a field goal in the last period, the blue and white would have pulled the game out of the fire.

But it was not to be. All kicks went wide of the goal posts, and Queen's were fortunate that they had a margin of one point at the finish.

Varsity had the famous Batstone-Leadley combination very well and also broke up the line plunges of the Queen's team in good style.

Leadley did the kicking for the Queen's, and his two field goals kept the Tri-colour in the running.

Warren Snyder, the Varsity captain, played on the secondary defence and performed in sensational fashion in all departments.

He had the distinction of scoring an earned touchdown after a brilliant run.

YEOTES TROPHY TO C.P.C. JUNIORS

Packers Win City and County Championship—Defeat Masseys 3-2.

GAME WAS CLOSE.

The C.P.C. met the Masseys on the King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon and after one of the best games played this season the Packers won by 3 goals to 2.

The Masseys had the assistance of Teddy Bartlett.

The Packers won the toss and had the advantage of the wind. Gardiner was soon in the picture and Fowler was lucky to save a cross shot in the first minute. From the goal kick Bartlett went away and sent across to Laughlin, who in turn gave to Dick Evans, whose shot Bradley threw out; Halliday gave to Foster, who raced away on the left, but his final effort just went wide. Palley sent Williams away but he was robbed by Grant. Buchan displayed fine control of the ball and placed nicely to Gardiner, who beat Fowler.

From the centre kick the Masseys went away with a rush and were within an ace of scoring, Bradley bringing off a great save, the Masseys came again. Bartlett and Billingsley by some nice combination got close in on goal, when one of the Packers handled the ball. The referee promptly gave a penalty. Billingsley was entrusted with the kick and he made no mistake. The teams were now on even terms and the game became very fast.

T. Montgomery sent well down the field. Gardiner passed to Foster who again beat Fowler with a good shot. Billingsley and Bartlett were now playing a great game. Mitchell who played half back, was kept very busy to prevent them form scoring. The game continued fast and exciting; half time arrived with the Packers leading by 2 goals to 1.

Second Half.

Upon resuming the Masseys with the wind behind them began to press. Bartlett was now inside left and was at once in the vicinity of Bradley, whose shot hit the upright; Laughlin hit the rebound, and sent over the bar. The Masseys were now having the best of the exchanges. Pulley, who had changed places with Williams, sent in a nice centre. Bartlett met the ball, and it went past Bradley like a flash.

The Packers were now playing a forcing game, James sending along some nice centres, but the Masseys' defence were in their happiest moods and kept the Packers' forwards from scoring. Time was fast approaching, and it looked as if the game would end in a draw. James got possession and sent in a beautiful centre. Gardiner met it and sent it past Fowler.

The Masseys led by Bartlett tried to get on even terms, and Bradley was very fortunate in turning one of his drives over the bar; Pulley took the kick and sent in among the crowd. Grant averted danger by a huge kick. There was no further scoring. Time was called, and the Packers were the winners of the League and the Yeotes Cup, emblematic of the Junior City Championship, by 3 goals to 2

The Teams.

C. P. C.—Bruce Bradley, T. Montgomery, D. Grant, J. Mitchell, A. Halliday, W. Pulley, J. Downer, T. Foster, Harold Gardiner, W. James, J. Buchan.

The Masseys — Fowler, Smith, Naish, Westlake, Wilson, Williams, Pulley, Langton, Evans, Billingsley, Bartlett.

LUCKY THISTLES SCORED WINNER IN LAST MINUTE

Richmond Opened Scoring —Brown Kicked Through His Own Goal.

QUAKERS HAD 10 MEN

Green and Scott's Unlucky Shots—Dawson Scored and Was the Marksman.

The Thistles were a lucky team to gain the full points in the league game on the holiday from the Quaker Oats by the two-goal-to-one margin. The porridge lads played with only 10 men and were unfortunate around the goal. With only two minutes to go Dawson scored for the Thistles.

The Quakers won the toss and lined up with only ten men, and Burgess on the left for the Thistles missed the upright on starting, then Richmond did likewise. Scott transferred the play to the other end, where Craig and Anderson tackled in front of the goal, as the latter cleared. The Quakers' centre-half then sent a swinging shot over the bar. They kept the Thistle defence in a quandry as they peppered Curtis with all kinds of shots, until Craig headed into goal. Curtis jumped over the players' heads to list clear, but it rolled past for an unproductive corner. Richmond gained possession when Honor mis-kicked. He caught the ball on the run to divert it past Bain for the opening goal. The ten-men aggregation made the opposing defence look upset as they went right in upon the Thistle goalkeeper, who made astonishing saves. Exchanges were even thereafter, with the Quaker boys superior in attack and were unfortune at goal. At last the pressure told upon the Jags when the Quaker half-backs would give no latitude with the ball, and Brown at right half, when making a clearance from Williams, the Quaker player, tipped the ball back to the goalkeeper. Curtis ran out of the goal to pick it up, but to his own astonishment, the ball hit some obstacle in transit which gave it a peculiar turn into an open goal. There was no further progress made when half-time arrived, with the score standing one goal each.

Half-Time.

The second half opened up with the Jags leading a continuous bombardment upon Bain, Honor and Wyllie. Three corners in succession did not bring any success, because Bain was unbeatable. Eventually, offsides against Richmond brought relief. The Quakers retaliated with greater activity than before. Green manipulated the ball past the two defence men, and letting drive with his left foot, his shot rolled over the crossbar with Curtis beat all the way, while the spectators grew more excited. They had not long to wait. A foul against Rae looked dangerous for the Thistles and without contradiction, they were very, very lucky not to be down a goal, as Scott's magnificent drive was stopped by the crossbar. Rae headed out to Dawson, who kicked up the field to Brown. The right half sent the Hotston-McPhail combination along the wing. All of a sudden, the play was switched to the Quaker goal, where they remained until the end. It was pleasing to view the splendid exhibition of goalkeeping given by Bain. He handled all kinds of shot, throwing himself right across the goal to turn the ball round the post, picking the high ones with ease, still grasping the direct drive with precision; also when the three corner kicks were taken rapidly, it was he who was the master of the situation. With two minutes to go, Burgess placed an accurate corner, in which heads play the prominent part, and Dawson rattled the ball through the goal. A few minutes before Williams handled the ball in below the bar from a cross by McPhail. All he had to do was breast it through, but his hands were his robber of a sure goal. Thistles, 2; Quakers, 1.

Goal-scorers — Richmond and Dawson, for Thistles; Brown kicked through his own goal.

The Teams.

Quakers—Bain, goal; Honor and Wyllie, backs; Baker, Scott and Walker, half-backs; Mayette, Green, Craig and Williams, forwards.

Thistles—Curtis, goal; Anderson and Rae, backs; Brown, Dawson and Ross, half-backs; McPhail, Hotston, Richmond, Williams and Burgess, forwards.

Referee—Alex. McKinley.

SENATORS THIRD.

OTTAWA, November 10. — For the first time this season, Ottawa Big Four Rugby fans were given a real chance to yell for the home team on Saturday, when the Senators defeated the M.A.A.A. team 8 to 3 in the final local senior game.

Not only was it the first victory registered on home ground this year, but it marked the retention of third place by the locals, yesterday's defeat sending the Winged Wheelers to the foot of the table for this season.

COMING CHAMP

Allen Hall Jr., Looms Up As Three-Cushion Title-holder.

ALLEN HALL, JR.

Another champion is to be added to the list of three-cushion title-holders, according to a prophecy made by Charles C. Peterson, recognized as the leading developer of billiard material.

Peterson, be it known, is the world's greatest trick shot, holder of the red-ball championship and short-stop king.

Hall recently won the mid-west tournament and is ready to pit his skill against the leaders. Unlike the balkline game, dominated by Hoppe, three-cushions has had a half dozen champions in the last 10 years.

"BERGS" BLEW IN FINAL PERIOD

WON THEIR GROUP

MONTREAL, November 11 (Canadian Press). — Brockville qualified to meet Canadian National champions of the Eastern Division of the Quebec Rugby Football Union in a series of home and home games for the Provincial title, as a result of their 10-1 victory over Ottawa-New Edinburgh yesterday.

A fierce onslaught in the last half of the final quarter gave Brockville the victory.

The game was played at Alexandra Park. The play-off between Brockville and the local Canadian National squad will consist of home and home games, with the first in Brockville next Saturday.

Entering the last quarter, the score was tied at 1 all and for a while it looked as if the Ottawa squad would pull through as they forced the play at first and brought the ball well into Brockville territory.

On the 30 yard line, however, their march was halted when a play was thrown for a distinct loss. The Burghs were then forced to punt, giving the ball to Brockville on their 10-yard line.

A few punts by eac hside followed, and during the exchange on Ottawa back fumbled. In possession at centre field, Brockville began forcing the play and before long they had the opposing squad apparently disorganised.

Ottawa were gradually driven back mainly due to the punting of Lightford. Brockville obtained on a blocked kick on the Ottawa 35, and on the next down Lightford kicked to the deadline to put his team in front 2 to 1.

Ottawa at this stage were playing badly. Their opponents, sensing victory, kept hammering away, and shortly after, with Ottawa backed up on their line and in possession, the Brockville line broke through, and Monohan grabbed a loose ball for a try; Lynch had little trouble in converting, making the count 8 to 1.

Two more points came when Joliat was pushed behind his line for a safety touch. Near the final whistle, Tubman relieved the Ottawa goal line with a long 40-yard run.

The first three periods showed little advantage for either team, the Brockville getting a point in the first quarter and the Burghs evening up

American Horn Rimmed Glasses Now Decorate Royal Nose.

LONDON, Nov. 11. — (United Press).—If King George can be persuaded to chew gum his Americanization will be complete. Since a week or so ago the Royal eyes have been framed in spectacles of the American horn-rimmed variety, and London is wondering if it isn't time to stop making mean cracks at the American habit of wearing such optical accessories.

King George's eyesight is not failing, but the glasses were prescribed as a precautionary measure.

Queen Mary and Princess Mary, Viscountess Lasseles, have worn horn-rimmed sun glasses at sporting events, but the King's Royal nose is the first to be decked with them for reading or walking purposes.

WON SOCCER TITLE.

BRANTFORD, Ont., November 8. —Cockshutt Blues defeated Timmins (Northern Ontario champions) 2 to 1 in the final and deciding game of the Ontario Cup tournament.

DEATHS FROM TURBERCULOSIS REDUCED 50% IN THE LAST 25 YEARS.

Vital statistics prove it. Tuberculosis is not now considered the absolutely fatal disease it was 25 years ago, if it is taken in hand early. The modern treatment is not drug treatment, but dietetic, sanitary and hygienic. If proper foods, cleanliness, fresh air and sunshine can cure tuberculosis they surely can prevent its onset. And if these can prevent the onset of such a terrible disease they sure can also prevent the onset of most other diseases. And, since food is that out of which bodies, good or bad, are made, food must surely be the most important. And Food Science agrees that the most essential foods are the unchanged foodstuffs of nature. Science lays a large share of the blame for so much disease upon the extensive use of white flour and refined 'ghost cereals" from which the mineral salts, fats and vitamins have been foolishly refined away, and without these there can be no permanent health.

Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal is a natural, unrefined whole grain product made from whole wheat, whole rye, flaxin and bran. It compensates the deficiencies of white flour, ghost cereals", etc., and reinforces your health. Its growth-promoting properties make it especially valuable for nursing and expectant mothers and children from the 10th month. It prevents indigestion and postively relieves constipation. Also those members of the G.W.V.A. who have tickets out for sale must return them to-night together with a record of their sales.

The result of the Poppy campaign will be announced to-morrow.

OBITUARY.

KATIE STILWELL.
There passed away early this morning a former resident of Belleville, in the person of Katie Ann Stilwell, widow of Rev. Alfred Barleham, at the residence of her son-in-law, William Ryland, 504 Stewart Street.

She has been a resident of this city for the past six months, coming to this city from Belleville, where she was well known and highly respected.

She leaves to mourn her loss, one sister and two brothers, Mrs. Wm. Ryland, of this city, Edward L. Stilwell, of Montreal, and Arthur, of Rougemont, Quebec.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday morning from 504 Stewart Street, at 10 o'clock, and will proceed to Belleville by motors, where interment will take place. Rev. Dr. Blagrave will officiate.

WILLIAM PORTER.

He was born in Ireland, but for the past sixty years he has resided in the County of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late residence, Mark Street, and will proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Rev. R. Bamforth, of Mark Street Church, will officiate.

RARE TRIBUTE TO ENGLISH BARITONE

Mr. Dalton Baker, Who Appears With Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park Monday Next.

"But not only his expert vocalism, also his rare musicianship and his temperamental interpretations (last not least his vast and impeachable memory) raise him far above the level of so many exponents of vocal art. The programme was well calculated to show the extraordinary versatility of the singer; the humorous and the pathetic, the pensive and the aggressive, the popular and operatic style, Italian and French, even the oratorio—all were presented in authoritative fashion, and every number was followed by vivid applause. 1d-112-4262.

WEDDING BELLS.

POGUE—CHAMBERS.
A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Paul's Manse, on Monday, 10th November, at 1 p.m., by the Rev. Robert Pogue, when Dorothy Helen Chambers, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Stewart Chambers, 175 Aylmer Street, was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to Stanley Pogue, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pogue, of the Township of Ops.

After the ceremony dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents, the young couple leaving on the afternoon train for Detroit, Mich., followed by the kind wishes of all their friends.

DONOGHUE—JOHNSTON.
At St. Peter's Cathedral, on Saturday morning, Mareina Josephine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Johnston, 19 Park street, and Kenneth Joseph, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Donoghue, 586 Charlotte St., were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, by Rev. Father Costello.

The bride, becomingly attired in a dress of poudre blue canton crepe, with hat to match, and carrying a large bouquet of ophelia roses, was escorted to the altar by her father. Miss Lillian Cox of Toronto, dressed in brown canton crepe with hat to match, and carrying a bouquet of yellow chrystanthemums, was bridesmaid, while Arthur Donoghue, of Chicago, brother of the groom, acted as groomsman.

After the ceremony the happy couple and their immediate friends motored to the home of the bride's parents, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Donoghue left on the noon train for Niagara and points west. They will reside in Hamilton.

EIGHT PEOPLE DIED FROM EFFECTS OF APPLE CIDER

LYNCHBURG, Va., November 11 (Canadian Press). — Eight veteran members of the Elks' organisation, residents of the Elks' National Home at Bedford, Va., died late yesterday at the Home, from what is thought to have been fresh cider poisoned by compound used for tree spraying.

The cider, it was said, was bought from a farmer.

The barrel is believed to have been used last spring in connection with spraying.

Several other residents of theHome are ill from the poisoning.

Mrs. Stanley Pogue (nee Dorothy Helen Chambers) who was married on Monday, the 10th of November, was the recipient of many beautiful presents and kind wishes. Among those who entertained for her were Misses Irene Herridge, Henrietta Record, Isabel Taylor and Pauline Heard. The Golden Link Rebekah Staff, to which Mrs. Pogue belonged, presented her with a silver tea service at a special meeting.

Mrs. Pogue was also the recipient of a handsome present from the firm of Peck, Kerr & McElderry, where she was employed.

DOMINIONS APT TO LOOK TOWARD WASHINGTON FOR UNDERSTANDING RATHER THAN TOWARD LONDON

Sir Auckland Geddes, Former British Ambassador to the United States, Asserts that the Difficulties of the Dominions Are More Clearly Realized at Washington.

SURPRISES GREAT LONDON MEETING IN FIRST PAGE MEMORIAL ADDRESS

United States More Compact Than the British Empire and Thereby Wields a Stronger Influence in the Dominions.

CANADIAN BOUNDARY INVISIBLE.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—In a lecture describing the United States as one of the great stable empires of the world, Sir Auckland Geddes, former British ambassador to Washington, yesterday told an audience of 3,000 at Westminster Hall how profoundly American thought was influencing the United Kingdom, and, to an even greater extent, the British dominions.

"The British dominions that look out on the Pacific," he said, "feel that in Washington there is an instinctive understanding of their difficulties which, when they come to London, they have to explain laboriously in Downing Street."

The speaker seemed to surprise some in the audience with the remark that when the dominions looked to the Mother Country and found no satisfactory understanding, "they are apt to look to Washington, and Washington with inviting eyes, looks back on them."

The far flung British Empire, Sir Auckland said, has yielded the leadership of the world in many respects to the compact empire of the United States. He cited the Washington arms conference as an example.

Page Memorial

The former ambassador's address was the first of a series of Walter Page memorial lectures, given in the memory of the former United States Ambassador to Great Britain and wa delivered with many dignitaries surrounding the speaker. The Earl of Balfour, as chairman of the meeting introduced Sir Auckland, and Premier Baldwin, as a guest, moved the thanks of the audience, which Ambassador Kellogg seconded.

"The greatest lesson we as a country ever learned we learned from America 150 years ago" said he "She taught us how to manage our colonies happily. As does not always happen we got a second chance to learn while the world was young enough to permit of colonial expansion. I always think we English people in thinking of America ought to remember what it was that drew people of our stock overseas to America. First, it was to obtain complete freedom of conscience; second too make a new start, and third, to be quit of Europe."

Concluding, the premier said that in the future the sea must be a high way and not a separator.

Influence of U.S.A.

Speakng of the dominions and their relation to Great Britain, Sir Auckland in his lecture said:

"The Dominions speak of us as the motherland and of our parliament as the mother of parliaments. I think that the insistence on the word mother which is affectionate in intention, makes that a tribute of something of old age, if not senility, in regard to our institutions.

"They look upon the government of Washington as of their own generation and anyone who knows of what the people of our sister dominions are thinking knows that some of them, particularly those who look out on the Pacific, feel that in Washington, there is an instinctive understanding difficulties which, when they come to London, they have labouriously to explain in Downing Street. In Canada, American newspapers, magazines and goods all are there. An invisible border divides the territories under the British flag and the flag of the United States. They pass and re-pass that border and play the same games with one another without knowing anything of the difference in nationalities.

"It often happens that when our dominions look to us here, there is no sympathetic answer, no understanding and they look to Washington. Washington is not devoid of eyes and will look back at them."

The speaker declared that the United States because of her compactness and unity, exercise an influence on the British Empire in a way in which no influence radiating from a British source affected the United States. This was because, he explained the British Empire was diversified rather than compact.

Yield Leadership

"Walter Page, by the war", he said, "was able to see that this great empire owing to its conscious diversity was likely to yield more and more to a compact empire. It is no use to pretend that America does not at this time profoundly influence us and empire. We know we have yielded the position of leadership to America in connection with the work designed for the higher service of humanity.

"I believe that throughout the United States there is a desire to co-operate with all parts of the British Empire, with an occasional exception, which I think is rather vague, of co-operating with England."

Premier Baldwin, taking the same tack, as Sir Auckland, declared that important as was Columbus' discovery of England by Americans and the discovery of the United States by Britons.

The premier paid a tribute to Lord Balfour and Sir Auckland by referring to them as "distinguished explorers" well-fitted to interpret the United States to Britons, He declared that "if people could only be persuaded to refrain from public speaking until they were qualified as interpreters, things would be much better on both sides of the Atlantic."

CHILD UNCONSCIOUS 1900 HOURS RECOVERS

Awoke Few Days Ago For First Time Since Injury on August 21.

WINNIPEG, November 12 (Canadian Press). — Unconscious for nearly 1,900 hours in the Winnipeg Children's Hospital, as the result of an automobile accident last August, Marjorie Hay, seven years of age, is believed to be on the road to complete recovery.

A few days ago the child awoke from her long state of coma, and yesterday she was able to eat solid foods for the first time since the accident. She chats with the nurses and takes a lively interest in all the things about her.

HUNTERS MISSING.

Two Winnipeg Men Believed Lost in Snow-Swept Marshes.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Search parties equipped with dragging apparatus and ice-breakers are still combing the frozen, snow-swept marshes of Lake Manitoba for the bodies of Hans Webber and W. T. Smith, two Winnipeg sportsmen who failed to return from a hunting expedition near Glandeboye, Man. This search party has been looking for the men since last Tuesday. The men left for the north nine days ago, and all hope of finding them alive has been abandoned.

AUTOMOBILE UPSET.

Two Brothers Injured in Accident Near Woodstock.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 12.—While motoring on the highway just out of the city limits last night, two brothers, Joseph and Wilfrid Strong, of Downsville, a village out of Toronto, were more or less seriously injured when the car they were riding in turned turtle. Something went wrong with the steering gear. Aid was close at hand and the injured men rescued and rushed to the hospital.

MEMORIAL PICTURES TO LINDSAY COLLEGIATE.

Presented By I.O.D.E. at Patriotic Function on Armistice Day.

LINDSAY, November 12 (Canadian Press). — A unique patriotic function took place at the Collegiate Institute yesterday, when the Kawartha Chapter (Lindsay) of the I.O.D.E. presented the Collegiate with a set of 18 beautiful war memorial pictures, copies of the art paintings in the Art Gallery at Ottawa.

The presentation was made by the Regent, Mrs. H. B. Black, Sr., and the reply by Mr. B. L. McLean, the chairman of the School Board.

The local Chapter also presented Master Carl Swenson, of Lindsay, with seven volumes of Dickens' works, a prize for having had the highest marks of any student at the entrance examination.

This presentation was made by Mrs. G. F. Blackwell ,educational secretary .

An eloquent address was delivered by Mrs. Thomas Stewart, secretary of the I.O.D.E.

SEEDS OF RUIN IN VAST POWER U.S.A. IS WARNED

ARMISTICE HUSH.

Impressive Remembrance in New York on Sixth Anniversary—Legion Parade.

NEW YORK, November 12 (Canadian Press). — New York halted its affairs for two minutes yesterday to commemorate the sixth anniversary of the signing of the Armistice.

There were celebrations in each of the city's five boroughs, varying in size and degree, but the most impressive of the observances was semi-official and wholly voluntary. This occurred at 11 o'clock, the hour of the signing of the Armistice, when for two minutes the entire metropolis ceased its humming to pay homage to the day.

At noon, American Legion exercises were held in Madison Square Park at the Eternal Light. Here gathered 25,000 men who fought in the war—Americans, Canadians, and other British, Italians, Frenchmen—for a simple service that opened with prayer and ended with taps.

Then the uniformed veterans marched up Fifth Avenue to the Mall in Central Park, where addresses were delivered by Mayor Hylan and Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State under President Wilson.

George W. Wickersham, former Unied States Attorney-General, was the principal speaker at Madison Square. He warned that "no nation can long endure that puts its trust in its own prowess."

Lesson of Germany.

"On this sixth anniversary of victory," Mr. Wickersham said, "as we look about upon this favoured land and contemplate our wealth and power, it seems to me we stand in danger of that same exaggerated consciousness of national importance as that in which Germany found expression in the phrase 'Deutschland Uber Alles.' Great power always contains within itself the seeds of its downfall."

There were memorial services in many of the city's churches, notably in St. Patrick's Cathedral and in Trinity Church at Broadway and Wall Street. At the latter service, Rev. Father Paul B. Bil. of Mirfield, England, asserted that from the Armistice must grow permanent peace and not merely a truce as the prelude to a greater war.

"America with her vast economic resources decided the war," he said. "She can, if she will, establish the peace."

Last night Armistice balls were held in the city's larger hotels. The French colony, with members of the Federation of French War Veterans, in a dance held under the patronage of M. Jules Jusserand, the former French Ambassador in Washington.

MONS SENDS GREETING TO CANADIAN SOLDIERS

Belgian Town's Message Renews Memory of Armistice Day.

OTTAWA, November 12 (Canadian Press). — "The administration of the city and the population of Mons send cordial greetings to the Canadian Army."

These were the words of a message received yesterday by the Chief of Staff of the headquarters of the Department of National Defence.

The message was signed by M. Jean Lescarts, Bourcomestre of Mons.

The following reply has been despatched from headquarters:

"On behalf of the soldiers of Canada I thank the administration of the city and the population of Mons for their kindly greetings on the occasion of the sixth anniversary of the Armistice. All ranks are pleased to recall their happy association with the citizens of Mons.

SEIPEL HAS CONSENTED TO FORM NEW CABINET

Austrian Chancellor Demands Confidence Note and End of Strike.

VIENNA, Nov. 12.— The chief committee of the national assembly has requested Dr. Ignaz to form a new cabinet. He has agreed to do so on condition that the strike is ended and a vote of confidence in his re-construction policy can be obtained when the house meets Thursday.

Official negotiations with the striking railroad men led to an agreement last night. This will be submitted by the men's leaders to the strikers for endorsement to-day. It was the railroad strike that led to the recent resignation of Chancellor Seipel.

"FLAME OF MEMORY."

Ceremony of Reviving Symbolic Fire at Unknown Soldier's Grave.

PARIS, Nov. 12. — (Canadian Press).—Representatives of allied veterans' associations who form the "Flame committee," of which General Gouraud is president, yesterday conducted the ceremony of reviving the "Flame of Memory" which is kept burning perpetually over the grave of France's unknown soldier.

The ceremony is performed every day at sundown by different veterans' organizations. General Gouraud last night turned up the flame which burns low during the daytime but never goes out. The flame always is guarded.

STEWARDS' UNION ASSISTS DOCKERS

Decide to Call Strike Until Their Own Dispute at Sydney is Settled.

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 19. — (Canadian Press Cable, Via Reuter's.)— It was resolved by the Stewards' Union yesterday to call a strike of all stewards employed on all vessels and steamers of Australian registry and to remain out until all those dismissed in a dispute between the stewards and the companies have been reinstated, and an assurance given that they shall not be asked to attend passengers on the liners who are suffering from insanity. This is the latest development of the strike which has grown out of the refusal of the stevedores and dock laborers of the principal Australian ports to work overtime in unloading and discharging vessels.

The decision of the stewards' union will seriously affect shipping in the commonwealth and result in almost complete stagnation at the large ports.

GEESE FLY SOUTH.

Great Flocks Passing Over Sarnia For Eastern States.

SARNIA, Ont., Nov. 12.—Thousands of wild geese and ducks are passing over Sarnia daily on their way to the marshes of Maryland and other eastern middle states. Monday and Tuesday great flocks were to be seen passing along the shores of Lake Huron and the air was filled with honks and calls as they lifted themselves aloft and formed in line for the sunny south.

Any good car would last three years if there were no telephone poles along the highway.

EMMA GOLDMAN FOUND ABYSS BETWEEN RUSSIANS AND THE SOVIET DICTATORS

Former Admirer of Theoretic Bolshevism, Who Was Deported as a "Red" From United States, Warns British of the Russian Danger as She Saw It.

LONDON, Nov. 12. — (Canadian Press).—Emma Goldman, who has come to England from Germany, seeking asylum as a refugee, intends to make a speaking tour of Great Britain, according to her London friends. Miss Goldman was deported from the United States to Russia as an undesirable alien and subsequently left Russia for Germany where she has been residing until recently.

A dinner to welcome Miss Goldman will be given to-night in a Fleet Street restaurant, and the guests will include Rebecca West, Bertrand Russell, Siegfried Sassoon and others.

Mr. A. Sugg, who is arranging the dinners and projected speaking tour, told the press that Miss Goldman is dead against the Bolsheviks, and intends to plead the cause of the political prisoners in Russia in the speeches she will make in England. "She says that the dangers of Bolshevism are not realized here," said Mr. Sugg, "especially by the advanced political movement. To her there seems to be an abyss between the Russian people and the Bolshevik government."

Miss Goldman is at present living quietly in a middle class section of London.

ALE SMUGGLERS ESCAPED GUARD

A HEAVY CARGO.

BUFFALO, Nov. 12. — (Canadian Press)—Nine alleged ale smugglers, captured by coast guardsmen early Tuesday, escaped after knocking down Coastguard Captain John Daly who was standing guard over them alone.

Captain Daly and three members of his crew were patrolling the Niagara River in a new Federal speedboat when they came upon a cabin cruiser moored at the lower end of Grand Island. Cases of ale were being transferred from it to trucks. Leaving his boat in a cove nearby, the captain and one of the crew crept upon the smugglers, surprised and captured them at the points of their revolvers. The captives were lined up, and the captain undertook to guard them while his companion returned to the Federal launch for aid. He was felled by one of the smugglers who slipped out of the line and approached him in the shadow of one of the liquor trucks.

Captain Daly was not seriously injured, and regained his feet almost immediately. He emptied his revolver into the fleeing group, but was unable to determine whether any were hit.

The cabin cruiser and its cargo was said to comprise one of the largest ale seizures made in the district in several months.

CALL UP 1924 CLASS.

Spanish Force in Morocco Reported Making Progress.

MADRID, November 12. — Additional favorable progress in the military operations of the Spanish troops in Morocco, was announced in an official communication that was made public on Tuesday.

The statement adds that as the Spanish government is anxious for a definite settlement of the Moroccan problem, General Primo Rivera, chief of the military directorate in Spain, has taken over the military leadership in Morocco.

The military class of 1924 will be called to the colors as soon as possible, so that the forces operating in Morocco will be able to maintain the efficiency necessary for carrying on the campaign and punishing the rebels.

Meighen at Convention In Kingston On Nov. 26th

KINGSTON, Nov. 12.—Definite announcement was made yesterday that Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, former Prime Minister of Canada, will attend the big Conservative convention for Frontenac-Addington, which will be held in the court house here on November 26th when a candidate will be selected for the newly formed riding.

Hon. Dr. J. W. Edwards, former representative of the county, and a member of the Meighen Cabinet, is mentioned as the likely candidate.

U. S. INDUSTRIES MENACE EUROPE

German Urges Combinations of European Industries—Says Dawes Plan Will Fail.

MARKET GLUTTED.

BERLIN, Nov. 12— Unless European industry combines in an international syndicate therewill be a catastrophe which will result in the United States reaping the benefit in the opinion of Hans Von Raumer, former German minister of economy and leading People's Party deputy in the Reichstag.

In a lecture before the World Trade Society, Deputy Raumer pointed out the development in industry in the United States while at the same time European industries were knifing each other in mad competition. This was especially true, he said, of coal production and the iron industry.

The speaker declared he did not believe the Dawes plan could be carried out because it presupposed a 50 per cent. increase in German exports over the pre-war figures. This was impossible he said, because the world market is already glutted.

Bernhard Dernburg, former minister of finance, speaking at the same meeting, also declared that the Dawes plan could not be fulfilled. He said the assumption of General Dawes that German industry, because it was free from debts through inflation, would be able to resume reparations obligations toward the entente, was erroneous. The reason he explained, was that the plan did not take into account the fact that German industry had lost is liquid capital and must borrow.

Herr Dernburg urged that General Dawes, in the near future, work out a similar plan for France to pay the United States.

FASCISMO BROADENS.

ROME, Nov. 12.—Several newspapers here Tuesday state that a project is being studied to change the Fascisti party to one which will be called instead the "National Party." This change it was said, is being contemplated in order to allow many who have not yet joined the Fascismo, because of its revolutionary origin, to enter an organization having a wider scope.

CHARLES HANNA CONTESTS WEST HASTINGS SEAT

Nominated by the Liberals Against E. Gus Porter, K.C., Over Murdock Affair.

G. N. GORDON SPOKE.

Mr. Porter Says It Will Be Last Election in Riding Merged With East Peterborough.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 12.—Electors from all parts of the riding of West Hastings filled to overflowing the City Hall here Tuesday afternoon to hear the nomination speeches of Charles E. Hanna and E. Gus Porter, Ex-M.P., candidates for the vacant seat due to the resignation of the latter over the failure of the Murdock charges. The candidates were supported by one speaker each, Hon. G. N. Gordon M.P., Deputy-Speaker of the House of Commons for Mr. Hanna, and Hon. Edmund Bristol, M.P., for Mr. Porter.

"There will be no more West Hastings," said Mr. Porter. "It is rather in the nature of a valedictory to West Hastings that I speak today."

"This is an issue more of a moral rather than a political nature,' the ex-member remarked. "The election will not affect the tariff nor the question of immigration nor in fact any of the great political questions. This question is one of right and wrong. I believe the people of Canada demand the very highest type of character in a minister of the crown and the upholding of the honor and integrity of the Parliament of Canada. That is the issue before you today There can be no other question Mr. Hanna must be on the side of Mr. Murdock. Here I am fighting your cause. Where is the Hon. Jim Murdock why is he not here fighting his case."

Upheld by House

Mr. Hanna said Mr. Murdock was upheld by 149 members of the house as against 32. "I am satisfied to leave the honor and dignity of the parliament with the 149 members who voted to exonerate Mr. Murdock."

"If James Murdock sinned and then repented he should be given some consideration. Porter poses as a moralist and asks you to send him back to sit with those 149 Liberals and Mr. Murdock. I am prepared to submit more evidence of the Murdock case and then submit it to the great jury of West Hastings.

Thomas White's $1500

Mr. Gordon said that during the war when immense fortunes were paid when Sir Thomas White was minister of Finance nothing of the capital expenditure of the war was paid. That was the same Sir Thomas White who a few days before the Home Bank closed was given a check for $1,500 for advising the bank to go to the minister of finance. He cashed the cheque and has not paid it back. Sir Thomas White should not have taken that money. The bank was bankrupt. Some years before if Sir Thomas White had acted as he should have the Home Bank could have been closed with the depositors all getting their money back.

THE WEATHER.

The shower of last night was the first break in a long period of particularly fine and dry weather. Since the last few days of September there has been but little rain. With the exception of Oct. 18th, there has been no rain since the 8th of October. A government bulletin just to hand says: "The records for the last seventy years or more do not show any other October so uniformly and largely dry over the eastern half of Canada." Of Ontario particularly it says: "The outstanding feature of the month was its dryness, which was most pronounced in the western peninsula, and which so far as records show, has not been equalled in half a century. The sunshine was generally well above normal, and at some points the greatest on record for October." Conditions in the northwest were not so favorable, but on the whole we have had a remarkably fine fall.—W. P.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

SPENT BIG DAY AT THE WEMBLEY FAIR

Peterboro Boy Receives Interesting Letter From His Brother in England.

Mr. William Medd, 228 Charlotte street has received from his sixteen year old brother, who is a mill worker in England the following interesting letter describing his day's visit to the Wembley Fair.

5 Daisy street,
Worth Village,
Keighley,
Oct. 26, 1924.

Dear Brother and Sister, — On August 16th., our mill went to Wembley. We set off at twenty past ten and landed in St. Pancras Station at quarter to four. During the journey I went to sleep and I woke up when the train stopped at Nottingham Station. There I got a pork pie and a cup of tea. We stopped about a quarter of an hour. Then the train set off and did not stop until we got to St. Pancras Station. There we all got out. When we got out of the station we got in charos to go to the cenotaph. After we had put a wreath on it we all got back in to the charos and went forth to breakfast. There were six charos three of them went to a place called Charter street and the other to Shoe Lane. I was in Shoe Lane. There was four at a table, me and my three chums sat down at a table in a few minutes we were waited on. For breakfast we had a couple of eggs, and some bacon. At eight we got back in the charos for a ride round London. The first stopping place was St. Paul's Cathedral. We all got out and went in. Every seat in it was cushioned and in the corners there were photos of great men carved in walls. The next place we visited was the Houses of Parliament and we went through it. The first part of the building was the House of Lords. In the Lords, all seats had beautiful cushions. After that we came to what they call the Lord's hobby. There was nothing very striking so we past on to the House of Commons after that we went out and got into the charos and to dinner. At one o'clock we were driven to Wembley. As soon as we got out we rushed into the place The first thing I did was to get a bottle of spice for father after that bought two sticks of rock and a little ornament for mother. At four o'clock I had some tea, after that I had my photograph taken with stuffed cat representing Felix. After that I called in a place called the Palace of Engineering. I stayed in there for about half an hour. Then I went into the fair. At seven o'clock we left Wembley and went back to St. Pancras Station. I landed back at home about eight in he morning.

I will close now, so Good bye,
From your loving brother,
PERCY SELBY.

LAST LOOK

When Samuel H. Lefkowitz comes home to New York, his smile no longer will reveal a couple of thousand dollars in diamonds. His Paris dentist is to remove them from his teeth. Just before he sailed abroad, a hold-up man tried to get them and Sam became panicky.

DREAMS EACH HAS ITS OWN MEANING.

Long before prohibition became the law of the land, dreams scientifically recorded, destined serious consequences for those who imbibed too freely.

To see yourself intoxicated should warn you that you are facing serious consequences in love and business affairs. To be jovial over a cup of wine may mean that you will soon be with jovial friends, but that mistakes of a serious character are likely to follow.

Interpretations.

To drop and break a comb means that you will lose the admiration of many of your friends.

To be gazing out across a field where cows are peacefully grazing denotes contentment of mind.

You will soon be in new surroundings if you see yourself carrying a bucket while walking.

ANNIVERSARY AT MARK ST. CHURCH

Sunday and Monday Celebrated In An Appropriate Manner.

Mark Street Methodist Church celebrated in happy fashion its anniversary on Sunday and Monday of this week. There were splendid crowds for both Sunday services, when the special preacher for the occasion was Rev. E. Harston, of Woodville. At the morning services, when a special offering was taken, Mr. Harston spoke principally on the Thanksgiving spirit, and the meaning of Armistice Day was the subject of the evening discourse, Rev. Mr. Harston having been one of the chaplains in the recent war. The special soloist for the Sunday services was Mrs. James Young of Smith, a former member of the choir, and the choir itself rendered several pleasing numbers, with solos by Mrs. H. Hunter, Miss M. Sucee, Mr. V. Wood and Mr. V. Boorman.

On Monday evening, the ladies of the church catered for a very fine Thanksgiving supper, when about four hundred people were served.

The concert that followed the supper was one of the most enjoyable portions of the anniversary celebration. Under direction of Mr. George H King, music by members of his choir at Trinity Church was rendered, and received much merited applause. Every number was accorded enthusiastic appreciation. The fine programme included choruses, quartettes and several selections by a mixed octette, composed of Mrs. H. Doig and Miss Isabel Black, sopranos; Mrs. E. Kitney and Miss Beulah Payton, contraltos; Messrs David Fleming and Harry Turner, tenors, and Messrs. E. Baldry and J. Ridyard, Jr., bassos. Solos were given by Mrs. H. Doig, Mrs. E. Kitney and Miss Beulah Payton. Mrs. Kitney and Mrs. Doig also sang in duett, in splendid voice, the lovely "Barcarolle" from the "Tales of Hoffman" and "Carmena," and the Misses Alma Blanchard and Lillian Brown played several pianoforte duetts.

STATION CNRA.

Canadian National Station at Moncton Broadcast Successfully.

MONCTON, N.B., Nov. 12—The following beginning the second of the radio broadcasting concerts from the Canadian National broadcasting station CNRA was given last night with highly gratifying results reports from many points within a radius of one hundred miles, indicating that the various numbers on the programme were heard most clearly.

The programme was a most enjoyable one, orchestra music being furnished by the Melody Boys' Orchestra, songs by Anna Malenfant, Moncton's gifted contralto and Walter Neale, tenor. There were character songs also by Sandy McGregor of Rimarnock, Scotland, readings by John Stultz and a trombone solo by Mr. Alyre Leblanc. These broadcasting concerts will be given regularly every Tuesday and Friday.

C.P.R. EARNINGS DECREASE.

NEWS FROM CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, November 12.—The Thanksgiving services in the Methodist church on Sunday, were well attended. The church was decorated with beautiful "'mums," and an anchor of "'mums" and carnations was placed under the honor roll in loving memory of the fallen heroes. Rev. W. Elliott preached two very interesting and inspiring sermons, also touching on the armistice service theme.

The music led by a large choir, deserves special mention. Two splendid anthems were sung in the morning and at night. A male c. rus was enjoyed by every one. The Hallelujah chorus was sung. Great praise is due to the able leadership of Mr. R. T. Cowell, the organist and choir-leader. The congregation stood while this splendid chorus was sung.

There was a special announcement given of the District Conference to be held in Hastings on Wednesday afternoon and evening.

The sermons in St. Andrew's church on Sunday were by Mr. Jas. Dutton, a layman of St. Paul's church in Peterborough. He presented the missionary work to the church and the need of more effort in raising more money for this purpose. The congregations were well pleased with the addresses.

The regular meeting of the Ladies Aid of St. Andrew's church, will be held in the parlours on Thursday afternoon.

At Christ Church.

Christ Church had two good services on Sunday. The church was packed both morning and evening. The minister for the day was a former rector, Rev. A. E. Reid, of St. Chad's Church, Toronto, who preached two very able sermons.

There was a choir of forty voices, which gave a splendid anthem, and Miss Curry of Toronto and Mrs. F. De F. Free each sang solos.

Mr. Reid was at the fiftieth anniversary twetny years ago. He was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Archer, Booth Street, over Sunday.

Presented a Flag.

Some of the members of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, about twenty-five in number, went to the High School on Armistice Day, in the forenoon, and presented to the school a beautiful large flag.

Mr. E. H. Greig, Principal, spoke a few words and then called on Rev. C. F. McIntosh to say a few words and he led in prayer.

The Regent (Mrs. W. H. Ashton), in a few words, told of the gift and Mrs. J. A. Stewart, the only member of the I.O.D.E. privileged to wear the cross of honour in memory of her son Ferris, made the presentation, after which all sang "God Save the King."

Mr. Greig on behalf of the staff and students, thanked the Daughters of the Empire for the gift of the flag.

The Regent said she hoped they would use this flag on every possible occasion.

Mrs. A. Haig, secretary of the I. O. D. E., read the rules for flags both on land and sea.

Although not quite eleven o'clock the pupils, teachers, and mmebers of the I.O.D.E. observed the two minutes' silence.

Armistice Service

A very impreseive Armistice Service was held in Christ Church along with the Holy Communion service. This service is held annually. In the time that Mrs. C. H. Harris was president of the Willing Workers. A motion was put on the books, that they always have a service in commemoration of Armistice Day, on November 11th. The I.O.D.E. were present in a body.

After a hymn and prayer and Scripture lesson, Rev. Mr. Clarke, the rector, gave a short address on the communion. As a supper is food for our bodies, so the Lord's supper is food for our souls. It is a very sacred service. The Eucharist is a holy act of worship and thanksgiving to God for his many benefits, especially His giving up His life for our redemption. A memorial Eucharist is as we are holding it to-day. We want to join in our thanksgiving for the sacrifice for us by those who went over to the war and lost their lives that we might have liberty righteousness and truth. We wish to keep a perpetual memory of that sacrifice that was made for us. We can be one in this act of worship.

The names of those who fell belonging to Christ Church parish were read, as many as Mr. Clarke could gather. They were as follows: A. Berry, Dr. Bonnycastle, W. Ellis, F. Emlaw, F. Nancarrow, T. Savill and H. Williams. Two minute silence was observed at eleven o'clock.

The meeting closed with prayer by the Rector that we all may live worthy of such sacrifice.

Fire in Barn

The fire alarm was rung on Saturday night about eleven o'clock from Ward Two. A fire had started in the barn owned by Mr. T. Horkins, on Rear street, but it did not amount to much and was over shortly.

A good many of the men of Campbellford have taken advantage of the hunting season and are away in the north for deer. One of the deer hounds belonging to two men who went, for some reason, returned to town, a distance of about sixty miles, leaving its master to look after his own deer. "The dog came back."

The W.C.T.U. meeting for November was held at the home of the President, Mrs. R. Weston, on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Scarlett read the devotional topic. Mrs. R. Bibby was appointed superintendent of parlior meetings in place of Mrs. Hart, who has left town. It was with regret that the members heard of the illness of Mrs. Minnie, ever since she went back to the old country in the summer. Mrs. Weston read a beautiful poem, "Love Thyself Last." Several matters of business were discussed. The next meeting to be at Mrs. H. Bake's, Kent street.

Over two hundred people gathered at the Regent Theatre on Thanksgiving night for the "at home" and dance, given by the members of the I.O.O.F., and Rebekah Lodges No. 248. The hall was fitted up with extra electric floor lamps and in one corner a very pleasant sitting room was fitted up with a rug and easy chairs and sofas. Mr. Herb Leonard's orchestra furnished the music for most of the dancing. The music for the square dances was played by Mr. Blakely (violin) and an accompanist on the piano. The members of the orchestra were: Messrs. Leonard, Sarles, Dolman, Mitchell, Clegg and Frederick. There were twenty-four numbers on the programme.

About twelve o'clock dancing stopped for a time while a splendid lunch was served. The following guests were present:

Mr and Mrs. Sherwin, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Dunk, Mr. and Mrs. C. Booker, Mr and Mrs Dobberman, Mr. and Mrs. Croaley, Mr. and Mrs. E. Abernethy, Mr. and Mrs. E. Henson, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. PHILLIP POCOCK DENIES CHARGE

Says Car Was Authorized to be Purchased for Beck in Regular Way.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Phillip Pocock, a member of the Public Utilities Commission since the Hydro first came to London, and an ardent friend of Sir Adam Beck, last night issued a statement in regard to the charge made by E. C. Settell, former secretary to Sir Adam, that Chief Engineer Gaby had bludgeoned the Ontario Municipal Electric Association into buying a car which was presented to Sir Adam, and that it was paid for out of the funds of the Commission.

Mr. Pocock says the accusation is baseless. He was president of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association when the matter of making a presentation to Sir Adam Beck first came up. Mr. Pocock says Mr. Gaby was not at the meeting, which was held in Toronto. The man most active in having the presentation made was Mayor Church of Toronto. It was finally agreed that a gift should be tendered to Lady Beck as Sir Adam's helpmate and capable supporter in all his public enterprises. The car was authorized to be purchased and was duly ordered, but when it came to London the company shipping it refused to deliver the machine until it had been paid for.

Thereupon Mr. Pocock paid for the Electric Association something over $4,000, and the presentation was made on a schedule. Later Mr. Pocock was reimbursed, when he received a cheque for the amount from President J. W. Lyon, of the Hydro Electric Radial Association of Ontario.

Monday he set a precedent for the British Royalty by attending the showing of the British attack on Zeebrugge Mole on April 23rd (St. George's Day), 1918, at the Marble Arch Pavilion here.

"RAT-DOG" IS LATEST BREED

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 12.— A new species called a "rat-dog" was exhibited here by Julius Stankus, a Yukon river pilot, on his return from the North. He said his puppy was a cross between a muskrat and a mal amute dog. The muskrat gives the dog a heavier fur for protection against the intense cold explained Stankus. He added that he obtained the pet from Indians at Fort Yukon who breed the type for dog teams.

and Acting Secretary Dwight Davis of the War Department, as representatives of the two military branches of the Government, the President placed a wreath on the tomb.

After placing the wreath he stood with uncovered head for a moment, and then turned away.

Mrs. Coolidge, before the party left, laid upon the tomb a single white rose ,a tribute of the motherhood of the nation.

Late in the day services for the nation's wartime president, Woodrow Wilson, were held in the National Cathedral, where his body is entombed.

In gathering about all that is mortal of the late President, citizens perpetuated a custom begun in his lifetime of honouring him especially upon this day.

THE RETURNED SOLDIER.

While war service , no matter how illustrious, cannot be accepted as an excuse for wrong-doing in civil life—and General Ross would be the first to say so—there is undoubtedly too great a tendency for Canadians as a whole to allow little errors and habits on the part of some returned soldiers to drive out of their minds the splendid record of these men in the trenches.

General Ross in his Armistice Day address did the cause of the ex-soldiers a fine service by pointing out this fact.

He told of Canadian soldiers whose army "crime" sheets were always full, but who were never found lacking in the hour of peril, and reminded his hearers that it was unreasonable to expect that such men would be angels at home.

That is an angle of the returned soldier problem that is too often overlooked.

The Kingston member deserves thanks for bringing it before the people of Peterborough, and for his eloquent defence of the ex-service men.

Minor misdemeanors should not cause them to be deprived of the consideration that a grateful country should afford men who have fought bravely and suffered much in its behalf.

MR. JUSTICE RIDDELL.

Peterborough is fortunate in being given an opportunity on Friday evening of this week to hear Mr. Justice Riddell, who is to speak on the subject of Social Hygiene as fundamental to all schemes of social reform.

Mr. Justice Riddell is one of Canada's outstanding orators, and is frequently called upon to give addresses in the United States.

Few speakers in this country have such a happy faculty for turning neat phrases that adhere to the memory of his audience, or for presenting whatever subject he may be talking upon in such a clear light.

The problem of Social Hygience, upon which he is to address his Peterborough audience, is a vital one, and Mr. Justice Riddell can be depended upon to deal with it effectively and vigorously.

He is the President of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council, and has been a most enthusiastic and active head for that organization, realizing as he does the supreme importance of awakening the people of Canada to a realization of the necessity of dealing vigorously with the social evil and its dreadful consequences.

The message that he will bring on Friday night is certain to be an important one, and certain also to be delivered in such a logical and eloquent manner that every person who hears Judge Riddell will be aroused to interest themselves in Social Hygiene and its problems.

THE PROGRESSIVE PARTY.

Although the United Farmers of Ontario have definitely decided against any further political action, Ontario is not yet back to the old two-party system.

There is still a Progressive party, and next week an effort will be made ,by means of a convention in Toronto, to be attended by delegates from all parts of the Province, to give it a more effective organization and to build up the necessary machinery for "carrying on."

Most of its support will continue to come from rural Ontario, and it will be interesting to note, now that the U. F. O. organization is not available, just how large will be the measure of that support.

There are few questions within the jurisdiction of the Provincial Legislature that are of peculiar interest to the agricultural interests—certainly none of such outstanding importance as to justify a rural political party.

The tenure of office of the Drury Government was not so conspicuously successful as to cause any great demand for the return to office of another administration similarly founded.

Nor is it on record that anything of great moment in the interest of agriculture was performed by the Farmer Government.

Indeed it is undoubtedly a fact that the present Government, by reason of its legislation facilitating the extension of Hydro power into rural sections, has done much more for the farmers of this Province than was accomplished by the late administration.

These facts taken into consideration, along with the failure of Mr. Drury and his associates to prove any more economical or any more careful of the money of the people of the Province than the old parties, there does not seem to be a great deal of material upon which to build a third political party with its roots in the soil.

Hon. Manning Doherty is making the attempt, however, and the development of his plans should be followed with some interest.

THE ARMISTICE PAUSE.

With few exceptions, Peterborough's citizens yesterday disregarded the King's request that a period of two minutes' silence should be maintained at 11 o'clock as a tribute to the memory of the Empire's dead.

The chief reason possibly for the failure to carry out this impressive but simple ceremony is not to be found in indifference or lack of patriotism, but rather in the fact that no effort has hitherto been made on the anniversary of the signing of the Armistice to give a community form to the observance of the period of silence.

If it could be arranged—and it seems possible to do so with a little planning—to have all the factory whistles blown and the bells rung for five minutes before 11 o'clock as an unmistakable reminder to the citizens generally of the significance of the occasion—the ceremony could be made much more of a success.

The idea is so appropriate to the anniversary that it is unfortunate in the extreme that any Canadian community should fall down so completely as Peterborough did yesterday.

We can do better than that next year, and there should be an effort made to see that we do—for the Armistice pause should mean much to all of us, as indicated in the following lines by Wilmot B. Lane:

Just Two! while the wheels of commerce pause
And hushed souls inward turn to see
The white-clad cohorts of the Cause
From bloodied trench and tumbled sea
Bear the bowing heart and bended knee
From the accolade of Galilee.
No sound of drum, no round of cheer
As the silent vanguard draweth near;
Just minute one and minute two,
Nor glimpse of blood they waded through,
Then they pass like sunshine down the blue
From sea and sod to their home of God,
To the peace of baffled dreams come true.

Just Two! but those short minutes must
Throw a beam like a searchlight down the years
From their souls' lustre shed on dust,
On lurking stains of moth and rust,
To raise our eyes from fears and lust
To God's bright rainbow o'er their biers
In the utmost sky, that you and I
Might see that frieze of dreams and try
Brave things they dared. This legacy
They give us that through life we keep
Their shining troth, while on they sweep
Softly as dawn o'er the wind-swept sea

MAKING GERMANY PAY.

If Canada had any expectation of receiving substantial payment of Reparations for her share of the war spoils she must surely be abandoning such a hope. Under the Brussels agreement Canada is entitled to receive 4.35 per cent. of the British share of Reparations, which figures out approximately at three hundred million dollars. It must make the Minister a little envious to think how easy it would be to finance the needs of the country if this tidy sum was paid into the treasury. Whether it will ultimately be paid, in whole or in part, is a matter for speculation, but it is certain that there is not the slightest chance of receiving even a fraction of this sum in the immediate future. The debt will remain on our books as a moral claim, but so far as liquid assets are concerned it might as well be written off.

Under the Dawes plan the money subscribed by the United States, Britain, France and the other nations is not intended to be used directly for the payment of Reparations. If the loan was applied to such purposes it would be a mere drop in the bucket and it would have no effect whatever in the rehabilitation of German commerce. The money obtained abroad by Germany is to be used specifically for stabilizing the currency and for such measures as will put German industry on a sound footing.

Britain, similarly faced with the prospect of having to wait many years if not for ever for the payment of Reparations, did not sit down idly and, like Micawber, wait for something to turn up. Britain adopted the plan of collecting twenty-six per cent. of the value of all goods imported into that country from Germany. This has never been regarded as an additional import duty on German goods, and the method of its collection has shifted the burden of paying the levy from the consumer, where it would normally rest in the case of an import duty, to the German Government.

This arrangement was part of the agreement reached in the spring of 1921, under which the German Government agreed to turn over quarterly to the Allies an amount equal to the value of the goods exported from Germany during the preceding quarter. A further value in the scheme lay in the fact that it readjusts itself quarterly in accordance with the volume of Germany's export trade. The British Government decided to collect their share of the payments direct. The method of procedure is exceedingly simple. British importers of German goods, under an Act of Parliament, pay twenty-six per cent. of the value to the Commissioner of Customs and Excise. Official receipts for the amount paid are then forwarded to the vendor in discharge of a share of his bill equal to the amount paid. The German exporter in his turn presents this receipt and obtains from his own Government reinbursement of the amount paid less one per cent. for administrative charges.

France also announced in 1921 that she would impose a tax upon German imports into that country up to fifty per cent., but in expectation of receiving a large lump sum of Reparations she allowed the Act to remain in abeyance. Recently, however, France has taken a leaf out of the British book and has imposed the twenty-six per cent. levy.

In November, 1923, the German Government gave notice to England that owing to the state of its finances it was unable to reimburse German exporters. Under the Labor Administration in February of this year the twenty-six per cent. payment was reduced to five per cent. This arrangement remained in force until September 9, a few days before the London conference, when the British Government restored the twenty-six per cent. levy.

The plan seems to be a sound one. There is, of course, the possibility of the German Government failing to reimburse its own exporters, but this would be something like the Germans cutting off their nose to spite their face. It is, of course, possible that if France concludes her expected commercial treaty with Germany that she will drop the plan.

Meanwhile Britain continues to collect and is satisfied. Canada, whose imports from Germany are in increasing volume, might give the plan a trial, since it affords at least a chance of the Dominion receiving some sums however small in payment of debts due to her. In no other way does there seem to be an opportunity of collecting which would have so small a disturbing effect on the commerce of the country and be of such practical and potential benefit to the taxpayers.—Montreal Star.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—Trading was not too active except on cows, which had a steady market. Export cows were generally taken at $5 a cwt. and good butchers' cows were $4 to $4.50. Medium cows sold at $3 to $3.40. The top paid for heavy steers this morning was $7.25 a cwt. and prices ranged from this down to $6.50. The prices paid this market were down 25 cents a cwt. Export heifers averaged about $6.25 a cwt. and feeders were $5.50 to $6.75 a cwt.

There were several loads of Western cattle in, mostly stockers, and the demand for these was not too good. Four loads of Ontario stockers over 800 lbs. each sold from $4.15 to $4.75 a cwt. The top on handyweight butchers was $6 a cwt. but these were a long way from choice. The packers took bunches of good mediums at $5.20 to $5.25 a cwt. All the bulls sold this morning were in the bologona class and the price was $3 a cwt. Any slowness in the market was entirely due to the number of plain quality butchers and a good many of these will remain unsold.

With only 400 calves for the two days there did not appear to be much hope for any easier prices. Choice calves sold at 11 and 11¼ cents a pound and good calves at 10 cents. Heavy calves were 6 and 6½ cents and best grassers 4 cents.

The situation in the lamb market was a stand off in the early business. Some sellers were asking 13 cents for fresh delivered lambs and it looked as though those fed for two days would not go much below 12 cents a pound. The first bunches of fresh lambs a little on the heavy side made 12 cents a pound. Sheep were just steady.

There were no outside buyers operating in the hog market today and shippers thought they were in the hands of the packers, who were only bidding $8.75 a cwt. f.o.b.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, November 12 (Canadian Press). — The inquiry from foreign buyers for grain here yesterday was of a very limited character and as the few firm bids received for Canadian spring wheat were away below working basis business was dull.

But there was some demand from New York exporters for wheat here on Monday and sales of some fair-sized lots of No. 1, No. 2, and No. 3 Northern were made at a flat price, c.i.f., Montreal.

The trade in cash grain was also reported quiet locally. The tone of the market for Ontario No. 3 extras malting barley was steady, being quoted at $1.08, No. 3 grade at $1.07, No. 2 white oats at 60 cents, No. 3 grade at 58 cents, and No. 4 grade at 56 cents per bushel, ex-track.

QUEBEC BUTTER.

MONTREAL, November 12 (Canadian Press). — At the Quebec Agricultural Co-operative Society auction sale held here yesterday there were 500 packages of creamery butter offered, of which 200 packages No. 1 pasteurized creamery sold at 33 3-8 cents per pound, and 300 packages of No. 1 creamery at 32 7-8 cents per pound.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir:—In the remarkable investigation being held in Montreal before Hon. Mr. Justice Coderre of the "disorderly house" situation it was shown that after the various police raids the young women "rescued" all go back of their own free will to their old haunts. It was also shown that on one occasion when a general raid was made and one thousand girls were "rescued" they all went back at once to their disorderly houses. It was also shown that the idea that girls are systematically kidnapped and enslaved is entirely wrong. Nearly all of this big total number of inmates had come to "the houses" of their own free will and most of them entered at fourteen and fifteen years of age. In no case was poverty or destitution the direct cause. Investigations in large American cities have shown the same facts. There are no less than twelve million voluntary "slaves" in disorderly houses in the U.S. and Canada.

I am writing for the purpose of showing that the white slave traffic is not what it is supposed to be. There are very few "slaves." The bulk choose that life. So that the question before our women philanthropists really is why is this terrible condition existing amongst our young people?

READER.

To the Editor:

The question has lately been raised in the Press as to the belief of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational Churches in the Central truths of evangelical religion. We wish to draw attention to the fact that the latest expression of the faith of these churches is found in the section on Doctrine of the Basis of Union. "This confession" contains statements of the doctrines of grace as clear and strong as any authoritative statement issued by any church in recent times. The following quotations will show their character.

Article 6.—"Of the Grace of God—we believe that God, out of His great love for the world, has given His only begotten Son to be the Saviour of sinners, and in the Gospel freely offers His sufficient salvation to all men."

Article 9.—"Of Regeneration—we believe in the necessity of regeneration, whereby we are made new creatures in Christ Jesus by the Spirit of God."

Article 10.—"Of Faith and Repentance—we believe that faith in Christ is a saving grace whereby we receive Him, trust in Him and rest upon Him alone for salvation as He is offered to us in the Gospel."

Many other statements similar in their definiteness and emphasis might be quoted. The faith of the three churches entering the Union is to be judged by the statement mutually agreed upon and accepted both by their courts and their membership and not by excerpts from the writings of individuals, especially when such excerpts are usually torn from their context by special pleaders, and made to bear a meaning never intended by their authors. Signed:

James W. Pedley, Chairman Congregational Union,

S. D. Chown, General Superintendent Methodist Church,

Geo. C. Pidgeon, Convenor Joint Union Committee, Convenor General Assembly's Committee.

"YOU'LL NEVER KNOW THE DIFFERENCE"!-

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir:—The fight for religious liberty and the rights of the people, against clerical domination, meets the constant cry: "You'll never know the difference." May I state a few of the differences which Presbyterians believe a Church of Christ should not accept?

(1) Presbyterians have the right to choose their own minister. If their call to one minister fails, they can call another. No one can intrude upon a self-supporting congregation a minister whom they have not called and do not want.

In the "United Church" this right is taken away. They may ask for a minister. They have still the right to beg. "But the right of appointment shall rest with the Settlement Committee." That Committee is an arbitrary, autocractic power, unknown in the Presbyterian Church. It meets once a year, to make its appointments. It is supreme, responsible to none. It reports its doings "for information only."

The statement that the "Settlement Committee shall comply, as far as possible, with the expressed wishes of ministers and pastoral charges," means nothing, for that Committee remains the sole judge of its own actions. Further, as that Committee must "consider all applications for settlement from ministers," and will always have several ministers applying for any good vacancy, it is plain that the wishes of congregations must often be denied. In any case the "right" of the people to choose their own minister is taken away.

(2) Presbyterian people, through their Session, have the right to control their church building. In the "United Church" this right is taken away. "The minister," apart from the Session, may invite to the pulpit "any minister of any other religious denomination." Even the manse, if not used by the minister, cannot be "let" by the people without the "consent in writing of said minister."

(3) Presbyterian people have the right to decide who shall enter the ministry. The Presbyterian ideal is that the call to the ministry is by the Spirit of God speaking through the people, who are "the Church," and therefore, except in special cases, as for Foreign Missions, no man is ordained to the Presbyterian ministry until he receives a call from a congregation and is thus approved by the people. In the "United Church" this right is taken away, and men are ordained by the Conference, without any reference to the people.

(4) Presbyterian people have a right to know what their minister believes. When a minister is inducted he always, publicly, in the presence of the congregation, vows adherence to the great truths of the Word of God as set forth in the standards of that Church. In the "United Church" this right of the people is taken away. No minister vows adherence to its "Statement of Doctrine." All that is required is that he shall "satisfy" some group who may be examining him as to his "essential agreement" with it. The people do not know how much or how little he accepts. The "United Church" thus stands for no definite Christian Truth, and is open to every error.

(5) Presbyterian people have the right to decide who shall form their church courts and manage their affairs. Their General Assembly is composed of ministers and elders, who have been chosen by the people, and pledged "to maintain and defend their Church. In the "United Church" this right of the people is taken away. The General Council consists of ministers and non-ministerial members. The ministers, as already down, are ordained without reference to the people. The non-ministerial members of Council are chosen by the Conference, the next lower court, equally regardless of the people.

(6) The Presbyterian Church is a voluntary brotherhood. They are free to leave it, any are free to remain in it and none have a right to forbid them. The "United Church" is a legal corporation, created by Act of Parliament, with greater powers than most civil corporations. In the latter the directors cannot wipe out or merge their corporation without the consent of at least a majority of the stockholders. But the clerical directors of this new church corporation can do with it what they will. They can alter, change, unite with any other religious denomination," on any terms they may choose, and the people are transferred as chattels, without any voice in their own destiny.

A board or congregation of the Presbyterian Church is sometimes incorporated to hold property, but the church is not incorporated. It is a spiritual organization, seeking to influence the world only by its teaching and life. Christ said, "My Kingdom is not of this world." He did not intend His church to be a legal corporation created by Parliament.

(7) Presbyterian people are "the church." In the "United Church" the clergy and others in church courts are "The Church." The former is a democracy, the latter an autocracy. In the former everything rests primarily upon the will of the people. In the latter everything rests wholly upon the will of the clergy and others in the church courts, and the people have no rights, except the right to work, pray, pay and obey.

That type of church may give scope to clerical ambition. It may be a machine to "battle—in the religio-political realm," but it is not Christ's type, nor best fitted to promote His Kingdom.

STRENGTH AND VITALITY CREATED BY RED BLOOD

The strength, vitality and nerve power of every man and woman depend on the blood. Red blood is the supreme driving force of life. When we lack strength we should think first of our blood. When we have rich, red blood we quickly regain strength. Weak, thin-blooded men and women can find an easy, safe way to create red blood.

Wincarnis gives to the blood the very elements from which red blood is created. For fifty years this blood builder has restored men and women who were lacking in life power.

If your body vitality is at low ebb, your system undernourished, or your nerve force exhausted, go to your druggist today and begin the safe Wincarnis treatment. A sixteen-ounce bottle, which is a fourteen-day Wincarnis treatment, is sold by all leading druggists for $1.50.

Wincarnis is so effective that only three tablespoonsful a day need be taken. Try Wincarnis at once and see the strength that just a few days will bring.

BENSFORT NEWS.

Open Meeting in Honor of Visiting Mission Workers.

BENSFORT, Nov. 12.—An open meeting, under the auspices of the W.M.S., was held in the Bensfort Methodist Church on Tuesday evening, Nov. 4, in honor of a visit from the district superintendent, Mrs. J. K. Moore, and Miss Luella Rorke, of Japan, who is now on furlough. A number of members of the Stewart's Hall and Ballicboro societies were also present. The president, Mrs. W. C. Wood, conducted the meeting, which was opened by singing "All hail the power of Jesus' name," followed by prayer by Rev. R. M. Patterson. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. G. Hanbidge, of Stewart's Hall. Mrs. J. K. Moore gave an interesting talk on Japan." She also, upon request, gave in detail the workings of the group system. During the meeting, a solo by Miss Marjorie Emberson, and a quartette by L. Finnie, W. Wood, C. Emberson and J. Wood, were much enjoyed. Last, but by no means least, was a most interesting talk given by Miss Luella Rorke on "Kindergarten Work in Japan." After a hearty vote of thanks was given Mrs. Moore and Miss Rorke for their excellent addresses, the meeting was closed with the doxology. Refreshments were then served by the ladies of the congregation.

CHRISTMAS DOLLS FOR YOUNG WOMEN

Dolls Are Now as Much the Rage as Crossword Puzzles.

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

Dolls have always been the accepted Christmas gift for little girls, but this year they are just as much in demand for big girls.

Dolls are as much the rage as crossword puzzles and if you have the knack for dressing them in an original and snappy way, you can consider that your Christmas problem is solved.

They may be just dolls, or they may have some use in the world as well. A popular fad of the moment is the wide-skirted lady who fits over the rather ugly mechanism of the useful telephone and conceals it from view. This type of covering is particularly appropriate for the boudoir or bedroom.

It may be carried out in the color of the room or it may be a delectable-looking confection of blue or pink that would grace any dainty surroundings, regardless of color scheme.

At the department stores you can buy these very attractive doll heads to be mounted and dressed as you like. Those for telephones are mounted and dressed as you like. Those for telephones are mounted on a wire framework that just covers the telephone.

Another popular doll is really a lamp shade and is mounted on a wire lamp frame. Through the colorful skirt just enough light escapes to make a convenient night light. A pretty effect is obtained by using several thicknesses of different colored chiffon to give an opalescent glow.

Satin or taffeta in delicate colors makes lovely bouffant frocks for dolls and may be trimmed with lace, gold galoon or French flowers. It is interesting to copy the costume worn in some old French print or some family photograph, or one may select a 1924 Paris model gown.

Doll heads may also be mounted on large pin cushions or embedded in round sofa cushions designed for looks rather than utility. Bags for street or for opera or evening use frequently have the bag concealed in the puffy skirts of the doll and give no hint that they are anything more than an ornamental doll carried from the wrist by a ribbon.

These doll gifts may be made at home very easily with pieces of silk and satin one has on hand. In the shops some of them run into hundreds of dollars, depending on the workmanship and materials used.

Those who are artistic enough to make the head as well as the costume, but the average person will get better results to buy the head. The imported French bisque models with wavy hair and very knowing even slightly wicked features are the most attractive.

BETHANY NEWS.

BETHANY, November 12. — Anniversary services were held in the Methodist church, Franklin, on Sunday. Rev. Howard of Millbrook, assisted by Rev. Mr. Wilks, occupied the pulpit. Two very instructive sermons were delivered. The Bethany choir supplied the music for the services, assisted by Mrs. O. Urry, of Beaverton.

Kasha cloth in the light shades of beige, gray and henna is very much liked for the tailored gown.

DANISH FARMERS ARE PROSPEROUS

Economic and Social Life Revolutionized in Forty Years.

"Forty years of sound agricultural planning and progress have revolutionized the economic and social life of the Danish people," writes Chris L. Christensen, agricultural economist for the United States Department of Agriculture, who has just completed a first-hand study of agricultural cooperation in Denmark.

"From a depressed state of peasant agriculture," sums up Mr. Christensen, "which threatened the welfare and prosperity of the whole nation, Denmark stands today as the worlds' foremost agricultural country in the scientific organization of her production and marketing. Her people, rural as well as urban, appear contented and prosperous. Neither extreme in wealth or poverty exists."

The economics brought about by co-operative marketing in Denmark have been effected in the functions of assembling, processing, grading and packing, says Mr. Christensen. Cooperative marketing has also resulted in a rational adjustment in her agricultural production so as to fit better the consumer demands and the requirements of the market. The system has aided in focusing the producers' atention on the value of quality, standardization and dependability in quality and regularity of supply.

Dairy Industry.

Mr. Christensen's study describes the marketing problems which the Danish farmers faced in the early days before their present highly developed dairy industry. When they found that thousands of small batches of dairy butter could not be dumped profitably on the British markets, they set about to effect economics in assembling and manufacturing as well as improvements in grading, standardization and packing.

He tells how the Danish people have improved live stock through co-operative live stock breeding associations. Cooperative bull associations have put better live stock on the average farm. Besides the work of the breeding associations, there are now 821 cow-testing associations, with approximately one-fourth of the total milk cows in Denmark. The application of scientific and businesslike methods, it is said, has nearly doubled the milk yield per cow during the last forty years and is rapidly eliminating the unprofitable cow.

Mr. Christensens' study embraced the activities of agricultural production, marketing ,purchasing, live stock improvement, finance and insurance. It follows the evolution of agricultural cooperation in Denmark from small beginnings to its present important development.

WAISTLINE IS BACK AGAIN

This snappy French dress is of black velvet printed with Roman stripes in brilliant colors. It is decidedly new in line and in feeling, and very attractive, as you can see. The ruffle about the waistline is noticed on many smart gowns that have recently come over from Paris and seems to indicate that a new silhouette is on the way.

RAIN IS NEEDED WARSAW DISTRICT

Roads Are Reported to be in Splendid Condition for Motoring.

WARSAW, Nov. 12. — Mrs. Charles Foster and two children are spending a few days with Mrs. Foster's mother in Reaboro.

Miss Ella Dewart spent the week-end and holiday with her mother. Mrs. Dewart had a family gathering at her home for Thanksgiving.

Mrs. John Cooper and Mrs. Arthur Payne spent Sunday in Lakefield.

Rain is needed very badly. Many cisterns are empty. Indian River is exceptionally low, and land is very hard to plow.

The roads are splendid for motoring.

Warsaw cheese factory collects milk four times a week, and takes it to Peterboro. Some who would have sent milk to the factory, if they could have had whey are keeping the milk at home, separating it, sending the cream to the dairy, and ... have the milk for the pigs.

On Saturday morning Arthur Payne's cow slipped and broke her leg. She had to be shot. It is quite a loss as the cow was a valuable one.

Mr. Currie reports there are few days when the First Aid kit is not used.

The Methodist W.M.S. met at Mrs. Robert Moore's home on Thursday afternoon. Final arrangements were made for the bazaar to be held on December 5th.

ONE 50c BOX BROUGHT HEALTH

The Wonderful Fruit Medicine

Anyone who suffers with miserable health; who is tortured with Headaches; and who is unable to get any real pleasure out of life; will be interested in this letter of Mrs. Martha de Wolfe of East Ship Harbor, N.S.

Mrs. de Wolfe says, "For years I was a dreadful sufferer from Constipation and Headaches and I was miserable in every way. Nothing in the way of medicine seemed to help me. Then I tried "Fruit-a-tives" and the effect was splendid; and after taking only one box, I was completely relieved and now feel like a new person".

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

Mr. Anderson read her report of the District convention.

Mrs. James Greystock had the study for the day, "The real Chinese revolution". Those who were present and had not fully understood the part the students played in the present war, surely must understand after hearing her talk.

Rev. C. J. Cameron preached at Cottesloe Sunday afternoon and at Indian River in the evening.

On Sunday morning there was service in the Baptist church, conducted by Rev. C. J. Cameron, secretary of the Baptist Home Mission Band. In the absence of Rev. W. H. Atkinson, the Presbyterians worshipped in the Baptist church in the morning. Mr. Cameron's lesson was John I: 35-42, the text was v.v. 41:42, particularly the words, "And he brought him to Jesus." Mr. Cameron put it very strongly that the work of the preacher, and of all Christians, is to save souls. Christain work should not be put on committees, but every one should do it. The principal thing is to bring people to Christ.

There are motives for soul-winning. Some teach in Sunday School, and do other Christian work, because they love to teach, they love children, they wish to do good; all good reasons, but they may fail at the crucial time. The great motive must be a desire to even souls, to be filled with the longing to bring others to the Master. Isaiah's preaching did not amount to much until he was made to feel that he needed cleansing, and the angel took the coal and touched his lips, and iniquity was taken away and, when the call came he said, "Here am I, send me."

A follower of Christ should not be like Christian in "The Pilgrim's Progress", arrive at the gate alone. (However, that was not the lesson Bunyan was thinking of). The method of winning should be taskful. Andrew felt that Christ was the promised Messiah, and told his brother Simon. The preacher gave several examples of tactful, earnest dealing with others and winning them. He showed that people's lives count for much. A deacon asked a missionary to speak to his two sons. He did so, and told them their father was very anxious about them, but they said, "Oh, no, father does not care for us." He said their father prayed for them. "Oh, no, we have never heard him." The missionary told the father he must act differently with his sons. Prayer meeting came, the deacon and his sons were there. The deacon started to pray. He usually had a very long, world-embracing prayer, but this time he just got nicely started when he broke off, and cried out, "O, Lord, save my sons." That affected the sons.

Rev. Mr. Cox conducted a Thanksgiving service in the Anglican church on Sunday afternoon. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed.

Rev. F. G. Weir preached a sermon bearing on Thanksgiving on Sunday evening. Joe Williams assisted in the choir and sang a solo.

The regular monthly meeting of the Warsaw Woman's Institute will be held on Thusday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Cox of Lakefield will address the ladies.

PATRONS INVITED TO BANK OPENING

Omemee's New Branch of Bank of Toronto Visited by Hundreds.

OMEMEE, Nov. 12.—The formal opening of the new Bank of Toronto attracted hundreds of people to the village on Saturday. About 250 engraved invitations had been previously mailed to patrons of the Bank, inviting them to come, and bring their friends.

On entering, the manager of the local branch, G. D. Gowans, assisted by Manager Vanstone of Peterboro and Manager L. R. Atkinson of Millbrook and Manager Maples of Bethany, greeted the people in the office. Mrs. E. H. Mitchell, Mrs. (Dr.) Earle, Mrs. H. Lamb and Mrs. Vanstone of Peterboro, welcomed the visitors and directed them to the basement which had been converted into a tea-room for the event. Here, several young ladies dispensed coffee, cake and sandwiches to the many visitors.

The living apartments were then visited and Mrs. Gowans, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Smith greeted and made welcome their many visitors who were loud in their admiration of the up-to-date and cheery living apartments.

During the evening a Peterboro orchestra discoursed sweet music, adding much to the pleasure of the gathering.

ANNUAL BAZAAR OF BAILIEBORO CHURCH

Ducks Are Reported to be Scarce on Rice Lake.

BAILIEBORO, Nov. 12. — The members of the Bailieboro Methodist Church held their annual bazaar in the hall on Thursday evening, November 6th. The hall was very prettily decorated and the tables were nicely arranged. Supper was served from 4.30 to 6.45 p.m. The bazaar was opened by Rev. Mr. Patterson at 6.45 p.m.

Mrs. Robert Falls and Mrs. Fred Jewison had charge of the "farmers' table", which consisted of preserves, pickles, cakes, roast fowl, pastries, vegetables, etc. The men provided their share in the bazaar by giving contributions of grain, vegetables, apples and live fowl. The miscellaneous tables were attended to by Mrs. Claire Dawson, Mrs. W. Bateman, Misses May Earl, Charlotte Barnard, Mrs. George Fletcher and Miss Jean Dawson. Perhaps the most amusing feature of the bazaar was a large judy, which had been very carefully made. The judy was over burdened by parcels, large and small, at a price ranging at 5, 10 and 15 cents. Corresponding tickets were sold for these prices by Mrs. Jeffrey Jewison. A candy booth was very prettily decorated, and conducted by Misses Vera Lang and Kathleen Barnard. Ice cream was sold also. Misses Vera Dawson and Kathleen Bateman had charge of the handkerchief booth.

The bazaar resulted in a perfect success and the ladies and men were well rewarded by their labour as the proceeds of the bazaar amounted to nearly $375.

On Wednesday evening, November 5th, a dance was held in the U.F.Y.P.O. Hall, at Centreville. The dance was conducted by Messrs. F. Alcorn and R. Beatty. Stagg's 4-piece orchestra from Port Hope furnished excellent music for the occasion. A lucky number dance was given and the prize was won by Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sayles of Millbrook. A sumptuous lunch was served by the committee in charge and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all those present.

The Presbyterian choir of Centreville church accepted an invitation to provide part of the program for the fowl supper which was held on Monday evening, November 10, at Coldsprings.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dawson with their two sons, Harry and Gerald, spent the week-end holiday with Mr. Harry Dawson at Bailieboro.

Mr. W. H. Barnard left on Monday for Ewan where he will spend the next two weeks deer hunting.

A number of Toronto men spent the holiday in duck shooting at Rice Lake. Ducks are reported to be not very plentiful.

Miss Helena Armstrong of Toronto is holidaying with her mother, Mrs. Harry Armstrong.

OMEMEE STUDENTS OBSERVE ARMISTICE

OMEMEE, Nov. 12. — Armistice Day was fittingly observed on Tuesday morning by a union service held in the Methodist Church. School was dismissed in commemoration of the day, and the students of the High and Public Schools marched in a body to the church, which was effectively decorated with the flags of the Allies.

The meeting was opened by the singing of that ever impressive hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages ..." which was followed by a few words by the Rev. J. A. Black, leading up to the two minutes of silence at 11 a.m., following which the reverend gentleman offered a most fervent prayer for our country and the loved ones left behind.

The Scripture lesson was a portion of the fifth chapter of St. Matthew's gospel, which was read by Rev. Mr. Weir, of Christ Church. The hymn, "Rock of Ages," followed, after which Rev. E. W. Rowland gave a most appropriate address, in which he rendered one of Robert Service's beautiful poems, entitled "Young Fellow, My Lad."

The meeting, which was most impressive throughout, was brought to a fitting conclusion by prayer and the singing of "God Bless Our Native Land."

Sunday Services.

Anniversary services were observed in the Methodist Church on Sunday, and at both services the congregations were exceptionally large. The evening service was withdrawn in the Presbyterian Church, and the congregation united in worship with the sister church to help make their Thanksgiving service a success.

Many floral decorations, pumpkins and apples, adorned the front of the church, and owing to Armistice Day following so close, the flags of the Allies in various sizes appeared in the windows and other conspicuous corners.

Rev. Mr. Reddick, of Lakefield, was the special speaker for the day, and in his address at each service, delighted his many hearers with his intellectual and inspiring message. The special music in the morning consisted of an anthem by the choir, entitled "Sing Praises," and a duet by Mr. F. Lowe and daughter, Miss Mary Lowe, entitled "Render Thy Gratitude." In the evening the music added much to the service. The choir rendered an appropriate anthem, entitled "I will Magnify Thee," and were assisted by Miss Carrie Balfour, who contributed in fine voice a pretty solo, entitled "A Song of Thanks," also Mr. J. Day, of Toronto, who during the offertory rendered that sweet song, "Alone."

On Monday evening a fowl supper was served in the Sunday School-room, when about five hundred people did justice to the laden-down tables of all the good things which go to make a real dinner. Apples and grapes in pretty containers added to the table decoration, and along with the varied assortment of jellies, etc., presented an inviting appearance, when one was privileged by number to enter the basement.

After all had been served, which was about nine o'clock, a splendid programme was given in the auditorium of the church, consisting of the following numbers:

Doxology.
Reading—Miss Wright, Peterboro, with encore.
Organ solo—Miss E. Race.
Address—Rev. J. A. Black.
Solo—Mr. J. Mackey, of Lindsay, with encore.
Address—Rev. A. T. Weir.
Organ solo—Mrs. C. R. Cornell.
Reading—Miss Wright, with encore.
Address—Rev. Dewey Stinson.
Solo—Mr. J. Mackey, with encore.
Address—Rev. Mr. MacKenzie, of Yarker.
Reading—Miss Wright.
God Save the King.

Rev. E. W. Rowland proved a most efficient chairman for the evening.

The ladies provided so generously for the supper that an over abundance of fowl, pies, cakes, etc., was left and a 15-cent supply was served the following evening, and many citizens again partook of another fowl dinner. The proceeds of the evenings amounted to about $300.

"Perhaps so," and Wise nodded acquiescently. "Tell me what you saw when you arrived, Mr. Kent. The room was lighted then?"

"Oh, yes. They all stood in the doors—as you've already heard described. My sister——"

"Did you notice her first?"

"Yes—I think I did. I saw her white scared face, and I sprang toward her, fearing she was going to faint. Then I saw the body of my brother-in-law on the floor——"

"Why do you say the body—did you then know Mr. Raynor was dead?"

Kent stared.

"Of course not. I only saw that he lay on the floor. But, in view of all we have learned since, it seems natural that I should refer to that stricken form as the body. No, at the moment, I had a confused notion that he had had a stroke—or something like that."

Orry's voice was even, but his fingers were nervously working. The family were used to these nervous manifestations, but the detective looked at him curiously.

"You are agitated, Mr. Kent?"

"Nothing—nothing——" said Orry. "A nervous affectation habitual to me. I can't help it—I've always been so—and a trifle of shell shock in the war helped it along."

He jumped up and began pacing the terrace.

CHAPTER XV.
Grim Gannon.

"Well, Zizi, Penhington Wise said to his funny little assistant, "we've a case on our hands."

"We have, for fair," the girl replied.

The two were strolling through the great gardens of Flower Acres.

"Want me to delay the case, that you may see more of the gardens!"

"Delay the case You'll be lucky if you ever get this case finished. Why, I never saw one with such a lot of side issues and contradictory clues!"

"Let's straighten it out then. What is our problem?"

"Who killed Mr. Raynor, and why?"

"His wife."

"Oh, Penny, no!"

"Don't let your sympathy run away with you. Just because Mrs. Raynor is beautiful, soft-eyed, pathetic——"

"Oh, Penny, you don't read her right at all!"

"At least, you'll agree that she is in love with Mr. Finley."

"Of course—who wouldn't be?"

"And the pair are glad to be relieved of the presence of Mr. Raynor?"

"Y—yes—I suppose they are."

"Well, then, in the absence of any other suspect, why balk at one or both of those two?"

"Let's try for another suspect."

"Just to leave those turtle doves in peace?"

"No, Penny"—the big black eyes were very earnest now—"but because, if they should be innocent—how dreadful to suspect them."

"Go ahead, then—who's your suspect?"

"Of course. She adored her brother—but now she seems to cotton to his

"Pretty much so. I've sounded the servants, and I find Miss Mattie and Mrs. Raynor managed to hit it fairly well. But the old maid is variable—blows hot and blows cold, and so Mrs. Raynor was now in favor and now out. However, there's no question of Miss Mattie. What about the son?"

"He's a rotter, but he never killed his father. He's frank and outspoken—I don't think he's honest, though. But you're hunting suspects for the crime now—aren't you?"

"Yes; leave the Lionel thing till later. Now, who are left?"

"The brother is out of it—a poor, nervous wreck—shell shock—though the servants say he always was a delicate chap. The nurse, I should say, is out of it, for she has admitted the poisoning too."

"Then we have left the two I suggested at the start—Mrs. Raynor and Mr. Finley. I don't suppose you suspect Ezra Goddard?"

"I don't—no. But I'd think of him before I would of those two darling people!"

"Ziz, you're hopeless. Those lovers have turned your sentimental head—and I foresee you'll be no good on this case at all—you may as well go home!"

"Oh, you think so—do you? Well, suppose you turn your attention in a direction that evidently hasn't as yet occurred to your blind od eyes."

"An intruder? an outsider?' It well may be, Zizi." And Wise looked thoughtful.

"It may be; yes—but I didn't mean that. I mean—Grimshawe Gannon."

"As a murderer?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"He had a hold over Mr. Raynor—or Mr. Raynor had a hold over him."

"Which?"

"I can't make out yet—but I think it was a sort of mutual thing. I got around a parlor-maid—who is of a curious, prying type, and though she hasn't much interest in it, she did say that Mr. Raynor and old Gannon had interviews sometimes late at night—secretly——"

"She imagined the secrecy. Why should they be secret about it? Gannon lives on the place—he is a sort of pensioner on Raynor's bounty——"

"Of course he is—but why?"

"I gathered that they were old friends or acquaintances—that Gannon was less fortunate than Raynor—that he cared only for his Natural History studies, and that Raynor gave him a home and a place to carry on his butterfly hunting—or whatever he does."

"You gathered most of the crop of Gannon information—but not all. That old codger has a—had a hold on the great man—on Douglas Raynor, that made Raynor afraid of him. On the other hand, he was in some way afraid of Raynor. So—I got all this from the maid—they used to argue over something and they spoke in low tones and behind closed doors. She listened. But all she could get was the sound of quarrelling voices and after each interview a sort of patching up of the matter until it broke out the next time."

"Yes, I did. Zizi looked complacent. "Now, you've to take that information and see if it's worth anything. You see, Pen, that old Gannon is an ideal villain—he looks for all the world like a murderer, even like a pirate or bandit——"

"Don't be foolish, Ziz—your imagination is running away with you."

"Well, it will bring me back. Oh, Penny, do look at the view from here! And there's a bridge—I suppose that is the bridge to which Mr. Kent walked with the neighbor that night——"

"It must be—there's no other bridge nearby. Yes, see, he— Come on down on the bridge, Zizi."

The two went down the gentle incline of sloping lawn to the pretty little bridge that spanned the noisy, tumbling brook, whose musical ripple had been aided by judiciously placed stones in its course.

"Now, Ziz, take in—get the picture. Mr. Kent stood here, with the neighbor girl, at the time of the shooting. You can't see the house from here—look, you can see the roof of it, but not the doorways."

"Yes, I see that. Nor could you hear a shot—could you?"

"I doubt it. But that doesn't matter. I'm getting at the time. All the people at the house are hazy as to the exact time—I mean, to the minute—of the shooting. They all say a little before seven—or near seven."

"Except the nurse."

"Yes—she fixes it definitely—but, is she truthful?"

"Why not?"

"I don't know—I've not quite sized up that nurse yet. Of course, she would know the time, and if she did tell the truth—it seems to taliy with Kent's account. He was here at this bridge at seven exactly, and he started to walk up this hill——"

"Hardly a hill, Penny, just a gentle rise—"

"Well, this gentle rise, then. Let's take the rise ourselves, and see how long it takes."

"I'm thinking now about an intruder, Zizi. You see, it was pretty much dusk at seven o'clock, and Kent couldn't be expected to see anyone skulking away from the house, if the person took pains not to be seen."

"And especially if the observer had no thought of looking out for a criminal, and if the observer was, as Mr. Kent was, admiring the sunset glow."

"That's all so—and you must agree that if an intruder entered the sun parlor, just before seven, and shot Douglas Raynor, he could make an easy getaway in the deepening twilight without being seen by Orville Kent coming along where we are now."

"All true—but you've no trace of a marauder, except in your imagination."

"There's the overshoe."

"Oh, pooh, the overshoe!"

"Don't sniff at it, Ziz; that overshoe means a lot to me."

"Maybe it was faked."

"Maybe it wasn't."

"Well, all right; now, Penny, I've trailed over this part of the historic ground with you—now, you come with me."

"Where."

"To Grim Gannon's house to find out what hold he had over Douglas Raynor or Raynor had over him."

"Going to ask him outright?"

"You are."

Grimshawe Gannon sat on the little porch of his unattractive old house.

"What do you want?" he growled. "I don't know anything about the Raynor murder!"

"Then you surely need feel no uneasiness at sight of a detective," said Wise, cheerily.

"Two detectives," amended Zizi, seating herself on the porch railing.

"Yes, I'm a detective," she added. "I'd like nothing better than to have you show me your collection and explain it all to me."

"Do you—do you like that sort of thing?" Gannon recovered his poise somewhat as his thoughts were swayed to his beloved work.

"Adore it! But no time just now. As you say, Mr. Gannon, you know nothing about the Raynor murder, and that's just why we want a little talk with you. . . . We can't get anything out of people who do know about the crime—they won't tell."

"You know who they are?"

GREATEST NEED IS GOD'S GRACE

Rev. E. Harston at Mark St. Church Anniversary Advocates Home Prayer.

TRUE VALUES

The Rev. E. Harston, of Woodville, Ontario, delivered a striking sermon at Mark Street Church anniversary service on Sunday evening, when he spoke on the subject of "Our Greatest National Need," taken from the 12th chapter, 13th verse of Isaiah.

Mr. Harstone opened his evening lecture when he said the beliefs of the majority of the people of this dominion as to what the country needs most were wrong. Some say we need more money, others say our country would advance in the right direction if we were to get the proper kind of immigrants, and the farmer says if we have a bumper crop this year everything will go ahead; but the speaker said our greatest need to-day is Manhood and Womanhood. We need the light of Jesus Christ thrown into the hearts of every man and woman in our nation. "You and I think that our country is rich when we think of all our timber and mines, but look at Germany, who, before the war, had plenty of riches, and at the beginning of the war had everything to defend the country with that was almost possible to get. To-day, she is a crumpled nation. When Germany collapsed it was the moral of her people on her own hand and the uprightiousness of the people that opposed her that caused the collapse; it wasn't money. Material and money is not what we want. When we try to meet our temptations we fail if we are not aided by God, and when we are aided by our Heavenly Father we always succeed. Material or money can not stop you from doing evil things that come before every one of us during the years of life, but God can help us. In the great hour of sorrow, nothing will help you but the presence of God. Meet these problems with God and they can be solved, but try to meet them alone and you will fail. The enthronement of Jesus upon the nations heart is what our Dominion is in very bad need of to-day.

Prayer in Home.

There must be greater reality among religions. There must be a revival of home religion, or our national life is threatened. If the Bible was used more in every home there would not be half the sin in the world.

Times have changed, and men and women who used to read their Bible every night do not find time to read it, either to themselves or to their children. The speaker emphatically announced that there would be fewer gray hairs and fewer tears if there was more religion in the home. The home is the main place where religion should be taught. If we can keep the home fire religion burning we will be able to go out and meet the problems of the world without any fear. Strong preaching in the schools and churches is needed. "He who fails to assist to our nation's needs is sowing wild seeds that may lead to the ruination of our nation."

A Boy's Plea.

The speaker told of a boy of eleven years of age who appeared in police court in Toronto. When asked by the judge if there was any reason why he should not be sentenced, the boy pleadingly replied, "Please, Judge, I have never had a chance; I have never read the Bible, or had it read to me in my home." If this boy had been taught the word of God he would never have gotten into trouble. The speaker also told of a boy of 19 years of age who was sentenced to hang for murder. While in the jail, before the execution, the boy refused to have anybody visit him. The boy's mother used to be at the jail nearly every morning, but the son always refused to see her. One morning the lady came to the jail and asked if she could see her son but the son objected. She handed one of the officials a small parcel and asked him to give it to her son. Ho took it to the son and gave it to him, saying, "Your mother has sent you a Bible." The son handed it back to him and told him to take it back to the mother and tell her that if she had spent half as much time teaching him about the Bible as she spent teaching him to play bridge he would not be in prison for murder.

Special music was rendered by the choir, under the leadership of Victor Boorman, choir leader and organist. Mrs. James Young, a former member of the Mark Street choir, rendered special solos at both morning and evening services.

ART STUDY CLUB MEETING

The third meeting for this season of the Art Study Club was held last evening at the home of Mrs. W. H. Meredith on Water Street, when a paper on Botticelli was given by Mrs. R. J. Kidd. There was a good attendance of the members.

Mrs. Kidd dwelt in interesting fashion on some of the characteristics of the work of Botticelli, whose work made a distinct departure in Italian art from the earlier masters' habit of dealing almost exclusively with religious subjects. Botticelli dealt also in his conceptions with material things; nature and the Greek myths. At the beginning of the Early Renaissance, people looked more toward realism in art and the gilded haloes and jewelry which had been formerly used to a great extent began to disappear. Botticelli, while still retaining the use of gold to line a robe or touch the hair or veil of a Madonna, also pictured the beauty of form and color and the graceful charm of flowers, garlands, trees, flowing draperies and willowy figures. This charm is especially noticeable in his picture entitled "Spring." The original meaning of the picture has been lost, but the decorative aspect which was the keynote of this master's work still remains paramount in the beautiful flower-dotted robes and the fruits and foliage of the background. Botticelli, it was said, "does not always tell of religion or love or patriotism, but he does always tell us something about the look of leaf or branch that we possibly had never discerned before. Botticelli's pictures are painted music. As a painter, he became the most original workman in all of Italy, and not only one, but thousands of people, have listened in the chill galleries of Florence to the sweet, nervous music of Botticelli's painting."

The address last evening was copiously illustrated with lantern slides depicting some of the best known of the master's work, including his "Judith," "The Adoration of the Magi," "Holofernes," "The Birth of Venus," several of the pictures of Popes painted for the Chapel of Sixtus Fourth in the Vatican, also three of his frescoes for the same interior, several Madonnas, "The Coronation of the Virgin," "The Nativity," and "Pallas and the Centaur."

The next meeting of the Study Club will be held on November 25, at the home of Mrs. H. Morphet when Mrs. D. Carmichael will give a paper on Titian.

The president of the Women's Art Association, Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, announced a meeting to be held at her home next Monday afternoon, to complete the formation of a club to study Interior Decorating, for which Miss Mamie Montgomery will be convenor.

Mrs. Munro also asked the members to patronize the studio tea to be held in the Conservatory of Music on Saturday afternoon, when Mrs. G. S. Cameron will speak on her trip to Switzerland, and Miss Alice Price will give an account of her recent visit to the Wembley Exhibition.

Misery may love company but not half so much as it lets on.

(MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL—417 METERS)

By WILLIAM J. FAGAN.

Early in the summer, the radio manufacturer which had been operating YLAG suddenly went out of business, leaving a finely equipped, good-as-new radio broadcasting station with nothing to do. The Washburn-Crosby Company became interested in the possibilities of WLAG and secured promises from prominent St. Paul and Minneapolis businessmen to bear half the expense of operation, Washburn-Crosby to assume the balance.

Thus, early in September, WLAG went "on the air" again, having secured full permission to change its name to WCCO, the significance of which letters needs but a short study.

It is perhaps a little premature to venture anything concrete in the way of commendation or condemnation of WCCO, due to the comparatively brief time it has been in existence, but inasmuch as many of the features of WLAG have been retained, along with most of the operating force, it may not be amiss to deal with the Twin Cities station.

WCCO serves a large rural population, folks of the soil and away from the big cities. News and lectures of interest to the husbandman and his family constitute an important feature on the programs. Farm news goes "big" in the central west and stations exhibiting interest in its listeners not adjacent to the centres of population are always sure of an enthusiastic following.

WCCO's schedule is fairly well arranged and the quality of the music is good. Dance orchestras regularly broadcasting are Sam Heiman's and George Osborne's, among others, taking care of terpsichore in good style. Popular music dominates the programs probably because experience has shown that it is what WCCO's audience wants to hear. However, some excellent broadcasts of the classics have taken place, including band and orchestral concerts and studio recitals by capable singers and instrumental soloists. A series of organ recitals recently broadcast presented programs of interest and undoubtedly brought enjoyment to lovers of organ music.

No Average On Weather Claims Climate Expert

CHICAGO, Ill., November 12 (United Press). — Refuting statements that "the United States is due for a hard winter if the law of averages works out," H. B. Ward of the Geology and Geography Department of North - Western University, "doubts very much if there is a law of averages with respect to weather."

Ward has just completed a study of temperatures and precipitations of the last several years, and asserts that "it is just as reasonable to forecast a mild winter as a severe winter in 1924-1925." The season "will not be controlled by sun-spot activity,' Ward contends.

In his analysis, Ward discloses that there were radically different temperatures in 1920, with January consistently cold and February normal except as to snowfall, which, with the exception of 1877, was the least in 50 years.

The year 1921, he points out, was the warmest in 50 years, while if there is a law of averages, 1922 should have been cold, but as a matter of fact it was warmer and drier than average with few severe storms.

Recent months have shown an accumulated deficiency of temperature of 741 degrees at the end of October, according to Ward.

"Many tables of statistics can be submitted to prove that long-range forecasts are not reliable," Ward says. "Most certainly they disprove the reliability of the so-called law of averages in weather matters."

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatic or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a 35 cent bottle of old, honest St. Jacob's Oil at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right on your aching back, and the soreness and lameness is gone.

In use for 65 years, this soothing, penetrating oil takes the pain right out, and ends the misery. It is absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

CONFERENCE ON TAXATION HELD

Hon. J. A. Robb Main Speaker at Conference Last Evening.

TO CONCLUDE WED.

OTTAWA, Nov. 12. — (Canadian Press). — "We have had a frank, friendly discussion of the problems at hand," said Hon. J. A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, last night, following the first session of the taxation conference between the Dominion and seven of the Provincial governments here Tuesday. The conference will continue to-day and will probably conclude in the evening.

The representatives from the Maritime Provinces, it is understood, have put forward the request that the Canadian Government grant to them the privilege of taxation of the Canadian National Railway property in the Maritimes. It was pointed out in support of this contention that the provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island were in unique position due to the fact that they were virtually title-holders. Ontario and the Western Provinces, on the other hand, as stockholders, enjoyed the right to levy taxes on the Canadian National Railways.

On behalf of the Province of Alberta, Hon. R. G. Reid, Provincial Treasurer, submitted the attitude of his Government to the conference, making a survey of the entire situation. Owing to the initiation of certain policies by the Dominion, problems have been left to the province for solution which have strained the financial resources of the province and have placed upon them a burden which is not properly theirs, according to Mr. Reid's case.

Alberta further contended: "That the allocation of fields of taxation under the British North America Act is largely non-effective by reason of the fact that no exclusive fields are maintained for the provinces," as the Dominion has the power to enter any field under the Act.

In the statement submitted it was pointed out in connection with the first point raised that there are two main areas of the province interested. The first in South-Eastern Alberta and the second in the Peace River country, in both of which districts settlers have been placed by the Dominion Government and then their efforts ceased. The Federal Government, it was thought, should have adopted a follow-up policy and assisted these settlers on semiarid lands in their attempts to cultivate them.

As regards the second contention, a situation of another kind had developed in the Peace River district where the Provincial Government had found it essential to guarantee railway bonds in order to afford the necessary transportation facilities. This action had temporarily relieved the situation but had cost the province such a sum as would add one million dollars to their current expenditure for all time to come. It was thought by the Alberta Government that the province should be relieved of the conditioning and otherwise financing of the northern railways, including the E. D. and B. C., the Central Canada and the A. and G. W.

"The Dominion income tax," continued Mr. Reid's statement, "invades the field of direct taxation to such an extent that it makes it extremely difficult for the provinces to relieve their financial burden by the imposition of a provincial income tax as such a tax would be regarded as overlapping, and for that reason very objectionable. The municipalities of Alberta have been agitating for some years for a share of certain taxes collected by the province, but it is impossible for the Provincial Government to relinquish certain of its taxing powers to its municipalities until the present arrangement of taxation between the Federal and Provincial Governments is amended.

BURNED TO DEATH WHILE SLEEPING

Two Small Children Dead—Grandmother Seriously Burned—Mother Saved.

OWEN SOUND, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press). — Helen and Loretta Fetherstone, aged eight and nine years respectively, were burned to death at five o'clock this morning and their grandmother, Mrs. Fred. Fetherstone, with whom they were living, is in the General and Marine Hospital.

She is seriously burned and may not recover. The fire, which broke out in the back kitchen of their home, spread quickly to the brick portion of their house, and before the children could be got out they were suffocated and burned to death.

An employee of one of the local factories on his way to work noticed the kitchen blazing, and with much difficulty he aroused Mrs. Fred. Fetherstone, expecting that she would rouse the others and get them to safety while he summoned assistance. The aged lady ran to the door opening into the kitchen and opened it, allowing the flames to get a start on the remainder of the house. It was here that she was badly burned.

The mother of the children also escaped. When the firemen reached the house the flames were pouring from the upper windows. The firemen entered the upper rooms and succeeded in getting the bodies of the children out. One had apparently been suffocated, but the other was quite evidently burned to death. Coroner Dr. Dow will hold an inquest.

LIBERALS OBJECT TO BE OVERHAULED

One Hundred Defeated Liberal Candidates Met Yesterday.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Steps taken by its leaders towards overhauling the Liberal party are not viewed with entire favor by those in party ranks. About a hundred Liberal candidates who were defeated in the recent polling met yesterday to talk over the publication. They criticized the constitution of the committee of experts which Mr. Asquith, the party leader, announced last Monday was working to meet the need for the overhauling of the party "from top to bottom."

Particular criticism was directed against the inclusion in the committee of some members whom the candidates regarded as largely responsible for the poor organization which is blamed for the Liberal collapse. Demand was made for better representation and appointment of independent investigators on the committee.

The pact with the Conservatives by which three-cornered fights were averted in some constituencies to assure the defeat of the Laborites was roundly condemned at the meeting, and another complaint was that there was nobody at the Liberal headquarters during the election with sufficient authority to advise when difficulties arise. More democratic control of party funds was demanded.

STEADY DECLINE FOR ILLITERACY

Great Improvement In Educational Status of Population.

OTTAWA, Novem. 12 (Canadian Press). — Illiteracy is steadily declining throughout the Dominion, according to information compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

This improvement in the educational status of the population, five years of age and over, during the last twenty years, is indicated by the decrease in the percentage of illiterates from decade to decade.

In the last census, for the total population five years of age and over 9.25 per cent. were reported as being unable to "read and write," as compared with 10.50 per cent. in 1911 and 14.38 per cent. in 1901.

Ontario leads all other provinces with a lo wpercentage of illiteracy of 6.43, taking the census figures of 1921 as a basis.

FROM STOVE TO PLATFORM.

Mrs. Ida Fallis, wife of Howard Fallis, a successful farmer living at the edge of the fine city of Peterborough, is a real woman.

Mrs. Fallis is the remarkably gifted speaker who spoke in the interest of Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C., here on Saturday night at Oddfellows' Hall.

She is not only a speaker, but a worker, too. Friday she cooked meals for some fifeen men who were hands at a threshing on the Fallis farm.

On Saturday she journeyed to Belleville to tell the women why they should support Mr. Porter. She knows why, and knows how to impart her knowledge, too.—Belleville Intelligencer.

FARM LIFE AND ITS PROBLEMS

WHEN THE WHITE SLAVE DOES YOUR FARM WORK AND NIAGARA TURNS THE OMNIPRESENT HANDLES, THEN LIFE WILL BE WORTH LIVING ON THE LAND

Man With His Bare Hands Cannot Compete With Man Backed by Power of Rivers and Cataracts—Farmer and City Worker.

ELECTRICITY FO R WOMEN FOLKS

Woman's Time is Worth as Much as a Man's—She Now Wastes Six Weeks a Year on Work That Electricity Should Do.

(By LEWIS EDWIN THEISS)

IF you create value to the extent of ten cents in an hour, your time is worth ten cents an hour, and no more. If you create 100 cents' worth in an hour, you are worth $1 an hour. If you want to receive $2 an hour, you will have to learn to produce two dollars' worth of value in an hour. Artificial regulations sometimes alter this situation temporarily—but only temporarily. In the long run, time is worth what you make it, and only what you make it.

For many years the city worker has had a helper that has made his time worth more than it would have been without that helper, because he can accomplish so much more in an hour. That helper is mechanical power. Tomorrow it will be altogether electric power. The city worker has taken advantage of this power, and employed this slave to help him produce. The farmer has, until recently, kept on working largely with his bare hands. The fact that he could hardly do otherwise does not change the fact. He has pitted his man-power against the city's man-power plus mechanical power. It is no wonder that the farmer has lost out. A man with his bare hands is no match for another man backed by the power of a Niagara.

In the age that is just ahead, I think the farmer is going to alter all this. He is going to demand a fair deal. He is going to have his share of power. He is going to put himself on a par with the city man by getting possession of the same slave, electricity. When he does, his income will increase, he will be far less of a drudge and far more of a creative worker, and his standard of life will rise much higher. The white slave, electricity, is destined to bring untold happiness to the people on the farms.

Electricity for Women Folks.

In a home where kerosene lamps are used, much time is taken for filling, trimming, and cleaning them. If the housewife spends 15 minutes a day, her total yearly expenditure of time is about 91 hours. That makes almost eleven and a half days of eight hours each. The modern women with electric lights, therefore, has the advantage of her sister to the extent that of eleven days each year.

What is Monday like in your house? Most likely the washer-woman spends an hour or two toiling over a foaming tub. The kitchen is offensive with the steam from boiled soiled clothes. Dinner is poor and scanty. The modern women with an electric washer is relieved of nearly all that drudgery, and her family is spared the unpleasant features that accompany wash-day. The housewife now goes cheerfully about her work, while her white slave, electricity, cleans the clothes. She saves perhaps another hundred hours a year.

Another of the tasks that make women old is the pumping and carrying of water. Town dwellers long ago got rid of taste tasks, but too many farm women still have them to do. On my own farm we obtain water from elevated springs by gravity. A few of our neighbors have installed electric plants, which pump their water. But on farms all about us women are still lugging water. Where homes have proper water systems, a turn of the faucet gives the housewife all the water she needs, upstairs or down, cold or hot.

Six Weeks a Year Lost.

I suspect a hundred hours a year carrying water is too small an estimate. But suppose we say that in these three operations, washing, providing light, and getting water, a woman saves 300 hours a year, through the use of electricity. That means 37½ days of eight hours each, or more than six weeks of six days each. A woman's time is worth just as much as a man's. So we see what women have been contributing to the welfare of the home in jobs that pass almost unnoticed.

When we reach the point where we use electricity generally, the drudgery and the jobs that formerly aged men and women prematurely will be saddled on the white slave, electricity. There will always be work enough for every man and woman to do; but men and women will have more time to do the things they want to do. It won't be necessary to put so much time into the mere mechanics of living. The farmer can milk his cows quicker and more easily. Instead of laboriously turning a cream separator handle minute after minute, he will press a button and go about some other job until the cream is separated. That is the sort of work electricity can do better than a man. It is necessary work, but it is drudgery, and had better be done by mechanical power. Life is too precious to spend it turning a crank.

We have hardly yet grasped the true conception of the part electricity is to play in human betterment. Electric lighting has long been commonplace. Electric suction cleaners are now well established. Electric irons are common. Electric sewing-machines are no longer rarities. The percolator, the toaster, the washer, all electrified, are now in wide use. The electric pump is one of the greatest blessings imaginable for farm dwellers.

"The Future Development of Electricity on the Farm," will be discussed on the next Farm Page. Watch for some interesting forecasts.

U. E. Loyalist Refuses To Give Yoke Of Oxen For 200 Acres of Land

COBOURG, Nov. 12. — Some idea of the value placed upon horses and cattle by the U.E. settlers of the Quinte district may be gained from the fact that Dr. Carniff states that a Mr. Dempsey drove from a point one hundred miles away, some cattle in the year 1789 to Ameliasburgh Township. He was offered two hundred acres of land for a yoke of four-year-old steers which he refused. At another time he was offered one hundred acres for a cow. In those days cattle were considered of far more value to the early settlers than land, of which they had more than they could get cleared.

FARMERS STILL BUSY

East Emily Harvest Operations Are Still in Progress.

EAST EMILY, Nov. 12.—The farmers in this district are busy gathering in their turnips and corn.

The ploughing is nearly all done and also the threshing is coming to an end for this season.

Potatoes are selling at 75c to 90c per bag, and the crop is exceedingly good in this district.

The beechnut crop is a failure this season as the summer frosts seemed to hurt the nuts, there being very few to be found with any kernel in them.

If the frost had not come the crop would have been a good one.

Harry Deyell, Gabriel Switzer and Eugene Switzer went to Harvey on Friday and brought their cattle home from the ranch where they have been during the summer months.

HAIL RODS WORTHLESS.

Hail rods, forms of electric lightning rods put up against hailstorms, are considered worthless. The best form of security against devastation by hailstorm, according to the U.S. Weather Bureau, is hail insurance.

Pigs need good clean water at all times. Keep water in the feed as well as in the trough, although the entire ration for fattening pigs should not contain more than 60 per cent water.

The United Kingdom, though the greatest foreign trader in the world, in 1923 had per capita exports of only $75.58, her gain over 1913 having been only $20.06. Though the United Kingdom has five times the population that Canada has, her domestic exports in 1923 were only two and one-half times greater.

INDIVIDUAL VOICES ARE LOST IN THE DIN OF ORGANIZATION SAYS U.F.O. PRESIDENT AMOS

Omemee U.F.O. Branch Addressed on Need for Co-operation Among Farmers.

BETTER CONDITIONS

Every Other Industry Benefits Through Union and Agriculture Must Follow.

OMEMEE, Nov. 12.—On Thursday evening members of the Omemee branch of the U.F.O. met in the club-room and were favored with a visit from the president of the United Farmers of Ontario, W. A. Amos, B.A., of Palmerston. Mr. Amos conducted a series of meetings during the week, having visited Oakwood on Tuesday evening, where Mr. H. Richardson was chairman; Downeyville, on Wednesday, where Councillor M. Carroll occupied the chair; Omemee, on Thursday, with the president, William Burgess, in the chair, and Bobcaygeon on Friday evening where Wm. Fulton was chairman. A good attendance was reported at each meeting, and a splendid musical programme, along with the addresses, made the evening one of pleasure as well as profit.

En route to Omemee on Thursday Mr. Amos had the pleasure of addressing the Kiwanians in Lindsay at their luncheon, where he was warmly welcomed and received the hearty thanks of the members.

Need Organization.

Mr. Amos, in addressing the farmers, spoke of the necessity of organization in this day when every other industry is organized. Individual effort is bound to be unsuccessful. Individual voice will never be heard in the din of organized effort. He referred to the difficulties the farmers have to encounter, and also, the benefits, whereby not only the organized farmer, but every tiller of the soil in the Province of Ontario has profited by the organization of farmers. In conclusion he made a strong appeal to every farmer to assist his brothers in the efforts to bring about better agricultural conditions.

Ice On Ponds All Day Heralds Winter Season

FRASERVILLE, Nov. 12.—The U.F.O. shipped two cars of stock from Fraserville, one load consisting of 93 hogs, the other a mixed load of cattle, calves and lambs, to the United Farmers' Co-operative Company, Union Stock Yards, Toronto.

The farmers around this vicinity have almost finished ploughing, owing to the favorable weather, although the land has become very hard due to the lack of rain.

There have been many hard frosts in this vicinity of late, the ice remaining on the ponds during the whole day.

WHOLESALE EXODUS FROM DRY ALBERTA

Farms That Were Worked Twenty Years Are Now Being Deserted.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Nov. 12 — The trek of farmers from the drought-stricken areas of the south-eastern portions of the province is very marked. Farms that have been worked for the last 15 to 20 years have been deserted, the owners seeking new locations in the wetter districts of Alberta, or in the irrigated tracts. The next move appears to be the conversion of the country into a cattle and sheep range area. It once was a heavy producer of beef cattle, and is still very valuable from a range standpoint. This is the solution in the opinion of experts, including General Manager Weston of the Imperial Life Assurance Co. of Toronto, who recently made a close investigation of the situation in the dried-out territory. Transfer of the settlers, and the introduction of cattle on the areas formed the basis of Mr. Weston's theory for the relief of the present farmers.

THANKSGIVING SEES FARMERS LOOK BACKWARD ON SEASON THAT ENCOURAGED THEIR OPTIMISM AND GAVE THEM A NEW LEASE ON PROSPERITY

Review of Agricultural Conditions on Lake Shore Shows Progress in Almost All Branches of the Science—Few Failures Are Reported.

SMALL NUMBER OF FARM SALES

Dairying Shows Improvement With Scrubs Being Dropped in Favor of Better Testing Cows—Butter-making is Not in High Favor.

BRIGHTON, Nov. 12.—The higher prices obtained during the past year for grains, hogs, beef-cattle, poultry, etc., together with a very fair average crop, have helped the farmers to an appreciable extent. They are also more optimistic as to the future, one evidence of this being the comparatively small number of sales held or contemplated.

In general, crops have been better this year than was anticipated earlier in the season. The backward and cold spring retarded seeding of spring grains but apart from slightly decreasing the acreage under oats and barley, very effect was noticed. Weather conditions during the latter part of the season were such that the late sown grains yielded about as much as those sown early.

The late season did, however, influence the acreage of those crops known as late season crops with the result that buckwheat was much more extensively sown. A list of the main crops with approximate results is appended:

Rye—An average acreage with a good yield.

Corn—A late and small crop.

Hay—An average crop, most of which was harvested in excellent condition.

Potatoes—Slightly increased acreage and a good yield with prices low at present.

Tomatoes—The acreage of tomatoes was slightly smaller this year and the crop, not coming into maturity early enough, was only sixty per cent. of an average, the yield being approximately one hundred and forty bushels to the acre. The price paid by canning factories was 35 cents a bushel, the same as last year, and most growers made very little out of this crop.

Cattle and Livestock.

A large percentage of the cattle in this county is of the dairy breeds. Prices have been fairly well maintained, the general price being somewhat lower than last year. This is caused by a number of shippers being cut off by city dairies and the low prices paid for cheese early in the season. Prices for beef cattle, however, have been slightly better and seem to be improving for good one and two-year-old heifers. There is very little change in the numbers of hogs kept, with prices a little better than last year. Feed prices were slightly lower and the farmer also received more of the premium paid for selects owing to the market arrangements for payment being simplified.

Sheep are not raised extensively. Wool prices have been fairly satisfactory, as also the price of lamb and mutton.

Gradually poultry is becoming popular with the farmer, and the past season has been a profitable one where proper attention has been given. With feed prices moderately low, prices of poultry and eggs have been very good.

Dairying.

With prices for milk products low, and any advantage in favour of high-testing milk, there is a decided effort noticeable on the part of a large number of farmers to increase the average test of their herds. They are generally disposing of their low-testing cows, replacing them with those whose ability to produce higher-testing milk has been previously ascertained. There has been practically no increase in the size or number of herds.

Butter and Cheese.

Butter-making has not been much more satisfactory this year than usual, and it is evident that some radical change must be effected before it can obtain the status it deserves. Returns from cheese factories for the greater part of the season were also very unsatisfactory, although during the latter part of the year prices have shown marked improvement.

Fruit Growing.

Apples, which are the chief orchard product of this county, were only about seventy per cent of last year's crop, with a considerable percentage of poor quality. This was again chiefly due to the prevalence of scab and side worm, the effects of which would have been much greater had not the orchards been better cared for than in former years. The trees wintered well but the spring and summer weather was too wet and too cold. The exceptionally favourable weather experienced during the picking season, however, was of great benefit. As a consequence of the poor quality a large percentage of the crop is being shipped in bulk to city markets or sold to canning factories at from fifty cents to a dollar a hundred pounds. The crop is now practically all sold to dealers and wholesalers, with the probability that not over fifty per cent of last year's quantity will be put in cold storage. The prices on early apples were lower than last year but are from twenty-five to fifty per cent higher on winter varieties of good quality. Although this is partly owing to the smaller yield it is chiefly due to the increased demand for export. This situation is expected to result in larger orchards and to stimulate greater care of them.

COLOR CONTEST WON BY GIRLS

Dorothy Kelly and Helen Ward First in Their Classes.

BEST EFFORTS

The last of the pictures for the coloring for which prizes were offered brought in the best efforts of the series, and, as usual, the girls romped off with the prizes. Only one boy appears in the list of winners.

This picture ends what has proven a most interesting feature of the Farm Page for three months past. Everyone who entered did not win a prize. That would not have done because then it would not have been a competition, but everyone had some fun out of the competition, and the best won prizes.

Under 14 years: 1. Helen Ward, 11, R.R. 3, Peterborough; 2. Dorothy Pryke, 10, Campbellford; 3. Mary Brackenridge, 11, Westwood.

The picture editor wishes to thank all the boys and girls who submitted pictures for the splendid way in which they observed the rules. Only one entrant forgot to mark down his age, and only two forgot to have the certificate signed by a parent. And the little letters written by prize-winners and others are being kept as memoirs of pleasant hours spent in judging the really excellent pictures submitted by the boy and girl readers of The Examiner.

Just as a postscript, here's a tip. Watch the Farm Page for the announcement of a new competition.

HOW TREES GET RINGS

Tree Requires Lots of Moisture in Spring—Growing Cells Responsible.

Well, well, Theresa, you want to know how the annual rings of trees are made. Here is the how. The annual rings of trees are due to difference in size of cells of the cambium layer (layer of cells that do all the growing). This difference is caused by the varying amounts of water required during different seasons of the year. In the spring the cells are large in order to conduct large amounts of water for the use of the tree, while in the fall the cells are small in order to conduct only a small amount, as the tree does not require much at this time.

WHEAT AND CHAFF

The day is coming when every man will learn to treat as his own country all the countries of the earth, to recognize in any country he goes to, one of the sacred homes of the human family. —Paul Richard.

Labor-saving devices were not invented so much to enable the housewife to do more work, as to let her have more leisure.

Ten Commandments for Farm Husbands.

1. Thou shalt remember that the woman thou hast married is thy wife and not thy hired girl that she is thy helpmeet, but not a slave to toil for thee.

2. Thou shalt not build a woman killer house, but one so small that it will be a pleasure for thy wife to keep it in apple-pie order. Forget not also that running water is as much needed at the house as in the barn and that a washing-machine is as necessary to thy wife as a horsefork is to thee.

3. Thou shalt not ask thy wife to help with the milking that thou mayest the earlier drive to town to lodge. It is enough for thy wife to look after the house, and do thou look after the work of the barn and of the farm.

4. Thou shalt see to it that thy wife never has to ask thee for money either for the house or for herself. Is she not a partner with thee in the farm enterprise? Let her share of the farm income be generous to spend as may please her best.

5. Thou shalt remember that whe thou dost hire extra men to make thy work light, that they make thy wife's work heavy unless thou dost secure for her extra help.

6. Thou shalt keep a gentle horse that thy wife may drive to the ladies' aid, and when thou art waxing prosperous thou shalt buy for her a flivver.

7. Thou shalt mow the front lawn and make all of the surroundings of the house as attractive as the interior has been made beautiful by thy wife.

8. Thou shalt sometimes say to thy wife at her busy seasons, like house-cleaning time, "Do not bother to cook dinner to-day, let us have a meal of bread and milk."

9. Thou shalt remember that cooking, dish-washing, sweeping and mending grow monotonous, and that thy wife needs a frequent change and vacation. See that she goes visiting, takes a trip to the city or gets recreation in some other way that pleases her better.

10. Thou shalt be good-natured and cheery and kind. Thou didst win thy wife by devotion, keep her love by thy tender consideration.—J. Elmer Russell.

Canadian Bacon First In British Dairy Show

Gunns, Limited, West Toronto, secured first and second place in bacon at the British Dairy Show in London this year. First prize in cheese went to the Eastern Dairy School at Kingston, the second to the Lanark and Drummond Factory Lanark, and the third to the Kinburn Factory, Kinburn, Ont. First prize in honey went to West Bros., Thorn ton, Ont., and second prize to John McKinnon, St. Eugene. All the prizes in butter went to Australia and South Africa won everything in eggs.

LOW WAGES HELP FARMERS.

A big factor in placing the Western farmer in a better position is the reduction in wages from the high levels of war years to an average of from $3 to $3.50, according to R. O. EXPORTS FROM CANADA DOUBLE THEIR VOLUME AND GIVE FARMERS CAUSE FOR THANKSGIVING

Ten Years' Review Shows That Only New Zealand is Ahead.

$110.94 PER CAPITA

United States Has Twelve Times Population—One-Third Exports.

OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—At this Thanksgiving time Canadians have much to be thankful for. If they doubt it, all they have to do it to look back over the record of their own progress, and compare things to-day with what they used to be.

During the last ten years no other important country has increased its exports per head of its population so rapidly as Canada has. In 1913 Canada's exports of domestic products amounted to $57.95 per head of the population; in 1923 they were $110.94. That is, they had practically doubled during the interval.

There is only one other country of account in the world that has a higher per capita trade than Canada. That country is New Zealand, which boasts $163.17 per capita. It is able to do so because it has a population of less than 1,500,000. But in 1923 New Zealand exported only $207,883,000 of products as compared with Canada's $1,014,944,000. Australia's exports in 1923 were $501,779,000, or $92.29 per capita. During the decade her increase was only $18 per capita as compared with Canada's $53.

The United States had over twelve times the population that Canada has and yet its per capita exports in 1923 were only $38.20, an increase of $13 within the decade, as against $53 by Canada. The volume of its domestic exports in 1923 was only a little over three times that of Canada's.

The truth is that a whole new group of nations has come into Canada's foreign trading field during the last quarter of a century. The number of countries trading with Canada, and buying Canadian products to-day, far exceed those of a few years ago.

The average woman has a vocabulary of only 800 words—and she uses every one of them.

a [o]f my neighbors has a gentle-B[u]n cow of Jersey persuasion i[n]ich he keeps for purposes of a. The other day this creature [k]nocked the fence into my pasture an commenced to associate with my live-stock, consisting of a cow and horse. I went to "shoo" him out, and have just now recovered enough to be able to wri[te] you what I should have done. M[y] editor, whatever her other faults, b[e]is perfectly gentle, and I was F[o]ol enough to suspect my neighbor of being worse than my own. So I advanced carefully toward e[a]nimal in question intending to s[e]ize by the horns, lead him gently s[o] my to the gate and turn him [i]nto own pasture.

Forward warning caused me to [h]alt before reaching him, and to attribute my escape. My premonition became a certainty within a few steps and I decided to retreat and think things over. An angry bellow hastened my withdrawal. You may not know it, but I will admit to being somewhat stout, indeed almost fat.

Another bellow caused me to look back. That gentleman cow was after me with clearly hostile intent. I tried to run. In a few seconds I tripped and fell. As I was in a hurry and couldn't take the time to get up, I just kept rolling. This might have been effective except for a drainage ditch, overlooked in the excitement of the moment. This ditch was somewhat narrower at the bottom than at the top, and about four feet deep. I dropped into it with considerable speed, just as Mr. Bull arrived.

I wedged in solidly, just deep enough for most of the water to run down my neck and out my pants' legs. As a culvert I was an unqualified success. I had to be as I was stuck fast. Meanwhile Mr. Bull was jumping back and forth above me attempting in his simple earnest way to horn me. Occasionally he varied the performance by trying to paw me. My neighbor finally heard the excitement and came to get his property.

He cornered the animal with a pitch fork and snapped a long stout broom handle to a ring in his nose. Mr. Bull then let himself be led away. I was now due to get up, but couldn't do so. After a lot of (to me) unnecessary delay Mr. Bull's proprietor appeared with two more neighbors, all armed with shovels. They went to work and excavated me. I had a thousand black and blue places from bumping over the rocks, and large patches of skin gone on each side where I wedged in the ditch. I also took cold. Altogether it was the most terrible experience I have yet had on the farm.

Mr. Editor, what should I have done? Was that ring in his nose there for the purpose of leading him? I thought it was a sort of ownership tag.

Mr. Editor, I ask you frankly, for how long could they put me in jail if I killed this insolent creature? If, on looking it up, you find that it isn't more than five years, please advise me and I will go out and shoot him full of holes with great enthusiasm.

If you can think of any more painful way to do away with him, that will a the same time be perfectly safe for me, your suggestions will be gratefully received.

"Keep Your Head Down" Is Only Advice To Give Farmer When City Folk Wander Afield With Guns

A farmer writes to tell us he is troubled with spent bullets from hunters' guns whistling over his head as he works in his field, and asks what he can do about it.

All we can say is "go to the rabbitt." You don't see the rabbits out gathering cabbage leaves when there's a checked suit and peaked cap walking about with a gun. No sir! Mr. Bunny takes to cover and stays there till he sees the legging-incased pedal extremities of the intrepid hunter vanishing over the hill—and look at the number of rabbits there are compared with farmers.

It is a source of wonder why a farmer can't pack a gun down the main street of Peterborough and take an occasional shot at a bird and yet the city hunter, on his day off, can wander loose over the countryside and pot anything he sees move. And first thing you know the shingles on the barn are raising in fright and the big water trough is shedding tears all over the lot.

Probably that's the real reason for some of the "drainage" ditches being dug in Douro.

PORCELAIN AND TEACHERS SCORE CLOSE VICTORIES IN SOFTBALL

C. G. E. Engineers Defeated By Sam Calladine's Porcelain Makers 5 to 3.

TEACHERS STRONG.

Beat L.O.L. 10-3, While Belmonts Battered the Triple Links.

In the opening game last evening, the Porcelain, under Sam Calladine's coaching, won a great victory from the Engineers by the score of 5 to 3.

Nicholls was Sam Calladine's choice to do the hurling, and he surely picked the right man, for Nicholls was in good form and he cut the rock plate as he desired. He fanned 14 batters, issued two passes and was touched for 10 hits, nine of which counted for more than one base. Langley, on opposing mound roster, was also very good, whiffing seven of the Porcelain wags, but he was a little wild at times.

TEACHERS 10, L.O.L. 3.

The game between the Teachers and the L.O.L. was a pitchers' battle throughout, with both Nicholls and Dunkerley turning in a good performance. Dunkerley had a little the edge on Nicholls, but there was not very much difference between either pitcher, both having plenty of speed and fairly good control. Nicholls was derricked off the mound in the eighth, but Batten, who relieved him, was hit hard and often, and before the innings was over the Teachers had chalked up 4 runs, bringing their total up to 10, while the Orangemen were blanked in the final frame, and the count stood 10 to 3 for the Teachers.

ODDFELLOWS TROUNCED.

The Triple Link were no match for the Belmonts, and although they were beaten by the score of 22 to 7, they deserved to be beat by twice as much for the sloppy game they turned in. Price started on the mound for the loosers, but was walloped all over the arena, and was not yanked any too soon when he was relieved by Shields in the fifth. Shields was little better. Batten opened the game with a home run, and before the side had been retired in the first the Belmonts had chased 12 runs across the plate. Umpires—McMartin and Kay.

MERCANTILE LEAGUE

In the Mercantile League last night at the Water Street Alleys the Examiner maintained their hold on first place by defeating the Nashua Paper two out of three. The Examiner bore only that one game in mind.

George Johnson was high man of the evening with a great score of 404. He was the main cog in the Examiner's victory. McLeod got the high single of the night with 247, just one pin better than Johnson who hit 'em for 244 in his second game.

Following are the scores:

OTTAWA'S LAST HOPE.

Junior Rideaus Still in Rugby Race With Westmounts.

OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—With New Edinburghs knocked out of the running for intermediate honors, and the Senators down in the Big Four race, Ottawa fans have only one hope left for the title. That hope is resting on the Rideaus, junior champions of the district, who trimmed Westmount juniors here on Saturday 15 to 2, in the first of the semi-finals.

The second game is scheduled for Montreal on Saturday, and Rideaus are working overtime in preparation for the contest. While their lead of 13 points is a commanding one, Rugby is the most uncertain game, and they can afford to take no chances. Daily practices will be indulged in this week.

BASEBALL ANNIVERSARY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—The joint meeting of the two major baseball leagues may be presented here next month in the rooms where the National League was organized fifty years ago.

The National League had planned several festivities next year to celebrate its golden anniversary. One of these was to have been a dinner at the Old Broadway Central Hotel, where the organization was born.

SENATORS' FIRST HOCKEY TRYOUT

OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—The Ottawa professional hockey team held their first practice of the season at the Auditorium here last night when a band of twelve players were put through a good hour, considering that it was the first time on skates for most of them. While the boys have been indulging in road work and gym exercises, skating is what they need, and with only 12 days elapsing before they open their season, hard work will be the order of the day in subsequent workouts.

Calgary Tigers open the season here on the 24th and 25th November with an exhibition series, and the team will be driven hard to get in condition for these contests. By their exhibition here against the Canadiens last spring, the highest respect is conceded to the westerners, and it will be a brilliant start for the Senators if they can drop the Tigers in both games.

Hec Grosdine and Hooley Smith have not yet reported in camp, and while Frank Nighbor was in town yesterday, he was not at the practice. He conferred with the Ottawa management and will likely be on hand for the next practice, which is scheduled for Thursday night.

The following players turned out: George Boucher, Edwin Gorman, Lionel Hutchman, Frankie Finnegan, Cy Denneny, Frank Clancy and Earl Campbell. Alex. Connell, of the City League Shamrocks, and rated the cleverest amateur goaler in these parts, was in the nets. While the other men necessary to make up two full teams were recruited from local amateurs.

It was announced that Cecil Hart's Montrealers would come over to Ottawa for practice next week.

TONY FUENTE, MEXICAN, TAKES UP DEMPSEY CHASE NEW NAME ADDED TO THE LIST OF CHALLENGERS

Tony Fuente, Mexican, takes up Dempsey challenge so quickly that he will be added to the list of Dempsey challengers so unwieldy that it will soon require a scroll-call of the League of Nations, with Mexico, 2 possessions, Canada, and others, reminding the floor, not to mention fans of the "gate."

FROM LEFT TO RIGHT — FUENTE, WILLS, GIBBONS, FIRPO

By JOE WILLIAMS

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—This business of snapping at the flatic heels of Mr. Jack Dempsey is rapidly developing into an international posse, with no belligerent nation barred.

Consider the line-up:

Harry Wills, Senegambia.
Luis Angel Firpo, South America.
Jack Renault, Canada.
Tommy Gibbons, Ireland.
Tony Fuente, Mexico.

Some rasping-voiced factualist may rise to a point of order and suggest that New Orleans is some distance removed from Senegambia and that the Gaelic of St. Paul is lacking in the rich, dulcet brogue of the native Dublin tongue.

Nevertheless, Wills at least possesses a Senegambian background and no one will gain say the triple distilled Irish ancestry of Mr. Gibbons.

Wherefore, on with the hunt.

First Mexican Heavy

Much is already known of the capabilities —or lack of them, as the case may be—of Wills, Gibbons, Firpo and Renault. Fuente is the new name on the challenging list. There is added interest in him because he is Mexican bred.

For some reason or other you find fewer Mexicans in the ring profession than any other race. It has always been so. Fuente is the first Mexican heavyweight in history, I believe. The fighting Mexicans of the past have all been little men.

No Mexicans ever held a ring title. Luis Ybarra came close. You remember him as Jose Rivers. Twice Rivers fought for the lightweight championship and was knocked out both times.

His clash with Wolgast in 1912 was memorable. It ended in the thirteenth round—the devil round, as the Australians call it —with both men squirming on the floor.

Herrera Was Good

Rivers stayed down. Wolgast managed to get back on his shaky feet, aided partly by the referee. It went into the records as a knockout for the champion.

Rivers, however, never ceased to charge that he was jobbed out of the title. The following year Ritchie, Wolgast's successor, stopped the Mexican in 11 rounds, stopped him cold and clean.

Old-timers tell you Aurelio Herrera, also a lightweight, was the greatest Mexican fighter the game has ever known. Herrera flourished in the days of McGovern, Young Corbett, Kid Broad, Bat Nelson and that gang of licensed destructionists.

None of them ever found Herrera a push-over. The dope on him is that he was a savage hitter and shrewd as a Shylock but none too game.

Mexicans Not Game?

Rivers had the same weakness. When the going became tough he was ready to pick out a soft spot. Tradition has it that no Mexican will ever be a great fighter for that very reason.

Fuente, newest Dempsey challenger, newest Mexican fighter, hasn't been out long enough to establish his gameness or his fighting ability. He has a string of set-ups to his credit as well as a four-round point victory over Floyd Johnson who has never been better than a second-rater.

To begin with, Fuente labors under a horrible handicap. His manager is Windy Windsor. Windy once had Dempsey but passed him up in favor of Fatty Meehan. This hardly qualifies him as a good picker.

MARMORA LECTURES ARE HALF THROUGH

Professor H. A. Innis Delivered Entertaining Lecture on Friday.

MARMORA, Nov. 12.—Half-way through the exceptionally fine course of University Extension lectures was reached on Friday night, when Professor H. A. Innis delivered in the Town Hall an entertaining lecture on "The Mackenzie River." During the past summer season, the Professor made a trip up this famous river, so his experiences being so recent, made the lecture all the more attractive. The stormy nature of the evening most unfortunately caused the attendance to be small. A little excitement was caused previous to the starting time of lecture through the lights being extinguished for approximately ten minutes.

Father Traynor after introducing the lecturer, announced the idea of the lectures to be that of instructing the Canadian people on the history, beauty and sceneries of their own country. He was sure that Prof. Innis, being a young man, would have enthusiasm over his subject.

Prof. Innis began by saying that historically the Mackenzie River basin was of ancient settlement. Geographically, it is roughly over one-third of the size of Canada. With the use of excellent lantern slides, the lecturer dealt with the cut banks of that famous tributary of the Mackenzie River, namely the Peace River. He next touched on the discovery of oil well at Fort Norman which had brought the Mackenzie River into such prominence. Then he remarked that another important resource was fishing. Views were shown of fishing operation on the Great Slave Lake. Another important resource he said, was the fur trade. The audience were greatly interested at this point with his view of an old fur press. Transportation in winter in that cold region depends entirely on dog teams. Through supplying figures, Prof. Innis showed how very expensive that transportation was.

In dealing with the summer navigation of the rivers and lakes of the North West territories, amongst other intresting information, Prof. Innis informed his hearers that the ordinary steamer burns a cord of wood an hour. He told of the old York boats which with full sail, were used on the lakes before steamship navigation. The tragic feature of the North West is the shortage of doctors. The work of missions among the Eskimos and Indians received prominent place in the lecture. The work of the Oak Lake Fathers and Grey Nuns in the establishment of schools and missions at Fort Vermilion among other places, was touched on, also that of the Anglican mission at Fort Simpson. The Government pays these missions at the rate of 50 dollars per student, per year. The views of Indian groups and customs were amusing as well as interesting. The caribou eaters, the drum ovens, the grave adornment of a baby's bed were illustrations which savoured of the grotesque. Proceeding, the lecturer told of the bearing the midnight sun had upon the activities of those northern folk. He pictured the difficulties of the missionaries in being perforced to follow the Indians to their various hunting grounds.

Organizations in that part of the north are limited to the Hudson Bay Trading Company, the Missions, the North-West Mounted Police and a small number of scattered Government officials. In concluding Prof. Innis declared that agriculture was developing in the Peace River district. He was inclined to believe with Stefanson that the north is to become the most important part of Canada on account of its agricultural possibilities and mineral wealth, and there is nothing like the romance attached to its fur trade.

After a few questions had been put to the lecturer and answered, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded him. Father Traynor then announced the next lecture to be given on November 21st by Professor Sisson, on "Some peculiarities of the inhabitants of Western Canada.

NEWS TRENT RIVER

TRENT RIVER, November 12.—The holiday brought many visitors to us from the city. A number came to Cedar Isle and the Cook Cottage for a few days' fishing.

Rev. E. O. Seymour is still unable to take charge of th church services as Mrs. Seymour's condition is very low. Rev. Howard Seymour, of Rednersville, preached on Sunday afternoon.

Rev. Howard, Seymour, accompanied by his mother, motored fifty miles early on Sunday to take charge of his brother's services at Havelock and Trent River, making the return trip immediately after the evening service at Havelock.

Referee's Reports Accepted.

The referee's reports on the previous games were accepted as read.

Resignation not Accepted.

The board received a communication from Mr. Jack Clark, tendering his resignation as a registered referee under the jurisdiction of the local association. After discussion the board unanimously agreed not to accept it and asked him to re-consider his decision, also referee the Gordon Cup Final on Saturday, which he ultimately did to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Frick Reported.

The executive went on record to notify Mr. Frick, the Vets goal-keeper, to appear before the Board to answer charges against him.

Gordon Cup Final on Saturday.

The Gordon Cup final between the Canadian Woollens and the Thistles will be played on Saturday afternoon at the Oval. Kick off at 2.30 prompt. Referee, Mr. Jack Clark.

Not Valid.

J. Cridland, Esq., 862 George street, Peterboro—

Dear Sir: I am directed by the officials of the G.W.V.A. Football Club to enter a protest against the match played on Saturday at the Oval between the "Thistles" and the "Vets."

The basis of the protest is the decision of the referee in awarding a penalty against Frick, the Vets goal keeper, for handling the ball outside of the penalty area.

Considerable argument took place on the ground as to the decision but Mr. Clark was determined not to deviate from his first decision, after admitting to everyone that he was penalising the goal keeper for handling the ball outside of the penalty area, and that he was justified in awarding a penalty.

The captain of our team and his players strenuously objected to this decision and at first refused to play, but eventually continued, but informing him that the penalty kick would be taken under protest.

Immediately after the kick was taken the whistle blew for time and there was no centreing of the ball; another protest is that the referee permitted the spectators to stand over the goal line, and thereby continually harass the goal keeper. In view of these conditions we ask your committee to give this matter matter your serious consideration, as it is generally felt that a raw deal has been handed out by such a decision, further comments on the decision would be superfluous.

Our cheque for $5.00, covering protest fee, is here enclosed; trusting that you will give this your serious consideration, thereby eliminating any necessity for an appeal to a higher tribunal.

Believe me to remain, sir, yours faithfully,

Sidney Whatley, Secretary.

"A good game until near the finish, when I awarded a penalty kick against Frick, the G.W.V.A. goal-keeper, for jumping at a Thistle player, outside the goal area, for which I considered dangerous. He also handled the ball outside the penalty area for which I did not dispute. I wish to make it clear, the penalty was not awarded for handling the ball. Yours sincerely,

Jack Clark.

This subject was discussed from every angle by the directors and representatives for a long time. The referee was present to answer any questions put to him which he did in an unbiased manner, and for the sake of the game. Ultimately it was unanimously agreed to accept the referee's report as read, and that the G.W.V.A. be returned their protest fee of five dollars.

BOXERS LOOK WEST.

California's New 12-Round Law May Break New York's Monopoly.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—New York and the Metropolitan district, which has been the boxing world's mecca for several years, faces the prospect of having its monopoly broken if the new California law, permitting 12-round bouts, results in the expected boom to the ring game on the coast.

California, where pugilism flourished in former days, has restricted bouts to four rounds of late, a limit which served to keep away many of the ring's most prominent performers and eliminated the chance of championship bouts.

Already, a number of eastern boxers have started westward on fistic "prospecting" expeditions. Benny Leonard, the world's lightweight king, disclosed yesterday that he had begun negotiations with Los Angeles promoters for a 12-round title bout there in February against an opponent yet to be selected. Other champions may follow suit, including Mike McTigue, the light heavyweight champion, and Abe Goldstein, bantamweight titleholder.

NEWS OF HASTINGS.

HASTINGS, Nov. 12.—Miss Mae Huycke and Miss Eva A. O Doxsee gave a very delightful masquerade party on Hallowe'en night at "Sunny Brae" the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Huycke. The house was suitably decorated with Hallowe'en silhouettes and corn-stalks, and lighted with jack-o'-lanterns and candles. The costumes were weird, mysterious and interesting and added greatly to the amusement and enjoyment of the evening. The evening was spent in Hallowe'en games, such as euchre, and dancing, music being provided by the Star Orchestra of Hastings.

The guests were kept in a state of intense expectation from the time of the eerie greeting of the many ghosts, until the last weird stunt was over.

There were out-of-town guests Campbellford, Warkworth, Norwood and Port Hope.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Baker spent Sunday at Morganston.

Mr. S. Shand spent Thanksgiving in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Weir of Toronto are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alex Wilson and other friends in town this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Warner are spending Thanksgiving in Toronto.

Mr. Ed. Barrigan of Peterboro is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. O. Tate.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Doxsee of Peterboro, Mr. Arnold Persons, of Campbellford and Mr. C. Knox of of Norwood were Thanksgiving visitors at Mrs. B. F. Doxsee's.

Miss M. R. Huycke spent a few days last week in Warkworth.

Mrs. C. C. Huycke has returned from a lengthy visit with her brother Dr. J. D. Berry of Toronto. She is also visiting friends in Peterboro and Millbrook.

Mrs. M. J. Baker is visiting friend in Toronto and Burlington this week.

AMERICAN SKYSCRAPER PLANS BROUGHT TO HALT IN LONDON

Bush Company Decides Not to Continue the Programme When the First Tall Building Fails to Bring Rush of Tenants.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—America's effort to spread the gospel of skyscrapers to London has come to a temporary halt, and Irving T. Bush and his company, builders of Bush House have forfeited $150,000 rather than continue their program.

Bush House, London's first skyscraper, is not to blame for the interruption. The building has commended itself to London in almost all respects. But erecting skyscrapers on both sides of Bush House, as Mr. Bush intended to do, does not promise to be a sound business proposition as ground rents in London now go. Mr. Bush has forfeited his right to the ground he leased from the London County Council, and has forfeited as well the deposit of £35,000 which he made as a pledge that he would carry his plans through. In doing so he makes the point that he might save the money and build inferior buildings on the leased sites, but declines to take advantage of the technicality.

The Bush Company first pledged itself to build on three sites, and to expend about $2,500,000 in all. It has spent this sum and more in Bush House alone. It pays a rental of $65,000 for the ground Bush House occupies and was to have paid $200,000 a year for the two adjoining lots. But at this rental it finds the buildings would not pay, and the flanking structures, if erected, will have to be put up by some one else. The land now reverts to the London County Council and will be offered at public auction. It is assumed that strict requirements will be made of the new lessee not to erect any building out of harmony with Bush House.

The truth of the matter is that the supply of modern offices in London exceeds the demand. Bush House itself is not yet fully tenanted, and several of the modern English office buildings on Kingsway—which was to become London's great highway of business—are likewise partially vacant.

Kingsway is an imposing street, faced on both sides with fine structures with white stone fronts. Bush House is at the Strand end of Kingsway, and looming up magnificent buildings, it fills most of the requirments of modern city planning. But the plans are in advance of the expansion of business. And the costs of this expensive experiment is so great that rentals are far beyond the "market" for offices.

Bush House has not been without its critics. Towering above the Strand, it overshadows two exceptionally pretty churches, St. Clement's Dane and St. Mary's in the Fields. The churches, it is true, are themselves mere relics in the midst of a commercial thoroughfare. But many Englishmen have watched with regret the partial effacement of two gemlike heirlooms, and have done no little scolding about the intrusion of American conceits in the heart of England's London.

MR. A. CHERNEY RECEIVES TEA —DONOR FINED

Life of Louis Street Enlivened by Introduction of New Form of Greeting.

AT POLICE COURT.

Baby Was Struck by Fragment of Milk Bottle, Mrs. Armstrong Avers.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Cherney declares that not only did she give him tea, but she gave him cup and all, and the tea ran in his eye, and caused him grievous injury, from which he suffered two long days. And Mrs. Armstrong alleges that the exchange of amenities did not cease there, but that Mr. Cherney immediately and forcibly threw a fragment of a milk bottle that missed his hostess, but struck her baby. A Mrs. Rowe here came upon the stage in time to have her hand cut by another piece of glass.

When Cherney, who is a merchant on Charlotte street, brought Mrs. Armstrong before Magistrate O. A. Langley, in the City Police Court this forenoon, she was fined $1 and costs for assault, and warned not to greet callers other in the style dictated by the best books on etiquette.

Mr. Cherney, it seems, in glancing from his window, saw some scrub water and small stones lying upon his roof, evidently cast from Mrs. Armstrong's window. He went to her home to protest against using his roof as a garbage dump, and knocked at her door. He said: "Mrs. Armstrong, you don't know who is throwing the stones and scrub water on my roofs?"

So far in his story Mrs. Armstrong agrees with him, but from then on events were so mixed that one party evidently forgot just what did happen. Cherney told the Magistrate: "I received a dish of boiling water poured right into my eye. Mrs. Armstrong picked the dish off the stove and poured the water on my face. It was large enough to hurt, Magistrate. The water was boiling; yes, my eye was red for two days.

Mr. Wearing—"Did you yell?"

Cherney—"Yes. I had an awful surprise. No more did I ask her than gently did she know who done it, and I wasn't expecting that surprise at all."

"Did you use any abusive language?"

"No, no. I got quiet like anything."

Was Not Asleep

In cross-examination, W. F. Huycke, acting for the accused, asked: "Did you shut your eyes?"

"No. Why should I close my eyes. I wasn't asleep."

"Are the Armstrongs friends of yours?"

"Well, I don't think they are enemies, although she owes me for a baby carriage and I've never asked her for the money."

Mrs. Armstrong, from the body of the court, "You're a liar."

On order being restored in the court, Mr. Huycke asked whether Cherney expected a different reception. "Yes, I surely did. I didn't expect that. It's not the way of a civilized nation."

Constable John Naples told of visiting the scene of the fracas, and of admissions made by Mrs. Armstrong somewhat from Mr. Cherney's. She said she was seated at breakfast when Cherney came. She told him to go away and not bother her. He kept on rattling the door and broke a catch off, and the door opened. She seized her breakfast cup of tea and hurled it in his face. He knocked a piece of cardboard, that served instead of glass, out of the door, and hurled a broken milk bottle through the aperture. The baby was struck on the back, and a Mrs. Rowe had her hand cut.

Mr. Wearing: "You didn't mistake Mr. Cherney for your husband?"

Mrs. Armstrong: "I surely did not There's a great difference between them two."

Mrs. Armstrong vigorously denied that she at one time menaced a collector with a poker or a knife.

Mrs. Mary Rowe, a neighbour who regularly drops in on Mrs. Armstrong to sip a cup of tea at breakfast, said Mrs. Armstrong was quite justified in throwing the tea at Cherney, in defence of her house and home. Her hand, she showed Magistrate Langley, was cut by a piece of the bottle she said Cherney threw.

GIFTS FOR BABIES SHOULD BE DAINTY

A Few Suggestions of Appropriate Christmas Gifts for the Baby.

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

The baby's wants are few, but he is an entirely too important person to be given deep consideration at Christmas time. His gifts must, above all, be dainty in color, beautifully made and appropriate.

A matching sacque and jacket of very wide satin ribbon would please the mother as much as the child. For a little girl, who early in life may be expected to manifest her delight in frills and furbelows, the edges may be lace trimmed and French flowers or tiny rosettes of ribbon decorate the scallops.

For the Boy

For a young man who has not yet reached the age of protest, such an outfit would be more appropriate merely bound with ribbon, and all scallops, lace and bows eliminated If you wish to add a little warmth to this outfit it may be interlined with a layer of flannel. Faggoting, buttonholing or any fancy stitch may replace the lace edging, if desired.

Since safety pins are so much worn by the younger set, a fancy container for them would be sure to be appreciated. The touch of fantasty introduced by the two kewpie heads and the frivilous bows in the cushion photographed neutralizes its utilitarian purpose and shows just how interesting such a device may be made.

For keeping his clothes neat and unwrinkled, the baby would appreciate a padded hanger, covered with ribbon to match the color scheme of his nursery.

Of course the handle should be wound with narrow ribbon, and a bouquet of fruit and flowers added for good measure. Flowers or ribbon rosettes with safety pins concealed are easily pinned on to a dainty frock to give a festive air.

For Young Babies.

For a very young baby, a baby pillow is most acceptable. This should be filled with down, very soft, and not heavily stuffed. The covering should be put on so it is easily removed and cleansed. The most practical pillow is made of handkerchief linen, embroidered with French embroidery, or it may be made of satin ribbon.

If you can make rag dolls successfully, you have it in your power to please the baby immensely. These should always be made of materials that will withstand much rough usage, and that will not fade or run. All toys for a baby should be soft so that he cannot hurt himself with them, and so that if he insists on taking them to bed they will not hurt him if he rolls on them.

The first sign of fall is when the milk begins to taste like the cow has been eating old straw hats.

Long fringes and fringed ornaments made of pearl beads in combination with coloured stones are a favourite method of trimming the evening frocks of the moment.

AT THE GRAND.

THE LOVES OF MARY QUEEN OF SCOTS.

Moving picture patrons should not fail to take advantage of the last opportunity to-night to see the "Loves of Mary Queen of Scots," the unusual and spectacular film that is being shown at the Grand. Here is a picture that causes one of the most romantic and fascinating periods in British history, to live again. There is much material in the career of the ill-fated Mary, with her series of unlucky lovers, for a thrilling picture, and the producers have taken full advantage of their opportunities to evolve a presentation that is of absorbing interest. No chapter of the annals of Britain is more crowed with incident than that dealing with the story of this beautiful queen, whose life was replete with love affairs, intrigue and plotting, until at last the axe of the headsman ended it all. Rizzio, Darnley, Bothwell and Douglas, all played a prominent part in her stormy career and all four of course are equally to the fore in the picture which follows the historic details closely. The result is a series of exciting episodes that lose none of their thrill because they are reproductions of something that actually happened rather than the portrayal of the adventures of fictitious characters.

The picture was "shot" in England, Scotland and France so that the background is authentic, while the costumes to the last detail are true to the period portrayed.

The acting of the large cast is in keeping with the general excellence of the production. Fay Compton gives a striking performance in the title role and she has the assistance of a most capable company.

"The Loves of Mary Queen of Scots" is different from the ordinary routine of screen efforts, and should be seen by a capacity audience to-night at its last showing here.

AT THE CAPITOL.

RAMON NOVARRO HEADS FINE CAST IN 'THE RED LILY'

Film Favorite Has By Far the Best Role of His Career on Screen.

Ramon Novarro has achieved another personal triumph in his new picture, "The Red Lily," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production directed by Fred Niblo, which comes to the Capitol Theatre to-day and Thursday. To-day's audience greeted America's new audience idol in his new role with every sign of approval and delight.

In this picture Novarro plays the part of Jean Leonnec, a wealthy son disinherited by his father and cast into the underworld of Paris, where in the course of time he turns thief. In such a role Novarro is at his best. He appears first in the luxurious surroundings of a palatial home located in a Brittany village, where he has fallen in love with Marise, the daughter of a shoemaker, played with infinite charm and appeal by Enid Bennett. It is this innocent love affair which leads to the eviction of the couple from the town by Jean's infuriated father.

Novarro Plays Dashingly.

In the scenes in Paris, where the couple lose each other, Ramon appears in the picturesque garb of an Apache, and plays this dashing role with the characteristic touches of ironic humor and unexpected flashes of verve which have made him irresistible to his audiences everywhere.

Enid Bennett as Marise does the best work of her brilliant career. She makes of Marise a wistful and very real figure, rising to the heights of true art in the scenes wherein she gives herself up in despair to the worst side of the underworld life.

Has Great Climax.

The final re-union of the lovers makes a climax of unutterable suspense. The man's rage and anguish on finding that a sodden woman he has encountered on the streets is the lost sweetheart of his youth for whom he has been looking for so long; his brutal blow; her rescue of him from the police,—these incidents could not be shown in more graphic, thrilling fashion. Fred Niblo has made of "The Red Lily" one of the finest pictures of the year. The direction is subtle and telling throughout.

AT THE ROYAL.

WILD HORSE RULES PLAINS.

Hal Roach, who has a weakness for cutting new paths in the wilderness of motion picture production, has done it again with his latest feature production, "The King of Wild Horses," in which a magnificent but very dangerous Morgan stallion has the stellar role, and Edna Murphy and Leon Bary are cast in leading parts.

This story, directed by Fred Jackman, is of an equine monarch that led a band of wild horses through the mountainous sections of Colorado, defying all attempts at capture. It is not until the stallion and a cowboy are trapped by a forest fire and the man saves both of them, that the wild horse's instinctive fear of human beings is tempered. He is never tamed—but he becomes the man's loyal friend. On the screen at Royal Thursday, Friday, Saturday, with two performances Saturday night at 7 and 9.

GREAT WILD HORSE DRAMA IS NEW FEATURE AT ROYAL THEATRE THURS., FRI., SAT.

Edna Murphy and Leon Bary in a Novelty Photodrama Presenting an Untamed, Unconquered Stallion in Role of "King of Wild Horses."

As its title implies, "The King of Wild Horses," the Pathepicture showing Thursday, Friday, Saturday at the Royal Theatre, is the story of a horse—an untamed, unconquered, fiery spirited, magnificent horse.

Hal Roach wrote the story, which tells of a stallion that is the leader of a pack of wild horses that roams through the mountain fastness of a south-western state. Powerful, fleet of foot and untamed, he has never felt the hand of man nor known the feel of a rope around his neck. He maintains his leadership by fighting off other stallions that seek to usurp his throne. One of these fights is one of the thrills in the production.

Then a cowboy, spurred by admiration for the magnificent brute, decides to capture him. Others had tried and failed, but Billy Blair had never known defeat—neither had The Black! The chase of man after beast, up dangerous trails, through a maze of caverns, across chasms, and through a blazing forest fire is said to contain some of the most remarkable scenes of a horse in action ever filmed.

The story, however, is not alone concerned with the horse, though he plays an important part in the working out of the plot in which is woven intrigue and romance. Edna Murphy lends her charm, beauty and talent to the only feminine role. Leon Bary is a rough-riding cowboy and other parts are played by Sidney De Grey, Charles Parrott and Pat Hartigan. Fred Jackman, who directed "The Call of the Wild," Jack London's dog story, put horse and actors through their paces.

TWO PERFORMANCES SATURDAY NIGHT THIS WEEK AT ROYAL

Owing to the popularity of the film novelty, "King of Wild Horses," and in order to avoid disappointing patrons two performances will be given Saturday night at 7 and 9. It has been months since an attraction of such universal appeal has been shown locally Patrons are advised to come early to morrow night, or take advantage of daily matinees.

Society

Mrs. Rev. J. W. Gordon, St. Andrew's manse, will receive for the first time since coming to Peterboro on Friday, November 14th, from 3-6 o'clock, and afterwards on the first Tuesday of the month.

Miss Edith Tucker has returned to the city from an extended visit to her sister, Mrs. Fowler, of Wallaceburg.

Under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League, a very successful and well-attended Novelty dance and card party was held in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum on Monday evening. There were about two hundred people present. Twenty-five tables of cards were played. Prizes for bridge were won by Mrs. J. P. Finn and Mr. Geo. H. Giroux. Mrs. P. J. Burke and Mr. Frank Fairen won the euchre prizes. In the dance room, a number of novelty prize events enlivened the regular programme and excellent music was provided by Follis' orchestra. Mrs. R. Law acted as general convenor for the affair; Mrs. J. Corkery, junior and Mrs. Jno. E. Sullivan were in charge of the card room, assisted by Mesdames F. A. Hodgson, M. Daly and F. Sullivan; Mrs. W. J. Geary had charge of refreshments; Mrs. H. Owen of the dance, assisted by Mrs. E. G. Hiland, Mrs. Ed. Hickey and the members of the Sodality, and Mrs. A. MacPherson and Mrs. John Lynch also assisted. Mrs. C. A. Wallace, who was called away suddenly on account of her sister's illness, to Syracuse, has returned home.

Rev. Dr. Blagrave left for Toronto to-day, where he will attend quarterly meetings of Synod Committees and will be absent from town until Saturday.

Mrs. A. Lehane, of Toronto, spent the holiday in the city, the guest of Mrs. B. Law and Mrs. J. McCarthy.

Mrs. M. T. Kinsella, of Buffalo, was the guest over the week-end of Mrs. F. J. McFadden, Weller Street.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Fortune, of Trenton, spent the holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Vincent McCabe, Simcoe Street. Mr. Fortune returned home yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Page and children of Campbellford and Mr. Ernest Cleverley spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. Page's brother, Mr. A. Sayer, Park Street.

Mrs. Aubrey Crowley, of the Charlebond Apts., left Saturday for Ottawa to visit her aunt, Mrs. H. Curran.

A charming dance for one of the debutantes of the season, Miss Marjorie Turner, was given on Monday evening at the home of Mayor and Mrs. J. J. Turner. The house, which was loaned for the occasion, was decorated with the beautiful flowers which were showered on Miss Turner, and excellent music was provided by Ken Blood's orchestra. Guests to the number of about one hundred and twenty were present. Miss Turner wore a lovely French frock of pale pink chiffon posed over a foundation of Paisley, with silver slippers and stockings, and large bouquet of ophelia roses. Mrs. J. J. Turner wore a costume of grey moire and Mrs. A. W. Turner black lace.

Mrs. R. McQuade, of New York, City, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. F. Fitzgerald, 310 Boswell Avenue.

Mrs. Walter Clairmont (nee Mary Lonergan), of Gravenhurst, is visiting friends in the city. Mr. Clairmont, who also spent the holiday in Peterboro, returned home yesterday.

Friends of Mr. John Jenkinson, 719 Bethune Street, will regret to learn that he is in Nicholls Hospital with pneumonia.

Miss Ruth Carruthers, of Edmonton, Alberta, who was the guest of Miss Kathleen Gilroy, 375 Brock Street, over the Thanksgiving holidays, returned yesterday morning to Havergal College, Toronto.

Mrs. W. Hamar Greenwood and Miss J. Greenwood of Toronto, spent the week end with Mrs. (Dr.) H. T. Carmichael of Omemee.

The Armistice Day tea and card party, held yesterday afternoon in the Armouries, under the auspices of the 57th Regimental Chapter, I.O.D.E. was very successful. There was a large attendance of ladies, both for cards, when twenty-seven tables were played, and for tea. Striking and handsome decorations were in red and white, with a profusion of the Flanders poppy, the flower of remembrance. The tea-table was effectively arranged with a large silver basket filled with the big crimson blossoms, silver candlesticks and red candles, and the card prizes were wrapped in red paper, and tied with white ribbon holding small poppies. Mrs. C. S Stapleton acted as general convenor, and had charge, with Mrs. C. H. Amys, of the card tables, assisted by Mrs. B. B. Gillespie, Mrs. Joseph Mills and Mrs. S. Clegg were in charge of the tea-room. The table was presided over by Mrs. W. H. Bradburn and Mrs. B. Poole. Tea-room assistants, were Mrs. D. Melton, Mrs. W. L. Sharpe, Mrs. Clarke, Mrs. C. E. Jamieson Mrs. R. Cottrell, Mrs. C. H. Cheverill, Mrs. Tedford, Miss Rubidge, Miss Mamie Roger and Miss M. Rush Prizes for bridge were won by Mrs A. F. Cornish and Mrs. Edward Wood with consolation awards to Miss L. Davidson and Mrs. C. E. Jamieson. Mrs. W. Burrell received the prize at five hundred.

Miss Jessie Hodgson, of St. Joseph's Academy, Toronto, and Mr. Fred Hodgson, of St. Michael's College, have returned after spending the holiday at their home here.

SIR ADAM BECK ON STAND TO-DAY

Denied Substance of Charges Made by E. C. Settell at Hydro Enquiry.

TORONTO, November 12. — Canadian Press. — Giving evidence this morning before Commissioner Judge C. Snider, investigating the charges made by E. C. Settell, against officials of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Commission, declared that when he started on the Hydro Commission he served without compensation, but had demanded certain privileges, including a motor car and chauffeur, and hotel expenses. At the end of six years he was offered a cheque by the late Sir James Whitney for $45,000, being at the rate of six thousand dollars per year, and fifteen hundred dollars living expenses. This, Sir Adam said, he refused.

Sir Adam then explained that the commission furnished part of a small flat, and later, when a bigger flat was used, Sir Adam brought all the furnishings from his London residence.

In conection with the Southman charges, Sir Adam said that when Southman was appointed chief engineer, it was stipulated that he should be allowed to do outside work, and this the commission knew.

Regarding charges that detectives had been employed to watch Home Smith's house, the Hydro chairman said that Settell came to him alarmed stating that people were congregating in the house who should not be there.

He did not know how the fees of the detectives were charged, said the witness, admitting that they were engaged. Settell hired them, he said.

Sir Adam said that as remount officed during the war he had used a car and chauffeur while buying horses for the army. He was entitled to use a car, and the commissioners knew it, he declared. The Hydro chairman denied absolutely the charge that changes were made in the minutes of the commission. There might have been changes in technical terms but no deliberate changes were made, he said.

Sir Adam declared that he had never refused to pay accounts placed before him by Settell. "He was the only protection that I had," he said. "I asked for protection by the staff, so that personal accounts should be paid by myself, and not allowed to be charged to Hydro."

He denied emphatically that twenty thousand dollars of Hydro funds, deposited in the Molson's Bank, was to secure a loan made by Beck companies or himself. A Beck company never got a loan of any kind from the Molsons Bank, he declared.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.

Members of the A. Y. P. A. Held Their Usual Weekly Meeting.

The members of the A.Y.P.A. branch of the above church held their usual weekly meeting on Monday evening. The business part of the meeting was chiefly devoted to completing arrangements for the Mock Council to be held next Monday. After the business was disposed of, the members adjourned to the home of one of the members, Mr. Darrell Allan, where a very pleasant social time was spent.

On Tuesday evening the members motored out to the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Graystock, Otonabee, where they were the guests of the young couple of St. Mark's Church. Guessing contests, games, singing, dancing whiled away the time pleasantly but all too quickly; it was close upon the midnight hour when the young people drove away in the cars for Peterborough and home.

Prize-winners in the guessing contest were Miss E. Parkes, Miss M. Scott, and booby prize, Mr. J. Dossett. Miss Hayward gave a clever exhibition of the Highland Fling, while Mr. Jim Collins also greatly delighted the company with a broom dance.

Not the least enjoyable feature of the evening was the serving of refreshments, to which full justice was done, pumpkin pie having many favourites. The fact that it was still Armistice Day was not forgotten. At 11 p.m. the company sang "O God, our help in ages past."

Mr. Darrell Allen voiced the appreciation of St. George's young people in a vote of thanks to Mr. and T. Greystock and the young people of St. Mark's Church.

The members of St. George's A. Y. P. A. gratefully acknowledge their indebtedness to Messrs. R. Arnott, H. J. Devey, and H. Allen for conveying them in their motors to and from Otonabee.

OIL AND MANGANESE IMPORTANT ISSUES

Soviet Government Could Influence Half the World's Steel Production.

MOSCOW, Nov. 12.—In connection with Kuh Tchitcherin's reference to American wealth, the Foreign Minister said that oil and manganese at present were the most important issues in the world. He referred to the manganese requirements of the United States steel industry and the Harriman negotiations for the Chiaturi concession and declared the Soviet Government could influence half the world's steel production. Negotiations between France and Russia, Tchitcherin predicted, would be more difficult than those with England, because, whereas English investments in Russian companies amounted to 500,000,000 roubles, French investments totalled 731,000,000.

We won't satisfy any claims without receiving a loan, he said.

THREE MEN FACE LIQUOR CHARGES

James Akey, Harold Gibbs and William Easton Caught With Goods, Police Say.

Magistrate Langley's County Police Court drew an unusual crowd of spectators this afternoon for the trial of three local men on charges of having liquor illegally.

James Akey and William Easton, represented by J. A. O'Brien, are charged with keeping liquor for sale, and Harold Gibbs, represented by V. J. McElderry, is charged with having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling.

The round up of the prisoners and a quantity of liquor was made on Saturday last by Provincial Constable N. H. Maker and License Inspector Joseph Stewart. They seized Gibbs' automobile, in which were two cases of beer, they say, and a total of 19 cases of beer and 4 cases of whiskey, the latter labelled "Old Nectar".

The charge against Gibbs will be heard in the Court Houe at two o'clock on Wednesday next, and the charges against Akey and Easton will be heard in the same place at 2 o'clock on Friday, November 21. Bail was allowed.

BAILIFFS OBSERVED TWO MINUTE SILENCE

After It Was Over They Completed Eviction of Returned Soldier.

LONDON, Nov. 12. — (United Press). — While William C. Rolfe, his wife and children looked on, bailiffs tossed the Rolfe's household goods to the street in a poor section of London Tuesday.

Sharp at 11 o'clock the warning gun for the two-minute armistice silence sounded and the bailiffs drew stiffly to attention as did Rolfe. At the end of the brief period of silence the ejection of the Rolfes continued.

Rolfe fought throughout the war in the British Army.

NEW COALITION EXPECTED FROM GERMAN VOTING

President Ebert and Chancellor Marx Likely To Exchange Places Next June.

LEADERS BUSY.

Election Campaign Under Way, But Public Interest Appears Slight.

BERLIN, Nov. 13.— President Ebert, succeeding Dr. Wilhelm Marz as chancellor, and the latter's election to the presidency of Germany, is now being reckoned within political circles as not an improbable sequel to the forthcoming Reichstag elections.

With government leaders off on prolonged stumping tours, and all the major parties engaged in drafting platforms, the campaign ending December 7 may be said to be well under way. Chancellor Marx is booked for a spell-binding trip which will keep him on the rostrum until the eve of election, while Foreign Minister Stresemann and other members of the cabinet are also swinging around the circuit in an effort to stimulate popular interest in balloting. This interest so far has manifested a sluggishness which persages a heavy stay-at-home vote.

Predict Shake-up.

The present predictions reckon with a heavy reduction in the number of newly-elected deputies and various party headquarters assume that the final count will reveal redistribution of 50 mandates. The Socialists are credited with the recovery of at least 30 from the Communists. The remainder are allotted to the Clericals and Democrats.

The present Cabinet members assume that the Marx-Stresemann cabinet will continue in office until the government's compulsory programme of tax and social legislation will have slipped through the Reichstag. After that it is expected that the cabinet will give way to a brand new coalition comprising the Socialists, Clericals, Democrats, Bavarian people's party and several unattached groups whose total representation in the newly-elected Reichstag will ensure the new government a comfortable working majority.

Coalition In Spring.

It is in this connection that political prophets now contemplate the formation next spring of a coalition government headed by Ebert, whose term expires, as president, June 1925. As Marx has already been groomed for the presidency, it is assumed that a party line-up resulting from the balloting on December 7 will be so constituted that the Socialists will command the traditional privilege of nominating the chancellor and that they will propose Ebert who will be supported by other coalition parties in return for the Socialists' approval of Marx as a presidential candidate.

That such an internal political development is not improbable, and is even viewed as the logical solution to the habitual parliamentary impasse resulting from a tangled party line-up, is freely conceded in certain political quarters where the permanent and active co-operation of the powerful Socialist party is designated as an indispensable prerequisite for any Coalition government which aspires to command a stable basis and a clear majority in the Reichstag.

Working Majority.

If the volue of the forthcoming vote shows the anticipated decline of several millions, compared to that of last spring, it would reduce the number of mandates by 40 or 50, as these are al lotted on the proportional basis. Under this reckoning, a coalition comprising the Socialists, Clericals, Democrats, Bavarian peoples party and allied groups would command 230 or more votes, or more than enough to give it a dependable working majority.

Such a coalition would then be opposed by the Nationalists, Stresemann's Peoples party, Ludendorff's waning Fascisti and the Communists all of whom are expected to suffer a loss of mandates in the next election.

APSLEY PERILED BY HUNTERS FIRE

Bush Ablaze Close to Village —Women Fought it For Hours.

FEW DEER SHOT.

APSLEY, Nov. 12.:—The carelessness of hunters was responsible for what might have been a very serious fire here on Sunday afternoon. A party made a fire and had dinner about 200 yards from the village near the roadside and about two o'clock dense clouds of smoke were noticed and investigation showed quite a big bush fire raging. Most of the men of the village were away at the hunting camps, the few had remained with most of the available women worked hard all afternoon and succeeded in overcoming the danger that threatened the village.

The different hunting parties in the vicinity had poor luck the first week. Deer were plentiful but the dry weather made it hard for the dogs to follow the scent and a good many hounds are footsore from the hard ground. Prospects are brighter now several deer falling to the hunter's rifles on Monday. All that is needed is two or three inches of snow to make a successful season.

MONTREAL TRIBUTE TO ADJT. FLORENCE MALONE

Salvation Army Worker Had Befriended Delinquent Women.

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Bench and bar, clergy and social workers, with officers and adherents of the Salvation Army gathered to do final honors to the life and work of Adjutant Edith Florence Malone, matron of the receiving home and prison and court probation officers, when the remains lay in the Citadel yesterday afternoon prior to entrainment for Toronto.

Recorder G. H. Semple, in a brief but authoritative testimony, told of the fine work that had been carried on by Adjt. Malone in his court and in the city generally on behalf of delinquent women and girls and needy families.

The service was conducted by Brigadier Walton, assisted by Col. Brengle, Staff Capt. Owen, Brig. Alex. McMillan, and Rev. A. E. Runnells.

The chief mourners were Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. R. Wass and Mrs. J. Ellis of Toronto, mother and sisters of Miss Malone.

DURANT, Okla., (United Press.—Nov. 13.—Wealth knocks at the door of Mrs. Cora Maddox Bryan County school teacher, who recently turned inventor.

Mrs. Madox has been offered $150,000 cash for her patent rights to a new revolving globe of the earth to replace the old style globe used in the study of geography in school.

The globe is equipped with a sun and moon rotating about them in correct proportion with nature. The sun and moon are lighted by small electric lights, so they light the earth as in nature.

Another offer of $50,000 cash with a royalty percentage has been received by Mrs. Brown and has not decided which offer she will accept.

OPIUM TRAFFIC BAFFLES THOSE WHO ATTACK IT

Chief Difficulty Rests in Trying to Determine How Much is Needed.

GENEVA'S PROBLEM.

GENEVA, November 13. — The commission of the International Opium Conference, which is expected to report to a plenary session today, its findings on how best to curb opium smoking in the Far East, probably will not satisfy those who demand a quick suppression of this narcotic evil.

Members of the commission, who have been meeting privately for four days, frankly admitted this yesterday when they explained they had been unable to reach an accord on any system of estimating how much opium was required by the various Far Eastern possessions for opium smoking.

The committee members insisted that no annual estimate could be made until they were able to determine how much opium was smuggeld in, as the contraband often exceeded the quantity legitimately available in each country or colony.

State Monopoly.

An agreement was reached that opium will become a state monopoly, both as to production and export and import. The delegates felt that individual, uncontrolled initiative would increase the difficulty.

A majority of the commission which is composed of representatives from Great Britain, France, Holland and Japan, voted against organizing a system of certificates, as a means of reducing the numbers of smokers, on the ground that this would be ineffective, because it would drive the smokers into the dens of the opium smugglers.

Japan argued for a licensing system such as exists in Formosa, but was overruled.

Conference on Monday.

The second international opium conference, which opens on Monday, expects to receive from the present conference an estimate on how much opium is needed yearly in the Far East. This estimate will enable the second conference to take up its its work of limiting opium and other narcotics to the world's medical and scientific requirements, plus the opium justified for smoking in the Far East.

Considerable criticism was heard in Geneva of the commission's determination to meet behind closed doors, as it was understood at the outset of the conference that the bulk of the work would be done at public meetings. Instead the commission went so far in its policy of secrecy as to refuse the application of the league of nations' information section to assign one of its staff to attend the session.

HUNTER'S BODY FOUND.

Bullet Wound in Head Indicated Suicide From Suffering.

BLAIRMORE, Alta., Nov. 12.—The body of James Nemrava, aged 21, who has been lost since starting on a deer huntiong expedition on Monday morning, was found at 10 o'clock Tuesday night about four miles south of Blairmore, with a bullet through the brain.

Suicide, induced by sufferings when lost, is suspected.

HORSE IN FLAMES SETS FIRE DESTROYING BARN

Enveloped in Flames From Explosion of Lantern.

WINNIPEG, November 13 (Canadian Press). — Spreading destruction in its path, a terror-stricken horse which became enveloped in flames when a lantern exploded in the barn of Howard McMahon, of Dominion City, Man., dashed madly through the building, setting fire to the barn.

Fifty head of horses and cattle, together with a number of pigs, were cremated.

A near building containing 30,000 bushels of oats also was badly scorched before the fire was extinguished.

CRUSHED BY CAR

SASKATOON, Nov. 13.—L. Carrick, a farmer, was fatally injured near Herschell, Sask. when an automobile driven by R. S Coulter ran into him as he walked behind his wagon and crushed him against the wagon. There was a heavy fog at the time.

Divorce Rate Growing Faster Than Marriage

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Divorces in the United States showed a more rapid rate of increase than marriages last year, the Census Bureau of Statistics announces.

The number of divorces was 11 per cent. more than in 1922, while the number of marriages was only 8.4 per cent. larger than the previous year.

Nebraska was the only State in which there was a marked decrease in marriages, it being about 25 per cent. Census Bureau officials explained that this was due to some extent to an amendment to the marriage law in 1923 requiring the posting of an application for a marriage license for ten days before the license is issued.

BECK ON STAND DENIES CHARGES

Never Obtained Personal Loan From Bank By Depositing Hydro Funds.

ENQUIRY ENDS.

With the testimony of Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro Commission, in answer to the charges laid against him by his former secretary, Judge Colin G. Snider's investigation came to a close a few minutes after one o'clock.

The Hydro chairman dealt at considerable length with the charges laid against him by his former secretary, of expenditure of Hydro money for his personal use, and on other counts. To the majority of those on which he touched up to the time of the noon adjournment, he gave unqualified denial.

Denies Loan From Bank.

Sir Adam characterized as untrue the charge that he had secured a personal loan from the Molsons Bank by making a deposit of $20,000 of Hydro funds. He had never borrowed a dollar from that institution, he averred, insisting that the making of a deposit by the commission had merely been in accord with its general policy at that time.

Beck declared that he had no knowledge of several instances cited in which Hydro officials were alleged to have done personal work for him without his being charged for it. He reviewed his years of service with the Hydro Commission, recalling that for several years after its inception he had refused to accept a salary, and had only stipulated that he be allowed a motor car and chauffeur, and that his hotel expenses be paid. He declared that he had himself met part of the cost of furnishing his suite in the Alexandra apartments, and that the only furniture taken out of it had been the personal property of the late Lady Beck.

Knew Gaby Interested.

Regarding the part played by Chief Engineer Gaby in the sale to the Commission of a steam shovel which he owned, Sir Adam Beck stated that he had known Gaby was interested both in the Cataract Company and in the machinery which was being purchased. He did not know that Gaby was the sole owner, however.

"We needed a shovel and couldn't get it anywhere else," he explained. "And later we got several thousand more than we paid for it."

Notwithstanding the testimony of H. E. Guilfoyle, that no record could be found of the Hydro Commission's having authorized Beck's trip to England this year, Sir Adam insisted that the Commission had done so.

"I was appointed by the Federal Government, as one of the representatives from Canada, connected with the electrical conference. The Com-

POLICE CAPTAIN REFUSED MONEY FOR PROTECTION

Keeper of Disorderly House in Montreal Once Offered $50 To Capt. Sauve.

MANY OCCASIONS.

MONTREAL, November 13 (Canadian Press). — That Captain Sauve, instead of accepting money for "protection," which she had offered him on numerous occasions, refused repeatedly, was the evidence given by Flora Harris, disorderly house keeper now serving six months in jail, at the police inquiry before Mr. Justice Coderre yesterday afternoon.

She stated that on one occasion she had slipped a $50.00 bill into his hand, but he refused it. The woman told the Court that she calculated she had been arrested at least fifty times during the nineteen years of her present occupation.

Other witnesses heard during the afternoon session included several bookmakers, one of whom stated that there was at the present time about 3,000 or 4,000 "bookies" in the metropolis.

Even in Court.

A. Dwane, who admitted that his only means of livelihood was the "book," told his Lordship that he believed there would be little difficulty in placing a bet in the Court Room where he was giving evidence, if anyone wished to do so. He had never known but one case of a man being arrested for betting. He had frequently been "pinched" for running a handbook, and when that happened, he closed his place for a few months, and as soon as he got "broke" he opened up again.

Arnold Ibbotson, former champion billiard player of Canada, admitted that he was running a book in Montreal, and his takings ran from $80.00 to $100.00 a day.

Both witnesses explained that there were individuals or firms which supply a regular service of racing information to bookies.

One of ther paid $25.00 a month and the other $23.00 a month for such service.

When questioned by Mr. Lanctot, counsel for the petitioners in the probe, both men denied ever having paid for protection.

Saw Suave and Frank Together.

Ex-Constable David declared he had been nine years at No. 4 Police Station under Captain Sauve. He was transferred from No. 4 in 1923. He had seen Tony Frank in the station at No. 4, in company with Captain Sauve. He had also met them once or twice on St. Catharine Street and had seen Captain Sauve talking with Frank at the corner of Cadieux and St. Catharine Streets.

He had had occasion to report to his superiors that Sergeant Desrosiers went into a house on St. Dominique Street when liquor was sold without a license. Captain Sauve, to whom he reported the matter, told him to keep out of that affair. He was soon after called before Chief Belanger and later transferred to another station. He had been discharged from the police and no reason was assigned to him for his discharge. He had been at No. 19 Station when he was discharged.

Cross-examined by Mr. Germain, witness admitted that Captain Morin of 19 Station had reported him for coming on duty under the influence of liquor. He was not under the influence of liquor at the time, however, he stated. He had been working in an election and had taken a drink, but was not under the influence.

Witness had been twelve years on the police force, with only three complaints in all that time.

Sol Eliasoph, lawyer, declared that on 22nd April, 1922, a client of his had complained of being defrauded of $2,000 by a man whose name he did not know. He went to detective headquarters and was shown the rogues 'gallery, where he picked out a man whose name was Harvis, but who was generally known as Jack

BELGIUM'S HOPE.

Pact With Britain and France For Peace of Europe.

BRUSSELS, November 13 (Canadian Press). — An Anglo-French-Belgian pact would be the surest guarantee of security and the maintenance of peace in Europe, Foreign Minister Hymans declared in reviewing foreign affairs at the opening session of Parliament.

He said that since the Armistice, Belgium had never ceased to hope and work for such a pact.

The Foreign Minister, however, praised the League of Nations protocol as a step toward ultimate disarmament and peace.

MANITOBA URGED TO AID RAILWAY

Grant of Two Millions For Hudson Bay Line Asked By Deputation.

WINNIPEG, November 13.— Requesting a grant of $2,000,000 from the government of Manitoba as a contribution towards the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway, a deputation representing the On-to-the-bay Association waited upon Premier John Bracken and other Cabinet ministers yesterday.

The deputation pointed out that a similar request had been made recently upon the Saskatchewan government and that the proposal had been favorably received.

In advancing their request, the delegates suggested that in the event of the Federal authorities failing to complete the road, a joint arrangement could be entered into by Manitoba and Saskatchewan with a capital fund of $4,000,000, to carry out the undertaking.

The Premier and the members of the Cabinet, while expressing themselves in sympathy with the need for completing the road, favored continuance of pressure upon the Federal authorities in preference to the acquisition of the road as a provincial undertaking.

DALTON BAKER RECITAL.

Mr. Dalton Baker, the famous English baritone, who is giving a Recital in the Conservatory Hall next Monday evening, had a brilliantly successful recital in Toronto two weeks ago.

Mr. Hector Charlesworth, Canada's prominent musical critic, says, along with many other laudatory remarks, too numerous to quote:

"The famous artist, Mr. Dalton Baker, sang with marked youthful vitality, and his personal magnetism, delightful interpretative style, coupled with sustained brilliance and breath control, made it a splendid performance.

"The wholesome jollity and verve of Mr. Baker in numbers calling for those qualities, are proverbial, and he sang with inimitable spirit and spontaneous humor."

Mr. Baker will be assisted by his pupil, Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, and the "piece de resistance" of the finely arranged programme will be the dramatic and thrilling duet from Saint Saens' "Samson and Delilah" with Mr. Baker in the role of the High Priest and Mrs. Park as Delilah. 1d-114-4296

REPORT FROM SON ON ARMISTICE DAY

Mother Hears Son She Believed Buried in France Coming Home.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 13. — Mrs. Anna Newberry, private nurse, celebrated armistice day in her own way for Tuesday afternoon she received word that her son Ellsworth, 26, whom she believed to have been killed in action in France, was on his way home from London, England.

The deputation pointed out that a Newberry enlisted in the Canadian army, was wounded in France and sent to a London hospital. The American Red Cross at Columbus, Ohio, where Mrs. Newberry and her daughter, Verna, live, continued the search for the son after he had been reported killed. When they found him several months ago they could not find the mother and sister who had moved to Omaha.

FINED FOR BRIBERY.

Irish Shipping Agents Sought Advance Dates For Emigrants.

DUBLIN, November 13 (Canadian Press). — Several shipping agents in Mayo and Galway were fined in Dublin yesterday on the charge of bribing officials in the United States Consulate here, to get them advance appointment dates for emigrants.

It was stated that the agents made no profit on the transactions, but paid a pound for each appointment date advanced and got the money for this from the emigrants.

The agents were fined sums varying from £5 to £75 according to the number of cases in which appointment dates had been altered.

Two Consular clerks, who originally were fined for receiving bribes from agents, gave evidence against the accused.

POST OFFICE WRECKED.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., November 13 (Canadian Press). — One man is dying and several others were injured in a terrific explosion that wrecked the rear of the main office of the Grand Rapids Post Office building here late yesterday.

The cause of the explosion is unknown, but the postal officials declare that it was not caused by gas.

RUSSIANS HAVE BEEN SILENCED BY THE SOVIET

Worse Than Under the Czarist Regime, Declares Emma Goldman in London.

BARRED BY U.S.A.

LONDON, Nov. 13. — (Canadian Press).—Emma Goldman, who was deported from the United States in 1919 as an undesirable alien, and now seeks asylum in England, was welcomed by three hundred Britons to their country at a dinner given in her honor last night. Miss Goldman spent a considerable part of her exile in Russia, and she eloquently excoriated Russia's Soviet government. She also declared that if she ever went back to the United States it would be on her own terms.

The oppressed masses in Russia, she said, were being silenced as they never were under the Czar, and all ideals had been discredited by the ruling forces in that country. Bolshevism she characterized as an international disease and she promised to fight hereafter, wherever she might be, for the principles of Liberty, which were the most essential things in human life.

The dinner at which she spoke was presided over by Col. Josiah Wedgwood, a member of the Cabinet in the late Labor Government, and tribute was paid to her in speeches by Bertrand Russell, Pacifist, who called her "one of the foremost friends of freedom in the world," and Rebecca West, the writer, who praised her courage in "climbing down" after she had been disillusioned in her two years' stay in Russia.

"We are very grateful to America," remarked Miss West, "for the loan of Emma Goldman."

Barred Forever.

"A cable came to-night," said Miss Goldman, "from the head immigration commissioner of the United States, which says I have been barred from the United States forever. Forever is a long time, and it shows that the authorities in the United States are just as stupid as they were when I left five years ago.

"I have not made any attempt to return to America, but I have been approached more than once by representatives of the United States Government as to whether I would like to go back to the United States on certain terms.

"They don't know Emma Goldman. If I go back to the United States I will demand that all political deportees have a right to return there. If I ever go back to the United States it will be on my own terms. I think there is going to be a change in the United States, too, some day, just as there will be elsewhere. It may not be in my lifetime—but what difference does it make whether I go back or others? Some day it will be a noble place, where all will work for the good of their fellow men. There will be real freedom, economic, social and humanitarian freedom, the most valuable thing in the world. What are privileges if you do not have liberty?"

Freedom In England.

Miss Goldman began her speech by saying she had come to England seeking one of this country's traditional liberties—the right of asylum.

Bertrand Russell held out little hope that she would receive it. He said that during the regime of the Conservative Government which preceded the Labor Government, he had approached the Foreign Office, seeking asylum in England for Miss Goldman, but the Foreign Office "turned her down indignantly."

Miss Goldman asked her audience in case she was expelled to make themselves heard sufficiently "to rescue the right of asylum from the clutches of the enemy."

STUDENT FLED "TEASERS."

Mother of Jilted Boy, Missing Three Weeks, Gets Note From Him.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Nov. 13.—Mrs. Frank Place, of Blossburg, mother of Danny Place, ministerial student at Wheaton College, Chicago, reported missing from the school for three weeks, received a letter from her son.

She would not tell where the letter was written, but said that in it her son told of leaving the school because he could not stand the comments made by fellow-students when they learned that the girl to whom he had been engaged had married another.

CABBAGE STANDS THIRD IN VEGETABLE POPULARITY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Cabbage has become the third most important vegetable in the United States, reports the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Potatoes and tomatoes are the only vegetables that outrank it.

More than 30,000 carloads of cabbage are marketed annually. Three-fifths comes mostly from the North and West, and the rest from the South.

Kraut manufacturers take about one-seventh of the commercial crop.

In some restaurants, most of the menu can be read on the table cloth.

Success never comes to those who are afraid of doing more than their share.

CAMPBELLFORD BOY SHOT IN THE LUNG BY GUN IN HANDS BROTHER

Francis Peckett Seriously Injured as a Result of Shooting Accident Last Night.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 13. —Last evening about seven-thirty o'clock, Francis Peckett, aged 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfird Peckett, Queen street, was accidentally sho t by his brother, Harold, aged 14 years. The bullet from a 22 calibre rifle, which the boys recently purchased for hunting, struck the bone in the right shoulder and glancing down entered the right lung. Francis was in his room upstairs at the time getting ready to go out. Harold went up with him and was handling the rifle. Both boys were sure the gun was not loaded. Harold aimed at the window and as he pulled the trigger Francis stepped into the line of fire and received the one bullet that by some mistake had been left in the rifle. This morning Peckett's condition is unchanged and doctors who are attending him, say it will be several days before he will be out of danger owing to the serious nature of the wound.

Condition Improving

Word was received by Mrs. H. Baker, River Road, that Mr. Baker's eye is some better and that on Wednesday he had the best day yet and suffered less. Mr. Baker is in the hospital at Peterboro.

At the Girl Guides' meeting on Tuesday night, seventeen girls were enrolled five being rangers and twelve guides.

They received their tenderfoot pins More of the girls are getting ready to be enrolled.

NEWS OF COBOURG

Cobourg Hockey Club Elect Officers—Objection To Peterboro.

COBOURG, Nov. 13.—The following officers were elected by the Cobourg Hockey Club:

Honorary President — Doctor Hayden.

President—A. C. Cauley.

Honorary Vice-President—E. W. Hargraft.

Vice-President—J. Dilanty.

Secretary—Archie Cochrane.

Treasurer—J. W. Bulger.

Executive—Dr. Lajoie, K. Payne, H. Wills and T. Cavanagh.

It was decided to operate both an intermediate and junior team in the O.H.A. series and Cobourg should be represented by two good teams this coming season.

Strong objection has been voiced locally against allowing Peterborough to come into the Lakeshore group and undoubtedly the local club will protest against this at the annual meeting of the O.H.A.

The Robert Hicks Coal Company have received a cargo of coal this week and expect another boat in a few days.

The Veterans' annual banquet was held last evening in the armoury and was largely attended. The speaker for the occasion was Canon F. G. Scott, of Quebec, who served overseas as a padre with the Canadian corps.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally By Drinking Quarts of Good Water.

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

MARMORA HUNTER SHOT YEARLING BLACK BEAR

Most of Deer Brought Home Were Small—Road Gang Moves.

MARMORA, November 12th, — Harold Naylor whilst out hunting north of Marmora, was successful in shooting a yearling black bear. Other hunters were successful in getting deer, though in most cases they are of small size.

Those from Marmora attending the nomination meetings at Belleville on Tuesday, included Messrs T. E. Neal, H. Connors, W. Linn, C. Boyd, T. E. Potts and G. Wellman.

The Roseneath five-piece orchestra has been secured by the Young Men's Club of St. Paul's church for their dance at the town hall next Monday evening.

The county road gang under Mr. William McCoy, have moved to Tiffin, cooperating there with the gang under Mr. Dan Brown, on road improvements made possible through a special government grant.

Mrs. A. S. Robertson of Deloro, who has been ill for some time in Toronto, is making progress towards recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Barlow spent the week-end in Belleville.

The sale of farming stock and implements, at Mr. Charles Phillips, drew a large attendance on Tuesday. Very good prices were realized.

CHANGED

Our national Constitution was provided during a period when most work was done by hand, there being little machinery.

Invention has revolutionized our ways of living. And most Constitutional changes are the result of mechanical invention. Prohibition, for instance, was brought about primarily to make people work more. Child labor, the great evil needing a Consttiutional amendment to abolish it as we long since abolished negro slavery, is an outgrowth of the machine age. Politics follows industry.

OTTAWA WIFE SLAYER HOPES TO GO TO GALLOWS FOR CRIME

John Pirie Writes Toronto Woman That "Confinement in Asylum Would Be Refined Cruelty."

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—"There can be only two roads that law can take one is to hang me, the other is to declare me insane. I personally would prefer the first, as the latter would simply mean confinement in an asylum which would be a decided brand of refined cruelty."

These words are contained in a letter written by John Pirie, self-confessed murderer of his wife and two children here on October 1, in reply to a letter of sympathy from Mrs. F. E. Ransom-Sutton, of Toronto, whose husband served with Pirie in the South African war. The letter was made public by R. A. Olmstead, counsel for Pirie, with the consent of Mrs. Ransom-Sutton, and is the first published statement made by the prisoner, who will be tried next January.

Clear up Situation

Those who have undertaken Pirie's defence feel that the letter will to a great extent enable those interested in the case to properly judge the situation. In his letter Pirie states that his whole life up to the morning of the murders is a blank. He states that when he realized what he had done, he felt it that was just that he should be punished and gives this reason for his not committing suicide, as against the previous statement he made at police headquarters that he had meant to kill himself but had lost heart.

"I can just hope for death to bring forgetfulness, and a cessation of the ghastly headache which is my constant companion, and if my punishment continues into the next life that will only be, after all, just and right, as I can bring to mind no action of my wife and children which even remotely called for what I have done," the letter states. "I cannot but say that I can see no reason for any attempt to be made to cause justice to step aside and not punish me for what I have done. . . . . I thank you ever so much for your efforts to bring my tormented mind comfort, but I feel too unclean to ever attempt any communication with my wonderful wife and children. I have made this impossible by my own actions, and I shall never be able to meet God unflinchingly, knowing that I tried to do my best, for whatever my have been the reason for my cruel actions, I cannot but think that I should have carried on, and fought until the last post sounded for me, but instead of that I have become a quitter."

Driven by Poverty

Pirie, who was formerly an officer in the Royal Air Force, murdered his wife and children because of poverty, according to a letter written to the police and found on him when he voluntarily surrendered himself.

ARMISTICE AT APSLEY.

Service Held at the War Hall Followed by Two Minutes Silence.

APSEY, November 13. — Armistice Day was observed in Apsley by a short service being held at the war memorial shortly before 11 a.m., conducted by the Revs. C. Spence and J. Ogden. Only a small number were present. A wreath of everlastings and poppies, supplied by E. L. Spence, was placed on the monument by Mr. Isaac Lean. A hymn, "O God, our Help in Ages Past," was sung, followed by the Lord's Prayer, led by Mr. Ogden. Mr. Spence then said a few words befitting the occasion, following with a prayer and the recital of the names on the monument. Mr. Ogden concluded the brief ceremony with the "The Grace of our Lord," after which the bells of the Anglican and Methodist churches were rung, with an interval for the two minutes silence.

FIRE AT KINGSVILLE.

KINGSVILLE, Ont., November 13 (Canadian Press). — Fire swept the one-storey building owned and occupied by J. J. Owen, Main Street, at 6.30 o'clock last night.

Mr. Owen had left at 6 o'clock, and cannot account for the blaze except spontaneous combustion.

Christmas stock unpacked at the rear of the store in the afternoon was saved, though damaged by the smoke.

The loss is covered by insurance.

PITILESS ECONOMICS.

Recommended By Presidents of French Chambers of Commerce.

PARIS, November 13 (Canadian Press). — A radical overhauling of government expenses with a view to "pitiless economies," is recommended in resolutions adopted yesterday at a meeting of the presidents of the Chambers of Commerce of France, at which one hundred and thirty were present.

Government is asked to appoint outside of Parliament a small commission of men who have proved their worth in handling big business affairs to do this work.

RUSSIAHS HAVE

Then she continued: "I have come here to throw some light on Russia. I know the Russian situation better than most people who have written about it. I know the language. 'I spoke for two years with people high and low and I have come out to speak for the oppressed masses of Russia, silenced as they never were under the Czar.

Thousands in Prisons.

"It is superstition that confuses the revolution with the ruling party of to-day; there are thousands in prisons and concentration camps in Russia, not for opposing the Government, but for opinion's sake. To call the present Soviet Government a worker's experiment, is the most preposterous lie ever told. The party in power has emasculated the revolution; it is slowly undermining all that is best in Russia.

"My cause against the Bolsheviks is not that they have been too revolutionary, but that they are not revolutionary enough. The Russian Bolsheviks are the arch counter-revolutionaries of the world. For what is revolutionary that does not hold high ideals? All ideals have been discredited in Russia.

"The time has come when silence on the Russian situation makes you a party to the crimes which are being committed there. Unless you understand the mistakes of Russia in the past seven years, it is likely there will be repetitions elsewhere.

"One hears remarks that the Communist party is so small in Great Britain. Remember it does not require many people to destroy things, but it takes a great many people to build things up."

OBITUARY

MRS. ALBERT BARNARD.

The death occurred on Wednesday morning at 11.30 o'clock of Louise Angobe, beloved wife of Albert Barnard, in her 47th year.

There are left to mourn her loss, besides a sorrowing husband, three sons and one daughter, all of this city.

Mrs. Barnard was born in Bobcaygeon, but for the past 25 years she has resided in the County of Peterboro.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, from her late residence on the Provincial Highway, and will proceed to the Little Lake cemetery for burial. Rev. A. J. Langford of Trinity church, will officiate.

MEDAL FOR BOY SCOUT.

Rescued Drowning Boy, But Didn't Tell of Rescue.

CHATHAM, Ont., November 13 (Canadian Press). — At a session of the Chatham Scout Council last night Max Malvern ,a member of Rotary Troop No. 1, received a decoration for rescuing a boy from the River Thames last spring.

True to Scout law, Malvern never said a thing about his brave act, and it was not until several days after the incident that it became known.

The lad was decorated by Assistant Dominion Scout Commander John Stiles and Assistant Provincial Scout Commander F. C. Irwin, who were present.

STRIKE CLOSES MINES

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA, Nov. 12. —(Canadian Press Cable via Reuters.—Six collieries at Newcastle have ceased work as a result of the strike of the stevedores and dock laborers at a number of the Australian ports and six Newcastle collieries have shut down for local reasons. The outcome of the cessation of work at the collieries is that 3,500 men are now idle.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

The Real Cause of Indigestion

Acids in the stomach irritate and inflame the delicate stomach lining, sour and ferment the food, prevent proper digestion and lead to nine-tenths of all dyspepsia and Indigestion. Pepsin and other artificial digestents give only temporary relief and do not correct the cause.

Stomach acids should be neutralized daily, and the stomach kept sweet and clean after eating by drinking a glass of pure Magnesia water made from teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia, obtainable at any reliable drug store. This prevents food fermentation and your meals digest naturally and without pain. By following this plan you may eat almost anything without fear of Indigestion.

POLICE CAPTAIN

Curley. He identified this picture as that of the man who he declared had defrauded his client. A warrant was issued and many efforts were made to have it served, but it was never done.

Later he heard that C rley had been arrested in Quebec and he asked the proper authorities to have his warrant served and they told him it would be attended to. Curley, however, had never been arrested. Curley, he had learned, was a man always engaged in some illegal traffic such as liquor smuggling, gambling, and so on.

Interfered With Voting.

Mr. Eliasoph also complained that in 1921, when he was a candidate for aldermanic honours, two constables took up their position in front of one of his polls and prevented his friends from voting. He had complained to the station the men belonged to, but they remained there all day.

Constable Aime Boisvert stated that eighteen months ago he had arrested Serafini ,assisted by Constable Francoeur, after Serafini had fired a shot in the street. A week before the preliminary inquiry, Tony Frank had approached him and offered him $150 to release Serafini. Witness refused the money . Frank then asked him to swear that Serafini had no gun in his possession when arrested.

When the inquiry came off, however, Serafini was out on bail. The case was sent to the Court of Session, and there the hearing was postponed till after a time, and never came to a conclusion.

Constable Morin, fourteen years in the police service, and now attached to No. 4 Station, said he had met Tony Frank from time to time on St. Catharine Street ,and said "Good morning" in passing, but had never seen him in the police station.

Constable O. Genest of No. 4 Station, said that he had never known of Sergt. Desrossieres going to the house on St. Dominique Street where liquor was sold.

Radley Letter Missing.

Alderman J. A. Brodeur, chairman of the executive committee of the City of Montreal, declared that he had been unable to find any trace of the communication Mr. W. C. Radley of Toronto swore he sent by registered mail, giving details of Constable Arthur Belanger's affair with Lily Radley . He had searched the files and his attache case, but had not made inquiries among all his employees.

Mr .Brossard: "You are not very strong on inquiries." (Laughter.)

Mr. Brodeur: "You will talk when your turn comes."

The Court here intervened, and soothed the incipient storm. Mr. Lanctot assured the Court that he and his fellow workers wished to be polite.

Continuing his evidence Mr. Brodeur stated that he had received his subpoena on Saturday evening, and that he had searched for the missing letter on Monday. He had spoken to one of his clerks about it. Nobody in his office would have any interest in destroying the letter referred to. Witness himself might have torn it up ,as being of no further interest if he had happened to find it in his attache case after a two-year interval of silence in the matter.

The Court then asked Mr. Brodeur why he had not had Constable Belanger up on the Radley complaint to him. Mr. Brodeur stated that Radley had no proof, only rumours of correspondence between his daughter and the constable. Chief Belanger had told him of the settlement of the case a year previously and witness had thought that he had had no trouble.

Mr. Brodeur then left the box with mutual smiles and apologies between himself and Mr. Lanctot, but was recalled by Mr. Brossard, who wanted to know if all the letters addressed to the witness at his office were delivered.

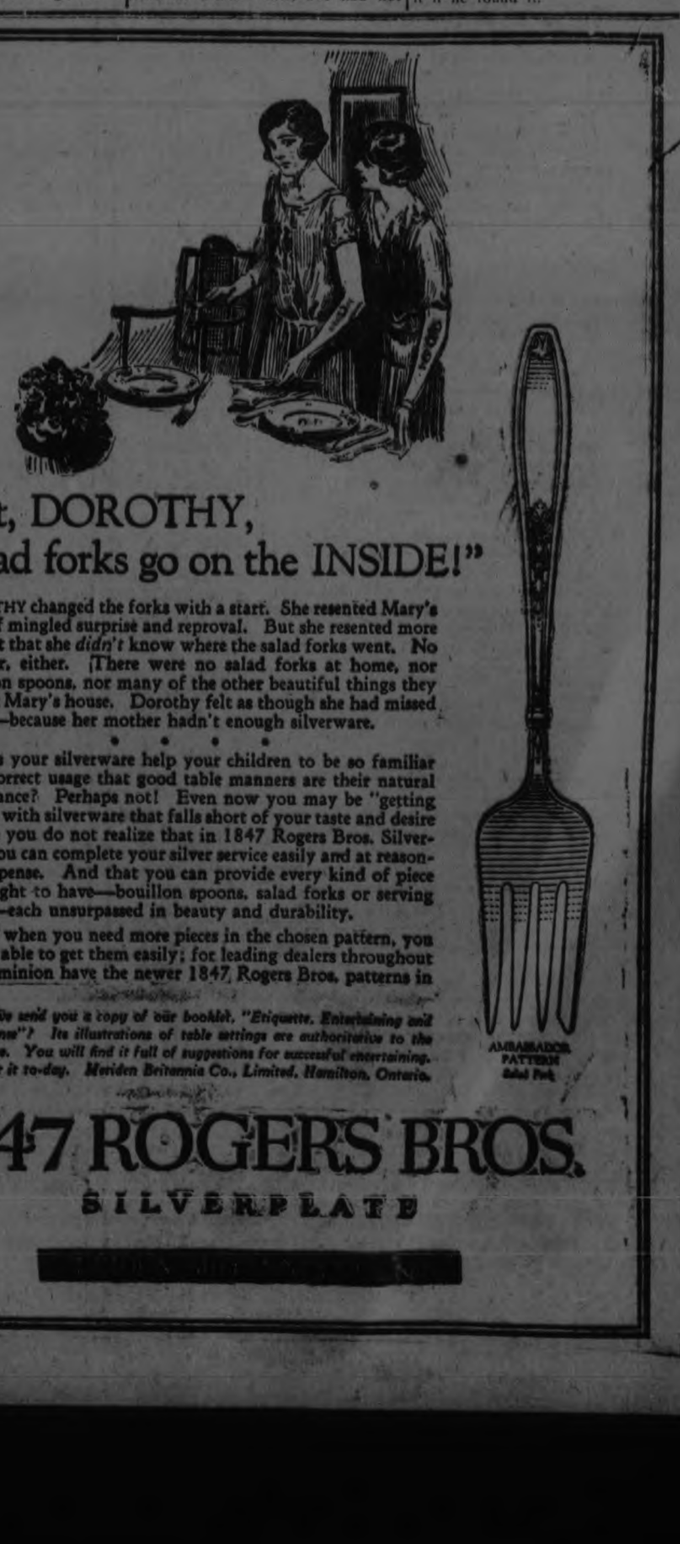
Mr. Brodeur: "That is indeed a question—they should be." He added that a letter addressed to J. A. A. Brodeur ,advocate, chairman of the executive committee of the City of Montreal, would reach him. The mail in his office was handled by an office boy.

Mr. Brodeur declared that he did not wish to deny having received the letter referred to. He might have received it. He would make a further search for it and would produce it if he found it.

Salesman For Skin Cream Learns How To Clear Up Pimply Complexion

Mr. Cliff Miska, of 595 Ninth Avenue, Astoria, L. I., writes: "I was a salesman of creams for healing pimples, blemishes, etc., but when my face broke out with blotches, pimples, and blackheads I tried one salve after another with no permanent results.

I found it as impossible to sell skin cream as a bald headed man finds selling hair tonic. Finally I decided I would have to get at the cause—the blood. I was amazed to find that within a few days after taking Carter's Little Liver Pills, my skin took on a new healthful look, blemishes started to disappear and I felt like a new person all around. Now I know what to do when I have a pimply skin, you bet." This old reliable remedy treats such complaints in a safe way. It has been used all over the world for 67 years. 25c at all good drug stores.



"But, DOROTHY, salad forks go on the INSIDE!"

DOROTHY changed the forks with a start. She resented Mary's tone of mingled surprise and reproval. But she resented more the fact that she didn't know where the salad forks went. No wonder, either. There were no salad forks at home, nor bouillon spoons, nor many of the other beautiful things they used at Mary's house. Dorothy felt as though she had missed much—because her mother hadn't enough silverware.

* * * *

Does your silverware help your children to be so familiar with correct usage that good table manners are their natural inheritance? Perhaps not! Even now you may be "getting along" with silverware that falls short of your taste and desire because you do not realize that in 1847 Rogers Bros. Silverplate you can complete your silver service easily and at reasonable expense. And that you can provide every kind of piece you ought to have—bouillon spoons, salad forks or serving pieces—each unsurpassed in beauty and durability.

And when you need more pieces in the chosen pattern, you will be able to get them easily; for leading dealers throughout the Dominion have the newer 1847 Rogers Bros. patterns in stock.

May We send you a copy of our booklet, "Etiquette, Entertaining and Good Sense"? Its illustrations of table settings are authoritative to the last degree. You will find it full of suggestions for successful entertaining. Write for it to-day. Meriden Britannia Co., Limited, Hamilton, Ontario.

SETTING A GOOD EXAMPLE.

It is to the credit of the city of Toronto that it can be truthfully said that no city in America provides such facilities for the enjoyment of winter sport by both young and old.

For the coming winter it is announced that the Parks Commission is planning 51 hockey rinks, 55 skating rinks and 15 children's sled slides, in addition to toboggan slides at High Park and Riverdale Park and civic curling rinks at two different points.

That is an ambitious programme, and its execution will involve a heavy expenditure, but the results in the benefit to the health—and it may be truthfully said to the morals—of the community amply justify the outlay.

As a general rule, Canadians do not utilize the splendid qualities of their invigorating winters sufficiently.

There is no need of the cold weather being the signal for getting inside and staying there.

Rather it should be regarded as an invitation to enjoy the wine-like frosty air of the great outdoors, and wise indeed are those communities that realize that fact and plan accordingly.

Toronto's record in this respect should be an inspiration to other Canadian centres to use the cold weather as a factor in building up a more healthy people.

And, incidentally, the residents of the Queen City are to be congratulated upon the possession of a civic government with vision enough to capitalize the topic qualities of the Canadian winter months.

AN UNNEIGHBORLY ATTITUDE.

Whatever may be the general view as to what Canada's tariff policy should be, there can be little doubt of the fact that the average Canadian appreciates the people of the United States as good neighbors.

It is a bit disconcerting, therefore, to find a leading Canadian newspaper charging the United States with handing out "most ruthless tariff treatment to Canada," and alleging that "Canada did nothing to invite or provoke the barring of its staple products from the country next door."

Leaving out of the question the undoubted right of any country to arrange its tariff to suit itself, the fact that staple Canadian products are to a great extent barred from the United States market can be blamed upon nobody but the Canadian people themselves.

The reciprocity pact offered to this country in 1911 and rejected by Canada in the general election of that year was not abiogated by the United States until ten years afterward.

For a whole decade the opportunity remained for Canada to secure the market from which some of her products are now barred, so that whether or not one believes that the opening should have been utilized there is no gainsaying the fact that the country now charged with ruthlessness in its dealings gave its neighbors every chance.

Not only that, but even now the United States market is free to a surprisingly large number of Canadian products, including many manufactured articles, the makers of which have succeeded in developing a large business across the line.

It is manifestly to the interest of Canadians to be on terms of friendly relationship with their neighbors to the south, and it is equally clear that such friendly relationships can be maintained without interfering in the least with Canada's position in the British Empire.

What useful purpose is served, what benefit is gained for this country, therefore, in attempting to convince Canadians that the people of the United States are vindictively harsh in their tariff policy as it at present affects this country?

Such a charge, when read in the light of the history of the last thirteen years, must fall to the ground.

EDUCATION—NOT COERSION.

The organization of county prohibition committees to assist in the enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act is a development that cannot be looked upon without misgiving by those who read between the lines and realize just where such a movement may lead.

There is a field of service in each county for a temperance committee, but its mission should be education, rather than coercion.

J. J. Morrison, the shrewd old Secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, sized up the situation with his usual accuracy when he declared that the temperance forces were satisfied to let the policeman's club try to do the work formerly done by their own organization.

In other words, that once the Ontario Temperance Act was put upon the statute books the majority of temperance workers folded their arms and suspended to a very considerable extent their efforts to educate young people against the evil of intemperance.

The Examiner believes that they were wrong.

There is as much need nowadays to emphasize the folly of over-indulgence in liquor as there ever was.

True, the open bar has gone and the open sale of liquor—but the secret sale remains, and no matter how vigorous the efforts of law enforcement officers will to some extent at least continue.

Temptation comes to the young of both sexes in a new form as a result of these charged conditions.

To the spirit of adventure that is found in most Canadian youths the breaking of this particular law appeals as offering a thrill, especially as they realize that the law is being violated by men of prominence in every community, while the opportunities to drink—not as plentiful as formerly perhaps—come in a more subtle and therefore more dangerous fashion.

Education is the best protection against this menace; the 'teen age citizens should be taken in hand and warned against intemperance, and here is the opening for the prohibition committees.

If they will confine their activities to such a campaign they will be of very real service.

On the other hand, if they inaugurate an era of "spotting" and spying and constitute themselves into a prohibition Ku Klux Klan they will do the cause of temperance irreparable harm and, incidentally, divide every county into two hostile camps, with results that can be visualized without any undue straining of the imagination.

TAKING MONEY FROM THE PEOPLE.

A taxation conference is to be held at Ottawa at which representatives of the Federal, Provincial and municipal Governments will be in attendance.

There is a fine muddle to be straightened out, says the London Advertiser. Federal Government has invaded fields of taxation never touched before; Provinces have reached out and usurped sources of income that formerly belonged to municipalities.

It might be well for the conference to consider the words of Sir Richard Cartwright, Minister of Finance, in his budget speech of 1878:

"All taxation, however disguised, is a loss; it is the duty, and the sacred duty, of the Government to take only from the people what is necessary to the proper discharge of the public service; and taxation in any other mode is simply in one shape or other legalized robbery."

There has never been anything happen since 1878 to show that Sir Richard was wrong, but there has been a very decided departure from the barbwire fence he built to divide the actual cost of government service from all the retinue taxpayers of 1924 support Provincially and in a Federal way.

The coming tax conference at Ottawa might very well get it firmly established at the start that taxation, in the plain language of Sir Richard, meant one thing only—taking money from the people, and in the next place that the ability of the people to pay these multiplied levies is of greater importance than the Government's urgency to secure them.

TWO PRODIGALS.

Lord Birkenhead's sneer about "second class brains," turned against Mr. Baldwin's last Cabinet, could never be cast at the Ministry sworn in by His Majesty on Thursday. For in the intellectual stature of some of them, the experience of most of them, and the promise of the least known of them, it is doubtful whether stronger Ministers could have been mobilized from the existing ranks of Conservatism.

* * * *

Winston Churchill as Chancellor of the Exchequer is a major political development. Few doubted but that Churchill would find his way back to his spiritual home. He was an accidental Liberal at best. But that after twenty years of wandering, during which his curses heaped unsparingly upon his fathers, the fatted calf of the highest office in Baldwin's gift should be killed for him—killed at the expense of an able man like Sir Robert Horne, in the teeth of opposition of Die-hards, and despite that Churchill is the pet of Beaverbrook, whom Baldwin loathes—is certainly a political sensation.

* * * *

In romance, mystery, action and picturesqueness Churchill's career reads like fiction. Soldier of fortune with the Spanish forces in Cuba; reckless subaltern in the charge of Omdurman; hero of a romantic escape from the jail at Pretoria; deserter from the party which his father helped make famous; author of one of the best ten biographies in the English language; among ablest of Liberals in the battle against Chamberlain; First Lord of the Admiralty in the Great War; author of the tanks, of the Dardanelles and Antwerp exploits; brilliant journalist, author and orator; returned to Parliament as a Constitutionalist after three straight defeats as a Liberal; Chancellor of the Exchequer for Conservatism one month after his return to it—what in fiction surpasses such a story?

* * * *

Twelve years ago Churchill said that the door against Imperial Preferences was "slammed, barred and bolted." Now he is Chancellor of the Exchequer in a Ministry pledged to Imperial Preferences. For the ordinary man that would be a crushing embarrassment—but not for Churchill. His audacity, his parliamentary flair, his restless, vital, compelling personality will carry him easily o'er the gulf, and just as twenty years ago he passed from Toryism to become its most merciless critic, so we may expect to see him shortly as Liberalism's most formidable antagonist. Tariff Reform has at last secured a champion as powerful as the great Chamberlain himself.

* * * *

But Churchill isn't the only prodigal over which Toryism rejoices. There is that ex-enfant terrible of the party, Lord Birkenhead. Twelve years ago he was "Galloper Smith," insolent, amusing, the doughtiest lieutenant of Carson. Since then he has been England's Attorney-General, keeper of the King's conscience, a convert to Irish Home Rule, a disciple of Lloyd George, an orphan of the Coalition, a preacher of "glittering prizes for sharp swords." In 1922 his sword flashed brilliantly by the side of his Welsh chief; with him he went into the wilderness. And when Lloyd George deserted him and went back to Liberalism, Birkenhead became an Ishmaelite. He was a Joshua forbidding the sun to go down on the wrath of the Carlton Club revolt until he had visited vengeance on his enemies. Lord Balfour beckoned him home, but he kept on his way. Baldwin's Cabinet was "second class brains;" Lord Curzon and Lord Salisbury were the "Dolly Sisters;" Lord Younger was a "small, conceited man." But Birkenhead lived to learn that "second class brains" can be first class haters; and last year, when he tired of the wilderness, and wanted to come home, they barred the door against him. So he sat on the penitent bench, served a term in Purgatory as a private in the ranks, before excommunication was lifted. Even now, it is not as Lord Chancellor—which returns to Lord Cave—nor as Foreign Secretary—which goes to Austen Chamberlain, and which he was said to covet—that he is taken back. He becomes Secretary for India. Yet Birkenhead will make himself felt. He is the friend of Churchill, as brilliant, if not as versatile: Mr. Baldwin would do well to watch both of them.—Ottawa Journal.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—Tuesday the top for steers was $7.25 a cwt. and this was 25 cents down from a week ago, but the buyers state that a mixed load taken with the two cars of steers brought the average to about the same as last week.

Export heifers cost $6.25 on the average, cows $5 and short keeps $5.50 to $6 a cwt. These were also regarded as about steady in price. Total exports this week will run about 1,200 head and anything available is being bought today. The general market was quiet this morning and is overloaded with the unwanted unfinished butchers. Specialists are busy with stockers and the better kind, 800 to 900 lbs. each, are moving freely between $4 and $4.75 a cwt. One load, mainly Herefords, 810 lbs. each, sold at $5 a cwt.

Among the export steers this morning one brought $8 and another $7.50 a cwt. A bunch of feeders cost $5.75 and heifers $5.50 to $6.75. One export bull sold at $5 and 3 cows at the same price. There were no handyweight butchers good enough to bring over $6 a cwt. Medium butchers sold close to $5 and fairly killable mixed bunches at $4 to $4.50 a cwt. The poorest quality of butchers sold down to $3. Butchers' cows and bologna bulls were steadier than the other butchers. The volume of trade this morning signifies a large hold-over again today.

Light finished calves are a good selling proposition and 11 cents a pound was asked for a bunch not too even. Any good calf will bring 10 cents and ordinary mediums 7½ to 8 cents. Grassers are firmer at 3½ to 4 cents. An odd choice calf sold at 12 cents a pound.

The large number of stale lambs made prices easier on Tuesday and 800 which averaged less than 100 lbs. each were bought at a price which will work out about $11.15 a cwt. Lambs were steady today at Tuesday's decline, of 25 cents a cwt. Choice lambs averaging less than 90 lbs. each sold at 11¾ cents and heavier lambs at $11 to $11.40 a cwt.

Hogs are quoted at $8.75 a cwt. f.o.b., but some sellers are thought to be getting a small premium on this figure.

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, November 13 (Canadian Press). — The recent advance in prices has not affected the demand in the least, and a further upward trend in the market is anticipated. The future, however, of the Canadian markets depend on the course of the egg markets in the United States. A sale is reported of one car of Prairie province storage May first at 41 delivered Montreal.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, November 13 (Canadian Press). — There was no improvement in the export business in grain here yesterday owing to there being few firm bids in the market from foreign buyers that could be accepted for Canadian grain, and in consequence the trade was quiet. On spot round lots of No. 1 Northern spring wheat were offered at 10 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg November option c.i.f. bay ports, for five day shipment. No. 3 Canadian Western oats were also offered at 1 5-8 cents per bushel over the same option, c.i.f., bay ports.

There is no change in the condition of the market for coarse grains, business being very quiet and prices unchanged, with No. 3 extra feed barley quoted at $1.08, No. 3 grade at $1.07, No. 2 white oats at 60 cents, No. 3 grade at 58 cents, and No. 4 grade at 56 cents per bushel, ex-track.

A feature of spring wheat flour was the stronger feeling that developed in prices, scored another advance of 16 cents per barrel, making a net gain for the month to date of 50 cents per barrel. There was no change in prices for winter wheat flour, and trade was quiet.

Owing to the steady demand for all lines of millfeed, a firmer tone prevailed, although no actual change in prices occurred.

A moderate business was done in standard grades of rolled oats.

The trade in all grades of eggs was exceptionally good, and prices ruled steady. Prices were easy in the butter market at the recent decline noted, and the turnover was small.

It was reported that some business was done in cheese over the cable at prices equivalent to 17 5-8 to 17 3-4 cents per pound for No. 1 coloured here, while holders of October No. 1 coloured were asking 17 7-8 to 18 cents per pound, and No. 1 white 18 cents to 18 1-8 cents per pound, with Eastern grades at 17 ½ to 17 5-8 cents per pound.

A fair amount of business was transacted in new crop beans. Prices were quoted at $2.65 to $2.75 per bushel for one and three pound pickers.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, November 13 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

Demand ... $4.60 3-8
Cables ... $4.60 3-4

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, November 13 (Canadian Press). — Good rains in the Argentine where there has been complaint of drought, pulled down the price of wheat heavily yesterday, but sharp rallies resulted from important late commission house buying based more or less on corn strength.

Wheat closing quotations were unsettled at 1-4 to 1 1-2 cents net decline, December 152 3-8 to 152 1-2 and May 159 3-8 to 159 1-2.

Corn finished 1 1-2 to 2 3-8 cents up, oats varying from 3-8 cent decline to 1-4 cent gain, and provisions 22 cents lower to 10 cents advance.

Aside from the better crop outlook in Argentina it was said that something of a decline in wheat prices was to have been expected on account of the rapidity of the recent advance, 16 cents a week. Furthermore, the fact that the Liverpool market had undergone a decided downturn yesterday while American exchanges were closed and had continued to recede yesterday, was a source of weakness here.

Rushes here to sell were so impetuous that breaks in price amounted to nearly 4 cents a bushel before an irregular recovery set in.

Any man who really understands women is too wise to boast to them of his wisdom.

THE WELL LIGHTED CORNER HAS THE WELL WORN CHAIR

WHEN everybody makes a bee line for a certain corner of the living room, or looks with envious eyes on its occupant, it's time to get the other chairs into use. Light will do it, by the generous use of floor and table lamps, well shaded to kill the glare.

You will be surprised at the wonderful difference an extra floor or table lamp makes to your living room.

To obtain the best results, choose wide shades that throw the light upward and downward. Use 50 or 75-watt white Edison Mazda Lamps. Put 25-watt all frosted Edison Mazda Lamps in small decorative table lamps, wall brackets and candlesticks, always using shades.

Near you is an Edison Mazda Lamp store, recognizable by the yellow and blue cartons. There you can obtain real information about good lighting.

White Edison Mazda Lamp most suitable for portable lamp use, as the filament cannot be seen.

A THOUGHT.

Cross-eyed ambition, short-sighted service, bottle-eyed blindness is best exemplified by the individual who insists on doing all the little and unimportant details.

The bigger you are, the fewer little things you will look after. If you would accumulate something in business big enough to divide, multiply yourself by dividing your responsibilities with those who can do certain things as well as you, perhaps much better.

NEWS FROM WARSAW.

Warsaw School Children Observed Armistice Day —Personals.

WARSAW, Nov. 13—The Women's Institute placed a wreath, made by some of the ladies, on the monument for Armistice Day.

Shortly before 11 a.m. the Warsaw school children mached from the school to the monument. They saluted the monument. Mr. Currie reminded them of the reason of the monument, and why the day should be remembered. All stood at attention with bowed heads for two minutes' silent prayer. Then Evelyn Hawthorn placed a spray of carnations, and Hector Thompson a wreath of maple leaves at the foot of the monument. The children then sang one verse of "O! Canada." Then the children marched back. Quite a number of people made it a point to be present.

Mr. Ralph Wilson, Toronto School of Science, spent the week-end and holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Choate.

Mrs. Verne Selkirk has been visiting her mother for about a week. Mr. Selkirk was doing business for his firm in Peterboro. He came to Warsaw Saturday evening for the week-end and holiday.

Mrs. Wm. Carveth came home this morning after several weeks' visit in Lakefield.

CHURCH ANNUAL SERVICES HELD AT LAKEFIELD

Rev. E. W. Rowland, of Omemee, Preached at Methodist Anniversary —Large Congregations.

TEA AND CONCERT.

LAKEFIELD, November 12. — The anniversary services of the Lakefield Methodist Church were held on Sunday, and were marked by a success even greater than usual.

The weather was ideal and the attendance at both services was very large, the church being filled to capacity at the evening service, when the congregation was augmented by the members of the Presbyterian and Baptist Churches, they having waived their evening services according to custom.

Rev. E. W. Rowland, of Omemee, was the special preacher, and made a very favourable impression on this, his first visit to the village.

The music was under the direction of the organist and choir leader, Mr. Kenneth S. Madill, and was exceptionally fine, the solo work was of a high order, and in the chorus singing the shading was remarkably good and the expression admirable. At the morning service Mr. Burrows sang "My Task," and the choir sang "Oh Lord, How Manifold Are Thy Works." In the evening Mr. Burrows sang "In a Convent Garden," and Mrs. McMillan "Oh Father, Hear Me," and Miss Gladus McIlmoyl sang "I Am With Thee." The choir sang "Hark, Hark, My Soul" and "Blow Ye the Trumpet, Blow," the latter with a cornet obligato by Mr. Trueman Jewell.

The Sermon.

Mr. Rowland took his text from the 20th chapter of the Book of the Acts of the Apostles, verse 24: "But none of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry which I have received of the Lord Jesus to testify the gospel of the grace of God."

St. Paul was closing his third great missionary journey and was hastening toward Jerusalem for the Feast of Pentecost which he desired to keep there.

Before going to Jerusalem he longed to visit his friends at Ephesus, where he had spent three years establishing the Church, where he had many friends whom he loved and who loved him. They loved him a their leader and spiritual adviser and friend. But time was short and St. Paul had no time to go to Ephesus, so he sent word to the elders to come to Melitus to see him and receive exhortation. They held sweet communion together, but the Apostle was grave and told them they would never see his face again. This grand old warrior of the Cross knew that bonds, affliction and death awaited him, but he was prepared. His enemies lost no chance to thwart him ,and even threats of death did not move him. He knew how that the clouds were gathering and that a deep and well laid scheme was in motion to have him done to death while on his way to Jerusalem. He exhorted his friends of the church at Ephesus to carry on the work even in the face of great difficulties and in spite of the enemy. He bade them God-speed and left them in spite of the fact that the prophet Agabus said that the Jews would bind him hand and foot and give him over to the Gentiles . St. Paul said he was ready to die if necessary, for he was prepared to face all eventualities; he had cut all shore lines, and no obstacle, threats, or even death itself, could hold him back from what he deemed his duty. St. Paul said: "Neither count I my life dear unto myself." You would say the Apostle was a cynic, but not so; no one loved life more than he.

Lesson of Sacrifice.

He loved his friends passionately, and to him life was a grand and a noble charge, but there was the greater part—the Lord Jesus in him, leading him on and that was dearer than life itself. In the life of St. Paul we have a lesson at this time of year when we commemorate those who cheerfully gave their lives in a great cause. We look back to those days when all our hearts were moved with pain when our boys fought in the welter of war. We recall the finest bunch of boys who ever marched to the music of a band, going off to fight and die, leaving homes and friends and good positions to fight in a great cause, and who held their own though pitted against the best troops of the German Army. They loved life, yes, but they loved righteousness and national and international honour more. That man is dead who lives only for self; it is better to die for a great cause than to live a selfish life. St. Paul wrote to St. Timothy from a dungeon near Rome telling him of his approaching death, and saying that in spite of hardships and persecutions he was thankful that he had run a straight race and kept the faith. When Christians die Jesus Christ is with them, and they go out glorious in God. St. Paul was the greatest Philosopher of his day, and had been exalted on every hand before his conversion.

The speaker thanked God that Methodism stood for higher education, with their ministers and leaders all trained and this is an important asset now that union is so near, for with trained leaders, dedicated to their high and holy office, the future is secure.

Recently a great speaker in Massey Hall made the statement that in the final analysis all problems are spiritual. The speaker concluded with an anecdote of Sir Harry Lauder told by Dr. Adam. After Lauder had received word of the death of his only son in France, he asked permission to visit his son's grave. Before returning to England he addressed a large body of troops and said that when a great blow comes to a man he is likely to do one of three things, first to seek to drown his sorrows in drink, second to become a cynic and grow sour on the world, and third to go to God and find His grace sufficient to save and to keep him in His care. He had found in the third one of these his great comfort in the all-abiding love of God and His son, Jesus Christ.

Anniversary Dinner.

On Monday evening the anniversary was continued in the annual Thanksgiving dinner, held in the basement of the church, given by the Ladies' Aid, of which Miss Nellie Webster is the president. A bountiful and appetizing meal was set forth and was much appreciated by the very large crowd, which gathered from far and near to celebrate the occasion.

After the supper a very fine concert was given in the auditorium under the auspices of the choir, assisted by Mrs. Pearl Barbara St. John, of Uxbridge, and Miss Gladys McIlmoyle, of Selwyn. Mrs. St. John, who made her first hit, pleasing the entire audience by the variety and excellence of her numbers. An Indian selection (given in costume) was exceedingly fine, also her rendering of Service's poem, "The Coward," and one of W. H. Drummond's habitant poems. Her encores were all bright, witty selections, well suited to the occasion.

Miss Gladys McIlmoyle is a petite little maiden, possessing undoubted talent, well worth development. The musical numbers were all up to the high standard of excellence which was set forth by the sacred programme of the Sunday services. All the numbers were well rendered and heartily appreciated, every performer filling his or her part without any friction, which reflected great credit on Mr. Madill and the choir. The following is the programme:

Chairman's remarks—Rev. C. S. Reddick.
Organ solo—Mr. Madill, "Processional March."
Chorus, choir—"Oh God of Harvest Praise."
Solo— Miss Gladys McIlmoyle, "Lullaby."
Reading — Mrs. St. John, "The Coward."
Solo—Mrs. S. Sutton, "Love's a Merchant."
Chorus—The choir, "Come to the Gay Feast of Song."
Piano duet—Mrs. C. S. Reddick and Mrs. G. Warren Payne.
Duet— Mesdames McMillan and Sutton.
Reading —Mrs. St. John, Indian selection.
Solo—Mrs. Burrows.
Chorus— The Choir, "Old King Cole."
Trio— Mesdames Burrows, McMillan and Sutton, "The Lost Chord."
Reading—Mrs. St. John.
Duet—Messrs. A. B. Burrows and Ralph Payne.
Piano duet — Mrs. Reddick and Mrs. Payne.
Chorus— The Choir, "Oh Light Eternal."

Before the close of the programme the pastor announced that the proceeds of the evening amounted to more than $285. A social is to be held on Tuesday evening.

Women Seek Employment In Slaughter House

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—Women have taken a hand in most of the trades and professions in Germany since granted the right to vote, excepting the butcher business, and now they are endeavoring to get into that. Several strong-armed women have been advertising in Berlin newspapers recently for jobs in slaughter houses, contending that because of their physical development and inclination they are fully qualified to do the work of men.

It has been the custom for years to employ women and girls as clerks in retail meat shops and in sausage factories, but not until lately has there been any indications of women taking up work in the slaughter houses themselves.

PREHISTORIC REMNANTS FOUND.

LOS ANGELES, November 13.—Another prehistoric inhabitant of Southern California yielded the secret of his last resting-place recently when R. E. Fisher, exploring the Santa Monica hills near here, stumbled across the remnants of the animal's spinal column.

Fisher found several vertebrae, ranging in diameter from 10 to 18 inches, and some smaller fragments of bones embedded in limestone that apparently had been fused by volcanic heat.

CIVILIZED MEN AND WOMEN BECOME OLD PREMATURELY.

One would think it would be the other way about. But this would leave out of the picture the effects of civilized peoples' denatured foods. ture provides them, thus they re- Savages live upon foods just as natain all their body-building properties. Civilized peoples refine out of their most important foodstuffs, the grains, their most important building materials, the mineral salts, vegetable fats and vitamins. Thus civilized bodies cannot so well stand the wear and tear of daily life, and they soon begin to grow old. White flour, refined "ghost cereals", white sugar, and refiners' syrup and other "denatured" foods do their work well in prematurely aging their votaries.

This aging tendency can be overcome to a great exten by restoring to natural, unrefined foods. Dr. Jacksons' Roman Meal is a natural whole grain food, made from whole rye flaxin and bran. It compensates the deficiencies of white flour, "ghost cereals', etc. Roman Meal renewed the youth of Dr. Jackson, its inventor, to such an extent that while at 55 he was a wreck at 65, he won a 1,300 mile bicycle contest from a man 30 years younger, actually ran away from his young competitor.

Roman Meal has 1,600 food units while beef has only 952. Roman Meal is thus seen to be the best body-building and strength producing food known. You ought to use Roman Meal. At grocers.

BECK ON STAND

mission decided that the chief engineer and Mr. Acres should accompany me. I don't know whose neglect it was that it isn't recorded; it was certainly dealt with. I didn't want the trip; it cost me a good deal more than it cost the Commission."

At one point in his testimony, Sir Adam Beck came into sharp conflict with Settell, his former secretary, and the author of the charges now under investigation. Touching upon the allegation that the expenses of private detectives employed to watch R. Home Smith's home during the radial campaign two years ago, had been charged to the Amherstburg Railway, Sir Adam declared that Settell had requested him to assign detectives to this task. Settell broke in with an emphatic denial.

Knew of Sotham's Work.

With reference to the charges against P. W. Sotham, former chief engineer of the Hydro, Sir Adam declared that the Commission had known, and had approved, of his doing outside work, provided it did not interfere with his services to them.

With reference to the charge that a sedan car had been taken to London under circumstances which amounted to "practical theft," Sir Adam declared that this was a second-hand car which he was using in order to save the expense of the larger car kept there for him. His head groom acted as chauffeur for the sedan.

As Sir Adam Beck left the stand, Mr. Brewster stated that so far as he was concerned, the Commission had dealt with all the matters contained in the Settell letter. He invited anyone else who wished to testify, to come forward.

Lucas Admits Use of Car.

The earlier evidence of the morning included testimony by Arthur Dunlap, former chauffeur, that commission cars had been driven to Markdale by Mr. Lucas' son, on several occasions. Mr. Lucas himself explained that this was during the period when he was a commissioner, and, by virtue of that office, had the use of a car. Since ceasing to be a commissioner, he testified, he had only driven once, or twice at the most, to Markdale in Hydro cars, and on those occasions, it had been on Hydro business.

H. E. Guilfoyle supplied data on several of the charges which were under investigation Tuesday. He stated that Sir Adam Beck had paid for the time of the Hydro chauffeur during a trip to New York in November of 1922, but had not paid or been charged for the time, on a similar trip to Philadelphia.

Beck Takes Stand.

In calling Sir Adam Beck, Mr. Brewster said: "Sir Adam, if you have any statement to make we would be pleased to hear it."

One charge taken up, was with reference to the alleged shadowing of the home of R. Home Smith, and of the charging of detectives' expenses to the Amherstburg and Windsor railway.

Blames Settell.

"The only recollection I have of the matter," Sir Adam stated, "was when the late assistant secretary came to me, very much alarmed, and said he thought I should know that people were congregating in Mr. Home Smith's house, who shouldn't be there. We often had alarming reports like this, but he insisted that he had reliable information, and that he would like to have it followed up——"

"I absolutely deny that, Mr. Commissioner," E. C. Settell broke in at this point.

"I am under oath, Your Honor, and I swear solemnly that is what he said," Sir Adam rejoined. He stated that he had authorized Settell to have detectives employed for the purpost of verifying his statements.

Denies Changing Minutes.

Mr. Lucas drew Sir Adam's attention to Settell's charge that he had altered Hydro minutes to suit himself.

"He's entirely wrong in his conclusions," stated Sir Adam. "It may have been that after my reading the minutes I noticed some technical terms that were not clear, but as to the pith of the minutes—if I had any changes to make I made the changes in the meeting and so did the other commissioners. Then the minutes were signed and that was the end of it.

Judge Snider: "Settell charged that you directed him to change minutes to suit yourself."

"That's absolutely false" replied Sir Adam with emphasis. "I haven't the faintest recollection of anything of the kind."

Sir Adam then told of Settell's position, how he started as secretary of the commission, and later was more of a private secretary to Sir Adam.

"He was my guide as to what I should pay for or otherwise. He had charge of my cheque book. He was supposed to see that I paid for everything chargeable to me. I can't recollect that I ever took exception to a single item that he put before me for payment. There were some that slipped through that I noticed myself and paid."

Sir Adam told how, when he noticed that some personal items had slipped through, he called in the heads of the departments and Mr. Guilfoyle, and pointed out to them the seriousness of allowing any of his personal expenses to slip through and be paid by the Hydro. He told them that they were his only protection, and urged upon them that no accounts be allowed to pass by which were chargeable to him.

"I must insist that every care be taken that none of these items be allowed to slip through," Sir Adam said he had stated.

Mr. Brewster: "Mr. Guilfoyle will remember that?"

"I suppose so. But the staff was the main thing. I told the staff."

Mr. Lucas mentioned the air lift patterns which Settell had charged were wrongly paid by the Hydro.

"I'm quite sure that I didn't order them. I would have expected the secretary or the treasurer of the Commission to bill me with these items if they were chargeable to me."

One reason some men don't marry is because they just naturally hate to see a woman starve to death.

BOUNTY HUNTERS ARE DISHONEST

TACOMA, Wash., November 13 — The coyote, the fox and the wolf long have stood as synonyms for wile, guile and resourcefulness, but many hunters have put these animals to shame, judging from accounts related by A. K. Fisher, of the Federal Biological Survey, who recently was here on an inspection trip.

Thousands of dollars have been collected illegally as bounties by dishonest hunters, Mr. Fisher declared. He said the most famous bounty fraud was perpetrated in Wisconsin, where $250,000 was paid on the heads of wolves which had been shipped in from Nevada. He added that about $180,000 was paid in a similar scheme in Pennsylvania before the deception was discovered.

"Wisconsin and Pennsylvania, where wolves were scarce, offered large bounties to get rid of these predatory animals," Mr. Fisher explained. "So several hunters went to Nevada, where wolves were plentiful and the bounty low, and shipped their bags to Wisconsin and Pennsylvania."

Another favourite trick of the bounty hunter, according to Mr. Fisher ,is to alter rabbit and squirrel scalps so they resemble young coyotes and wolves.

Reduce Your Fat Without Dieting

Years ago, the formula for fat reduction was "diet"—"exercise." Today it is "Take Marmola Prescription Tablets." Friends tell friends— these friends tell others. They eat substantial food, live as they like and still reduce steadily and easily without going through long sieges of tiresome exercise and starvation diet. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists the world over at one dollar for a box, or if you prefer you can order direct from the Marmola Co., General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

LABORITES APPEAL HELP SOCIALISTS

Liberal Party Has Ceased to be Effective Force in Political Life, Says Labor Party Appeal.

LONDON, Nov. 13.— (Canadian Press.)—"Our work now is to win people for Socialism," is the slogan in an appeal issued by the Independent Labor Party which is in the nature of a personal appeal signed by the late Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald, R. Smillies, Labor M.P. for Morpeth; John Wheatley, Minister of Health in the MacDonald Government; Miss Margaret Bondfield, Parliamentary Secretary to the Labor Department in the MacDonald Government; J. Maxton, Labor M. P. for Bridgeton Division of Glasgow, and J. Scurr, Labor M.P. for the Mile End Division of Stepney.

The appeal is to all Socialists who supported the labor cause in the recent general election. Results of election, the appeal states, shows that the first object of the Labor party was largely achieved in that the Liberal party has ceased to be an effective force in the political life of the country, and that the workers' organizations were solidly behind the Labor party.

WHY MOTHER EVE DONNED FIG LEAF

Miss Hoyt Is Not Certain Whether It Was For Style or Comfort.

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(United Press).—Whether Mother Eve started the foliage fashion in dress for vanity's sake or for comfort sake is a matter of conjection. Perhaps she felt the call for a touch of color. Or perhaps the days were growing chilly.

At any rate the women who followed her throughout the years combined both comfort and vanity in dress. Sometimes they went to one extreme and sometimes to the other. First came the girls who wore fur tunics wrapped about their bodies. Doubtless some of them tied these garments low about the hips for the sake of chic, whereas others found them more comfortable when tied about the small of the body—the waistline.

Later came the decided vanity era. There were ornaments for the ears, bracelets, necklaces, rings, etc., and as time went on the girls became discontent with the one outer garment and the trinket accessories and some clever woman conceived the idea of wearing underwear. When she did this she certainly started something. Corsets found their way into favor and no woman was considered a lady who did not wear one of these instruments of torture which was made on bone, steel and whatnot. A small waist became woman's most precious charm and to obtain one she added huge bustles, hips of hair and false fronts which gave her the appearance of a wasp. Over her pads she wore four or five petticoats and a dress lined in stiff buckram. But the worm turned!

Taking Them Off.

Ten years ago women discarded false hips and pads. They discarded all but one petticoat and this one was unstarched. They began to get back to the figure "au naturel" and as seasons rolled on, corsets became almost boneless, and they were finally discarded by the great majority of the women in the world. This was the first step backwards towards the styles of the Garden of Eden.

Today my little lady discards everything that is not actually necessary. She rolls her stockings, discards her gloves, her corset, her petticoat and, in trying to go nature one better, she wears a pink rubber thing about her body which melts off flesh as she trots about town or on the golf links. She wants no figure whatsoever, no curves, no extra frills, but just a straight boyish figure which shows itself quite brazzenly under a one-piece frock.

Perhaps the time may come when Eve's fig-leaf won't seem so old-fashioned after all. When that time comes—if it does come—we shall know whether Eve wore the fig-leaf for vanity's sake or for comfort's sake. But a word of precaution—

Melt girls, melt
Wear the rubber belt
A fig-leaf style
To be worth while
Must be worn on one who's svelte!

To Show the Curve.

After mentioning rubber girdles one naturally turns to the brassiere, for it is the next in importance as far as one's figure is concerned. We are getting away from those firm brassieres which merely mold one into a straight mass without showing the outline of the figure. The newer brassieres are made with the idea of showing the curve of the bust. They are made either in the bandeau effect where they are shirred in the centre front or held with a narrow band, or they are made in longer types, which are designed for the stout person, in which case they have darts which suggest the outline of the bust and at the same time hold the figure firm.

The woman who is under the 36-inch bust measure wears the bandeau preferably. This is cut very narrow in the centre front, with sufficient fullness to form the shape of the bust, and, with the narrow side and back. Almost any of the straight-around bandeaus will get away from the "flat" effect if they are shirred into a two-inch width at the centre seam. Shoulder straps are cut rather short on the smaller sized bandeau, as the high bustline is preferable to the low one, and the straps act as a support to the figure.

TORONTO, November 13. Canadian Press. — Percy Hambley, of the St. Patrick's N.H.L. Club, announced last night that local professionals have signed Reg. Reid, the star left wing of Seaforth O.H.A. Intermediate team. Reid is a clever player and is rugged and courageous enough to stand heavy going in the Pro. League. Reid comes here very highly recommended.

A WOUNDED BUCK ATTACKED HUNTER

Harry Caldwell, of Sault Ste. Marie, Had Exciting Time.

SAULT STE. MARIE, November 13. — Harry Caldwell, foreman at the Algoma Central Railway car shops, had a thrilling experience, while hunting deer at Gros Cap.

Having a rough and tumble with a buck is somewhat of an incident in the district, where peculiar things happen daily in the bush, but human brains and brawn triumphed in this affray, and Caldwell secured his game —a 250-pounder.

Thinking the buck was dead as a result of a bullet he fired, Caldwell walked up to the animal, which was lying outstretched on the ground, laid his rifle about six feet from the supposed carcass, and took out his knife to clean it.

But the buck was far from dead, and when the hunter got within range it pounced toward him, rising on all fours in mad rage. Its horns landed in Caldwell's belt and vest, breaking the belt in two, and tearing his clothes to shreds before he landed another shot, which ended the tussel.

THE ZINOVIEFF LETTER.

Writer of Letter Is Now Being Protected By Conservatives, Says the Wosska Gazet.

WARSAW, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press).—The Wosska Gazet, a Lemburg newspaper usually well informed on Russian affairs says alleged Zinovieff letter was divulged by chief of an important secret association of Moscow foreign office which directed propaganda in the British Dominions.

This official, the paper says, left Moscow, suddenly about the middle of October, taking with him the famous letter and other secret document concerning Bolshevisit propaganda in the British empire.

His departure spread consternation among soviet authorities and attempts were made to catch him at Berlin. He took an airplane to London where other agents of the Soviet tried to seize him upon landing but he again evaded them and handed the documents and the Zinovieff letter to Conservatives, who the account says, intended to use the letter in forthcoming debates in the house of commons on Anglo-Soviet relations.

The newspaper adds that man who took the documents to London is being kept hidden by the Conservatives for fear of an attack upon him by the Bolshevists.

HOME BANK CASE.

Third Home Bank Director Faces Trial—Case Outlined.

TORONTO, November 13. — The trial of J. F. M. Stewart, Toronto, a Home Bank director, on charges of making, using, approving and concurring in false statements of the bank's affairs, was started this morning, before Judge Coatsworth.

Mr. Stewart is the third director to face trial.

N. W. Rowell, K.C., and I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., are counsel for the defence, and D. L. McCarthy, K.C., is Crown prosecutor.

Mr. McCarthy, outlining the case to the court, before the evidence was taken, said that accused had been elected a director of the bank in June 1922, and was a regular attendant thereafter at all board meetings.

Before he had been a director one week, Mr. McCarthy declared that accused had arranged loans of $100,000 to the Mercantile Security Company, and $60,000 from Vancouver Branch to the Manufacturers Holding Co. A number of companies in which the accused was interested, also got increases on their loans from the bank after the accused had become director. Mr. McCarthy said that Mr. Stewart was deeply interested in, if not the originator of, the Reynolds Lumber Co., which got a large loan from the bank, and never paid even any interest, and Stewart, he stated, further was interested in two of Mr. Haney's companies, Port Credit Brick Company, and the Pointe Ann Quarry. Accused was interested in the West Coast Towing Company, and was present at the Board meetings, when Western Canada Pulp and Paper Company matters were discussed.

Mr. McCarthy contended that Mr. Stewart had knowledge and means of knowing the true condition of the bank.

On request of Mr. Rowell the annual reports as made by the Home Bank back as far as 1916, were put in as evidence through Mr. Roberts, secretary of the Department of Finance at Ottawa. Mr. Roberts was the only witness this morning. The trial will likely be the longest yet of the Home Bank cases.

WORK AT STANDSTILL.

May Need New Bill To Resume Work of Boundary Commission.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Irish boundary commission's work is at a stand still according to some of newspapers which say it may be necessary to pass another bill through British Parliament before it can be resumed. Commission met recently in London but after two meetings adjourned indefinitely. Difficulty is said to be that commission found itself powerless to summon witnesses and call for documents while it is also stated that commissioners were not agreed respecting scope of their work. Suggestion now is that these points will have to be cleared up by fresh legislation but nothing to this effect has come from official sources.

CORRECT STANDING.

Conservatives Have 412 Seats While Labor Are Next With 152.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press).—With a declaration to day of the election to Parliament of members of the combined Scottish Universities, resulting in the choice of one Liberal and two Conservatives, the final state of the parties in the House of Commons in the new Parliament will be as follows:

Conservatives	412
Labor	152
Liberals	42
Constitutionalists	3
Others	6
Total	615

GOVERNMENT RESIGNS.

Labor Ministry of Australia Defeated on No Confidence Vote.

MELBOURNE, Victoria, November 13 (Canadian Press). — G. M. Prendergast, Labour Premier of Victoria, resigned office to-day as a result of the defeat of his government yesterday in Parliament on a no-confidence vote by 34 to 28 and the refusal of Governor the Earl of Stradbroke to accede to his request for Parliamentary dissolution.

Following defeat, Parliament adjourned until 18th November.

The Labour ministry took office last July.

SEES DEATH

Death is beautiful. Harry Wright, of Chicago, says so. He and death got acquainted the other day when Wright pitched from the fifth floor of a skyscraper. In a fall of 100 feet all he suffered was a bad case of fallen arches. "The fall was like going to a show," said Wright. "I saw my whole life from the time I was a kid."

OPIUM CONFERENCE.

Committees Finding Will Not Likely Satisfy Those Who Demand Quick Suppression.

GENEVA, Nov. 13. — (Canadian Press).—The Commtssion of the international opium conference, which is expected to have preliminary session to-day on its finding on how best to curb the opium smoking in the far east probably will not satisfy those who demand a quick suppression of the narcotic evil.

The members of commission, who have been meeting privately for four days, frankly admitted this yesterday, when they examined they had been unable to reach an accord on any system of estimating how much opium was required by various far eastern possessions for opium smuggling.

IN WEST HASTINGS.

Premier King and Leader of Opposition Will Address Meetings.

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.— (Canadian Press).—According to present arrangements, Premier Mackenzie King will speak in West Hastings on Monday, November 24th., the day before the electors go to the polls. Dates for visit of opposition leader, Arthur Meighen to the constituency have not yet been definitely decided on but it is probable that he will be there on the 18th 19th., and 20th. Mr. Meighen has been in the west but returns to Ottawa on Saturday.

BULL DOZING METHODS.

High Lights in the Montreal Police Enquiry.

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.— (Canadian Press).—That two constables and civilian held him at Lonely corner, went through his pockets and finding he had no money severely "beat him up" and took him to police station where they charged him with assaulting them, was stated at local police enquiry before Mr. Justice Coderre this morning by Honore Demers chief mechanic at Legare automobile plant.

Finding he had no money, Demers stated the men took him to his house for key to his garage. When there he tried to prevent the entering by threatening them with a shot gun, but they assaulted him violently took him to station and charged him with assault.

Several members of Demers' family corroborated his story. He said that in consideration of charge against him being reduced to one of simple assault instead of assaulting constable with fire arms. He had finally been induced to pay for damage, one of the policemen said he had done to his coat. Demers named the constables.

LITERARY MEETING.

R. J. Soden Addressed Meeting at Springville Last Evening.

The Young People's Christian Literary Association of Springville Presbyterian Church held an entertaining and profitable literary meeting on Wednesday evening, November, 12th, when R. J. Soden of Peterboro, kindly gave an evening with Dr. Drummond, the habitant poet. Mr. Soden being a cousin and personal friend of the poet had a fund of most interesting incidents of his life character. Mr. Soden also delighted the audience with several excellent readings of his habitant poems.

The musical part of the programme was ably executed by Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Fowler, Miss D. Murray and Miss M. Clarke.

BLEW OFFICE UP.

Three Men Killed In Postal Department of American Service.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 13 —(Canadian Press).—Postal inspectors from Chicago arrived early today to aid local inspectors in the investigation of the explosion which wrecked the loading dock and receiving room of the main Post Office here late yesterday, killing three men and injuring twelve others. Herman Pettersch, clerk, succumbed after having both legs blown off, and Ernest A. Roth, truck driver, died three hours after the blast. A splinter was driven into Roth's body by the force of the explosion. Dale Newhouse, who suffered a fractured skull, died in hospital this morning. Although no fragment of a bomb or other explosive was found, the postal authorities, police and firemen believe the blast was caused by a premature explosion of a bomb sent through the mails.

why the needle indicates a higher

Too many drivers have the idea that the oil guage shows how much oil the pump is throwing to the bearings. It registers the pressure and not volume. An air or water guage tells a different story from the important device on your instrument board.

If you run out of oil, the gauge needle will register zero, but that is because the pump is running without oil.

After your engine is warmed up, a load. The pressure under which the pump operates depends on the consistency of the oil and the obstruction in its path.

New oil, of course, is heavier than that which has been used for several hundred miles and it requires more force to get it through the distribution lines. Cold oil is also heavier than when it is warm. That is pressure when you start out in the morning than after you have driven four or five miles.

If there is any leak by your piston rings, and there is some in the majority of cars, the mixture is forced down into the crankcase on the compression stroke. Being cooler there than in the combustion chamber, the vapor condenses and the gasoline mixes with the oil. That is called crankcase diluting—thinning out the notice the position of the needle. The longer you drive and the hotter the oil gets the lower the pressure should be. If you notice that the needle has gone over against the peg on the right when it has been holding its own around a certain figure, serious obstruction in the distribution line is indicated.

If you can not blow it out by racing the engine a little, you had better call a mechanic. It may save a bearing.

LIVELY MEETING HELD TORONTO

J. A. McCausland, M.P.P., Attacks Premier's Ways of Governing and Says Party Is Doomed.

TORONTO, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press).—When a party sinks so low that it sends emissaries to meetings within the party to ask anti-British questions, exclaimed J. A. McCausland, M.P.P., at a meeting of the Conservative Club last night, "then that party is doomed to failure." It was patent that the party he referred to was the Conservative party.

It was the O.T.A. that caused the rupture, said Mr. McCausland, who scored Premier Ferguson for his premature announcement of the Government's course after October 23.

"After the plebiscite," he declared, "Mr. Ferguson consulted three members of the Cabinet only, absolutely ignoring the opinion of the House, whatever it might be. The Premier said that he would keep his word to the people. He kept his word, not to the people, but to T. Albert Moore."

The speaker went on to predict the dire things that would happen to the Premier's hold on the country "if he ignored the large wing of his Toronto supporters."

Then Dr. A. C. Hendricks, vice-president of the club, arose and proceeded to try to adjust matters.

He failed. It was like pouring oil on smoldering fire.

Eventually the meeting decided to hear Mr. McCausland.

He declared he represented his constituents first, and he would continue to voice their opinion as long as he was a member of the House, "Premier Ferguson or no Premier Ferguson."

"I will resign my seat," he declared, "if Mr. Ferguson desires it, and I'll run as an Independent Conservative. The Province will continue to exist," he cried, "even if Mr. Ferguson is not Premier."

At these words a member of the Club leaped to his feet. "I thought I was in a Conservative Club. I'm mistaken. I'm going," he said, and stalked out.

10 YEARS FOR MRS. WILLOW.

Woman in Murder Case Receives Same Sentence as Boy Accomplice.

MIDDLEBURG, Pa., Nov. 13. — Maximum sentence of not less than ten years in the Eastern Penitentiary at solitary confinement and hard labor, was imposed by Judge Potter upon Mrs. Annie S. Willow, thirty-eight years old, who was convicted of murder in the second degree on October 18, as an accessory in the murder of her husband, Harvey C. Willow.

The sentence was the same as the one imposed upon Ralph H. Shadel, eighteen years old, the hired man on the Willow farm, who confessed he shot to death his employer while hunting last December at the behest of the woman with whom he was in love.

LEAF OF PAPYRUS MANY YEARS OLD

30 Verses of the 26 Chapter of Matthew Is Written On It.

LONDON, November 13. — A crumpled leaf of papyrus, believed to date from about A.D. 300, upon which is written more than 30 verses of the 26th chapter of the Gospel of Matthew, was recently discovered by H. D. Bell, an expert of the British Museum, while sorting a collection of papyri, consisting of 487 items, destined for the library of the University of Michigan.

The text is substantially complete, except at the bottom of the leaf, where the corner had been torn off, so that the ends of four lines and the lowest line on the right hand page are gone; and also the beginning of four lines at the bottom of the page on the opposite side.

The passage commences with the words thus translated in the King James' version, verse 19: "(As) Jesus had appointed them, and they made ready for the passover." Incomplete line, end contains words from verse 52: "Shall perish with the sword."

The passage is of interest to all denominations because of its account of the last supper and the betrayal. The text is carefully wrtten. Perhaps the most striking difference from the King James' version is in verse 28, where the translation reads: "For this is my blood of the new testament." Moffat's translation reads "This means my blood, the new covenant." Here the text of the papyrus, in agreement with certain ancient manuscrips, and some editions, omits the "new."

SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

Mr. A. Mowat Gave Interesting Talk on New Regulations in Schools.

With a splendid attendance, the regular monthly meeting of Queen Alexandra Home and School Association was held on Wednesday evening, the 12th inst., the president, Mrs. H. G. Walker, in the chair.

Regret was expressed that the school had lost Miss Rush, who was so beloved by the little children. The best wishes of the association go with her.

It was decided to have discussions among the members, to stimulate interest in the monthly meetings. The December topic will be "The Advantages or Disadvantages of Home-work!"

Mr. A. Mowat gave a most interesting talk on the new regulations in the schools. All but essential subjects are to be eliminated, to enable a child of six years to be ready for entrance at fourteen years, allowing one year for changing schools, sickness, etc. In this way the pupil will receive more advanced education before the restless period comes. A more systematic form of religious instruction is to be inaugurated. Games give the necessary exercise and all go to the building of health, strength, character and intelligence. The home must co-operate and encourage the children in work and allow them to be happy with a hobby.

Miss Edgar, accompanied by Mr. F. Mann, gave two pleasing vocal solos.

After the singing of God Save the King, light refreshments were served, and all enjoyed the sociability of "a cup o' tea."

The banner was won by Junior Fourth, Mr. F. H. Dearborn's room.

BIG ORANGE NIGHT.

Imperial Lodge of Toronto Will Visit Peterboro Next Week.

Imperiol L.O.L. No. 2767 of the City of Toronto will pay a fraternal visit to the Orangemen of Peterboro and vicinity on Friday evening, November 21st, when a large class of candidates for initiation will be put through. After the degree work a banquet will be tendered the visitors by members of the L.O.B.A., and all brethren wishing tickets must secure them early as space will be limited. Many prominent Orangemen of Toronto will be present, and altogether a real big night is hoped for. Further announcements as to parade and arrival of train will be made through the press at a later date.

TIMES EDITOR WRITES ABOUT POLITICAL ROW

Says Woodrow Wilson Separated Lloyd George and Georges Clemenceau.

WILSON FUTILE.

British Premier Had Frenchman By Collar Demanding An Apology.

(By Lloyd Allen—United Press Staff Correspondent).

LONDON, Nov. 13. — Woodrow Wilson separated Lloyd George and Georges Clemenceau when the British Premier had the Frenchman by the collar and was demanding an apology for being called a liar, Wickham Steel, former editor of the Times, discloses in his book, "Through Thirty Years," published to-day.

The row occurred during the Versailles Peace Conference and led to Clemenceau, challenging Lloyd George to a duel, Steel says. The book, purporting to give what is known in American slang as "inside stuff," is certain to cause a sensation.

"Clemenceau flatly accused Lloyd George of repeated inaccuracy," the editor says, describing the incident referred to. "Lloyd George rose and seized Clemenceau by the collar demanding an apology. Woodrow Wilson separated them. Then Clemenceau offered Lloyd George reparation with pistols or swords—as soon as the British Prime Minister should have resided in France long enough to acquire a domicile, and meanwhile the 'Tiger' refused to apologize."

On another occasion, Steed says, he himself suggested to Clemenceau, that the French Premier talk with Wilson and ascertain what he wanted.

"Talk to Wilson," Steed quotes Clemenceau as retorting, "how can I talk to a man who thinks himself the first man for two thousand years who has known anything about peace on earth? Wilson imagines he is a second Messiah. He believes he is sent to give peace to the world, and that his pre-conceived notions are the only notions worth having.

"I've done everything to gratify him—receive him at the foot of the staircase as though he were the King of England, but still he's not satisfied."

Clemenceau added, Steed says, that talking to Wilson was futile, that they would never reach an understanding.

BLACK SMALLPOX IN MINNEAPOLIS

There Are Now About 150 Isolated Cases in the City.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Menaced by an epidemic of black small pox, which it is said has been brought from across the Canadian border, Minneapolis authorities, working with public health officials, have taken steps to stamp out the disease.

The situation in Minneapolis is reported here to be duplicated all along the border from Buffalo west. Public health officials believe they have all danger eliminated, with only about 150 isolated cases in the city.

During the last five weeks 250,000 persons in Minneapolis alone have been vaccinated and 200,000 more in other portions of the State.

St. Paul is going through the same intensive treatment.

WILD HORSE ACTS ONLY FOR TRAINER

Rex Breathes Defiance Of Man-Made Conventions and Captivity.

Rex, the registered Morgan stallion featured by Hal Roach in "The King of Wild Horses," a Pathe-picture to be shown to-night at the Royal Theatre, was anything but tame when Fred Jackman commenced the film.

When found by Roach's horse trainer, "Chick" Morrison, who had gone to Colorado seeking a horse suitable for the story, Rex was chained in a stall as a matter of public safety—he had killed several and maimed others.

Now Rex occupied the finest stall in Hal Roach's stables. He's an equine gentleman and a motion picture star. But he is still extremely dangerous when it comes to strangers. He knows "Chick" Morrison, and he sometimes gets boisterously playful with his trainer. He will work before the camera like a seasoned trouper, but in everything he does he seems to say, with a snort of defiance to his new master:

"You know, I don't have to go through all this foolishness if I don't want to. You asked me to and I'm doing it for you, but I wouldn't if I didn't feel like it."

Rex is a lithe, graceful thing of beauty and power. He will be until death. A halter or saddle seem out of place on him. He fairly breathes defiance of captivity and man-made conventions. It is this almost tangible personality that makes him magnificent on the screen. It is what stamps "The King of Wild Horses" unique among motion pictures.

Only Horse Of Its Kind Ever Filmed

WORLD WAR SHOTS GIVEN TO SPAIN

Battlefields of France Giving Up Unexploded Ammunition to Help Revolution.

(By Webb Miller—United Press Staff Correspondent).

SOISSONS, France, Nov. 13. — The battlefields of France are giving up their unexploded ammunition to the cause of the revolution in Spain. Arms, shells and grenades left behind when the Allies and the Germans quit the fields are being gathered up and sold to Spanish plotters against the King and directorate.

An extensive plot was discovered to-day at Soissons. The wheat fields across which the Americans fought in the summer of 1918 are being cleared and great quantities of ammunition obtained.

The police here to-day have arrested two Spaniards, Sereno Bletz and Rodriguez Juano, and charged them with purchasing grenades from gangs of workmen who are cleaning up the battlefields. From the prisoners it was learned that considerable quantities of arms had already been secured.

CONFERENCE OF THE PROVINCES

Income Tax, Succession Duties and Other Subjects Proposed For Discussion.

MANY PROBLEMS.

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press.)— The calling of a further conference to deal with the problems which arise from time to time in the administration of Provincial affairs is urged in a resolution passed yesterday by the conference being held here between Hon. J. A. Robb, acting minister of finance and representatives of seven of the provincial governments.

A spokesman for the conference stated that it had been found that the problem arising out of the administration of public affairs in the various provinces, presented so many varied aspects, that the solution of such problems would be materially assisted by the further interchange of opinion.

The resolution passed by the conference is as follows:

"Be it resolved that a conference be called at the joint request of the premiers of Ontario and Quebec to deal with the problems which arise from time to time in the administrationef provincial affairs and for the purpose of such conference, but not in any way limiting the scope thereof, that the following be the agenda:

1. Overlapping departments, where joint federal and provincial jurisdiction is being exercised.
2. The consideration of income tax as to collection and allocation.
3. Exemption of all purchases by and on behalf of provincial governments from operation of sales tax.
4. Adjustment of federal subsidies bear a reasonable be ration to provincial expenditures.
5. Provincial taxation of all nationally operated railroads.
6. Interprovincial relations in respect to succession duties.
7. Consideration of measures for the reduction of taxation and further economics in administration.

The conference which concluded its work yesterday was attended by the following: From Ontario: Hon. W. H. Price, provincial treasurer and J. T. White, solicitor to the treasury; Quebec: Hon. Jacob Nichol, provincial treasurer; Nova Scotia: Hon. D. A. Cameron, provincial treasurer, Hon. H. C. Tory and A. S. Barnstead; New Brunswick: Hon. J. E. Michaud; Prince Edward Island: Hon. J. D. Stewart, premier; Manitoba: Hon. F. M. Black, provincial treasurer :Alberta: Hon. R. G. Reid, provincial treasurer.

BULLS AND BEARS IN DRAWN BATTLE

Recessions in Some Stocks and New High Levels For Others.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press)—The battle between the bulls and the bears on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday continued with unabated fury with the day's honors about evenly divided at the close. On total sales that exceeded 2,420,000 shares, or less than 50,000 shares below the record established Tuesday the general industrial prices average advanced slightly while the general railroad average declined.

Prices of many of the popular industrials and rails, such as U.S. Steel Common, Baldwin, American Can., Southern Pacific, New Haven, Union Pacific and St. Paul, bowed one to 3½ points under the towering load of profit-taking sales and bear selling but they did not break, apparently because there were too many investors and speculators who had not shared in the first outburst of post-election strength, waiting to pick up stocks on recessions.

Meanwhile, bullish operations continued with increased vigor in other sections of the list, at least fifty stocks climbing to new 1924 high records during the session. Shifting of speculative interest from one group to another indicated that profits piled up in some of the recent strong spots were being converted into cash and re-invested in other issues believed to be "out of line" with the general market. At times the ticket tape was twenty minutes behind the market. Some unscrupulous speculators tried to take advantage of this fact shortly after noon by spreading wild rumors that U. S. Steel was then selling two points below the ticket quotations, but the ruse failed to work.

Beauty

A Gleamy Mass of Hair

35c "Danderine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through the hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance.

While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears Get a bottle of delightful, refreshing "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter and just see how healthy and youthful your hair becomes.

VETERAN NOTES

Armistice Night was celebrated at the G. W. V. A. Hall last night when some five hundred veterans and their friends spent a most enjoyable evening.

A splendid programme had been prepared by the committee, and its chairman, Comrade W. C. Nicholls.

During the evening, Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., of the Provincial Legislature, gave a short address appropriate to the occasion.

At the conclusion of the concert, dancing was indulged in up to midnight, and all present were unanimous that the evening was a most enjoyable one.

The chairman and the committee desire to express their thanks to all the artists who took part, to Mr. R. J. Devey, and Mr. Barnshaw, who played the accompaniments; also to Miss Black, Miss Wade and Master L. Abraham, who supplied the music for the dancing.

Solos were given by the following artists: Miss Guerin, Mr. Grieves, Mr. A. Lee, Mr. E. Bailey, Mr. D. Kerr, Mr. S. Willis, Miss Bates and Mr. Stephenson.

During the evening the drawing for the membership campaign took place under the direction of the Commander, R. E. Layfield, Miss Muriel Kent and Master Walter Sharman making the draw, which resulted, as follows:

1st, No. 279, F. Dainton.
2nd, No. 26, F. Smith.
3rd, No. 700, D. Calder.
4th, No. 132, W. G. Hall.
5th, No. 58, A. E. Miller.
6th, No. 604, W. L. Evans.
7th, No. 695, E. E. Nicholls.
8th, No. 34, A. E. Pritchard.
9th, No. 399, S. Spooner.
10th, No. 105, F. Hills.

The total receipts from the sale of Poppies on Saturday last amounted to $1044.44 which will probably reach $1100.00 when the returns for wreaths etc., are included. The officers and members wish to thank all those who kindly assisted to sell poppies and to the Children's Aid Society for the loan of the boxes. After the deduction of the cost of the poppies their will be a balance of over seven hundred dollars.

The regular weekly whist drive will be held to-night. Everybody invited to come and have a good time.

PREVENTS MOTHS.

It is well to keep wool clothes you are not wearing in pine tar bags to keep the moths from them. Have them cleaned before putting them in so no moth eggs lurk in them.

The Affair at Flower Acres

By Carolyn Wells

©1924 by NEA Service Inc.

"Maybe—maybe not." Zizi was in her most flippant mood. "Anyway, you can tell us other things—and don't you refuse now, or I'll have the law on you!"

As she had fully expected, Grim Gannon's face paled at the threat, made fearful by the low tense voice and the piercing gleam from the black eyes.

"What do you want to know?" Gannon blurted out.

"About the will," he said, in a low, even voice. "Where is it?"

"I don't know—I haven't got it."

"You had the copy—the little Fay girl found it."

"Yes—but I haven't the will itself—the signed will."

"All right, then I know who has. Now, see here, Gannon—what do you know of Douglas Raynor's past? If you'll come across with that, I'll let up on the will business—for the present."

"What do you mean—his past? He never did anything wrong——"

"Oh, didn't he? Well, I say he did. And, furthermore, I say you know all about it—and you used this knowledge for——"

"Don't say it!" Gannon put up his hand as if to ward off a blow. "Don't say that word—it isn't true!"

Wise saw at once the old man was afraid of being accused of blackmail.

He believed that Gannon had been persuaded to steal the will by a stronger nature than his own—Lionel Raynor's, of course—and that Gannon even now regretted it.

But it had to be proved, and Wise set to work to verify his opinions.

By the dint of careful and adroit questioning, by judicious hints of 'the law," and by means of some help here and there from Zizi, Wise finally drew from him the disgraceful story of Raynor's life in so far as it affected the dead man's widow.

"Yes," old Gannon recapitulated, "I knew he lied to Miss Kent—as she was then. I knew he made up that yarn about her father being a criminal—a forger—I knew he made her marry him because if she didn't he'd split on her father, and she'd be disgraced and her father'd be put in jail, and her brother'd die of shame—and, well, Raynor put it to that girl in such a way that she couldn't get out of marrying him unless she brought her whole family down to the dregs of disgrace. And it wasn't true—it wasn't true!" The old man waxed furious now. "I know the truth! Douglas Raynor committed that forgery himself! I know it! I've always known it, and Raynor knew I knew it! That's why he gave me this house—gave me money—let me have my own way! That's why he was afraid of me—and he was afraid of me! He used to beg me not to tell his wife of his fraud on her——"

"Did you threaten to do so?"

"Yes, I did! To see him cringe and crawl and beg for mercy. Oh, I had no intention of telling her—but I loved to scare him!"

The old man shook with hysterical emotion, that was between laughter and anger. Then he sobered down, suddenly.

"But she found out," he said, almost in a whisper. "She found out—not not through me—but she overheard some words we said one night, and she gathered that he had deceived her about her father."

"What did she do?" Zizi asked, breathlessly.

"She went straight to Raynor and taxed him with it. He denied it, of course—she couldn't prove it—so she could do nothing. But—after she knew—I, for one, don't blame her for killing him."

"Hush!" Wise said sternly, "we don't know that she did kill him. Tell me exactly of what he accused her father."

"Why, he told her that her father had committed a forgery—long ago, you know—in his younger days. He said that he, Raynor, was the only one who knew the truth, that unless she married him he would expose her father's guilt, and that if she would marry him, it could remain hushed up forever."

"Didn't she ask her father about it?"

"No: he was an invalid—really very ill. The shock might kill him—Raynor told her. Also, he said, the disgrace would kill Orville Kent, who is of a proud sensitive nature, and delicate as well. So, to save the bunch, she married that devil——"

"Without proving his story!" cried Zizi.

"How could she? She had no one to ask but her own family or this suitor."

"And she was in love with Mr. Finley at the time?" asked Zizi.

"That I can't say; but they were acquainted, I know. When she said yes to Raynor, they were married very soon and settled down here at Flower Acres. Her father lived but a short time after that, and she put up with her brute of a husband for nearly two years before she discovered what he had done to her. Then—well, I'm inclined to think she took matters into her own hands."

"I'm inclined to think so, too," said Pennington Wise, gravely. "All this puts a new light on it. The fearful truth coming home to her, the impossibility of living with that man after she had learned of his perfidy, and then the added agony of seeing again the man whom she must have loved before her marriage—whom she surely loves now—oh, what other theory is there?"

"Does he—brother—does Mr. Kent know?" Zizi asked.

"I'm not sure," said Gannon. "If he does, she had told him lately, for she has tried to keep it from him all along. No, I don't think he knows anything about it at all. But, of course, he knows of the terrible life his sister led with her husband, and it has made him sad and ill. Orville Kent is a queer man, but he has a round heart and a deep affection for his sister. She has cared for him like a mother all his life."

Grim Gannon leaned back in his chair as if he had now settled the affairs of the universe.

He scarcely noticed his callers' farewells, and they left him drowsing over his old pipe.

Crossing the lawns they met Orville Kent coming toward them.

"I want to give myself up," he said, speaking steadily, but with a nervous twitching of his long fingers. "I killed my brother-in-law, Douglas Raynor."

Wise gave a quick glance at Zizi.

"Mr. Kent," he said, kindly, "I know you think this sacrifice of yourself for your sister is a right thing to do. And I appreciate the love and affection that it shows to have you willing to take even crime on your shoulders to life it from hers. I know how black the case is against her—I know how you have tried to devise some means of getting her freed from suspicion. And I know that now, when you can't help seeing that the net is tightening round her—the last doubts of her guilt vanishing—I know that, in your utter desperation, you have concluded to swow the crime yourself, and take her punishment. But, Mr. Kent, this is not so easy a matter to accomplish as it seems to you, and I'm going to advise you against your plan. I'm going to ask you to give me 24 hours at least, to find out the real truth."

"Take your 24 hours, Mr. Wise," said Kent, slowly.

It's Never Too Late for Clues.

Pennington Wise was in the sun parlor studying the room once more.

"A little late for clues, isn't it, Mr. Detective?" Lionel Raynor said, in a tone more jovial than sarcastic.

Young Raynor, though not liked at first, had gradually made himself more acceptable to the family. He had quite won the heart of Miss Mattie, he got on well with the men, and, except for Nan, he was friendly all round. But he was so positive that it was Nan who shot his father that no arguments could change his opinion.

As to his inheritance, he was jauntily confident in his present ownership of the whole estate, and reserved any discussion until the matter of the murder should be settled, one way or another.

Orville Kent puzzled Wise. The young man was so moody, as well as physically upset that Wise was interested in him aside from the matter in hand. Kent's strongest trait—or, so it seemed to Wise—was his affection for his sister. He worshipped her with a dumb, dog-like devotion, after evident in his glances at her, while he said no word.

Wise was not at all surprised when Kent assumed the burden of the guilt. He held that there are some natures not only capable of a great sacrifice for a loved one, but who really glory in it. It is the stuff of which the early martyrs were made.

After Kent had made his sudden and impulsive confession and Wise had asked for 24 hours' further search, the detective was a very busy man.

And so, later that evening, he was going over the sun parlor floor again.

TROUBLED WITH ECZEMA YEARS

In Pimples Between Knee and Ankle. Itched Badly. Cuticura Healed.

"I was troubled with eczema for three or four years. It broke out in pimples between my knee and ankle and itched badly, especially at night. The irritation caused me to scratch and the scratching caused eruptions.

"I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it helped me. I purchased more, and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Alice Clark, Marshfield, Vt., July 16, 1923.

Keep your skin clear by using Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum for every-day toilet purposes. Touch pimples and itching, if any, with Cuticura Ointment. Bathe with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Dry and dust lightly with Cuticura Talcum.

Kiwanis Beat K. of C. and Lock Works Win From the C.N.R.

The Kiwanis edged out the Knights of Columbus by one run when they took the narrow margin of an 8 to 7 score in a close and exciting opener in last evening's soft ball entertainment.

The Caseys took the lead and blanked the Kiwanis until the fourth At that period it was 2-0 for the losers. Then the Kiwanis got to Murphy for five hits and five runs. The Knights got one more in the fifth. The Knights gained the lead in the ninth with three runs but Murphy weakened and the Kiwanis got two tallies before they were retired and won the fixture.

McLean on his second successive game twirled nicely striking out eight and issuing one pass. Murphy also held up his end and fanned seven, his defense, however was weaker.

OSHAWA OPPOSES PETERBORO ENTRY

Would Lose Day in Playing Hockey Games Here—Have Strong Team.

WANT OLD GROUP.

OSHAWA, Nov. 12.—Oshawa will be represented by as good a team as last season, if not better. Of the "vets" of past years who are anxious to again get in harness are "Dick" Smith, the old reliable net guardian; Russ Williams, Sammy Lowe, Jack Smith, with a possibility of Walt Fair again donning the blades and all four working out for the defence positions; "Kip" Rowden and a Winnipeg hockey player who has located here, skidding the boards on right wing; Carl Houck and Strip Stevens, the two Uxbridge boys, to face off at centre and Morris, the Owen Sound boy, and Avery, formerly of Bowmanville, on left wing. These are the only boys known previous to the arrival of cold weather, but when Jack Frost arrives with nip enough to put ice at Bradley's Arena, one or more dark horses are likely to have their blankets removed.

The local intermediates are strongly adverse to Peterboro's entry into the Lakeshore group, as with the industrial conditions in their present shape, the boys do not see the point of having to loose a full day's pay. The trip to the Lift Lock City could only be made by leaving on the afternoon train and arriving back in town about noon of the next. Another feature in connection with the trip would be the heavy expense. No doubt the local club will have a delegate at the annual meeting of the Ontario Association to argue against the entry of Peterboro.

Looking over the other towns, Port Hope, Whitby and Bowmanville—the former is likely to line up minus their big defence player Carter, but they have the Hills Bros., Ware Bros., Micks, Han, Jex, Harwood and Lockington, a junior graduate, who need no letters of introduction to the rail birds ot this city.

Ginger Edgar's crew from Bowmanville, which should have been higher up in the standing of Intermediate Group No. 3 last year, will be back almost entact looking for revenge. Avery, who is in Oshawa, will likely be their only absentee. Those who will trot out on the steel blades in a rubber town outfit are: F. Spry, the boy who was a sensation in a couple of games last year, will again be guarding the nets, with A. Piper and A. Densem in front of him; I. Piper at centre, should be a few goals better than his last year's performance; on the wings the evergreen youth Shinny Moise, will hook up with Hooper, Crosby and Cannons.

Whitby, the County Town entry, will the same as Oshawa again sandwich age with youth, for with O'Connor, Rice and Lavery, the old standbys, will be Tommy Southwell, C. Bundy, G. Charlton and Dick Hall, the diminitive centre boy who wore an Oshawa uniform last year, J. Sleightholm and A. Myne.

PLAYER TO GET PART OF HIS PURCHASE PRICE

Proposal from the Athletics to Meeting of Major Leagues.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Ball players who are sold for fabulous sums will receive part of the purchase price, if a suggestion as to a change in the rules is adopted at the annual joint meeting of the major leagues in New York next month. The proposl was submitted to Commissioner Landis by the Philadelphia Americans and asks that when a player is sold for $10,000 or more, the player shall receive 10 per cent. of the money involved.

This proposal among others was sent to night to all major league club owners for their consideration prior to the winter gathering.

Players at present are paid such amounts as the interested clubs decide upon at the present time of the transfer.

The New York Yankees have submitted a proposal which would restrict major clubs to fifty players, exclusive of ineligible or voluntarily retired players, prior to June 15, but provides that the number must be reduced between that date and August 31 to twenty-five players.

RIGHT ARM STRONGER

Ambidexterous Swede, Who Is Javelin Throwing Champion, Got 800 Inches Distance Out of Right Arm More Than With Left.

By JOE WILLIAMS.

Gunnar Lindstrom of Sweden has just broken the world record for throwing the javelin, with a mark of 66.62 meters. The old record was 66.10 meters, held by John Myrra of Finland.

Myrra won the Olympic championship last July. Lindstrom was second in the event.

A javelin, if perchance you haven't yet met one face to face, is a long steel-tipped spear and is thrown with a swishing arm movement somewhat after the manner of a ball thrown from the outfield.

For years the Swedes and the Finns have monopolized top honors in the event. Myrra's old mark, for instance, was made five years ago. Until Lindstrom came along Myrra was considered the wonder man of the spears. The Ty Cobb of that sport.

* * *

This indicates, among other things, that a man trained for the purpose has nearly 800 inches more throwing power in his right arm than his left. Lindstrom hurled the lance more than 20 meters farther with his right. A meter, as you know, is a fraction more than 39 inches.

What would the ambidexterous Swede do in this country as a baseball pitcher or a forward passer on the gridiron?

What would be the effect on a batter facing a pitcher capable of throwing a ball with equal power with either hand, and not knowing in advance which delivery to expect? A trifle bewildering at best.

* * *

There have been ambidexterous pitchers in baseball but none of them ever made any marked progress. It seems to be no trick at all for a batter to change from right to left, as Frankie Frisch of the Giants does, for example, but it's something else again with the pitchers.

Of even greater rarity is the ambidexterous golfer. We have seen Joe Kirkwood play several trick shots left-handed but the records fail to disclose any top ranking player who was impartially gifted with either hand. Whether this could be turned into an advantage is a problem.

Generally a golfer is reluctant to try anything different if he is going well, and when adversity does suggest that he make a change he promptly proceeds to go worse.

So maybe that's why we have no right and left-handed swingers.

QUEENS PLAY TIGERS AT VARSITY STADIUM

Switch Home Game to Toronto Because They Need the Money.

KINGSTON, Nov. 13.—After conferring for two hours late yesterday the Athletic Board of Control of Queen's University decided that Queen's will go to Toronto to meet the Hamilton Tigers in the semi-finals of the Eastern Canada playoffs.

This decision was reached after careful consideration of facts from all angles, and the question of finance made it necessary for Queen's to adopt the plan of playing the Tigers in the Queen City. It was pointed out by members of Board after the meeting, that the question of finance confronting Queens is a big one. Queens had brought two Western teams east and had lost money. The men had worked hard this year and it was felt that it would be working in vain to play the game here for a small gate again. Should Queens meet with enough financial success this year to put them at ease they will not again attempt the Dominion finals.

MATCHES

The world now spends 200 million dollars a year for matches. Careless handling of matches starts many fires. The worst form of this carelessness is throwing a glowing match from a railroad car window. Countless forest fires start that way.

If people would be extremely careful with matches and camp fires, the forest-fire problem wouldn't amount to much. These fires are depleting our forests. They increase everybody's cost of living, for such losses eventually are buttered out over the whole population.

EXAMINER LEAGUE

At the Water Street Alleys last night, eight teams from the Examiner League were seen in action. Some good scores were rolled and close games were a feature, and some of the game were won by from one pin to ten.

The Comps took two out of three from the Linos; the Jobbers three straight from the Monos; the Pressmen two out of three from the Directors, and the Proofers two out of three from the Casters. The Jobbers still continue to be the sensation of the league. Their three straight from the Monos last night is ample proof. Starting two weeks ago with no wins and six losses to their credit, this team staged a great comebatk and have won their last nine starts, They are now in second place with nine wins and six losses.

G. Cairns was high man of the evening for three games with a good score of 622. H. McCauley had the high single with 290. This gives McCauley the high single of the league to date. Other good scores were rolled and quite a number were well over the 500 mark.

The following are the scores:

REBECCA LADIES LEAGUE

Last night at the Water Street Alleys the Wrens won two out of three from the Orioles. The second game ended in a tie and the captains each rolled one ball with the result that Miss Henry won the game by two points.

Miss Taylor had the high three games of the eveninf with a total of 354, while Miss Kimberley had the high single of 162. All the scores in this league were good, and only a few pins separated each bowler.

Following are the scores:

LADIES' MERCANTILE LEAGUE

Remarkable rolling featured the games in the Ladies' Mercantile League at the Water Street Alleys last night, when the Quaker Oats took three straight from the Richard Hall ladies. The Quakers had the advantage on their opponents, who had never bowled in competition before. However, the Richard Hall team made a great showing. The Quaker Oats total number of pins for the game, 2012, is worth noting.

Miss Porter had the high three games with a notable score of 510. Miss Warner was next with 424. In addition to having the high three games Miss Porter also had the high single of 212. Other good singles were: Miss Warner 179 and Miss Vincent 158.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

The Knights of Columbus new five-pin league got away to a good starts last night at the Water Street Alleys. Wolfe's team took two out of three from Clancy's outfit.

The Knights' League will roll every night except Tuesday and if the interest showing last night is any indication, the league should be a great success.

Cecil Wolfe was high man of the evening with 447, and also had the high single of 209.

INITIAL REQUIRED

All captains of various teams are requested to write the initial of the men on their teams. This is required owing to the large number of teams bowling and the number of names that are the same. So in future kindly put your initial down on the score sheet.

The critics say Yale is lucky this year .. By that they probably mean the team doesn't have to face Illinois.

ANNIVERSARY AT CAVAN ON SUNDAY

Large Crowds From Surrounding District Present at Both Services.

CAVAN, November 12. — Cavan anniversary services on Sunday were among the most successful in the annals o fthe church. The weather was very nice and the roads good.

Rev. D. N. McCamus preached morning and evening.

Many from the surrounding circuits of Manvers, South Monaghan, and Millbrook joined with the people of Cavan in worship on Sunday at their anniversary services, in order to again have the pleasure of hearing Mr. McCamus preach.

They were not disappointed. His sermons will not soon be forgotten. They were filld with loving, thoughful Gospel messages, delivered to a people who were in close sympathy with him, and in whom he had a very great interest.

At the morning and evening services he sang solos, which delighted his hearers and reminded them of he days when as pastor, his gift of song was so much enjoyed.

The choir, under the able leadership of Mrs. A. Kennedy, who is both organist and leader, rendered excellent music, which added much to the service.

In the morning the church was filled to capacity and in the evening it could not accommodate the people.

"Was Freed of Gall Stones And Persistent Backache"

Mr. Alexander Bradley, R.R. No. 1, Carp, Ont., writes:

"I suffered from gall stones, and commenced taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I feel safe in saying that these pills completely overcame the trouble, as it is some years since I was afflicted in this way, and I have not suffered from gall stones or even backache since. I have also found Dr. Chase's Nerve Food excellent for heart trouble and shortness of breath."

LIBERAL WOMEN MET.

An Old-Fashioned Costume Party at Home of Mrs. Charles Perry.

The Women's Liberal Association of the city were hostesses last evening at a very jolly Old-Fashioned Costume Party, held at the home of Mrs. C. Perry, 190 Brock Street. There was a large attendance of the members of the association, with a goodly sprinkling of the male sex. The majority of the ladies were in old-time costumes, that ranged all the way from Dolly Varden outfits to the styles of half a century back, with voluminous skirts, peplums and basques and leg o' mutton sleeves and tight black bonnets. It was a gay and colorful assemblage that danced old and new style dances in the big parlors of Mrs. Perry's handsome home, and the entertainment, which opened with a Grand March, was a success from start to finish. An enjoyable musical programme was rendered, including vocal solos by Miss Stella Brady, Miss Elizabeth Harrison and Mr. Charles Perry, junior; piano selections by Mrs. Musgrove and Harold MacFarlane; readings by Miss Elsie Worrell, and several numbers by Budds' orchestra, composed of B. Budd, Wilson Dunlop and A. Northrop. Miss Margaret McCabe acted as accompanist for the solo numbers.

SMITH REACHES KINGSTON GAOL

Peter Smith Was Accompanied By His Wife on Trip From Toronto to Kingston.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 13.—Peter Smith, former Provincial Treasurer, sentenced to three years in the Portsmouth Penitentiary, arrived here early this aftrenoon and is now enrolled in the big prison. Major Basher, governor of the Toronto jail, had charge of the prisoner, who was accompanied by his wife. The latter, however, was not allowed to accompany her husband to the prison. She evidently said goodbye to him on the train, as on the arrival of the train at Kingston junction, the officer had a taxi in waiting and Smith was wisked off to the prison without any ceremony. Some newspapermen were tipped off that the former treasurer was coming down on this train and were on hand to meet him, but as soon as the train stopped, Smith, with his hat placed against his face to prevent the work of cameras, rushed into the taxi and was off. It is stated that the prisoner was taken out of Toronto jail secretly early this morning and left Toronto on the 7 o'clock train.

After leaving the train Mrs. Smith was driven to a local hotel by a newspaperman, where she remained until the afternoon train, when she went west. It is stated that Smith was brought down on the early morning train so as to escape the morbid gaze of the public and the plan was put over well, as very few people appeared to know about his coming. Smith was not handcuffed. On the way down he had a long conference with his wife, who appeared to be heartbroken over the sentence imposed on her husband.

The NUT CRACKER BY JOE WILLIAMS

Mr. O'Goofty has just returned from the wide open spaces where insects are insects, and so are the guides.

Cross-country runners always appear on the streets in B.V.D.'s.... Unfortunately it is strictly a masculine sport.

In baseball its' runs that count, not hits ....And in football they pay off on touchdowns, not first downs.

It is reported Miss Taylor has given Dempsey the cold shoulder.. And we always heard these movie queens were such hot stuff!

Red Grange is the best ball carrier in the country ....No one is interested any more in knowing who the best high-ball carrier is.

It is said Mr. Grange's father was a lumber jack ....Experts agree, however, there is nothing lumbering about the young man.

Turf papers say Master Charley is the best two-year-old in the world.. Well, why dont they put him in the movies along with Jackie Coogan.

Frank Carpenter's place in history is secure ..... He will be known as the one man Mike McTigue was able to knock out.

A startling revelation has been made, showing Grange's hair is not red ..... But ahppily we are not one of the querulous kind that split hairs over things like that.

No matter how high the goose hangs they can't hang him—meaning Mr. Goslin—too high for McGraw.

(Admittedly we were a little late in getting around to this one, but we feel it verges on the point of being a nifty.)

Barney Oldfield sues for divorce ....Let's see, wasn't he some sort of a speed demon back when 60 miles an hour was considered fast?

WINTER FAIR COMING.

Four Big Days, Commencing November 24th in the Market Hall.

Beginning the week of November 24th, and running for four consecutive nights, the Kiwanis Club are putting on a Winter Fair in the Market Hall.

There will be booths filled with attractive exhibits, amusements and games, a tea-room, a space reserved for dancing, also a free entertainment will be featured each evening.

This Fair will be of a character entirely new to Peterboro, and its novel attractions will appeal to everyone.

FIRPO DEFEATED.

Weinert, Newark Heavyweight, Won on Points.

NEWARK, N.J., Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Charley Weinert Newark heavyweight outpointed Luis Angel Firpo Argentine heavyweight in a twelve round no decision bout, last night in the opinion of newspaper men at the ringside.

NARROW ESCAPE AUTO ACCIDENT

Duncan McFarlane of Keene, Had Car Badly Damaged —Hunters Busy.

KEENE, Nov. 13. —Mr. Duncan McFarlane, road overseer, had a narrow escape from a very serious accident on Monday at the cross roads at Zion. A car struck Mr. McFarlane's car and practically demolished the top. Only the presence of mind of Mr. McFarlane averted a very serious accident.

Thanksgiving Dance.

A Thanksgiving dance was held in the town hall, Keene, on Monday night. A large crowd was in attendance. Taylor's orchestra of Peterborough, supplied the music, to the satisfaction of all present.

Miss Margaret Rennie, of Toronto, was a visitor over the holiday.

Mr. Ernest Tomlin, of Toronto, vsited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher over the week end.

Mr. Joseph Foley was home for the holidays.

Mr. Harry Taylor, of Peterborough, was renewing acquaintances here.

Hunters At Large.

Quite a large number of shooters were out for the holidays. The biggest bag, as usual, are still down on the lake, out of gun shot. But by the reports of hunters of the ones that they shot and could not get, one would almost believe that the lake will be fully populated with crippled ducks, but apparently they are as recuperative as the fish that are caught and get away.

Foxes Active.

Quite a large number have been reporting the escapades of the foxes around the barnyard. This will mean a few hikes for the hunters when the snow arrives.

Armistice Day.

The two minute silence on Tuesday was kept in a good many places in this district. It is to be regretted that it was not nearly universal apparently. The 55 boys of Otonabee lying dead along with the 55,000 in Flanders fail to arouse a flicker of respect or homage to those who threw us the torch to hold it high. It is to be hoped that the next six years will not produce the same note of indifference and lose the human touch of respect as we sometimes see it in our midst, and over this fair Dominion of ours. What we need is a vision of the cenotaph at old Trafalgar Square, where, from early morn till night hundreds of thousands of old men, women and children pass by to drop a tear and a flower to the memory of some one, even the unknown soldier who sleeps in some distant land, wherever that may be, that England calls her own. It may be a very opportune time to suggest that even in this community we make an effort before the next Armistice day to renovate our plot, of which the monument forms a part, in such a way that it will not be a disgrace to this community, but that our friends and tourists may also look with pride to the fact that we still cherish and will always keep their names green who fought and died that we might live.

Mission Band.

The Mission Band Society held their regular meeting and lantern slides on Tuesday night. These are very instructive to both young and old.

The Rev. Andrew McLaughlin is visiting friends in Tyrone over the holiday.

Still Threshing.

Threshing is still in progress. The yield of grain and quality being especially good.

Mr. Claude Nelson has installed a radio in his garage.

About 75 young people attended a charivari celebration upon the occasion of the Dickson-Walker nuptials.

Mrs. Chas. Mattin visited friends in Peterboro over the week-end.

We are glad to report a slight improvement in the condition of Mr. Robert Eason.

Mr. and Mrs. John McFarlane, of Mathers Corner, returned home to the family homestead this week, after an extended wedding trip to St. Thomas and other points.

Messrs. R. J. McCamus and David Wallace returned on Wednesday from the northern wilds with their usual complement of deer.

Miss Hazel Brown was visiting her home over the holiday.

Miss Olive Shearer was visiting her sister, Miss Katie Shearer, in Oshawa.

Mr. Joseph Taylor motored to Toronto over the week-end.

The funeral took place on Monday of Powell Armstrong, formerly of this district. The remains were brought from Nebraska, U. S. A., where he has been residing.

The funeral of the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keitel took place on Thursday from the family residence. The pall-bearers were: Masters Archie McFarlane, Billie Burley, Boyd Renwick and Clarence Weir.

LOYOLA WIN FIRST.

MONTREAL, November 13 (Canadian Press). — Loyola College juniors yesterday defeated Royal Military College seconds 11 to 8 in the first game of a home and home series of the inter-collegiate junior rugby semi-finals.

The locals will thus go to Kingston with a three-point lead for next Saturday's game.

Circular skirts are very interesting, particularly those of velvet or wool fabrics, and they are shown with straightline blouses that fit over the skirt without a break

IDEAL DINNER GOWN.

Sophisticated simplicity is hereby demonstrated. A subtle cut allows the sleeve drapery to be a part of the frock without any seam or break in the shoulder line. Sections of steel bead fringe applied at intervals form the skirt decoration and the ends of the scarf. It is an ideal dinner gown.

HOW TO MAKE OURSELVES GOOD ANCESTORS.

The recent Leopold-Loeb trial has set up a whole row of questions in the minds of many people.

How are such criminals produced, what are the relative influences of heredity, environment, education in producing them or ourselves? How can we prevent the production of such monsters? How can we make ourselves good ancestors? If we do so, can we pass on to our children and our children's children valuable knowledge how to live?

These are just a few of the questions that people are asking. They open up a wide field of enquiry and touch at many angles, the newest biological knowledge, the latest teachings of eugenics, the most advanced views on social reform. The answers to them are not easy to make and not always completely authoritative when made, and questioners must be prepared to take a bird's eye view of society with the aid of many experts, if they wish to arrive at intelligent conclusions.

It is perhaps with an appreciation of the general asking for information along these and allied lines that the Peterborough branch of the Canadian National Social Hygiene Council is introducing consideration of these subjects, this fall, in a series of lectures and addresses by men of known knowledge and wide experience.

Some thirty-one lecturers, comprising medical men, and women, jurists, juvenile court judges, magistrates, clergymen of all denominations, athletic instructors, public health experts and social workers, all gifted and most earnest, have been formed into a panel of speakers who will be available to proceed where requested to any community interested, through its citizens, in furthering the spread of knowledge in regard to ways and means of right living and training. Part of the cost, indeed the largest part, is borne by the university extension work of the educational centres in Toronto. The remainder of the expense, not excessively large, will be borne by the community applying and accepting the services of the men and women who will come on response to a call.

The first to be heard in this city will be Hon. Mr. Justice Riddell, chairman of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council, and who is a public speaker of large facility and good to listen to. He will speak on Friday evening, Nov. 14th, (next Friday evening), in the G. W. V. A. Hall, Murray street. The meeting has been brought to attention of our people in various ways. Five hundred have been personally advised by post card, and additional information in the press. The admission fee is at twenty-five cents, just to assist in meeting the expenses of the gathering.

PARISIAN CRAZE.

Wearing of Live Marmoset on Front of Coat is the Latest.

PARIS, Nov. 13. — (Canadian Press).—Wearing of a tiny live marmoset, buttoned against the neck in a fold of the coat seems likely to become a craze among Parisian women this unusual fad has not been taken up generally but heads of little monkeys occasionally are seen sticking out of collars while tiny paws fondle mistresses throats in fashionable restaurants.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

An unusual picture opened at the Capitol yesterday in the Fred Niblo production, "The Red Lily," with the handsome Ramon Novarro and Enid Bennett in the stellar roles. Wallace Beery also has a minor but a very important part in the story.

"The Red Lily" is a peculiarly vivid presentation of a story that shows the trend of modern opinion away from old grooves. In former times such a story would have had an unhappy ending. The producer, living up to present day standards, takes his hero and heroine through muck and mire, then gives them a happy future. Two young things cast into the maw of the great city of Paris, separated through no fault of their own, and forced to take what fortune bestows on them, both go down to the underworld. Marise La Noue, the angel-faced Brittany village girl, and Jean Leonnec, son of the Mayor of Vivonne, form a picture of young fresh love. There is a tragic brutality about the various steps which take them down to the dregs, but the producer has happily left their downward careers untouched by false romance. They are victims of fate. Time and again the two pass each other in the great city, each seeking for the other and it is not until the moment when the boy, an apache of Paris, runs from pursuing policemen up to the sordid refuge of the girl of the streets, that the two meet at last. Then with the man's hatred of evil in the woman he has idealized as an angel, he spurns the broken creature. Just how the producer brings this apparently hopeless situation to a satisfactory and logical conclusion, is a triumphant bit, both in screening and continuity.

The comedy is a Bobby Vernon feature, "High Gear," an extremely funny affair, with the versatile hero in a mad automobile speed race. The trials that mount thick and fast about him as he careers around the track through a series of exciting episodes, make excellent comedy material.

RIN-TIN-TIN, FAMOUS DOG STAR AT CAPITOL TO-MORROW AND SATURDAY.

"Find Your Man," with the famous dog star, Rin-Tin-Tin, will be shown at the Capitol Theatre to-morrow (Friday) and Saturday.

Rin-Tin-Tin, the well-known Belgian police dog, was brought over here from France by Lieut. Duncan, who is responsible for his training. Rin-Tin-Tin can do every trick a dog can do and many tricks most dogs can't do. He can scale a five-foot hurdle and clear a twenty-foot stream. Besides his athletic ability he has a remarkable dog intellect.

The story of "Find Your Man" is laid in a lumber centre. It is full of suspense, thrills, love, and as for action, there can't be a lack of that when Rin-Tin-Tin is present. Paul Andrews, ex-soldier, and Buddy, his canine pal, find themselves involved in a plot to steal Government lumber. Paul makes the discovery too late, and he is arrested on a charge of theft and murder, of which he is innocent. The dog's remarkable work figures in Paul's escape and his miraculous rescue from death.

AT THE ROYAL.

KING OF WILD HORSES BOOKED FOR ROYAL

To-Night, Friday and Saturday

All his life Hal Roach has owned animal pets of one kind or another and his production of pictures, both long and short, serious and comic, featuring animals is the natural outcome of his great love for dumb beasts, and his belief that the public also loves them and likes to see their intelligence and cleverness demonstrated on the screen in dramas that Rex could not be tamed or trained habits and nobility.

But Never a Wild Horse

There have been many trained horses on the screen that have performed clever tricks and daring stunts—but there has never before been an unconquered, untamed horse acting the role of a wild stallion. So Roach wrote "The King of Wild Horses"—and then looked for his actor.

After diligent search he found Casey Jones an outlaw, a "killer," a bad horse! But a king among his kind! So Roach renamed him Rex. Rex could not be tamed or trained —but they taught him that man—whom he had always shunned, hated and feared—could be kind and could be trusted.

Kindness Ruled

It was the kindness that Rex found on every hand—from Fred Jackman, who directed; from "Chick" Morrison, who has trained many wild animals; from Leon Bary, who pays the cowboy who captures him in the story—from every one, in fact, that he came in contact with in his new world—it was this kindness that achieved the amazing performance of Rex.

Megaphone and Camera

Fred Jackman also loves animals, is an ardent student of animal psychology, and understands them. He was therefore, the logical director for "The King of Wild Horses." The proof of his knowledge is evident in many scenes, where the spectator marvels how the action was ever staged; how it was ever kept within range of the camera; or how the camera ever kept in focus with the action.

In the Thick of Action

A wild horse, elderless and untethered, galloping down the side of a mountain; two horses fighting, breaking apart, running, then returning to the battle—here, there, every where—and the cameraman right there in the thick of the fray.

Soon you are so thrilled and excited and enraptured that you cease wondering how they got it and abandon yourself to an emotional spree. You want to shout "Bravo" for camera man Floyd Jackman and director Fred Jackman.

From start to finish the picture is chockful of sensational thrills and amazing achievements.

AT THE REGENT.

EARLY AMERICAN THRILLS ABOUND IN PATHSERIAL.

"Leatherstocking," the new ten-chapter Patheserial featuring Edna Murphy and Harold Miller, makes one forget the telephones, radios, submarines, airplanes and other scientific marvels of our highly civilized twentieth century and takes us back through the magic of the silver sheet, to the thrilling and stirring events of nearly two hundred years ago, as related by James Fenimore Cooper in his world-famous Leatherstocking Tales.

Then tribes of wandering Hurons swarmed the shores of the lakes making war on the settlers and allying themselves with the French and English, who were fighting for supremacy over the country from which the Indians were slowly and surely being driven. Principally concerned in the story of "Leatherstocking" are Leatherstocking, the scout and hunter who had lived with the Indians, his Mohican friends Chingachgook and Wah-ta-wah, and Tom Hutter, an ex-pirate, and his two beautiful and courageous daughters, Judith and Hetty. Each episode throbs with action and thrills with suspense. Episode 3 will be shown to-day at the Regent Theatre.

"THE BANDOLERO."

While Tom Terriss and his compasy were making exteriot scenes for "The Bandolero," due at the Regent Theatre to-day, in Spain, they were received most warmly by the Spanish people, were entertained in Madrid by Ambassador Moore, had lunch at the palace of the Duke of Alba, and attended a garden party at which the guests of honor were the King and Queens of Spain and Italy, and the Queen Mother of the latter country. Forty-one servants waited upon them at the ducal luncheon. They were marvelling at this display of wealth, when they were told that the payroll for the forty-one about equalled the earnings of one American barber!

"The Bandolero" ("The Bandit") is a story of love and vendetta photographed in beautiful settings in Cuba, Spain and the United States. The cast includes Pedro de Cordoba, in the title role, Renee Adoree, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Manual Granado, Gordon Begg, Dorothy Ruth, Arthur Donaldson, Maria Valray and Jose Rueda. It is based on the novel by Paul Gwynne, adapted and directed by Mr. Terriss for Metro-Goldwyn release. The photographer was George Peters, and the associate director was Rodney Hickok.

FEWER PATIENTS NOW.

In a special report to the mayor of the city of Newark, N.J., Dr. Snavely, medical superintendent of the city hospital, notes a heavy falling off in the number of persons received as patients in the hospital this year suffering from alcoholism. Statistics on this subject show that while up to this period last year 2,306 alcoholic patients were given treatment at the hospital, the number of the same class receiving similar treatment up to the same period of this year was only 1,421. These cases for the most part are plain or fancy drunks.

WEDDING BELLS.

DOIG—CHAPMAN.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at St. Andrew's Manse on Wednesday, Nov. 12th, at 3 o'clock, by the Rev. J. W. Gordon, when Anna Jeanette Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chapman, became the bride of Stewart Doig, only son of Mrs. M. Doig, both of this city.

Miss Beulah Payton acted as bridesmaid and Mr. Joseph Fontaine as best man.

The bride, wearing the gift of the groom, which was a lovely Isabel fox fur, to the bridesmaid a rope of pearls, and to the best man a set of gold cuff links.

Many costly gifts were received by the young couple, showing the high esteem in which they were both held. The young couple left on the 3.29 C.P.R. for Toronto. On their return they will reside in the city.

GILLESPIE—MIDDLETON.

A very pretty but quiet wedding took place at St. James' parsonage on November 11th, at 3.30 p.m., when the Rev. J. D. Richardson united in the holy bonds of matrimony Mildred Florence Irene Middleton, and Walter James Gillespie, both of this city.

The bride looked lovely in a dress of brown Canton crepe trimmed with beads and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. Harry Huston supported the bridegroom and Miss Rose McGovoran acted as bridesmaid.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie motored to the home of his parents, where a supper and a dance was held.

The groom's gift to the bride was a cabinet of silver. There were also many useful gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie, on their return will reside at 285 Townsend street city.

OBITUARY.

MRS. ANNIE BRADSHAW.

The death occurred on Wednesday, November 12th, of Mrs. Annie Bradshaw, widow of the late James Henry Bradshaw, aged 76 years.

She is survived by a family of two sons, Harry and Wellington of this city, and two daughters, Mrs. W. Cartner of this city, and Mrs. Norman E. Peel, of London, Ont., Canada.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon, at 3.30 p.m., from 678 Bethune street. Services at 2.30, Rev. J. D. Paterson, of All Saints', officiating.

IN MEMORIAM.

TELFORD. — In loving memory of our daughter, Mrs. Bruce Telford, who died November 13th, 1921:
A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
All is dark within our home,
Lonely is our life to-day,
For the one who smiled to cheer us has forever passed away.
—Father, Mother and Family.

IN MEMORIAM

SMITH — In loving memory of Mrs. James Smith, of Mount Pleasant, who died 13th November, 1918.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED.

To Re-Investigate Alleged Letter From M. Zinovieff.

LONDON, Nov. 13. — (Canadian Press.)—The Cabinet has appointed a Cabinet committee to re-investigate the alleged letter from M. Zinovieff, calling for increased activities on the part of the British Communists, according to statements in some of the morning newspapers.

Those reports state that it was necessary to establish whether the letter was forgery or genuine in order to reply to the Soviet Government's demand for an apology. It is believed the committee's report will be ready for the Cabinet at the meeting early next week.

BIG CITY BLOCK IS DESTROYED WHEN FIRE OVERCOMES FIGHTERS

Saltpetre, Sugar and Soap Factories Razed—Explosions Terrorize Thousands.

STILL BLAZING.

Dynamite Used to Stop Conflagration — Sulphuric Acid Scattered Over Blocks.

JERSEY CITY, Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press).— A conflagration which started in the salt peter plant of the Richardson Chemical Company, leaped beyond control of the fire forces of two cities to the plant of the American Sugar refinery company and then encompassed and destroyed several smaller factories and two rows of tenement houses which included most of the buildings in the entire block and raged for four hours before the firemen declared it under control at one o'clock this afternoon. Losses running into millions of dollars but which could not be closely estimated; 15 persons seriously injured or burned; scores of others cut by glass blown out of windows over a half mile radius by the series of explosions and 900 families made homeless was the toll.

Fumes Rolled Across City.

The entire city block bounded by Essex, Morris, Warren and Washington Street, occupied by two factories and two rows of tenement homes, was a roaring furnace at 11 a.m. when the fire leaped through dozens of streams of water and beyond human control, while explosions blew out the walls and roof of the plant, broke windows in all the area around, spread terror among the residents and gored into the huge American Sugar Refinery plant. Over a dozen firemen were overcome by the fumes, and scores of people were trearted for cuts from flying glass and the effects of fumes which rolled across the city and the Hudson River.

At 11.30 o'clock the Salt Peter plant had been destroyed, and the flames had spread to a block of three-storey frame dwelling-houses close by and to one building of the Colgate Soap factory. The front wall of the Sugar Company's building crashed.

Water Fails—Dynamite Used.

At noon Fire Chief Boyle called for tons of dynamite in order to blow up buildings in the hope of checking the conflagration. City Commissioner Fagan closed one city reservoir, directing all its supply to the fire nozzles, which increased the water pressure from 72 to 95 pounds.

Stores of sulphuric acid began exploding after noon and threw blazing debris into groups of firemen. Hundreds of families with household goods about them moved to safer sections. The police lines had been stretched about the burning area at a distance of six blocks from the fire.

At 12.30, when the fire had wiped out two or more factories and scores of tenement houses, the firemen expressed the belief that the fire was under control.

Children Menaced.

Two thousand children from the school nearby had been rushed out of school during the morning to safety when a terrific explosion in the Salt Peter plant scattered splinters in all directions. The children, terrorized, fled through the streets, finally being herded out of the danger zone by hundreds of policemen. Parents and children in tenements nearby were taken from the district in taxicabs. Fire-boats from New York City and the fire department from Hoboken and other places were soon in the desperate fight, while hundreds of volunteer firemen were engaged in extinguishing incipient blazes in nearby houses caused from sparks.

Breaks Out Again

This afternoon the fire in rear of the American Sugar Refinery broke beyond control and forced the fire fighters to retreat. The walls are caving in and releasing the flames which may carry across to warehouses full of inflammable substances. The huge plants of the Vulcan Iron Works, Manhattan Electric and main warehouses of Colgates are in th epath of fresh flames.

BALDWIN NAMES JUNIOR MEMBERS

Captain Sidney Herbert is Premier's Parliamentary Private Secretary.

LESS NEW BLOOD

LONDON, Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press).—Premier Baldwin yesterday appointed another batch of junior members of his Government, some Royal Household appointments being included. Nearly all those appointed held similar posts in the previous Baldwin administration.

Captain Sidney Herbert will be the Prime Minister's Parliamentary private secretary. Sir Geoffrey Butler will be private secretary to the Air Minister, Sir Samuel Hoare. Captain Herbert was born at Newport, Rhode Island, in 1890, his father, Sir Michael Herbert, being British Ambassador to the United States at that time.

Thus, apart from changes necessitated by a desire to heal the Conservative feud and bring Austen Chamberlain and Lord Birkenhead into the Ministry, Premier Baldwin has introduced less new blood into the Government that many of his adherents had hoped.

Zinovieff Affair.

The Zinovieff affair, having lain dormant since the elections, is again in the limelight. Mr. Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary, in a speech at Glasgow, confirmed the report that the Government had appointed a committee to make further inquiries, as the matter had been left in a very peculiar position by the Government's predecessors. Supplementary information, he added, had been obtained, which had failed to reach the Labor Government in time for its inquiry, and when the committee had reported the Government would decide what action to take.

The only other notable point in Mr. Chamberlain's speech was an expression of keen regret at the absence of Sir Robert S. Horne from the Ministry and earnest hope that it would not be long before a place would be found for him.

Departments Busy.

Parliament will not proceed with actual business of legislation for another month, but by reason of Wednesday's Cabinet meeting, the principal Government departments are busy preparing for the session, which will concentrate on international questions such as the cost of food, housing, unemployment and finance. These questions are being inquired into with a view to placing an effective programme dealing with social needs in the King's speech at the opening of Parliament.

Another question under consideration concerns a new commercial treaty with Germany, which, it is held, will be concluded early in the new year.

$2,150,000,000 SPENT ON ARMS IN 3 YEARS

Nineteen Countries Paid This Sum Exclusive of Warships and Airplanes.

LONDON, Nov. 14.— According to figures based on official documents and annual foreign trade statistics and reports on arms, ammunition and war material from nineteen countries during the years 1920, 1921 and 1922, the value of the world's traffic in arms was more than $2,150,000,000. This was exclusive of warships and airplanes, but included sporting guns and rifles and explosives for industrial purposes.

The amount of the recent international arms traffic is far greater than the published figures, which do not include secret gunning activities.

MEXICAN DEPUTY SHOT DURING STORMY DEBATE

Prominent Labor Leader Has Fair Chance to Recover.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Deputy Louis Morones, the most prominent Labor leader in Mexico, who was shot through the stomach Wednesday night, following a stormy debate in the Chamber, was much improved yesterday, and physicians attending him reported that he had a fair chance for recovery. President-Elect Calles remained at the wounded deputy's bedside until five o'clock Thursday morning.

The chances of Leopoldo Guerrero, aged deputy from Zacatecas, who was wounded twice in the chest during the affray, are declared to be slim. Eye-witnesses to the shooting state that Guerrero was shot while sitting motionless behind his desk.

Announcements made at the headquarters of the Regional Federation of Labor, the Workers' Confederation and other Labor organizations stated that the Labor bodies would support whatever action the Agrarian-Laborite minority in the Chamber might take, because, it was declared, the minority to which Deputy Morones belongs was the victim of aggression by the majority of the confederated Socialist bloc.

ST. PAUL STATUE IN FAMOUS FAKE

COURT DISCLOSURE

PARIS, Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press).—The statue of the apostle St. Paul sold to the Metropolitan Museum of New York for $3,000 February 26, 1921, purporting to be the work of the famous Italian sculptor Luca Della Robbia, is a fake, according to testimony given Thursday by Jean Vigoroux, former New York agent for the late Joseph Demotte, art dealer. Vigoroux is on trial charged by the Demotte estate with breach of trust.

Under cross-examination the defendant was requested to explain why his books only showed a price of $1,500 for the St. Paul statue in his accounting with his employer and why this amount was turned in to Demotte.

"I had to pay the difference to intermediaries through whom I got into touch with Joseph Breck, director of the Metropolitan Museum" replied Vigoroux.

Asked to identify the intermediaries, the witness declared that they were "men about town—men of the world in New York—whose names I refuse to divulge."

Then raising his voice in stentorian tones which echoed throughout the court room, Vigoroux shouted: "That statue is a fake—infamous fake and the Metropolitan Museum has been imposed upon. Before this trial is over, it wont be the only fake shown here as having enriched Americans."

"It seems that Demotte faked his statues and you faked your books," interjected the opposing attorney.

Continuing his enumeration of the "fakes" sold in the United States Vigoroux told the court that one head of Christ in stone, purporting to date back to the thirteenth century, was sold to Hawley W. McLanahan, of Philadelphia, for $3,000.

GIRL ON SCREEN LIKE HIS WIFE SHARES ESTATE

Pauline Garon Gets Fortune Through Strange Will of Louisiana Planter.

MOURNED HIS WIFE.

Screen Star Must Accept the Guardianship of Benefactor's Daughter.

NEW YORK, November 14.— To a cotton plantation in Southern Louisiana, land of love and romance, Pauline Garon, petite screen star, is speeding to-day to assume guardianship of a woman almost twice her age and a fortune estimated at half a million dollars.

She has been made chief beneficiary in one of the queerest wills ever recorded in th country. She left yesterday afternoon from Grand Central Station amid a storm of congratulations from friends.

Fate moved relentlessly across the checkerboard of life, with Willian J. Bowman as the pawn. Esteemed throughout the countryside for his philanthropies. Bowman longed for an heir to his vast expanse of cotton fields. A daughter was born—Anna. Then suddenly came the hand of death and clutched the throat of the beautiful and charming Mrs. Bowman.

Could Not Forget Her.

It was a bitter blow to the man. He busied himself with his crops, and tried to forget. He fastened his affections on the little girl. But love for his daughter could not remove the mental pictures which were ever present of the beautiful woman who had passed on.

The planter plodded along. Anna had grown into womanhood, but never married. He could find little of the type of her mother in her, although no man could ask for a more loving daughter.

In New Orleans three years ago, where he had gone on a business trip and taken Anna with him, Bowman went to a motion picture theatre. The presentation featured Miss Garon.

Resembles His Wife.

The man was overcome by the similarity in the appearance of the screen star and his wife. Pauline, with all the girlishness of her 23 years, was the personification of the hoop-skirted, crinoline beauty he had courted many years before.

The midnight oil burned late that night in the room of the old planter. It came to light a few days ago when the Bowman will was read. By its terms Miss Garon was to receive a share in the estate, amounting to $500,000, on condition that she would accept the guardianship of Anna, now 43. It was the only stipulation the testator made.

Last Saturday a firm of Louisiana lawyers notified Miss Garon of the will and its contents. Hurried consultations with relatives followed, and then she decided to go through with the bargain.

"Don't ask me to talk about it," she said just before her train left yesterday. "I'm so flustered. It all seems like a dream. And I know Anna and I will get along fine."

STRIKE IS SPREADING.

Transport Workers to Aid Australian Dockers.

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press Cable Via Reuter's)—The strike of stevedores and dock laborers in Australian ports against working overtime in loading and discharging vessels now aims at the abolition of the free labor bureau in Sydney where hundreds of non-unionist workers are being given preference in obtaining employment. Thursday 20,000 transport workers pledged themselves to support the attitude of the waterside men in fighting the bureau. Fifteen colleries which employ about 4,000 men are now idle at Newcastle in consequence of the strike, and for local reasons the whole of the Mount Kembla district is also idle.

PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION.

ADELAIDE, South Australia, Nov. 14.— (Canadian Press Cable Via Reuter's)—The South Australian House of Assembly yesterday arried the Proportional Representation Bill which reduces the membership of the house from 46 to 35.

DOWNING STREET EAGER TO PLEASE DOMINIONS

Premier Massey, of New Zealand, Disagrees With Auckland Geddes' Remark.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, November 14 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuters). — Premier W. F. Massey of New Zealand does not agree with the statement made by Sir Auckland Geddes, former British Ambassador at Washington, to the effect that it often has happened that when the Dominions have looked towards Great Britain they have found no sympathetic answer or understanding.

The statement in question was made in connection with a lecture in London on Tuesday, in memory of Walter Hines Page, former United States Ambassador to Great Britain.

Premier Massey says his experience has been that the doors at No. 10 Downing Street are never closed in the face of overseas representatives of the Empire, especially when they are at all unanimous regardin what they want.

On the contrary, he has always found the representatives of the British Government anxious to meet the Dominions' requests in every possible way.

PUBLIC SCALES WEIGHED WRONG

Ald. O'Connell, of Montreal, Intervened With Chief to Protect Coal Dealer.

PROBES PROGRESS.

MONTREAL, November 14 (Canadian Press). — Alderman O'Connell, who had been mentioned by Chief of Police Belanger, as intervening to prevent cases being made against local coal companies for short weight in their coal deliveries, testified at the inquiry into Montreal police affairs, now being conducted by Mr. Justice Coderre, yesterday afternoon.

Ald. O'Connell said he had intervened in one case because it was an honest company of good people, who did not want their names before the public in that light. Later, it had been proven, he said, that the city scales had been wrong.

Honore Demers told of being ill-treated at the hands of Constables Gagnon and Dupuis, and his story was corroborated by other witnesses. They had, he said, searched him, and finding no money, severely beat him up and later they took him to the police station and laid a charge of assault against him.

Another witness heard was a former inmate of a disorderly house, whose name His Lordship ordered not to be published, since she is now married to a respectable citizen. She stated that during the summer of 1918 she had taken $50.00 to Captain Suave, on behalf of Maime Brown, at whose house she had plied her trade at the time.

AUTOMOBILE PRAISED AS AN AID TO HEALTH

Dr. Woods Hutchinson Says It Takes Folks Out in the Air.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Nov. 14. — The automobile was praised as one of the most potent factors in promoting health and longevity by Dr. Woods Hutchinson of Boston in an address at a luncheon meeting of the State Committee on Tuebrculosis and Public Health of the State Charities Aid Association.

Using for his topic "Making Health Contagious," Dr. Hutchinson declared that longer life and better health which the people of the present generation are enjoying is due in great part to widespread use of automobiles.

"Your car takes you out in the open," he said, "into the air and the sunlight—nature's great curative forces. Your car adds to your years of life. Modern life, with its automobiles and other luxuries, isn't so bad after all."

"Tuberculosis, which used to head our death lists," he continued, "now ranks third, fourth or even fifth. In recent years many of the notions of doctors have changed. Good food, we know to-day, is a proper aid to health, and by good food I mean foods that formerly were abhorred, including ice cream, cakes and salads. All are rich in vitamins, and, although we do not know what these vitamins are, we do know that they make for health."

SAULT PRINTER LOST TWO DAYS ON DEER TRAIL

Sheltered Himself in Hollow Log With Wolves Howling Around Him.

HAD NO FOOD

Matches Moistened by Perspiration Were Useless—Ate Ferns.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Nov. 14. — After being lost in the woods back of Northfield, on the A. C. R., from Monday morning until Wednesday morning, without food or matches to light a fire in one of the worst storms this season, Mr. I. J. Walters, linotype operator at the Sault Daily Star, finally turned up at Mr. and Mrs. William Calvert's cottage at Island Lake, his clothes in ribbons, and suffering from the pangs of hunger and frost. He returned to the Sault Wednesday night on the A.C.R. still suffering from his experiences, but grateful for his return.

Followed Deer Tracks.

Mr. Walters gave the following account of his experience in the bush: "I started into the bush at Northfield on Monday morning, carrying a compass, map and a police whistle, as is my custom when travelling in the bush. I walked southwest along the Lumber Road to an abandoned shed until I came across several deer tracks, which I was able to follow in the snow for a few miles. Finding myself in the heart of strange territory at the end of the chase, it suddenly dawned upon me that I was lost, and I hastened to retrace my tracks in the snow. But soon this fragmentary guidance was obliterated for it commenced to rain heavily, dissolving the snow and blotting out all trace of my footsteps.

"I walked until Monday night, when weary from my exertions, and discouraged by my fruitless endeavors I went to sleep under the trunk of a tree just wide enough to protect my body from the stormy elements for the rain had begun to pour in torrents.

Hears Wolves Bark.

"When I found that I would have to sleep out in the forest on Monday night my greatest fear was wolves, for I had seen an abundance of their tracks earlier in the day in that very vicinity, and my fears were not without grounds as it proved shortly after I had lain down for the second time. Although I am deaf I am not stone deaf, and I heard plainly the barking of large packs of timber prowlers which reminded me of the barking of dogs, and soon I could see them darting quickly about at a distance of about 20 yards, and I was grateful that they didn't come any closer.

Ate Ferns and Wood.

"Tuesday, being still lost, I found a hole in a huge tree trunk which I cut out large enough to shelter almost my whole body. I put my feet in first, and only my head and hands showed at the opening. It was bitter cold, with a strong wind blowing. The pangs of hunger were beginning to tell on me, for I hadn't eaten anything since Monday noon, when I ate a small lunch which I had taken with me in a small paper bag, but I didn't intend to starve, and made my repast of ferns and dead wood and oh! how thirsty they made me feel. The ferns were bitter, but better than nothing. I would have given anything to build a fire, but the two matches I had taken with me were soaked and useless from perspiration.

"On Wednesday morning, while it was still dark, I started to walk as usual. Climbing a high hill, to my surprise, I saw several lakes, one of which I guessed to be Island Lake. Deciding to go southward to pass a lake in order to get across to the western side, I came across a shack, and noticed smoke issuing from the chimney. I called and knocked at the door. Still no response, I opened the door and there was a man tending to the stove and cooking breakfast."

THE WEATHER.

Peterboro had its first fall of snow last night, and this mo. ing found the trees, shrubs and all outside objects covered with several inches of wet, clinging snow. Last year the first snowfall of the season came on Nov. 23rd. The snowfall was heavier, the temperature lower causing "the beautiful" to remain for several days.—W. P.

STEED VERIFIED STORY OF WILSON INCIDENT

Lloyd George Asserts Story in Memoirs Is "Stupid Invention."

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Publication of a book written by H. Wickham Steed, former editor of the Times, entitled "Through Thirty Years," yesterday brought from Lloyd George a strong denial of a passage in the volume which related that during the peace conference at Versailles, Premier Clemenceau of France "accused Lloyd George so flatly of repeated inaccuracy of statements that Lloyd George seized him by the collar and demanded an apology, and after President Wilson had separated them, Clemenceau offered Lloyd George reparation with pistols or swords."

The former British Premier characterized the Steed account as a "stupid invention which contains not the slightest basis of truth."

In reply, Mr. Steed said: "I should naturally not have published a story of that kind without having verified it in advance from persons who were present."

The author added that he had no intention of entering into a personal controversy in the matter.

FROST APPEALS FOR M'GAUGHEY

EXECUTION DEC. 5.

(Special to the Examiner)

LINDSAY, Nov. 14.—The information was given out today that Leslie Frost, who defended Fred McGaughey sentenced to be hanged on December 5th for the murder of Beatrice Fee, was in Ottawa interviewing the Department of Justice in the interests of the condemned young man.

It is believed here that the Department will take no action in the matter and that McGaughey will pay the penalty on the above date, which is only three weeks away.

According to a statement of one of the death watch, the prisoner fixes his eyes on him for hours at a time during the night. He has gained fifteen pounds in weight, and spends most of his time smoking cigarettes and playing solitaire. His relatives visit him frequently when he engages in conversation with them through the bars of his cell. His spiritual advisor is Rev. F. H. McIntosh, pastor of St. Andrew's church, who has manifested a deep interest in the unfortunate young man. Other friends interested in his spiritual welfare have sent him a large number of tracts and other religious publications as well as copies of well known hymns.

Mr. Fee, father of the murdered girl, called at the jail recently for the articles belonging to his daughter which were produced during the trial.

COOLIDGE BANS BALL.

Never Learned To Dance, Hence Inaugural Off.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—President Coolidge never indulged in dancing. He is not opposed to it, but for some reason he never learned to dance.

His attitude toward dancing was reflected to-day when the subject of the ceremonies for inauguration was discussed. The President let it be known that he was not opposed to a parade, but was against an inaugural ball because he would be expected to dance.

OLYMPIC RUNNER INSANE.

Paul Kiraly, Marathon Entry, Races Naked in Budapest Streets.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 14. — Paul Kiraly, the famous Hungarian marathon runner, suddenly lost his reason Monday night and was found running naked through the streets. The patient was taken to an asylum by the police.

The athlete, who works as a waiter in an exclusive Budapest club, has been running two kilometers daily to keep in training, despite the fact that his work keeps him employed until the early morning hours. Kiraly is supposed to have lost his mind through the overstrain of and his disappointment at the Olympic games.

GERMAN EXPORT FLOOD DENIED BY STRESEMANN

Foreign Trade Only Equivalent to 40 Per Cent. of Pre-War Volume.

GERMANY DISARMS

Foreign Minister Expresses Satisfaction at French Evacuation of Territory.

DORTMUND, Germany, November 14 (Canadian Press). — Approval of the election in the United States of President Coolidge was freely expressed by Foreign Minister Stresemann in the course of a significant campaign speech before the convention of the German People's Party here yesterday.

The Foreign Minister's utterances in their totality, constituted a sturdy defence of the policies enacted and pursued by the present Government, especially in connection with the nation's foreign affairs.

The speaker left no doubt in the minds of his party colleagues that the principles which have heretofore guided the Government in its conduct of internal and foreign affairs must be rigidly adhered to. The keynote of his speech was one of optimism born of faith in the goodwill and sincerity of the signatories ot the London agreement.

Proof of Goodwill.

The speaker expressed strong satisfaction in French loyalty regarding the evacuation of the occupied zones which, he said, justified confidence that her further obligations would also promptly be fulfilled in accordance with the Treaty of Versailles, and which would be the best test of the Allies.. goodwill.

Alluding to the various commercial treaty negotiations with Great Britain and other countries, Minister Stresemann emphatically denied that Germany would shortly flood foreign countries with German goods and exclude foreign goods from Germany by prohibitive tariffs. He added that Germany regarded her exports as far behind all other countries, and Germany's foreign trade as only equivalent to 40 per cent. of her pre-war trade.

Germany Disarmed.

The Foreign Minister claimed that a recent inspection proved that Germany had disarmed, and that the Government was therefore justified in expecting and demanding, that within a short time, control shall be taken out of the hands of the Inter-Allied Commission and transferred to the League of Nations. He complained of the apathy shown concerning Germany's entering into the League, and contended that an unarmed nation, in the midst of an armed Europe, could not possibly renounce its last means of protection afforded it by its right to neutrality, even though it was a member of the League.

FAILED TO DO IT JUSTICE.

Despite the efforts of song writers to sing the glories of California, they have failed in giving an adequate description of this land of remarkable loveliness. It is a land of perpetual summer, of romance and beauty, of rest and play. Cool, inviting mountains, sun-steeped slopes and dales, balmy breezes carrying the tang of growing fruit, bring the glow of health to the cheeks of the ailing. The world-weary find rejuvenation on the sunny bathing beaches, in motoring, riding, bowling, dancing, tennis or golf, while deep sea fishing, surf-riding or aqua-planing keep the more active entertained.

There are two splendid routes to California, the first via Chicago, reaced by the famous "International Limited" of the Canadian National Railways, also by the late daily evening connection (observation sleeper from Toronto). The "International Limited" is of course a daily train and offers a service unexcelled for speed, comfort and convenience. At Chicago connection is made with all the crack trains for the South and Southwest.

The other route is by the "Continental Limited" leaving Montreal daily and "The National" from Toronto daily via Vancouver and Victoria. This "All Canadian" route is very popular with the regular tourists to California. It takes you through the world famous Jasper National Park and Mount Robson Park and the white mantled mountains are beautiful descriptions. At Vancouver connection is made with Rail and Steamship lines serving all destinations in California.

Any Agent of the Canadian National Railways will gladly give you literature, complete information or make through reservations for either route. 14-22.

JURY DEMANDS EXHUMATION OF BODY OF DONALD YORKE IN COBOURG LIQUOR DEATH

Sister Declares Bowen Told Her Poisoned Wine Had Been Given.

INQUEST ADJOURNS.

Town Merchant Died Under Mysterious Circumstances —Full Probe Opened.

COBOURG, Nov. 14.— The inquest into the death of Donald MacPherson Yorke, reopened last night, in the County Council Chamber at 8 o'clock. The Council Chamber was filled to overflowing half an hour before the inquiry opened.

Nelson Tait the undertaker who prepared the body for burial was the first witness and in his evidence stated that apart from a small bruise on the left cheek and a scratch on the nose of the body there was nothing to indicate that deceased had met his death by violent means and that there were no broken or dislocated bones. Asked by Crown Attorney Kerr if he smelt liquor, Mr. Tait said there was a sour smell, but he could not say it was from liquor.

Miss Margaret Yorke, a sister of the deceased, was the next witness called and gave evidence that for the past year her brother had been in the habit of drinking at times.

Witness said that on Saturday, November 1st, she left the store and her brother closed up and did not come home until last Sunday night and that he had been drinking.

Miss Yorke stated that her brother went home to dinner between one and two o'clock on Tuesday and did not return until five oclock in the afternoon and about ten minutes to six witness sent Ernest Bowen, a former employee out for a taxi to take her brother home.

Asked by Mr. Kerr if her brother had very much money on him, Miss Yorke said he had the receipts for Saturday and Monday which amounted to $168.30 and that all the money found on his person was $6.00 when his clothing was searched by her sister Miss Fannie Yorke and the undertaker.

Says Wine Poisoned

Mr. Kerr produced a bottle of liquor which Miss Yorke identified as the bottle Ernest Bowen had brought into her home on Tuesday night after deceased had been brought home and Bowen told witness that Mr. Yorke had bought it from MacDonald a taxi driver, and that MacDonald had given her broth er poisoned wine at his house.

In answer to question by Coroner Ferris if her brother suffered from heart trouble witness said he did not.

Miss Fannie Yorke, sister of deceased was called next and she stated that for three weeks preceding his demise her brother had been with MacDonald and a man named Shearer and the only time he had any money left was the night he was brought into the house dead.

George P. Woods taxi-driver was next witness. He said he took Yorke from his store about 1.30 on Tuesday afternoon to MacDonald's house and from there to his home on College street. Asked if Yorke was under the influence of liquor witness said yes.

On Death Trip.

Ernest Bowen, a former employee of Yorke's, was called next. Bowen said he had been employed by Mr. Yorke about three years, and during that time Yorke had been drinking frequently. He stated that he had purchased liquor for him on different occasions, and named the bootleggers where he made the purchases.

Bowen stated that on Tuesday Yorke had a bottle of wine in the store, and he was slightly intoxicated. About six o'clock Miss Yorke sent him for a taxi to take her brother home, and he called MacDonald's car. Yorke, however, told the driver to take him to MacDonald's house on Ball Lane, and he (Bowen) went with him.

When they arrived at this house, MacDonald produced a bottle and deceased gave him a five dollar bill. They all had a drink, and then had supper. After supper, Shearer came over to MacDonald's and they all went for a drive as far as the Kingston Crossing. Coming back, the car stalled about one mile from town, and Yorke and witness got out and walked in. When they got near Yorke's gate, deceased suddenly collapsed, and witness called to Mr. Jewell, who was near by, and they carried Yorke into the house. Yorke's sisster came to the door and said, "Pete is dead." Jewell then went for Doctor Jamieson, who tried to revive him, but failed.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Payne, representing the deceased's sister, witness stated that after supper, Yorke, MacDonald and himself all had two drinks at MacDonald's house, and that on Wednesday MacDonald had said that Yorke had left the liquor at his house on Sunday, and that the money given him was for a drive Yorke had taken on Sunday to Colborne.

Dr. Jamieson was called next, and stated that upon his arrival at the Yorke home, he found the body cold and thought death had come some time before his arrival. He smelt liquor but could not arrive at the cause of death.

Mr. Basten was next called, and said he saw Yorke in company with Bowen and Shearer walking west on King Street, near D'Arcy Street, about eight o'clock, on Tuesday evening, and saw that Yorke was intoxicated.

W. Jewell, the next witness, was called, and said that about 8.10 p.m. he was on James Street, and Bowen called to him to help take Mr. Yorke into his house, which was nearby.

At eleven o'clock the Coroner decided to make an adjournment, and after the jury had requested that the body be exhumed and a post-mortem held, also that the liquor be analyzed an adjournment was made until Thursday, November 27th, at eight p.m.

DISTRICT MEETING HELD IN HASTINGS

Number of Ministers Present From All Parts of the District — Good Addresses.

HASTINGS, November 14. — The District Meeting and Spiritual Conference was held in the Methodist church, Hastings, on Wednesday, with the following ministers present: Rev. C. W. Barrett, Stirling; Rev. F. G. Joblin, Stirling; Rev. S. A. Kemp, Warkworth; Rev. A. McLaughlio, Keene; Dr. F. E. Malott, Belleville; Rev. A. P. Rogers, Norwood; Rev. C. Daniels, Campbellford, Rev. J. F. Everson, Norham; Rev. H. B. Herrington, Cordova; Rev. W. Elliott, Campbellford, and Rev. M. L. Hinton, Hastings.

In the afternoon addresses were given by Rev. J. F. Everson. Subject, "Church Membership," Rev. W. Elliott, "Prayer," Rev. S. A. Kemp, "Evangelism," and Rev. H. B. Herrington, "Recreation and Amusements in the Church and Community."

Rev. C. W. Barrett, chairman of the Campbellford district, prseided at both afternoon and evening sessions. The evening session was a Missionary Conference. After the devotional exercises the chairman called Rev. F. G. Joblin, missionary secretary to the platform, and also Rev. W. R. McWilliams, local missionary from Japan. The later has been home on furlough for nearly a year and has been seriously ill during his holiday, but now that his health is improving leaves for Japan again in December.

Rev. Joblin read a beautiful address to Rev. McWilliams to which the latter responded. The missionary gave a vivid description of many of the customs of the Japanese and their attitude toward "God" "Buddah' and the Christian people. He thtnked the youpng people of thisg thanked the young people of this and the Brighton district, who supported he and his wife and family in their work in Japan and for the interest taken in them by all of those interested in the welfare of their mission.

Dr. F. E. Malott of Bridge Street Belleville, gave an address on "A Century of Methodism".

Methodism lacks sixteen years of being two centuries old. Methodism in Canada dates back only one hundred and forty years but one hundred years ago Canadian Methodists began a programme that has brought it to the foremos t place among the churches of Canada. It was a programme of education, organized of missionary activity and of aggressive evangelism and of moral reform.

Fifty years before the Conference of 1824 work began as follows here and there in what is now called Canada. 1789 Wm. Black and Major Tuffer at Quebec; 1778 Paul and Barbara Heck Agusta Township, 1786; Major Neal 1788, Lyons at Adophustown and Nathan Bangs in 1803 at Essex. Glancing back over a century we find that Canada had two provinces, Ontario and Quebec. Ontario had small settlements along the waterways, Kingston being the largest. In 1873 only one good road could he province boast of, which is nw universally known as the Kingston Road. Then it was known as Dundas Road and even now the same name exists in Toronto also on up along the highway to the city of London. Clocks, light and furniture were scarce. It is said that church goers were obliged to each bring a candle which was lighted and when this was burned out darkness prevailed. Life was there very primative except in the older settlements.

Rarely did the early settlers see the face of a stranger. In 1824 there were sixteen Church of England ministers, fifteen Presbyterian and Congregational, eighteen Baptists, seven Mennonites, ten Quakers, thirty-three ordained Methodists and one hundred and twelve lay preachers. Nearly all the ministers of other denominations confined their labors to the more settled communities. Methodist sought the remote settlements and while they labored in the growing towns and villages, their labors were not confined to these. No stated salary was given the ministers, and when Anson Green went up to his first official board the results were such that he was given twenty-five cents for travelling expenses, he himself receiving no salary. This was in 1824, when he was appointed to Smith's Creek.

Cobourg was then a place of one hundred people. Peterboro is said to have boasted of one house, and an Indian trail through woods and portages were the only means of travel. An experience of Cavan is related when William Morrow had charge of the appointment, one woman walked fifteen miles to hear her first sermon in the wilds of our now settled country.

John Ryerson, of the Bay of Quinte District, rode by horseback two thousand four hundred miles a year, preached three hundred and fifty times, and got one hundred dollars in all.

The Conference of 1824 at Picton reported 6,150 members which comprised two districts. There were twenty-two circuits, and sometimes a circuit contained twelve townships.

The conference faced three great issues, first, the problem of separating from American Methodism; second, the organization of a missionary society; third, the question of schools and a church paper. The result was that in 1824 a missionary society was formed; in 1829 the Christian Guardian, the church paper, was published; in 1836 Victoria College was founded.

Edgerton Ryerson was the first editor of the "Christian Guardain," the first president of Victoria University, and the first Minister of Education. To-day, as a result of the early missionaries, we have a church with a membership of 414,047 ministered to by 2,500 preachers. The Methodist population is one-seventh of the total popualtion in Canada and one-quarter of the population of Ontario. The church has $45,000,000 invested in churches and parsonages and $8,000,000 invested in schools and college.

Nine million dollars is raised each year for all purposes, of which over two million goes to missionaries. The missionary work reaches Canada, Newfoundland, ports of China, Japan, India and Africa.

WAR VETERAN DIES.

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—Lieut.-Col. Frederick Owen Hodgins, D.S.O., of the Royal Canadian Engineers, died Thursday.

STEEL COMMON HIGHEST PRICE IN FIVE YEARS

Bellwether of New York's Market Crossed 115 in Another Two Million Share Day.

FRENZIED TRADING.

Cast Iron Pipe Shorts Caught by New Top Price—Sterling at $4.63.

NEW YORK, November 14 (Canadian Press). — Frenzied trading characterised yesterday's stock market, the fifth consecutive two million share session with the "bulls" and "bears" struggling for control and the day's honours again about evenly divided.

Bullish demonstrations, centering in the industrial shares, lifted more than 50 stocks to new peak prices for the year with the general industrial average at its highest level since the early part of 1920.

The general railroad average showed a decline of 3-4 of a point. The day's sales were slightly in excess of 2,228,000 shares.

U.S. Cast Iron Pipe again furnished the pyrotechnics of the session, soaring more than 8 points to a record high for all time at 147 1-4 as the badly trapped "shorts" rushed to cover.

U.S. Steel Common crossed 115 to the highest price in five years. Ne gains of 3 to 5 points were scattered throughout the list.

Failure of the directors of the Southern Pacific to increase the dividend which had been widely predicted in speculative quarters, threw a wet blanket over the railroad shares, but not until after "Katy" Preferred, Missouri Pacific Preferred, Atlantic Coast Line and a few others had registered new maximum prices for the year. Southern Pacific broke from 103 1-2 to 101 following the regular dividend announcement.

Some of the commodity markets developed exceptional strength. Wheat prices jumped 3 to 4 cents a bushel on buying based on the sharp reduction of 20,000,000 bushels in the Canadian crop estimate and the heavy export demand.

Profit-taking reduced the net gains from 2 1-2 to 2 3-4 cents a bushel.

Sterling exchange rallied over 2 cents to above $4.63 in response to the heavy transfer of funds from New York to London for temporary investment in the British capital.

Held a Reception.

A large number of the ladies of town attended the reception of Mrs. T. E. Tait, Rear Street, held on Thursday afternoon from three to six. Mrs. T. S. Tait, her husband's mother, received with her. Miss Jean Tait, little daughter of the late Walter and Mrs. Tait, the only grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Tait, attended the door. The drawing-room, where the guests were received, was decorated with pink and white 'mums and candles. Mrs. J. Nesbitt ushered the callers to the dining-room, which was decorated with yellow 'mums and candles. Mrs. Wm. Smith and Mrs. J. Allan poured tea at the dining table, which was prettily arranged. Misses Helen Tait, H. Atkinson, V. Durran, Brunelle served a dainty lunch.

Mrs. Tait is a bride of the past summer, and has already made a host of friends in Campbellford.

Broke Gas Tank.

A young man, Dean Haig, who had a car from Meyers and Stone, garage, Front Street, backed against their gas tank, breaking it at the base. They had to rent the tank belonging to Mr. Wm. Meiklejohn, across the street, and are doing business there.

The Brownies had their meeting Thursday afternoon, with Brown Owl (Miss Helen Wood) and Tawny Owl (Miss Katherine Irwin) as the leaders. Fourteen Brownies were enrolled at this meeting.

A WORD TO WIVES.

Baby Buggy Better Than Typewriter, Says Cynthia Grey.

Don't envy the woman with a career. There's not one of them who would not gladly exchange her typewriter for your baby buggy or her law offices for your kitchenette.

The only contented husband is the one who's in love. Make sure that it's you that your husband stays in love with.

Really all you need to do to be a successful wife is to smile like Mary Pickford, cook like Mrs. Roser, save like Hetty Green, bring up the children like Mme. Montessori, make your own clothes like Lady Duff-Gordon, wear them like Gloria Swanson, and kiss like Nita Naldi.

Keep yourself young and attractive. No husband can quarrel with a woman in a frilly apron and just the right touch of rose colour on either cheek.

To please a husband is like balancing yourself on a tight-rope. Henry VIII. divorced Ann of Cleeves because she was too homely and beheaded Ann Poleyn because she was too beautiful.

OBITUARY.

MISS JESSIE SPENCER.

ORLAND, November 14. — Miss Jessie Spencer passed away in the Kingston hospital at an early hour yesterday morning.

She was taken suddenly ill a few days ago and Dr. McQuade of Trenton was summoned, and ordered her removed to the hospital.

Miss Spencer was visiting on Sunday in her usual health and very few of her near neighbors knew of her sickness till the news came of her death.

She was a great church worker, and the congregation to which she belonged will miss her very much.

She was the eldest daughter of Mr. Robert Spencer who resides on the Wesley Montgomery farm which he took to work on shares when Mr. Montgomery moved to Brighton, and later was elected to Parliament in the interests of the U.F.O..

Mr. Spencer a few years ago lost his eldest son very suddenly, which was a very severe blow to him, and his wife, and since Jessie has filled the place of a son as dutifully as it was possible, she being about 20 years of age.

The funeral will be held on Saturday and interment will be in the family plot in Mernait's cemetery.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1924.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

It has on more than one occasion been declared in these columns that the best way of dealing with "Reds" enamored of the Russian method of government was to have them study Sovietism at its source.

The experience of Emma Goldman, deported from the United States because of her Bolsheviki activities in 1919, confirms this view.

Miss Goldman, a fervent admirer of the Soviet, spent most of her exile in Russia.

She is thoroughly cured.

In a speech in London the other night she condemned the Russian government more vigorously than the most ardent enemy of Bolshevism has every done.

Her indictment declares that the masses of Russia are silenced as they never were under the Czar, that all ideals have been discredited by the ruling forces, that there is no such thing as liberty in the stricken land.

Her investigation of Russian conditions is summed up in the statement: "To call the present Russian government a workers' experiment is the most preposterous lie ever told."

It is too bad many more "Reds" could not have a similar opportunity to learn the truth about Russia.

THE HARASSED MERCHANT.

In an effort to protect themselves against what in their opinion has grown to be an imposition, the merchants of Port Elgin have signed an agreement not to give or donate to any institution, club, church or society or buy tickets for various entertainments during business hours.

This is a development that merchants in every Ontario centre must be longing for, because it seems that business men everywhere are considered fair game by every organization in search of funds or support.

It makes no difference whether business is good or bad, there is hardly a day that the average merchant is not canvassed to help some cause or buy tickets for some form of entertainment.

So far has this practice been developed that in its present-day form the man in business is almost afraid to refuse any request because of the reaction upon his own trade that may be entailed.

There is no reason why this continual levy upon the merchants should go on, and the Port Elgin business men have apparently hit upon a solution of the problem.

If they are courageous enough to stick to their guns they will undoubtedly win the battle—and they deserve to be victorious, because it takes a lot of moral courage to adopt such a policy in the face of the precedent of many years.

THE RADIO AND THE NEWSPAPER.

Many owners of radio sets, having been successful in obtaining the results of the American elections and other important news items via wireless, are apt to come to the conclusion that radio will eventually take the place of the newspapers in the diffusion of current news.

Yet it is much too early to deliver a funeral oration over the daily newspaper.

The election returns, for example, that came in more or less clearly out of the air were compiled in the first place by the papers.

All the news-gathering machinery of the press was utilized in obtaining the information broadcasted, and had it not been for the newspapers the election service of the radio concerns would have been meagre indeed.

The broadcasters had to depend upon the press for their news, for it must be remembered that the radio companies have no organization by which the information could be gathered.

There is a place in the scheme of things for the wireless method of communication, but that place does not seriously threaten the prestige of the daily press, which must necessarily remain the chief medium for gathering and distributing the news of the day.

The idea that the information they receive over their radio sets comes almost altogether from the offices of the leading newspapers should not be forgotten by the "listeners-in."

THE BRITISH WAY.

Canadian politicians reading the report of the Lord Mayor's banquet in London should have little difficulty in learning a lesson that might be of considerable value to this country.

The Examiner refers to the speech of Sir Samuel Hoare, the new British Secretary of the Air Service, who in commenting upon the work of his predecessor in that office declared that because of the policy carried out by General Thompson, the Labour Secretary of the Air Service, London was more secure against aerial attack than at any other time since men found they could build machines that would fly.

Let your memory go back over Canadian history and try to recall any occasion when a Government new in office had any praise to give for what had been accomplished by its predecessor.

Unfortunately, the system as it works out in this country seems to consider it inevitable that anything done by a previous Government of a different political stripe must be condemned, just as it is regarded as essential for an opposition to find fault with practically every piece of legislation introduced—although the same opposition should it eventually be placed in the seats of the mighty might unblushingly bring down the indentical legislation it had so unsparingly condemned.

The British way seems much the better, and it would be a fine thing if it could be followed more closely in this country.

Fairness need not be kept out of politics—despite the very evident impression here that it should be.

The Mexican Parliament mixes gun play with oratory, probably believing that it is more merciful to shoot a man rather than to talk him to death.

AS A FARMER SEES TAXES.

If residents of cities imagine they have any monopoly in paying taxes, some of the farmers in this district can show them where they are wrong. One of them showed a bill yesterday of $358 on a 200-acre farm.

His outlook on taxation and farm progress was interesting, says the London Advertiser. "The trouble is that we take very little interest in the way our affairs are run; large expenditures are made, and the results are seen in our taxes for a number of years, and in those yeas there may be periods, such as we have had recently, when the farmer can look at his books at the end of the year and find that he hasn't made anything. There is only one remedy I can see, and that is we must learn to do with less. I mean just what I say—we must get poorer in our ideas of what we can afford before we can be richer in our pockets.

"The difficulty is in getting governments to adopt this idea. They hate to come down from what they have been doing. Men we elect seem to get caught up with the idea of doing big things in a big way as soon as they reach office, and for that reason, as far as the farmers are concerned, they do not represent the men who elected them. Our fathers and grandfathers, who made this country possible, got along on much less than we do today, and in the sending of public money and piling on taxation we have got to look back to some of their methods if we are going to succeed. One of the greatest blessings that could come to farm life would be a scaling down of taxation, and that holds true of every elected body, from the township council right through to the county council, provincial and federal governments."

This farmer is not an extremist; he is one of many who knows what he is selling from his farm and what it costs him to produce it; he knows what he can afford in the way of taxation, and he knows that his present levies are above the mark. There is a very widespread feeling that not only farmers, but all the residents of Canada are paying too many taxes; that they are being assessed too much for more government than they need. The government that is going to get the ear of the people is the one that shows definitely that it is prepared to strike out for greater simplicity in management, and more hard work on behalf of the people it employs.

THE BRITISH CABINET.

The most striking feature of the new Baldwin Cabinet is the complete and reassuring reconciliation with the Coalition Conservative group. The breach in the party which robbed Mr. Baldwin during his first brief Premiership of the services of its most experienced leaders and effective debaters, has apparently been wholly healed. The Administration which will meet Parliament is the strongest from every point of view that has ornamented the Treasury Bench since the war-time Coalition enjoyed the "pick" of both parties—and for a long time before that.

The appointment of Mr. Churchill to the Exchequer is a frank and courageous recognition by the Prime Minister of the fact that a large section in his party are looking to this redoubtable rhetorician as a possible popular leader. Mr. Churchill is not known to have had any intensive training in finance. He can hardly owe his position to any belief in "the City"—or outside of it—that he possesses especial genius in the juggling of figures or the production of Napoleonic schemes for the betterment of trade. If he has made any reputation in this field at all, it is as a helpless "free trader" in the face of towering tidal waves of post-war cheap imports. But the Chancellor of the Exchequer is usually regarded as "the next man up"; and it is altogether probable that this is the secret of Churchill's selection.

We can fairly look for a brilliant budget. Mr. Churchill is sure to try for brilliancy, whatever else he may achieve. It will be remembered that it was as a budgeteer that Lloyd George won his first real popularity—and yet no one would have predicted that the "little Welsh Lawyer" was a wizard in finance. At any rate, Winston has his chance. He has come back, in spite of Gallipoli, which so many thought had buried him forever. The man who saved the Allies by having the fleet ready, may again play a great part in the saving of an Empire which certainly needs saving.

* * * *

The disappearance of Lord Curzon from the Foreign Office was almost inevitable under existing European conditions. One of the most valuable legacies left the country by the Labor Government was a new and priceless rapprochement with France. Curzon dates back to the old and perilous Poincare days; and it is greatly to be feared that if Great Britain now signalized her change of government by playing "Curzon," the sensitive French might be stung into countering with "Poincare."

Mr. Austen Chamberlain will bring to this great and important position a long experience in public life, a cool Chamberlain mind, a stout belief in the Empire and the full Birmingham appreciation of the value of good foreign relations. Lord Birkenhead—the other member of the triumvirate—goes to the India Office. India will not be lost under him. At a time when even Lord Reading is beginning to realize that stern measures must be taken to put a stop to terrorism and political crime in Bengal, the noble band of devoted and highly capable patriots who are upholding British rule in India will feel more firmly supported at home when they learn that Birkenhead has become their defender in Parliament.

Mr. Amery goes to the Colonial Office after a most creditable record at the Admiralty. It is an open secret that Mr. Amery would have preferred the Colonial portfolio in the first Baldwin Government. He was actually "slated" for it, but was compelled to shift to the Admiralty when it was discovered that both of the fighting portfolios had been placed in the House of Lords. Canada will welcome Mr. Amery because she knows him and he knows us; and he will be the first to forgive us for our very natural predilection in favor of our popular ex-Governor-General, the Duke of Devonshire.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Down in Hastings they think that the radio companies should be broadcasting every speech in the Porter-Hanna clash.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 13.—Receipts this morning were 21 cars, 352 cattle, 25 calves, 251 hogs, and 86 sheep and lambs. Four export steers were taken at $6.50 a cwt., and the balance of the load were taken by a local butcher at $6 a cwt. A few short keeps for export cost $5.40 and $5.60, and heifers at $5.75 and $6 a cwt. Any poor and medium quality butchers sold brought steady prices, but there still remains quite a number of these for sale. Heavy Western steers, which came in overnight, went to a packer at $4 and $5.25 a cwt. One export cow brought $4.50 a cwt. and other butchers' cows were steady.

Calves close with another week of strength with fancy ones up to 12 cents a pound and good calves 10 to 11 cents. Mediums run from 7 to 9½ cents. Heavy 300-lb. calves sell at 6½ to 7 cents and good grassers 4 cents.

Choice light lambs are selling from 11¼ to 11¾ cents and are steady with a week ago. Heavy lambs 100 lbs. and over are only bringing 10½ to 11 cents and bucks are 2 cents lower than this. A couple of choice sheep sold this morning at 7½ cents a pound.

The run of hogs is favoring the packers and they are considering the lowering of the price another 25 cents a cwt. for week-end loadings, making the quotation $8.50 a cwt. f.o.b.

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, November 14 (Canadian Press). — Receipts of fresh eggs still continue to decline and the demand for specials and extras is in excess of the supply. For these grades prices have again advanced and are likely to go higher. Storage eggs are moving into consumption very freely.

Toronto very firm. Jobbing specials 67 1-4, extras 63, storage extras 47 to 48, firsts 43 to 44, seconds 37 to 38.

Montreal firm. Jobbing extras 53 to 55, firsts 42 to 43, seconds 32 to 35.

STERLING RATES.

Demand $4.62 3-8
Cables $4.62 3-4

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, November 14 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in grain here yesterday was again reported very quiet on account of the limited demand from foreign buyers; notwithstanding this fact there was an improved demand from local exporters for all grades of spring wheat and a fair amount of business was done on c.i.f. basis, bay ports and Montreal, and some Canadian Western oats were sold at 6 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg November option c.i.f., bay ports.

The trade in car lots of grain on spot showed a slight improvement, there being a better demand from country buyers.

The tone of the market was firm, with car lots of Ontario No. 3 malting barley at $1.08, No. 3 grade at $1.07, Ontario No. 2 white oats at 60 cents, No. 3 grade at 58 cents, and No. 4 grade at 56 cents per bushel, ex-track.

Owing to the continued strength in the Canadian cash wheat situation at Winnipeg, a stronger feeling developed in the local spring wheat flour situation, and millers marked up prices another 20 cents per barrel, which makes a net rise for the month to date of 70 cents per barrel.

A firmer feeling also prevailed in winter wheat flour, but no actual change occurred in prices, owing to some holders being disposed to liquidate and accept bids below list prices.

The feature of the potato market was the firmer feeling that prevailed and prices were marked up 10 to 15 cents per bag. Green Mountains were quoted at 85 to 90 cents per bag and Quebec varieties at 75 to 80 cents per bag in bulk.

Extreme dullness marked the trade in butter, although the tone was steady. There was a fairly good inquiry from British importers for cheese, but as the prices bid showed no improvement, there was little business transacted.

New crop beans were quoted at $2.65 to $2.75 per bushel for one and three pound pickers delivered to Montreal.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, November 14 (Canadian Press). — Wheat soared yesterday well above the topmost prices heretofore reached this season. Reduced Canadian crop figures, the chief immediate influence led to speculative buying on a big scale.

Closing quotations on wheat, however, were unsettled 1 1-4 cent to 2 3-4 cents net higher, December 154 7-8 to 155 and May 162 to 162 1-8, with corn 3-4 to 1 1-4 cent up, oats showing 1 to 1 1-8 cents to 1 1-2 cents gain, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 10 cents.

Official announcement that the Canadian Government estimate of wheat in the Dominion had been lessened 20,000,000 bushels as compared with September figures gave the market here a lively upturn as soon as business began.

The stimulus was all the greater on account of cuts also in the estimates of the exportable surplus of Argentine and Australia and because of unfavourable fresh advices yesterday about crop conditions south of the Equator.

In this connection it was asserted in some quarters that wheat available for world shipment is 50,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels short of total import requirements.

THE WAYS OF HEALTH

THE COSTIVE INFANT.

As ordinarily maltreated, costiveness in infants is costly enough. In the first place, the usual cause, inadequate food, is more costly than fresh milk for infant feeding; in the second place the medicines too readily resorted to by indolent parents are more expensive than the proper food would be, and in the third place, these nimble physics produce various by-effects which eventually cost more than any ordinary family can well afford. Before we foot up the total cost it is necessary to include the most costly item of them all, the derangement of nutrition and the handicap placed upon the baby by the physic habit.

To help the forward-looking mother save the baby and the cost of maltreatment, let us mention some of the food factors which tend to prevent costiveness or constipation, and expatiate on some of them.

There is a vitamin which is present in pure fresh milk, but not in pasteurized, sterilized, condensed or evaporated milk, and this unidentified something called vitamin is a natural stimulus to digestion and to peristalsis (onward wave movements).

Perhaps it is the presence of such a vitamin in orange juice, peach juice, tomato juice and other fresh fruit juices that accounts for the laxative effect of these fruit juices in infant feeding. Perhaps the same vitamin in yeast explains the marked laxative effect of yeast in many cases. Anyhow it is a well recognized fact, a fact recognized long before the vitamin hypothesis was conceived, that pasteurization or boiling renders milk less laxative for infants.

I do not say boiling makes milk constipating, for it doesn't. It is a mistake to assume that any food item which isn't distinctly laxative must be binding. It is a mistake to assume that any food is binding for infant or adult. There is no such thing—well, there we go again, and we don't want to go just yet. To announce that there is no such thing as a binding or constipating food, not even a diet of cheese, is to invite a lot of sarcastic letters from old women who just know better, and if there is anything I can't endure in silence it is sarcasm from some one else.

The direct cause of constipation in many young infants on the bottle is a weak feeding formula, insufficient total solids. When there is nothing much to digest, the intestine naturally slows down on the job. The obvious remedy is to increase the strength of the food.

The use of a cereal decoction for diluting the milk, in the modification of milk for infant feeding, is a factor which opposes costiveness. Oatmeal water has the best repute for this purpose. To prepare oatmeal water for diluting or modifying milk, boil for several hours two tablespoons of rolled or crushed or ground oats or oatmeal and a quart of water, and after it has simmered long enough (often over night) strain it through coarse muslin. The younger the infant the longer the boil, is the rule to go by. Boiling converts the starch in oatmeal to dextrin, a more readily soluble form for infants. After the age of 5 months an infant can readily digest oatmeal water which has been boiled only half an hour, or less. About the age of 3 months is a good time to begin using oatmeal water in place of plain water or lime water for modifying milk.

Break your word and your credit falls to pieces.

Military Funeral For Well Known Millbrook Citizen Who Died in Toronto Following Operation.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 14.—The funeral of the late Herbert LaFontaine Burnham, who passed away, following a critical operation at the General Hospital, Toronto, on Sunday, November 9th, took place from the residence of his mother, Mrs. E. S. Burnham, King Street, Millbrook, on Armistice Day, Tuesday, November 11th, at 2.30 p.m.

Deceased was the eldest son of the late Dr. E. L. Burnham, and Mrs. Burnham, and was born in Hillsburg, Ontario, fifty-six years ago. He was one of a family of seven children, four of whom still survive. From early manhood the late Mr. Burnham was attracted to military life, being for some years a member of "A" Battery, Kingston, and previous to joining the artillery was connected with other military organizations as well. Enlisting at the time of the Boer War, he spent a year in South Africa, enduring such hardships that his health was undermined and never again regained a normal standard. Injured on board ship on the return journey from Africa, deceased was confined in a Halifax hospital for several weeks before he could complete his trip home to Ontario.

Missing the public civic reception given when his companions in arms, the late Captain W. D. Leach and E. Fleming, returned from the Boer conflict, deceased was nevertheless accorded a warm welcome, the citizens, accompanied by the local band, gathering at the station and giving him a spontaneous and appreciative greeting. Handsome gold-headed canes, suitably engraved, were presented to the three men who represented Millbrook on the African battlefields.

The late Herbert L. Burnham was for some time in business in Peterboro, and later joined with his brother in Millbrook, the firm name being Burnham Bros. Owing to failing health, deceased was obliged, about two years ago, to give up mercantile life and received treatment for a severe form of nervous trouble at the Ontario Hospital, Whitby. Other complications arising, a critical operation became necessary, and this was performed by Dr. F. N. G. Starr, of Toronto, at the General Hospital on Saturday. Failing to rally from the anesthetic, deceased passed away at noon the following day.

Predeceased by his father, the late Dr. E. L. Burnham, whose death occurred one year ago last February, the immediate surviving relatives, besides his mother, are one sister, Miss Pearl, at home, and three brothers, George E., of Millbrook, J. Edgar of St. Petersburg, Florida, and Frederick W., of Peterboro.

The late Mr. Burnham was a member of the Methodist Church, and at one time was connected with the local lodge of the Canadian Home Circle. The funeral was of a military character, the local corps being in command of Captain A. Thorne, Sergeant A. McCorry having charge of the firing party, and W. Layfield, of Peterboro, blowing the "Last Post" at the graveside.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. F. H. Howard, Rev. S. T. Tucker of Orono, a former pastor, and Rev. J. Wilks, and the pall-bearers, Messrs. W. Hilton, C. Garside, J. Abbott, G. F. Harrington, J. Todd, V. Lambert, J. H. Paul and R. Smith, were all veterans of the Great War.

The Millbrook band, under the leadership of G. A. Duncan, headed the funeral procession from the house to Gardiner's Cemetery, where interment took place, and a large number of friends also accompanied the remains to their last resting place. Among the floral tributes was a wreath from the local branch of the Great War Veterans' Association.

Those from outside points who attended the funeral were his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. V. May, two cousins, Mrs. F. Kean and Mr. Chas. May, of Toronto; Rev. S. T. and Mrs. Tucker of Orono, Mrs. Edgar Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Burnham, and Mr. J. Firth of Peterboro.

A Special Meeting.

A special meeting of the Quarterly Board of the Methodist church was held at 11.30 a.m., in the Sunday school Hall, on Wednesday. After the business session was concluded, the members, with their wives, sat down to a luncheon at which guests of honor were Rev. A. J. Langford, of Trinity church, Peterborough, secretary of the missionary department for the district, Rev. J. J. Redditt, of Lakefield, chairman of the district, and Rev. Mr. Earle, missionary of furlough from China.

Interesting and inspiring addresses along missionary lines were delivered by the three visiting ministers, the object of the gathering being to create more enthusiasm and also impart up-to-date information. Similar meetings are being held throughout the entire district during this month.

Members of the Board present were: Rev. F. H. and Mrs. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. W. Fred Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Aiken, Rev. Joseph and Mrs. Wilks, Mr. and Mrs. Stinson, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Brown, Mr. J. W. Whitfield, Mrs. A. Kennedy, Mr. S. J. Hamilton, Mr. J. W. and Mrs. Hamilton, Mr. W. G. Pendrie, Miss Marjorie Skitch, Miss May Needham, Miss E. L. Hetherington, Mr. W. G. Hetherington.

District Meeting.

A meeting of the District Council of the A.Y.P.A. was held at Christ church, Omemee, on Friday evening, the vice-president, Mr. H. J. Devey, of St. Luke's church, Peterborough, being in the chair. The president, Mr. R. Stone, Millbrook, was unavoidably absent from the gathering.

All branches were well represented with the exception of St. Paul's church, Perrytown, and St. John's church, North Cavan.

Rev. Mr. Weir, rector of the church at Omemee, opened the meeting with prayer, and routine business received the necessary attention. Among new business brought up for discussion was the proposal to hold a banquet, having it if possible along the lines of the "Inspirational Banquet" which was such a success at the recent A.Y.P.A. Council meeting at Kingston. Several delegates who were at Kingston urged the helpfulness of the gathering about the supper tables in the "Limestone City," from the standpoint of encouraging attendance, and increasing the interest of all concerned with the young peoples' work, and it was decided to ask all branches in the Peterborough district to unite in such an educative and social occasion, Thursday, December 4th, being the date set for the event. It is probable that the A.Y.P.A. of All Saints' church, Peterborough, will have the banquet under its auspices, but definite decision on this point will be reached later.

Community singing, and a contest, enlivened the concluding social hour, and refreshments were served before the visiting delegates left for their respective homes.

Those from Millbrook who were present included: Mr. M. Gray, Miss May Attwooll, and Miss M. B. Turner.

A Pie Social.j

A very successfhl pumpkin pie social was held in the Methodist church basement on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the "Golden Links" Mission Circle, Mrs. V. Lambert being superintendent, and Mrs. J. McKnight, president, of the organization.

The pastor, Rev. F. W. Howard, occupied the chair his brief opening remarks giving some report of the work of the Circle which annually contributes $50 towards the salary of Miss Bessie Hawken, missionary at Wahstac, Alberta. The latter who has been on furlough for nearly a year, has but recently returned to her work in the west.

The various numbers on the programme met with warm applause from the audience, an encore being demanded in each case. Those contributing were: Miss L. Stutt, who gave two readings which were much enjoyed, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, and Mr. W. H. Coombe, whose vocal duet selections are always popular with the listeners; Misses Ethel Richardson and Estelle Hetherington, who gave a piano duet in their usual accomplished manner. Margaret Howard's reading was also well done, and the duet, "I'm so shy," by Jean Stinson and Lawrence Rowland, brought an insistent demand for an encore.

The girls of the Circle served pumpkin pie, sandwiches and coffee, for refreshments, and judging by the quantity which disappeared, as plate after plate of pie especially, was emptied, this part of the evening was particularly enjoyed.

The receipts were over $18, and considering the amount of sickness in the village at the present time, (some of those who were to have assisted with the programme being unable to do so on this account) and other unfavorable circumstances which had their effect in lessening the attendance, from the financial viewpoint, as well as from all others, the evening was a decided success.

Miss Mary Howard, who is taking her Arts course at Toronto University, spent the Thanksgiving week-end with her parents, Rev. F. H. and Mrs. Howard, at the parsonage.

Miss L. Stutt, teacher at "Fairview" school, 4th line of Cavan, spent the Thanksgiving week end at her home at Orono.

Mrs. F. W. Burnham and daughter, Dorothy, are guests of Mrs. E. S. Burnham this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Dawson Fair of Toronto, were guests of Mr. and Mrs S. E. Eakins, and Mrs. R. J. Doak, over the holiday week end.

Mrs. E. McConnell and two children, Margaret and Bobby, of Toronto, spent Thanksgiving with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Nattrass.

Life is in itself neither good nor evil; itis the scene of good and evil as you make it.

IN TRIPLE SHOOTING

"Think of me, no health and strength to work, no money, and soon no home—am afraid my nerves cannot hold out much longer—no sleep, no rest, but worry, worry, worry about our future." These lines from an unfinished letter written by Mrs. Ote Morgan, of Salina, Kas., lay at her side when police found the bodies of the woman, her husband and son, Loren. She is believed to have shot her husband as he slept, after chloroforming the son, then shot the boy and finally herself.

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL MEET

The North Monaghan Council met at the court house, Peterboro, on Monday, November 10th with the following members present: Reeve Rye, Deputy Reeve Lillico and Councillors Dobbin and Fallis.

A deputation was present from Orpington Road in regard to the work being done by the township's scavangers. A resolution was passed that the members of the Board of Health, Medical Officer of Health and the Sanitary Inspector be a committee to inspect all that area of the Township of North Monaghan adjacent to the city, where they think it is desirable that a monthly collection by the scavanger should be made and that the said committee report to the township council so that a by-law may be passed, setting aside certain sections and streets for the purpose of the above monthly collection.

A letter was read from Mr. A. McNabb, C.N.R. agent, stating that the crossings referred to in the council's letter were on private property and that the railroad was not responsible for their upkeep. A resolution was passed, that the above letter be referred to the township soliictor for advice, the municipal council taking the stand that the Railway Company is responsible for the upkeep of crossings on the Public Highway.

By-law number 858 was introduced and finally passed, granting authority to the Peterboro Utilities Commission to-day a water main on Lock street from a point just south of Albertus street to a point north of Braidwood avenue, for the purpose of supplying water to the Brinton Carpet Company.

By-law number 859 was introduced read, and finally passed, granting the Peterboro Utilities Commission to place poles and string wire on the Public Highway in the township of North Monaghan.

The following bills were passed and ordered to be paid:

Drummond and Hall, 1 scraper, $14; A. Patterson, express on crusher repairs, $2.85; E. Lowes, sheep killed by dogs, $20.00; G. Ward, sheep killed by dogs, $2.00; Peterboro Utilities Commission, for water, $2.60; Huggins Hardware Co., for supplies, $9.04; Peterboro Hardware Co., for oil, 60 cents; Chairman of the election board of the county of Peterboro, $129.25.

The next regular meeting will be held on the 15th day of December at the Court House, Peterboro, at 2 o'clock.

KANSAS WOMEN LOVINGLY CARE FOR ANIMALS

Two Sisters Winning World Fame by Their Work.

SAVED HUNDREDS.

Boys and Girls Come From Miles Around to Learn Nursing Art.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 13.—(Associated Press).—Out in the hills of Kansas, across the Missouri River from here and close by that stream, two lone women, Sarah H. and H. H. Jacobs, sisters, are making a sacrificial fight for friendless and suffering animals that is winning them world fame.

These women, by stint and industry, acquired a little home in the outlying district that is given over unselfishly and almost completely to housing discarded dogs, cats, birds and horses, and to spreading the gospel of humane endeavor.

In order to carry on their chosen work, H. H. Jacobs works as a bookkeeper, going a dozen miles daily to her desk, while her sister, white-haired and frail, is housekeeper. In the 20 years since they began the enterprise, and it has been carried on solely through their own means and without monetary recompense, the Jacobs sisters have cared for hundreds of animals, patiently nursing the sick back to strength and providing for the strays and disowned till good homes were found.

In their community neighbors testify to friendly acts of these women that have touched human ills as well, so there has been no criticism that unnecessary time and money were expended upon animals while youth went neglected.

Boys and girls, as well as grown-ups, for miles around call regularly at the Jacobs' home for advice in caring for their pets, and the Misses Jacobs take advantage of the visits to drive home lessons in humane treatment and correct living.

One example of appreciation is the action of Governor P. P. Baxter, who caused the State House flag at Augusta, Me., to be displayed at half-mast when Garry, his Irish setter and faithful companion, was buried with seven of his forebears. The Jacobs are proud of Governor Baxter's friendship, and display his photograph when the incident is related.

Miss H. H. Jacobs, in speaking recently of their work, said: "Governor Baxter's photograph occupies a prominent position in a semi-public room of our house. In the evening it has been the custom for the boys to come in and have a look at it. When a new boy comes, the older ones take the attitude of proprietorship. 'That's him,' they announce expressively. 'Chappie' and 'Brownie' and 'Pal' come along in also, and it has been decided that these dog companions of the boys all show some semblance to Garry.

"Governor Baxter, replying to those who criticized him for lowering the flag in honor of his dog, said: 'I did it, not because Garry was my dog and a member of my family, but to draw people's attention to the qualities of the dog, qualities which are so often forgotten in human relationship.'

"We are far from being alone in this work; if we were, we should despair," Miss Jacobs continued. "M. K. Matthews, Honorable Secretary of the National Equine Defense League of London, England, writes: 'We should find work for reforms in treatment of horses almost impossible had not the horses been my friends and companions from early childhood.'

"C. W. Howard, formerly of Iowa, now engaged in humane work in the Philippines, states that it does less good to arrest a man ten times for beating his horse than to get just the beginning of a thought into the fellow's head that all living creatures have rights that should be respected.

"There is a woman who has honored us with her interest in our work here and that is Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske, the actress, widely known for her humane efforts.

"The fight for the establishment of justice and recognition for animals is a fight largely against ignorance. There are certainly legalized cruelties that seem to have gained a strong foothold, but public feeling is veering, and the end is in sight. With this vision, this guiding thought always before us, we must go on. Every day brings new needs and duties."

Some time ago, through the efforts of the Jacobs, a public animal refuge was started to care for the unfortunates that could not be treated at their small place. Sarah H. Jacobs had a large part in this project as President of the local Humane Society, which she manages along with her other responsibilities.

"In earlier years," said Miss Sarah H. Jacobs, "if a dog was charged with a fault, real or pretended, it meant a cruel death. Now he goes to the refuge and is given decent attention until his friends can come forward and speak for him.

"Last week my sister signed a sworn statement as a character witness for 'Buddy,' who had torn Mr. S———'s trousers, and Buddy went home exonerated. In fact, it finally looked as though Mr. S——— should have felt honored, by the time the judge had dismissed the case.

"This clean, new idea of giving the dog the square deal appeals to everyone."

Miss Jacobs told of "Shep," the dog that wouldn't stay away. Although three homes were found for "Shep," he returned each time. Twice he brought other dogs home with him. Once he brought back a "prisoner" dog that had managed to slip out.

"Humane work is very broad and far-reaching. It reaches clear to the top, and all of it is the working out of the universal plan. Our own animal family now numbers 42, with frequent visitors."

INVENTOR OF CHAIR HAS BEEN EXECUTED

COLUMBUS, Ohio., Nov. 14 (United Press).—Since the electric chair was introduced into the Ohio state penitentiary here, it has claimed 101 lives. It is also a notable fact that the men who built the electric chair died in it. His name was Charles Justice and he had two weaknesses. One was a mania for experimenting with electricity and the other was for stealing. For the latter he served three terms in the big Spring Street prison and while "doing his third stretch" he designed and built the chair.

This fine piece of work won him a pardon from Governor Harmon. But his liberty was short lived. Once outside the walls of the prison he began to steal and during one of his theft sprees he killed a man to cover up the theft.

In July of 1911 he was convicted of first degree murder and on October 27 that same year he was led up to the platform on which rests the death chair and strapped into the seat which he had designed for others.

Hanging was abandoned as the form of capital punishment at Ohio in 1897.

ICELAND PEOPLE FREE FROM ILLS

District Physician in the Far North Travels for Days to Attend Patient.

HOEN HORNAFJORD, Iceland, Nov. 13. — Village doctors in the United States are often called upon to make trips that occupy hours, or even days, to the homes of their patients, but in Iceland the district physician, as a matter of routine, often covers hundreds of miles by horse back in the ordinary course of his duties.

The government physician of the Hornafjord district, stretching along the southern coastline, has one of the most difficult territories to cover in the kingdom. His district embraces more than 100 square miles, most of it in remote valleys or along the narrow strip of coast. It is surrounded by huge mountains, many of them active volcanoes, scores of glaciers and great snowfields, and in the course of each inspection he must cross more than 100 rivers, few of which are bridged at any time of the year. In the spring these rivers fed by the big glaciers that wind down nearly every valley, become swollen torrents, and it is often hours before the doctor can find a safe ford for his pony. The usual inspection trip, made every few weeks, requires at least nine days, and sometimes a fortnight.

In addition, although Iceland is an unusually healthy country with few serious diseases, unexpected calls are frequently made for the physician, who must start out at any hour of the day or night, usually preceded by a guide sent by the patient himself. Accidents frequently occur in the fish drying sheds along the coast or among the herders in the mountain valleys, and as the district physician is the only one within hundreds of miles he must be ready on call at any time. His trips are always made on the stout Icelandic ponies, capable of carrying large loads over great distances without fatigue.

But few of the diseases known in the cities of the world are met with in this remote district of south Iceland shut off as it is from close contact even with other districts of the kingdom. No case of venereal disease ever has been reported at Hornafjord, and epidemics are unknown. Bronchial troubles, however, are rather frequent, and there have recently been some cases of pulmonary tuberculosis.

Tries Kellogg's Bran—restores health after 12 years of intense suffering

Mr. Firth writes that he suffered for 12 years from constipation and his friend for 10 years—a total of 22 years' suffering permanently relieved by Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled.

Dear Sirs:

For 12 years I had been troubled with indigestion caused mostly by constipation. Until about a year ago, I would suffer from 4 to 20 weeks at a time.

I happened to see your Krumbled Bran in a store, purchased a package and got almost immediate relief. I am still eating the Krumbled Bran every day.

The most wonderful results obtained with your Krumbled Bran I will now relate.. A gentleman who has been taking medicine for about 10 years for constipation could not find anything to give him relief. Three weeks ago I advised him to try Krumbled Bran, as I had told him what wonderful results I had gotten from it. The gentleman in question purchased a box, and he told me that for the first time in ten years he is regular without taking medicine.

Yours for success,
Willista Firth, Jr.
(Address on Request.)

Eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to relieve the most chronic case of constipation, or your grocer returns your money. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. The flavor is delicious. Try it in the recipes on every package. Made in Toronto, Canada. Sold by all grocers.

Have You a Daughter? If You Have, This Article Will Interest You!

Hamilton, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best medicine I have ever known for the building up of girls and women who are run-down in health. It has been taken by different members of my family with great success. My daughters have been wonderfully helped during motherhood by taking Favorite Prescription; it is the best medicine the expectant mother can take for health and strength. And after having the influenza my granddaughter was left in a very bad way and nothing in the way of medicine gave her any help until she began taking Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and through the use of this medicine her health was completely restored, and she is as well as ever." —Mrs. Sarah Wilshaw, 405 Cannon St., E.

Go to your neighborhood drug store at once and obtain this Prescription of Dr. Pierce's, in tablets or liquid, or send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce's Labratory in Bridgeburg, Ont., for trial package.

FURNACE

About time to start the furnace. Insurance people ask us to pass this word along: Eighteen million dollars of property is destroyed every fall in America by fires resulting from defective flues and clogged chimneys.

Two things can be done. The best is to hire an expert to clean the vents. Second-best bet is to burn a piece of zinc in the furnace. It helps clean out the soot. So does an occasional tin can or potato peelings.

The fear that is foolish doubles the danger.

Avoid the pleasure that holds the penalty of future pain.

Whatever sweetens social intercourse sweetens existence.

ANNUAL BANQUET LOCAL ENGINEERS

Prominent Speakers Will Be Here to Address the Local Brethren.

The annual banquet of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada is to be held at the Empress Hotel on Tuesday, November the eighteenth, and the engineers are confidently expecting this event to be an even greater success than it has been in past years.

An additional feature of the banquet this year will be the presentation of the Charter to the local branch, which will be made by J. B. Challies, Esq., M.E.O.C., representing Dr. Arthur Surveyor, M.E.I.C., President of the Institute.

Mr. Challies, who is now with the Shawinigan Water & Power Co., is acknowledged as the outstanding authority on water power and water power administration in the Dominion and represented Canada at the World's Power Conference in London. It is recognized by Canadian Engineers that the great success achieved by Canada in participation at the World Power Conference was in great measure due to the organizing ability of Mr. Challies and the indefatigable energy with which he planned and carried through his share of the Canadian contribution.

Previous to joining the Shawinigan Company, Mr. Challies held very important positions with the government in connection with inter-provincial and international waterway negotiations.

He is a member of the Dominion Power Board, the Lake of the Woods Control Board, and of the recently created Dominion Fuel Board.

Mr. Challies will be accompanied by O. O. Lefebvre, M.E.I.C., the chairman of the Montreal Branch, and chief engineer of the Quebec Streams Commission.

Another prominent engineer who will be a guest at the banquet is Professor H. E. T. Haultain, M.E.I.C., C.E., head of the Department of Mining Engineering University of Toronto.

Professor Haultain, before taking up the educational side of his profession, practised as a mining engineer in many different parts of the world. During the latter years of the war, and for some months afterwards he rendered yeoman service to the returned soldiers of the Province as Vocational Officer for Ontario in the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment.

HANGED HIMSELF.

Pictures of Wife and Family Arranged in Row in Front of Dangling Body.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.— (United New.)—Pictures of Mrs. Abraham Brown and her five children were found arranged in a row in front of the dangling body of their husband and father who had hanged himself after arranging the family picture galley to suit his fancy. Brown committed suicide in his place of business, Thursday and brought the framed witnesses from his home. A note addressed to Brown's brother-in-law explained that illness prompted the suicide. Mrs. Brown and the children are in California.

IN SPAIN

Attending a bull fight garbed in the senorita's distinctive "mantilla," Queen Victoria shows not only her charm but also her patriotism. She is considered the best dressed woman in European royalty.

RUGBY NEWS.

St. Peter's High School Rugby Team have arranged a game with Brown's bowling green team, to be played to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon, at the Riverside park, at 2.30 p.m.

Those who saw the game at the Oval on Thanksgiving day will testify that it was a snappy game from start to finish. The score was tight, 11-10 for St. Peter's.

Both teams have practised consistently this week and have been appreciably strengthened.

The Rugby fans are assured of a real snappy class of Rugby.

The hat will be passed during the game.

MAKING GOLD FROM MERCURY

Dr. Nagaoka, Japanese scientist, declares that he has discovered a way to transform mercury into gold, and gold into platinum. He is seen here explaining the process to some of his aides in his laboratories at the Imperial University in Tokio.

FOUR PERSONS SHOT BY SUICIDE VICTIM

Henry Webber, Crippled Barber, Shot All Four Through the Head and Did Likewise to Himself.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press). — Four persons were shot and killed here last night by Henry Weber, crippled barber, who then killed himself. The victims were his wife Bessie, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Shader and Mrs. Thomas Alexander. Weber and his eighteen-year-old wife, whom he married three years ago, quarrelled Sunday, and he had not been home since, according to neighbors. Last night he purchased a new rifle and went home carrying the weapon.

Shader was the first person he met, and he was shot through the head, as were the others, all dying within a few minutes, according to the police. Mrs. Alexander was visiting Mrs. Weber, having been married only a few months ago. Mr. and Mrs. Shader are survived by two small children.

In two notes left, Weber indicated that he planned to kill himself and his wife, but no mention was made of the others.

ANNUAL MEETING O.H.A. SATURDAY

Regulation Regarding Junior Age—Residence Rule.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association will be held at the Temple Building, Toronto, on Saturday, Dec. 6th.

No player can play without a certificate. Certificates will be distributed as soon as fees are paid, but not before.

Junior players must be under twenty years of age on January 1st, 1925. Official birth certificates will be required from all players before being allowed to play.

Under the required O.H.A. residence rule a player must be a bona fide and continuous resident of the town to which his club belongs since August 1st, 1924. The exceptions are students, teachers and sailors. The last named must play where they were living last January.

All players who have changed their clubs or place of residence since January 1st, 1924, must send in written application through their clubs to the O.H.A. Executive by Wednesday, December 17th, 1924, in conjunction with their playing certicates, if they desire to play this coming season. Each application must contain complete and definite information and reasons for changing residence. Each application must be accompanied by an affidavit from the player concerned covering the O.H.A. amateur rule. No application received after December 17th will be considered until January 21st, except in the case of junior players.

In cities and towns having more than one club a player is not allowed to change clubs without permission of the O.H.A. Executive after having first secured written release from his old club.

WEDDING BELLS

GRAHAM—POGUE

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at Knox Presbyterian church, Harbord and Spadina ave., Toronto, on November 11th, when Iva Laurence Pogue, of Toronto, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pogue, of Bobcaygeon, became the bride of James Meldrum, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Graham of Bobcaygeon. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. G. Inkster, D.D., the bride entering the church on the arm of her cousin, Mr. William Gillespie. She wore a frock of white georgette, trimmed with Irish lace, and a becoming veil. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses, with lily of the valley, chrysanthemums and autumn leaves. Her bridesmaid was Miss M. E. Cook, who looked very charming in a frock of fleur de lis satin.

The groom was attended by Mr. J. A. McWilliams.

After the signing of the register, a quiet reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Gillespie, 673 Euclid avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Graham left by motor for Peterboro, en route to their future home at Bobcaygeon.

Society

The friends of Mr. Hector McKenzie, 554 Sherbrooke street, and Mrs. D. Miller, 161 Park street, will regret to learn of the death of their father, Mr. A. McKenzie at Novar Cottage, Inverness, Scotland.

The Misses Jean Foulis and Jean Paterson have returned from Detroit, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Dingwall, Navahoe avenue.

Miss Mary Lewis, of Peterboro, was the vocalist at the wedding in Toronto on Wednesday of her brother, William M. Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Lewis of this city, to Miss Theora Arnold.

LABOR FARED WELL IN U. S. ELECTION

New Congress Not Likely to Pass Any Measure Greatly Detrimental to Interest of Workers.

EL PASO, Texas, November 14 (Canadian Press). — Labour fared "almost phenomenally well" in the general election in the United States, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labour, said to-day in a statement, commenting on the results of the 4th of November balloting.

"In the face of the tremendous Coolidge landslide, there were elected to the new House of Representatives mor mmbers having Labour's endorsement than are to be found in the present House," Mr. Gompers asserted.

"The new Congress is not likely to pass any measure greatly detrimental to the interests of the workers and the people generally."

TIE FEATURE OF GOWN.

Ornate in materials but not in line is this afternoon gown of eru silk lace over a henna-colored-charmeuse bordered with flying squirrel in soft brown. A unique effect is gained in the tie, which extends to the hemline, though generally looped up at the waistline. This is an excellent model for the woman of generous build.

A LUXURIOUS NEGLIGEE

A very luxurious negligee is this one of orchid brocade edged in maribou and lined with delicate blue chiffon that fastens on the side with a corsage of silk flowers. You will observe, however, that it is cut on the familiar lines of the old kimono, and could be copied very easily by the home dressmaker.

PLANT SOLD TO HYDRO BY GABY

Cridland Only Figure-head—Hydro Engineer the Real Owner of Equipment.

RECOMMENDED IT.

TORONTO, Nov14. —F. A. Gaby took the stand, in his own defense, at the Settell probe Friday.

The chief engineer of the Hydro commission answered, in considerable detail, the charges of wrongdoing laid against him by the former secretary to Sir Adam Beck.

Gaby admitted that he had been "the main shareholder" of the Cataract Sand and Gravel Company, and that he had purchased the assets of the company when it became insolvent, using A. Cridland of Mount Pleasant as his "agent," although under examination he agreed that Cridland had been merely a "figure head."

The chief engineer further admitted that he, as well as other engineers of the commission, had recommended the purchase of machinery from Cridland and had not notified the commission that Cridland was acting for him. This drew an adverse comment from Judge Snider, who voiced the view that Gaby should have left the matter in the hands of the other engineers, since he was personally interested in the transaction.

Cridland, Gaby's Agent

"What were your relations with A. D. Cridland? Is it true that he was simply a figurehead for you?" "Yes."

"What were your interests in the matter?" "I financed Mr. Cridland in the purchase of the assets rather than sacrifice my interests in the company."

Mr. Gaby went on to say that on the recommendation of Mr. Acres, a memorandum was placed before the commission for the purchase of this traveling derrick and certain other equipment.

"The derrick was purchased by the commission on July 9, 1917," he declared. "The actual value of the equipment was from $9,500 to $10,000."

He went on to testify that a few months later the commission had paid $6,500 for less valuable equipment.

Another Purchase.

A year later, the commission was in the market for a steam shovel.

"There were three tenders," the witness said. "One of them was that of A. D. Cridland, the price asked being $3,300."

Gaby Real Owner.

The derrick was sold to the Hydro for $4,400, Mr. Gaby testified. He denied, however, that the company had bought it for $2,100. Certain parts had cost approxmately $2,100, and the total cost to the company would be about $4,000.

"Was Cridland connected with the Cataract Company?" "No."

"Did you get him to buy the assets?" "Yes."

"Then he was only a figure head for you?" "He acted for me."

"Gaby was the one who was selling these machines to the Hydro?" "Yes."

"Did you disclose that to the commission?" "No, sir."

"It was on your recommendation that they were purchased?" "No, sir, on the recommendation of the engineers."

"Did they know you were doing the selling?" "I don't think so. They knew I was interested in the Cataract Company."

Witness admitted that he had signed a report "almost identical" with that of Mr. Acres, advising the purchase.

Mr. Brewster pressed for a copy of the inventory under which Gaby and purchased from the assignee. Witness admitted that he had no such inventory.

Mr. Brewster continued to inquire regarding the mortgage on the assets, and Mr. Lucas, for the Hydro commission, voiced a protest.

"If you're going to talk to the press——" he insisted.

"No one is talking to the press," Judge Snider assured him.

"It is nothing but suspicion," Mr. Lucas adhered. "I don't know if it is Mr. Brewster or myself, that's dense."

"You're the one that's dense on this subject," Mr. Brewster rejoined.

Judge Snider expressed the view that Gaby would have been "better advised" to have asked the commission to have other engineers deal with the purchase of the Cataract assets.

ARMISTICE DAY IN LAKEFIELD

Service Held at St. John's Church Was Poorly Attended.

POPPIES SCARCE.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 13.—The Armistice Day service, held at 10.30 in St. John's Church, although very poorly attended, was a service worthy of the solemn anniversary which it commemorated. The service was simple in character, consisting of prayers suited for the occasion and the singing of Kipling's matchless "Recessional."

Rev. Walter Cox, in a brief address, spoke on the vision of silence, taking the 10th verse of the 46th Psalm as his theme, "Be still, then, and know that I am God." The real purpose of the silence is to teach us our utter dependence on God and enable us to realize it more than we otherwise would. All over the Empire, for two minutes the busy hum of traffic, the noise of factories, and all business will cease for two minutes in commemoration of those who gave their lives on our behalf.

Since the Armistice, tragedy has followed tragedy, because the leaders who made the terms of that peace lacked the vision to look into the future and followed only the popular sentiment of the day. A new day dawns and men come to know God and understand Him in the stillness. The words of Whittier have a new significance:

"Drop Thy still dews of quietness,
Till all our strivings cease;
Take from our souls the strain and stress,
And let our ordered lives confess
The beauty of Thy peace."

The greatest comfort one can offer to those who lost their loved ones in the great tragedy of war, is that of the silence of communion. We must remember that anger, pride and resentment die away and love reveals itself in its beauty when bathed in the waters of stillness. Look into the depths and see the God of Love, then we have breathed the spirit of the command of the text: "Be still, then, and know that I am God." No greater tribute can be paid to dead or living than as one body the people stand with bowed heads waiting upon God.

When the bell sounded the first stroke of 11 o'clock, the congregation rose, and with bowed heads stood reverently, a silent witness of remembrance of the men who made the supreme sacrifice. After the two minutes silence, Mrs. Todd, the organist, played "The Dead March in Saul," which was followed by the benediction.

It was disappointing to see the comparatively small number of poppies worn over the week-end. Saturday saw a fair number in evidence, but, alas, not nearly all there should have been. Every man, woman and child should have had one, if only to show that our memories are not defective. Wearing a poppy is a small thing, but it is a symbol of that remembrance which time should not dim or selfishness obliterate. Poppies are not tags, only to be worn for a day, but should have been worn till after the sun had set on Armistice Day. When those immortal words of Col. MacCrae's were flashed across Canada: "To you we fling the torch," the reply was unanimous, "We will hold it high." One cannot help wondering what the boys "out there" think of our conception of our part. We are proud of them—are they proud of us?

The Kaiser was burnt in effigy on the grounds of the Town Hall by a group of very interested and excited small boys. The procession was not a torch light parade, the boys relying on the street lights and the moon to supply the illumination.

VOLCANO OBSERVATORY.

Control of the Hawaiian Volcano Observatory has been transferred from the Weather Bureau to the Geological Survey. Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar remains as Director.

This observatory, which stands at the edge of the active crater of Kilauea, was first planned in 1909, at the suggestion of Professor Jaggar, then of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and funds were raised for its establishment and support among the public-spirited citizens of Hawaii.

Regular scientific studies were begun at the crater in 1911. In 1912 an observatory building was presented by the town of Hilo, and systematic records of volcano and earthquake activity have been maintained since that time under the direction of Dr. Jaggar. In December, 1913, the local committee in charge of funds organized the Hawaiian Volcano Research Association, which supported the observatory until 1918, when it was transferred to the United States Government.

THREE ELEPHANTS GO ON A RAMPAGE

Break Chains, Gallop Up Street of Philadelphia and Entered a House.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Three baby elephants, part of a vaudeville act at a local theatre, yesterday scored such a smashing hit in private life that their owner, Don. Darragh, of New York, was held in $300 bail, pending repairs to certain parts of the north-east section of Philadelphia. The trio of pachyderms, confined at night in a garage, early yesterday took offence at sounds from a balky motor car, snapped their chains and sallied forth, with the car owner leading the procession at a spanking pace.

The fragrant whiffs of breakfast being prepared by Mrs. Anna Dammore in her kitchen halted the elephantine section of the parade. Mrs. Dammore gazed out of her window a second, and then, with the three young Dammores, sought the roof.

"Babe," one of the runaways, burned his trunk on the stove, when the trio entered the kitchen, seized that article by its under-pinning and gave it a course in calisthenics. The other elephants wrecked the ice box and splintered furniture as an accompliment. The police in the meantime summoned Darragh, who returned his charges to the theatre yard, where they were fastened to heavy stakes.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: When it was definitely announced by various Protestant denominations recently, that women would not be admitted to the ministry, I was naturally surprised, and wrote to the President of the National Council of Women (Canadian Branch) for their opinion upon this refusal. The answer which I enclose, is well worth the consideration of all women—and ministers. It would be a strange thing if women were to receive their first repulse and first denial of the equal standing of women in the world, from the Protestant ministry. It is something that cannot go unchallenged.

J. H. BURNHAM.
New Glasgow, Nova Scotia,
Nov. 10, 1924.

Dear Mr. Burnham:

I must apologize to you for my delay in replying to yours of the 24th ult., because of the unfortunate circumstance of your note being mislaid. I trust, however, that my response will not be too late to be of service to you. In answer to your query as to the policy of the National Council of Women re "The attitude of those religious denominations which refuse women admission to the pulpit," I want to say as an organization we form no policy on matters of this nature. We are a federation of women's organizations, of all beliefs and professions; Protestant and Catholic, Liberal and Conservative, Jew and Gentile, our motto being the Golden Rule. The closing remarks of our first President, Lady Aberdeen, in her address at our first annual meeting, thirty years ago, may give you in concise form our real object: "The progress of all, through all; the service of all, by all."

As an evidence of our action re women in pulpits, I may state that at our last annual meeting in Toronto, this autumn, Professor Carrie Derick of McGill, an Anglican, occupied the pulpit of Bloor street Presbyterian, as one of the delegates, and in the International Council, of which we are a part, we frequently have one of our members occupy a pulpit in one of the city churches where we hold our meetings, notably at our meeting at the Hague, in 1922, when Miss Picton Tubervil of Great Britain, also an Anglican, occupied a Baptist church pulpit and spoke to us in English.

It gives me pleasure, Mr. Burnham, to give you this or any information, regarding our organization, which we think is full of great possibilities for the good of our country. If I can find a copy of our "History," I am going to take the liberty of sending it to you.

With kindest regards, I remain, yours sincerely,

CAROLINE CARMICHAEL,
Pres. N.C.W. of Canada.

HEALTH FABLES.

"My goodness, it seems like the children grow an inch a day," Mr. Mann would say as he returned from work and looked over his little brood.

Many children seem to grow too fast and some to sprout up all too slowly. Experts have worked out tables showing the sizes children should have attained at certain years and these are interesting to all parents.

Between the ages of 6 and 11 children should grow about two inches a year. Between 12 and 17 normal growth is not more than two inches a year.

Girls who will be short of stature grow three inches between 12 and 13; short boys do not exceed a growth of two inches a year and medium sized boys grow three inches between 13 and 14; tall boys grow three inches a year between 13 and 14 and 14 and 15.

At the age of 15 statures, ranging from short to tall, run about in this order:

Boys—Short, 58 inches; medium, 63 inches; tall, 70 inches.

Girls—Short, 59 inches; medium, 62 inches, and tall, 66 inches.

USE LITTLE FUR.

The newest coats button in the front and have muffs to go with them. Consequently little fur is used on the sleeves.

WHAT FAMILY CAN BEAT WEBB BROTHERS?

JOE WEBB, 76 Never sick. Farms 313 days a year.

"DUTCH" WEBB, 89 He's a railroad section hand.

SAM WEBB, 88 Walks 12 miles every day.

ENOCH WEBB, 91 Has nearly 500 descendants.

"UNCLE NED" WEBB, 93 Smokes pipe once a day.

The combined ages of the Webb brothers of Letcher county, Ky., total 428 years. The "baby" of the family is Joe Webb, 76. The eldest is "Uncle Ned" Webb, who admits he's 93. In between Joe and "Uncle Ned," are "Dutch," 89; Sam, 88, and Enoch 91. All are farmers except "Dutch." He is a railroad section hand. Sam and Enoch both are Confederate veterans. The brothers are direct descendants of Danie Boone. Each of the brothers has a slightly different formula for long life but it might be incorporated into this one: "Simple living in the open, breathing plenty of good fresh air, drinking pure water, obeying every law of health, eating and drinking moderately and adhering to moderation in all things."

LOSE WEIGHT.

One-half cup stewed rhubarb, mushroom and spinach timbale (individual), 1 cup parsnip stew, 3 ounces broiled hamburg steak, 1 baked potato, 2 ounces curly endive with lemon juice, 2 large baked onions, 1 teaspoon butter, 2 pieces crisp gluten toast, 1 gluten roll, 1 pint skimmed milk.

Total calories, 1107. Protein, 271; fat, 316; carbohydrate, 520. Iron, .022.

Spinach and Mushroom Timbales.

One cup cooked spinach, 2 tablespoons chopped mushrooms, 1 egg white, 1 tablespoon whole wheat bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon butter, salt and pepper.

Melt butter and saute mushrooms. Add to spinach finely chopped. Season with salt and pepper and add bread crumbs. Add white of egg slightly beaten. Turn into buttered timbale mold, set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven until firm to the touch, about 25 minutes. Unmold and serve.

Total calories, 173. Protein, 44; fat, 100; carbohydrate, 29. Iron, .0133 gram.

GAIN WEIGHT.

One-half cup stewed rhubarb, 3 slices cornmeal mush with 6 tablespoons maple syrup, 1 soft boiled egg, spinach and mushroom timbale, 1 candied sweet potato, 1 cup parsnip stew, 3 ounces broiled hamburg steak, 1 large twice-baked potato, 2 ounces curly endive with 2 tablespoons French dressing, 4 button radishes, 2 baked onions with 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup rice and raisin custard pudding, 1 toasted and buttered bran muffin, 1 whole wheat roll, 2 slices whole wheat bread, 3 tablespoons butter, individual peach shortcake with 4 tablespoons whipped cream, 1 pint whole milk.

The parsnip stew is made with salt pork cut in bits and tried out. The crisp bits of meat are left in the stew. Scrape parsnips and cut in cubes. Add to pork with water to more than cover. Cook until tender and break slightly with a fork or wire potato masher. Add milk and pepper but no salt.

Serve the radishes for breakfast. They add bulk to an otherwise more or less "concentrated menu."

LOSE WEIGHT.

One large orange, 2 tablespoons rolled oats, stuffed beet salad, 4 tablespoons baked shrimp and tomatoes, 1 cup spinach, 1 cup fruit salad, 4 ounces leaf lettuce, 2 thin slices gluten bread, 1 whole wheat roll, 1 pint skimmed milk.

Total calories, 1092. Protein, 345; fat, 146; carbohydrate, 601. Iron, .024 gram.

Stuffed Beet Salad (Individual).

One medium sized beet, 2 tablespoons cottage cheese, salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, lettuce ribbons.

Wash beets and boil until tender. Dip in cold water and slip skin. Scoop out center and fill with cottage cheese mixed with salt, pepper, lemon juice and paprika. Arrange on a bed of shredded lettuce and serve very cold. Bits of the beet scooped from the center can be used to garnish the top of the cheese.

Total calories (exclusive of lettuce), 82. Protein, 43; fat, 4; carbohydrate 35. Iron, .0003 gram.

The rolled oats are eaten without sugar or cream. Skimmed milk can be used. If the oats are cooked several hours the natural sweetness of the grain will make the lack of sugar quite unnoticeable.

The fruit salad has no dressing but the fruit juices and the spinach is seasoned with salt and pepper and lemon juice.

GAIN WEIGHT.

One large orange, 1 cup rolled oats with six chopped dates, 1 soft boiled egg, 1 cup cream of vegetable oyster soup, stuffed beet salad, 4 tablespoons baked shrimps and tomatoes, 2 rice croquettes, 1 cup spinach with 1 hard boiled egg and 4 tablespoons cream sauce, 1 cup fruit salad with 2 tablespoons whipped cream dressing, 4 ounces leaf lettuce, 2 pieces whole wheat toast, 2 whole wheat rolls, 2 slices raisin bread, 1 pint whole milk, ¼ cup cream, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons croutons, 1 raisin puff pudding, 2 tablespoons nut and date pudding with 1 tablespoon whipped cream.

Baked Shrimps and Tomatoes.

Two cups canned shrimp, 1 cup canned tomatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon celery pepper, 3 drops onion juice, 1 tablespoon butter, ½ cup coarse whole wheat bread crumbs.

Rub tomatoes through a colander to remove seeds. Cook until thick. Add seasonings. Remove the little black vein from canned shrimps and put them in a buttered baking dish. Pour over tomato sauce. Melt butter and stir in crumbs. Put buttered crumbs over mixture in baking dish and bake in a hot oven until the crumbs are brown and the mixture is hot through and through. Serve with rice croquettes.

Total calories (exclusive of croquettes), 765. Protein, 345; fat, 130; carbohydrate, 70. Iron, .0003 gram.

The stuffed beet salad for this menu has cream and nuts in the cheese and a rich mayonnaise masks the whole.

FRINGE USED EFFECTIVELY

This frock shows you how fringe may be used evctively and yet so conservatively that it is not out of place on a tailored frock. The fringe is made of the material, which is closely woven black rep, and applied so that the white undertunic shows through the slits. The leather bag worn at the belt is of brilliant red, with perforations and a silk tassel.

REMOVES SCORCHES.

Scorch stains that are not too deep may be removed by rubbing the surface with bread crumbs that are not too stale.

Putty shades are very much liked in wools and silks for gowns for all occasions.

HAM AND—

An appetite's really a right funny thing; it affects everybody the same. For various dishes a longing 'twill bring; then again it will likely go lame.

You're wishing for this and you're wishing for that 'cause your palate just tells you to do it. You order queer dishes just based on your wishes and then you will gladly go to it.

A man will eat pork chops for many a day 'cause his pork choppy appetite's fired. And then all desire for them passes away when of pork chops he finally gets tired.

It seems it's this way with the food that's in range on the restaurant menus each noon. You eat of one thing; then you suddenly change as the one thing seems way out of tune.

There's just one exception that comes to my mind and it's ham, for in every day rations, the ham on the menus, you always will find, carries with it such good combinations.

DANGEROUS.

Airplanes at some of the ocean beaches have been flying low over the bathers to throw a scare into them. One woman was severely injured, struck by an anchor or some other object dangling from a rope attached to the plane. It starts us thinking, what a dangerous device the airplane will be in the hands of fools. Autos are bad enough.

When airplanes swarm overhead by the thousands, the garbage and clutter that will shower on our heads will be a fright, unless planes are barred from flying over communities. They could be restricted to "air lanes" or roads, flying traffic cops keeping them there.

KEEP KNIVES SHARP.

Keep your carving tools in good shape. Many a good roast or well-cooked steak has been mutilated through carving with a dull knife.

PRACTICAL AND DECORATIVE

Black bengaline, soft but heavy, makes this directoire coat dress with its double cape and circular sides. It shows something new in coat dresses but is as practical as it is decorative. The white upstanding collar and white cuffs add to the femininity.

300 WERE KILLED.

Severe Earthquakes Hit the Island of Java on Wednesday and Thursday.

BATAVIA, Java, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press.)— The Island of Java has been severely shaken by earthquakes. Already 300 persons are reported killed and countless missing. The earth shocks extended over Wednesday and part of yesterday. Many native towns in Kedu district, a central residency of Java, have been destroyed by landslides. One village completely disappeared into a river.

Shock centred in health resort of Wonosobo, where all buildings collapsed.

Despatch to the Morning Post from Amsterdam, quoting reports received from Java, says the river near Kampong has been transformed into a mud channel in which the bodies of men and animals are lying.

Forty-five houses in Leksono district have disappeared entirely. The whole of Dessah Badjingan has been engulfed in Pring river.

Mageling, the principal town in the Kedu district, was only slightly damaged. Houses of Dutch officials at Wonosobo were not destroyed.

Java, in Malay Archipelago, is the seat of Government for Dutch East Indies.

CONCERTS MONCTON ON FRIDAY NIGHT

C.N.R. Railways Station To Broadcast Every Tuesday and Friday.

MONCTON, Nov. 14.—Beginning the third of the series of radio broadcasting concerts from the new station CNRA here will be given this evening. An excellent programme has been arranged, including orchestral numbers by the Rainbow Melody Boys of Moncton, vocal numbers by Mrs. H. N. Price, contralto; May Ranse Mackinnon, soprano; Tom Stenhouse, basso; Mrs. Raymond N. Legere, violinist; William Elliott, saxophone; Tilman Melanson, reader; accompanist, W. A. McKee. The address of the evening will be broadcasted by Mr. C. J. Milligan, regional counsel of the Canadian National Railways. Concerts from the Moncton station are being given every Tuesday and Friday at 8.30 p.m. Tune in at wave length 435 meters.

PARTY GOT 13 DEER.

Charles McClelland Returns After Successful Expedition to New Ontario.

Charles S. McClelland has just returned from a hunting trip in New Ontario, where he went with a party that brought back 12 deer. One deer was used by the party, making a total bag of 13. Wolves are plentiful in the district hunted over by Mr. McClelland.

THE WRANGEL FLEET.

Russia Has Renewed Its Representations For Their Return.

PARIS, Nov. 14.—(United Press).—Russia has renewed its representations for the return of the Wrangel Fleet which fled to France when Wrangel was defeated in his counter revolutionary movement. The ships are now interned in the French naval station at Bizeria, Tunis. This move has caused a flurry in diplomatic circles because the possession of this fleet by Russia will give it a preponderance in the Black Sea and the Eastern Mediterranean, which France seeks to avert by all possible means.

WORLD WAR FOR STEEL CENTRES GEORGIA WILDS

Primitive Caucasian District Will Soon Be Highly Industrialized Spot.

GREAT OUTLOOK

Within a Few Years a Second Pittsburg May Arise.

By FREDERICK KUH.

MOSCOW, Nov. 14.—(United Press).—The struggle of foreign industrialists and bankers for possession of the Chiaturi (Georgia) manganese ore deposits is now reaching a decisive stage. Upon the issue of that struggle depends to a great extent the control of the world's steel market.

There is romance in the fact that this wild, primitive Caucasian district, where warring tribes and medieval bandits form part of humdrum existence, is soon to be transformed into one of the most highly industrialized spots of all Eurasia. Such elementary contrivances as a pair of spectacles or a gold tooth are still regarded as mechanical wonders in this region, which is soon to have its industrial cities.

Within a few years, "the cradle of the white race" may be Americanized, and a second Pittsburgh may arise in the midst of a civilization of feudal mountaineers. It is one of the miracles of this era of super-power, that the inhabitants of a wild, uncultivated country may be hurled from the sixteenth to the twentieth century almost in a twinkling. And it is no coincidence that the power which is likely to bring about this astounding change is American industrialism.

Down to Three.

Although eight foreign groups have entered the race for the Chiaturi concession, the decision has apparently narrowed down to three: the German, represented by the Gelsenkirchen ironmasters and the Deutsche Bank; the British, backed by the Consolidated Goldfields and the United Steel of England; and the United States, represented by the Harriman interests, whose power is reputed to extend from Wall street to the United States Steel Corporation. And of these three, the American group has swiftly leapt forward as the most likely contender for the coveted Chiaturi concession, embracing the richest manganese deposits in the world.

In fact, before the war, this recondite district, tucked away among the uncouth mountains and the primaeval forests of the Caucasus, supplied more than one-third of the world's manganese ore output. Under the Czar's regime, ownership of the Chiaturi mines was partitioned among German, French, British, Greek and Georgian owners, who gradually raised their total ore yield to a million tons a year. Indeed, it has been pointed out as one of the proofs of Germany's belligerent schemes that, during the few months preceding the outbreak of the World War, the Kaiser replenished his munition stocks with 650,000 tons of raw ore from the mines of Chiaturi.

Looking Abroad.

Owing to their scanty supply of capital and meagre development of industrial technology, the Soviet authorities have been obliged to look abroad for the forces which may equip and exploit these manganese deposits with all the means of modern industry. Production in the Chiaturi mines, which has fallen to less than 250,000 tons annually, will be delivered to foreign engineers and foreign capital for development, at least until the new Soviet state has achieved the mastery of technology which is necessary to recover these vast riches from the earth and distribute them among the world's markets.

Although the American group was the last to enter the race for this concession, the Soviet Government, aware that industrial science has attained its highest expression in the United States, has been quick to offer the most favorable consideration to the Harriman group's proposals.

The discussion between the Harriman interests and the Soviet Government have already passed from the preliminary stage to the point at which a draft agreement has been drawn up.

20-Year Monopoly.

It has been agreed that the Harriman group, if it receives the contract, will secure a monopoly for the exploitation and export of the Chiaturi ore deposits for a period of 15 to 20 years—except for a restricted area which the Soviet Government, in accordance with its policy of conservation, would retain for its own use. Moreover, the Soviet Government would secure the right to purchase a sufficient share of Harriman's production to cover the Soviet Union's domestic requirements. In addition, the Soviet Government would receive a substantial royalty for each ton of ore which Harriman exports from Soviet territory. At this writing, agreement has not yet been reached as to the amount of that royalty, and while Harriman's representatives have offered to pay the Soviets three-and-a-half dollars for each ton exported, the Government is insisting upon a larger sum. Harriman would be obliged to export a minimum of 2,000,000 tons every four years, so that the Soviet Government's minimum royalty would be about two million dollars a year. While the Harriman group has manifested a marked reluctance to agree to pay any taxes whatever to the Soviet Government, the Soviet authorities may insist upon the payment of minor taxes to the local Georgian Government. It is stated in quarters close to the Harriman interests, that Harriman would be obliged to invest an initial sum, amounting to four million dollars, to be devoted to construction purposes, such as repairing factories and railroads and improving the mining facilities. The further sum which the Harriman group would be obliged to invest for operating costs has not yet been determined.

Harriman's representatives in Moscow speak with the greatest cordiality of the treatment which they have received in their negotiations with the Soviet authorities.

"Playing the Game."

"We are convinced," one of the representatives told the United Press, "that the Soviet authorities are playing the game according to the rules."

Political questions have been excluded from the discussions, in accordance with the tacit agreement of both parties, and hitherto the subject of recognition of the Soviets by the United States Government has not been approached.

The greatest difficulties which the Harriman group has encountered until now have not been with the Soviet officials, but with the present foreign leasees of the Chiaturi mines. These leasees, though working their properties independently, have been united in a single export syndicate under Soviet control. They now anticipate with good reason, that if the Harriman interests obtain virtually the entire Chiaturi region as a concession, their own holdings will pass from their hands.

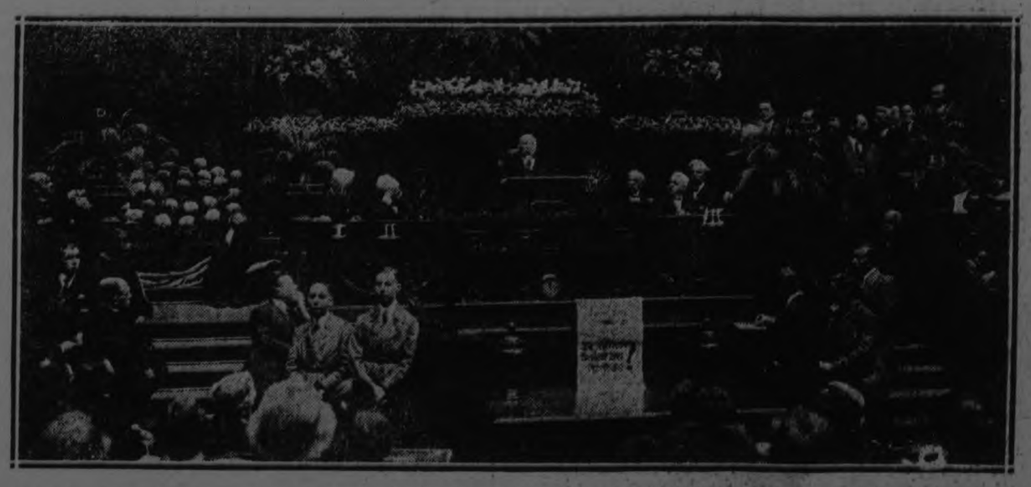
This situation has aroused grave uneasiness, notably among the German leasees in Chiaturi, upon whom certain key industries of the Ruhr, such as those of Gelsenkirchen, depend for their raw material. It is understood that both the German and British Governments have acquainted the Soviet Government with their misgivings regarding the Harriman negotiations. The United Press is informed, however, that the Harriman representatives have evolved a detailed plan for compensating the present leasees for any losses which they may sustain tarough the aliotment of the concession to Harriman.

Intense Resentment.

The resentment of the Gelsenkirchen interests in Chiaturi is, in fact, so intense that the Harriman representatives were not permitted to inspect the Gelsenkirchen properties during a recent visit to the manganese mines.

In view of the far-reaching dependence of the Ruhr industries upon Chiaturi for their ore supplies, the alarm of the German industrialists at the prospect of American control of the Chiaturi deposits has grown rapidly. It is feared that American capital will thus acquire a strengthened hold upon basic German industries.

EUROPEAN PEACE ADVOCATES GATHER IN BERLIN



There are a lot of Germans who are sick of war. Just look at this picture. It shows a peace conferenre in session in Berlin. The meeting was called the 23rd World Peace Congress. Representatives from several European nations were present. Senator Ferdinand Buisson of France is seen here addressing the delegates. Other speakers the same day were Professor Quiddo, German pacifist; Senator Henry La Fontaine, of France; and Fridtjof Nansen, Norwegian Polar explorer, educator, and diplomat.

3500

Since our republic was founded, more than 3500 schemes to amend the Constitution have been introduced in Congress. The figure is supplied by Professor Henry V. Ames, able authority.

The framers of the Constitution overlooked a lot of bets. They naturally failed to provide many things not needed at the time but absolutely necessary now. They made the Constitution extremely difficult to amend. Was that better than making it too easy to adjust?

It is the blunt man who makes the cutting remark.

FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon

Puffed with pride and pale-pink crêpe de Chine, the world looks rosy to the young hopeful en route to a party in her new French frock.

THE three great thrills of a party are and always have been the pink ice-cream for supper, the magician who takes a rabbit out of a silk hat, and the new party frock. For the latter, silk materials are now considered more satisfactory in many ways than the fine lingerie fabrics that are so sweet to start with and so crumpled before the party is over. Plain taffeta, or the plaid or figured taffetas, crêpe de Chine and chiffon velvet are the materials used by the French dressmaker for these little frocks. The puff trimming at the hem is very new and the fulness is drawn in with shirrings at the neck. French blue and shell pink are the prettiest taffeta colors; yellow and coral are sweet in crêpe de Chine and black is sometimes used in chiffon velvet.

EVERY ONE COMPELLED BY LAW TO REST AT NOON IN SPAIN

A Law That Might Be Adopted in Peterborough With Good Results.

Quitting work, closing shop and resting in the middle of hot days are now required by law in spain under the Dictatorship, according to Alfred C. Bossom, the author and architect, of New York, who has just returned from an Iberian tour.

"From time immemorial," says Mr. Bossom, "the siesta has been regarded as an unofficial institution in Spain. But some persons observed it while others kept their shops or offices open in the heat of the day. Now it is no longer optional. Tourists from America are startled by the alacrity with which the Spanish merchants obey an order to close their shops from 1 o'clock to 4.30 in the afternoon. I have seen this done in busy Madrid this August and September and in the smaller cities and villages.

"When the clock strikes the first hour of the afternoon," continued Mr. Bossom, "customers being served are politely requested to complete their purchases as rapidly as possible. In fact two or three clerks are willing to help anyone get what he wants, if they are disengaged. It is not because the Spanish merchant does not care to sell his wares that he wishes to clear his establishment. He apreciates the trade of the American tourist, as every American must be wealthy, according to his idea. He also desires to protect himself from unfair competition by being fair himself. Besides that soldiers go about in pairs enforcing the order and heavy fines are imposed for disobedience. The guards are affable and friendly but they are firm However there is no gloom in the obedience. Spain is satisfied with the compulsory siestas as with everything else, apparently, that the new regime requires.

"While I was in a large antique shop the proprietor said that it was 1 o'clock and that he must close his store and leave, but he would be delighted to have me accompany him to his house for a little refreshment. He could not sell me anything, or even mention business, but he would be only too glad to discuss Spanish art. This was in the old cathedral town of Burgos.

Every One Treated Alike.

"'It is the law of the military, Senor,' said the dealer, explaining the situation, 'and it is a very good one, for is not everyone treated quite alike? So as loyal Espaniards, we will see that this law is obeyed, for if one breaks it, see what a great harm will be done to those who have their shops closed. If anyone does not obey, it is our duty to report but the soldiers and the police see to it that none is privileged. It is a good law and we have found it so.'

"As soon as they quit business at 1 o'clock," continude Mr. Bossom, "the people go home to luncheon and take a nap. Then they come to the store and lounge about until the time for the resumption of work. In one village at siesta time the mayor welcomed us, and observing that we had cameras asked us to take the pictures of as large a group as the lens would take. He remarked that it had been a long time since there had been anybody 'wit a camera in the place. The fact that the siesta was on gave everybody a chance to get into the picture.

"When the siesta is over business goes on until 7 o'clock in the evening. The wine shops are open early and late and on Sundays. If they were closed for good by national edict it is a question as to what the popular reaction would be. I did not see an intoxicated man while in Spain, but the Spaniards do regard wine as a necessity. They are however a law-abiding people.

"While it is 110 degrees in the shade, and no shade, the siesta is always welcome. The night life has no restrictions. The wealthy classes dine late and many of the theatres do not begin until 10.30 at night. Dancing continues in hotel and tenement patio at all hours. I have no doubt but what the Spaniards would obey laws concerning their amusements just as readily.

Although nap regulations may appear paternalistic to some of us in this country it is merely an incident of the dictator form of government. It seems well adapted to Spain for the people now like to be told what to do and when to do it. Most people do. If such and such is the law they do not all contrive means to evade it; but they have a desire to cooperate with the government. They feel that whatever rules are made have been formulated for the good of the majority. This is no theoretical acceptance of the situation; it is a practical working out of political economy.

"Under the existing regime in Spain law and order are supreme. The tourist is impressed by the fact that in the streets are seen no loungers, no evil looking characters, no persons such as those the New York police are likely to arrest as 'suspicious' were one to see them below the dead line. I have never been anywhere where there was a greater semblance of outward order than in Spain under her dictatorship."

OXFORD RIVALS EDISON'S TEST IN MENTAL QUIZ

Boys of 14 Are Asked to Compose Poetry and Decipher Cryptic Letter Without the Code.

Intelligence tests have invaded, in a more virulent form than Mr. Edison's, the sober English precincts of an exclusive Oxford school. This school stands high. While the boys' ages run from 8 to 14 years, their knowledge has far outstripped their years. It is a preparatory institution for high school. Many celebrated professors sent their young hopefuls to the Dragon School. General Bruce comes in person to tell the lads all about his experiences in his first effort to climb Mount Everest. John Drinkwater comes and reads his poems to the boys, and Mr. Hurley tells them of his many and varied experiences in the strange corners of the earth. They are a fine lot of boys in their neat blue serge coats, with the yellow and red dragon—the school emblem—embroidered where a decoration should be worn.

When boys from the Dragon School go away from Oxford for the summer they do not go to loaf and laugh away the time. The summer course follows them, and it is this summer course that infringes upon their right of giving weird examinations, strange tests of mentality. The Dragon School has made M. Edison's questions seem utterly and entirely proper. The army psychiatric test is only a slight mental relaxation compared to the summer course indulged in by these boys of from 8 to 14 years.

Below is one of the examination papers sent out to young Dragons for their holiday upkeep of education. It was given me by one of the few American boys in attendance there. Fortunately, no time limit is set in this examination.

1—Solve:

O grand School,
Red fox,

Mother Ratseed,

We have had red hunt and sling thing and a pound row of rain today, so I take no unfit a pen to write to you about this O grand School.

My out a fiver subjects are real bag, grey mote, a vile stern, and O the shiny girls.

I have many finders among the up lips here:—Well up, Ada; a tin hornet; I yell vine; toss the rug; no good, try Ann; and the bun chaser can. Also among the rum sets there are O store it!, manly Hock & Jum, re-fills can, rare witch (who is I'm no chap a pool) and R.L. gives ballast.

Lastly, all so grand, your and old, acclaim 'men, collar yacht's filler!'

Your cat off in a tee
Bill.

2—How many times a day a G. W. R. train cross the river between Oxford and Paddington?

3—Is a man allowed by law to marry his widow's first cousin?

4—What is the height of Fujiama, Everest, Ben Nevis, the top board, the flag-staff; yout class-room, the studies?

5—Why does a horse get up forelegs first and a cow hindlegs first?

6—(a) Is freezing colder than boiling hot is hot?

(b) Do shrimps make good mothers?

(c) When did Good Friday fall on Tuesday?

7—Who said or shouted? And why—Eureka; oyez, oyez; a yell that rent the firmament; a horse, a horse; on, Stanley, on; Thalassa, Thalassa; a great shout of laughter.

8—With what animal would you connect?—bugloss, geranium, columbine, pelargonium.

9—Why

(a) Does a midshipman wear buttons on his sleeves?

(b) Does a tail-coat have two buttons behind?

(c) Does a footman wear a knot on his shoulders?

(d) Are gondolas painted black?

10—On which side of a telegraph post are the bars that carry the insulators always placed?

11—Of the sun, the moon, and the earth, which goes round which?

12—How would you tell whether you had found the nest of a thrust or of a blackbird?

13—Make a sketch of an oak leaf, an elm leaf, and a maple leaf.

14—Name and weight of each teaching number of the staff under 30 years of age.

15—What did he mean who said?—

(a) Geometry teaches us to bisex angels.

(b) Britain has a temporary climate.

(c) The masculine of heroine is kipper.

(d) There were no Christians among the early Gauls; they were mostly lawyers.

(e) I'm swinishly unbucked.

(f) Guy's Hospital was built to commemorate the Gunpowder Plot.

(g) I regret to inform you that the hand that rocked the cradle ha kicked the bucket.

16—A poem of not less than five nor more than fifteen lines, about any or all of the following: Janet, David, Diving, any leaving member of the school.

Poetry evidently flourishes at the Dragon School. Here is one boy's answer to No. 16 of his examination:

"I think if David lived to-day
Upon this mundane planet,
That he'd forsake the battle fray,
Bid great Goliath go his way
and try to conquer Janet."

If some precocious youngster should ask you "why a hen crosses the road" or "why is a mouse when it spins," do not get angry with him. He is not trying to be fresh, he is only giving you a touch of modern education as handed out to him in the soberest educational centre of the universe.

The world would be far brighter if we laughed a little more at our own troubles and a little less at our neighbour's.

LAWYERS OF WORLD SEEK TO SOLVE CITIZENSHIP PUZZLE

Under Present Laws Women and Children Are Sometimes Stateless and Often Citizens of Two Countries at Once—Proper Uniform Statute.

Suggestions for international treaties providing for naturalization laws which will prevent the present conditions both of double allegiance and statelessness, arising from conflicting statutes in various nations were made at recent conference of the International Law Association at Stockholm attended by 250 lawyers from the leading nations of the world.

The conference heard a report of the committee on Nationality and Naturalization, appointed two years ago at Buenos Aires to suggest a model statute which would make it impossible for some persons to owe allegiance to two countries and for others to be deprived of citizenship. After an extended discussion delegates approved the report.

In pointing out the evils of double allegiance and stateliness, the committee gave illustrations in which the following were cited:

The son born in England of a Frenchman is a British subject and a French citizen.

A son born in Germany of an English father born in England acquires no nationality and is stateless.

A woman citizen of the United States who marries a Frenchman without renouncing her United States citizenship acquires double nationality, while a Dutch woman who marries a United States citizen becomes stateless.

A Swiss citizen who has not renounced his nationality in the prescribed manner and becomes naturalized in Great Britain has both Swiss and British nationality.

A German naturalized in Denmark thereby loses his German nationality but while resident in Denmark he can be renaturalized in Germany under the rule which enables a former German to be renaturalized without settling in Germany. He loses his Danish nationality but his infant children remain Danes while at the same time acquiring German nationality.

The committee suggested the enactment of a model statute by the Legislatures of all countries and the insertion of contractual provisions in international conventions. In submitting the "model statute" the committee said:

Terms of Model Statute

"It must be remembered that some of the municipal statutes do not in themselves facilitate the creation of statelessness or double allegiance, and that these evils arise mainly through the conflict between the several municipal laws coming into question with reference to a particular individual. From this point of view the formulation of a model statute to which all Governments should be invited to assimilate their respective nationality laws, in so far as they now differ from it, might be of considerable advantage."

The suggested statute provides first that every child born within the territory of a State adoping it shall become a citizen of that State, but if the father of such a child, being a citizen of another State, registers the child within a specified time as a citizen of the State to which he belongs, the child then takes the father's nationality. Such child shall have the right to be admitted as a citizen of the State of its birth if application is made within one year after the child attains the age of 21.

The so-called "model statute' makes the following provision concerning the effect of marriage of natural ization:

"A female citizen of a conforming State shall not, by reason of her marriage with a citizen of another State lose her original nationality unless by reason of such marriage she become a citizen of such other State either automatically or by naturalization.

"A woman marrying a citizen of a conforming State shall acquire her husband's nationality unless she does under the law of the State to which she belonged before marriage, retain the nationality of such State or unless she makes a formal declaration (to be recorded on the register of marriages to the effect that she wishes to retain her former nationality."

The committee also presented a separate resolution as follows:

"The right to change a nationality should be possessed by a married woman who is judicially separated from her husband."

GET ACQUAINTED WITH W. H. N.

(NEW YORK CIT Y—360 METRES).

By WILLIAM J. FAGAN.

WHN plays the title role in the Hans Anderson fairy tale, "The Ugly Duckling." To date, the drama has progressed only to about the second scene of Act One, and much ground has to be covered before the beautiful swan elopes and the fairy princess or somethin' (fairy tale memory being weak) comes down and bears it off to its place alongside the Sleeping Beauty and Jack, the Giant-Killer.

It has been a long and tedious process, this evolution. WHN possesses the most faithful adherents, as well as the most bitter and contemptuous critics, of any radiophone station in the United States. There is just cause for both stands.

WHN in its infancy was a jitney station, stuck away off in the wilds of Brooklyn. Then it moved to New York, where the Loew Theatrical Enterprises dusted it off, rejiggered the machinery, got some new parts and set it up on top of the State Theatre Building. Its transmission and modulation had always been execrable. It failed to improve for a long time. Then, certain refinements in the mechanical work began to show, and today, WHN's transmission is as good as some and far better than a number of eastern stations.

WHN bows low before King Jazz. Syncopation has poured through its mike so religiously and consistently that classical music gets stage fright. WHN broadcasts more dance music and a greater variety of dance orchestras every week than any other station in the United States. Most of these are by remote control from dance halls and hotels. Popular entertainers and musical comedy stars appear in profusion—and the song plugger, that gentleman with a roll of his own new songs under his arm, never fails of admittance to the studio of WHN.

Advertising is blatent. The baldheaded purveyor of permanent waves tells of the value of his service, gives prices and even reads off his list of branches, addresses, telephone numbers and all. Facetious announcers blithely inform listeners that all are cordially invited to "come up tomorrow night to the Umph Ball Room if you want a good time. Great revue. Wonderful music. Let's go." This is cheapness in its most highly developed form. Yet, WHN has a following throughout the east which astonishes devotees of other stations.

There is no dearth of popular music on the air in the east. There is absolutely no necessity for any radio broadcaster to devote 90 per cent. of his program to syncopation and entertainers of the popular type, many of whom are of doubtful ability. WHN's dance music is generally always very good. But popular stuff is being overdone. Even a jazz lover will sour on jazz if overfed.

Until popular entertainment is arranged so as to permit standard music a more frequent appearance; until profligate use of its facilities as an advertising medium is curtailed; until it realizes that it must elevate its grade of entertainment and make the public come up to its level, rather than for it to go down to the level of the commonest listener; until then, WHN will not pass the chrysalis stage. It will remain bundled up in its coccoon and "spring be far behind."

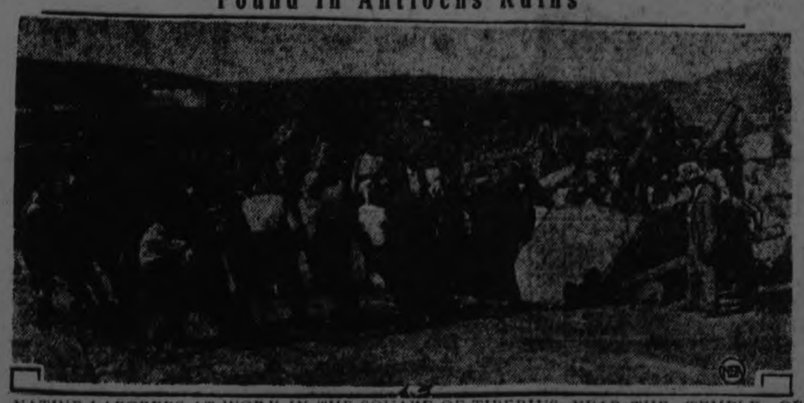
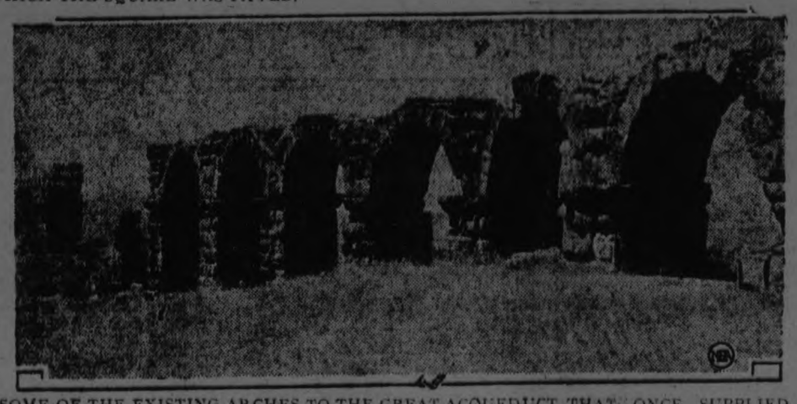
ST. LOUIS, Mo., November 13—Three bank robbers yesterday seized the cashier of the Bank of Chesterfield, Mo., locked him in the vault and escaped with $4,200.

EXCAVATIONS MAY GIVE A STORY OF PAUL'S DAY

Found In Antioch's Ruins



NATIVE LABORERS AT WORK IN THE SQUARE OF TIBERIUS, NEAR THE TEMPLE OF AUGUSTUS, IN THE ANCIENT CITY OF ANTIOCH. THE STONES ARE THE ONES WITH WHICH THE SQUARE WAS PAVED.



SOME OF THE EXISTING ARCHES TO THE GREAT ACQUEDUCT THAT ONCE SUPPLIED ANTIOCH WITH WATER. THE WATER WAS BROUGHT TO THE CITY FROM AN ICE-COLD SPRING NEARLY SEVEN MILES AWAY.

YALIVADJZ, Asia Minor, Nov. 14—New history is being written near here by a little group of Americans, excavating the ancient city of Antioch.

The expedition is clearing up, historians believe, many hitherto vague chapters on the closing days of the old Roman reign and the beginning of the Christian era.

In the party of explorers are Prof Francis W. Kelsey, the Latin scholar from the University of Michigan; Prof. David M. Robinson of the University of Pennsylvania; Prof. Enoch E. Peterson of Decorah College; Frederick T. Woodbridge, an architect, and George R. Swain, photographer.

One of the most important finds has been fragraments of bronze tablets bearing the "Res Gestae" of Augustus, first Roman emperor.

The "Res Gestae," regarded as one of the most important of all Latin works, is a brief acount of the emperors' reign dictated by him just before his death.

Profiteers Then, Too

Other fragraments have been found at Angora, but they were not complete. Now, by piecing them all together, it is believed the world will be given a full copy of the historic pronbuncement.

A letter from L. Antistius Rustious, consular legate of the Emperor Domitan, assailing the profiteers of his time also has been found.

Then the excavators have succeeded in reaching the ruins of the superb Temple of Augustus and its imposing approaches.

The building was constructed of white marble delicately carved by Greke artists. It stood upon a base of native limestone cut down and leveled.

In the rear of the temple was a semi-circle cut out of native rock. In front was a colonnade of the rare Roman Doric order.

Stretched out farther front still was "Augustus Square." It was reached from "Tiberius Square" by a flight of a dozen marble steps 70 feet long. At the top of the stairway stood a marble propylaea, a three-arched passageway, finely executed.

Early Christian Church

The foundations of at least two Christian churches also have been reached. One patterned after the Roman basilica is believed to have stood on the site of the old house where Paul made his first converts.

Graves of Christians likewise have been found.

The remains of the old town lay buried atop an isolated hill, sloping eastward in the midst of mountains, 400 feet above sea level.

They are but three-quarters of a mile from this modern Turkish town. The nearest railway station is 35 miles away.

The ruins are from 8 to 15 feet below the present surface of the hill. And the excavators really are just beginning their work!

Turkish laborers are helping them. These men are paid the equivalent of 75 cents a day in American money. About 150 of them on the job.

The Americans' operations have proved to be the means of staving off a famine for the people of Yalivadj.

IMMIGRANT WOMEN FOUND TO BE BACKWARD IN LEARNING ENGLISH

Only one-fifth as many women as men applied for State literacy certificates as first voters during the past year. This is one of the significant facts advanced by the Education Committee for Non-English Speaking Women in its effort to interest people in the problem of the foreign-born mother. For several years this committee has been conducting classes for adult immigrants. Through personal experience it has been found that women are eager to learn the things to make them good citizens of their adopted country. More classes are needed, it is stated, but unless a substantial sum is raised in the near future the work will have to be given up.

Although specialists in this field are found in other parts of the State, the majority of those who need help are in New York city. Seventy-two per cent. of the illiterates taught in the State are in this city. The public schools have never had full-time specialists for adult education, and existing classes are immediately discontinued if the enrolment is not kept up to a certain point. According to experienced workers, it is often impossible to prevent their discontinuance, owing to the inability of mothers of families to attend regularly on account of their many household responsibilities. Home classes have been found most efficient in solving the problem. One hundred and forty-seven classes have been conducted in the city by the committee, which reports that one-fourth of the women reached by them became citizens before the passage of the direct citizenship law. One-half were aliens and the other applicants for first or second papers.

Those who have worked with the foreigner intimately, the committee states, know the sensitiveness of the women. They cannot leave home at night. They do not like to go to school, even though they have a thirst for knowledge, for fear their youngsters will laugh at them. Many a mother has watched her sons and daughters drift away from her because she was not able to understand their difficulties in the country strange to all of them. It is this class of women which the Education Committee has been able to reach through its home courses. One Principal of a public school who has had occasion to observe the work in his district said: "Mothers who never entered the school and who could not be coaxed there, now come freely and talk over the problems of their children with the teachers."

At the last census the confessed illiterate women in New York State over 21 years of age numbered 217,230. Between the ages of 16 and 21, the number dropped to 3,279. Record show that during the last ten years illiteracy among foreign-born women has increased, while among foreign-born men it has decreased. In the United States during the same period 1,000,000 men learned English, but only half that number of women mastered the language.

The committee, of which Mrs. John T. Pratt is chairman, solicits contributions from individuals and organizations as well as bequests from estates in order to place the work of our present fourteen districts on a more permanent basis. A minimum budget of $60,000 is required. A provision has been made for the payment of $1 for every dollar collected up to $15,000. Communications may be sent to the chairman, or to any member of the committee, or to the Treasurer, Egerton L. Winthrop Jr., 32 Liberty Street.

WAS GREATEST DRINKER BUT DIED PROVING IT

BERLIN, Nov. 14 — (United Press).—Gustav Schwark, locksmith thought he was Germany's champion long-distance drinker. He was, but it killed him proving it. Schwark offered a bet that he could drink more than the whole crowd could pay for. He sat down, and had the purses of the other nearly exhausted when he dropped from his chair. A doctor stated death resulted from acute alcoholism.

BIG BUSINESS ONLY GAME TO WRIGLEY MILLIONS HAVEN'T MADE HIM HAPPIER

"Dimes and Dollars Don't Mean Much, Accomplishment the Thing."

A HARD WORKER.

Owns Chicago Cubs — His Employees Get Saturdays Off.

By ROY J. GIBBONS.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—William Wrigley Jr.'s millions have not made him any happier.

"Merely piling up a bank account has not given me a thrill," declares the chewing-gum magnate, who, last year alone, paid an income tax of more than $1,000,000.

"I was just as happy before I made my first million as I was after I had it. I never have worked for money. I always have worked for the doing of the thing.

"Just plugging along for dimes and dollars does not mean much. Accomplishment is what counts.

Wrigley has been broke many times.

Ran Away at 11.

Today he has put the world's jaws to work. From this he has piled up a great fortune.

Born in Philadelphia, the eldest of nine children, Wrigley grew up as the average boy, but with more than the average boy's energy.

He was expelled from school so often that by the time he was 11 his folks finally quit trying to mollify his teachers.

That year he ran away to New York. There he sold papers, ran errands and did odd jobs.

Homesickness drove him back to Philadelphia. Another year in school and he was dismissed again. So his father put him to work in his factory, stirring soap, at $1.50 a week.

He went out on the road as salesman for his father. The going was none too easy. Tough breaks came oftener than good ones.

In 1891 Wrigley came to Chicago. Business was dull, so to stimulate his soap sales, he began offering premiums with each order.

Owns Ball Team.

More than once he ran in debt. But each time he succeeded in pulling out.

While giving away chewing gum with his soap, he hit upon the idea of selling gum alone. Then he decided to begin making his own.

From the start, he was a firm believer in advertising. In 1902 he dumped his accumulated profits of $100,000 into an advertising campaign in New York—and lost every cent.

Next time he called on Gotham he threw out $250,000. Profits commenced rolling in right away.

Since then he has spent close to $50,000,000 advertising his gum in a score of languages throughout the world.

And chewing gum is not his sole business interest.

He owns a baseball team—the Chicago Cubs. He owns Catalina Island, an amusement resort, off southern California. He is a director of banks, corporations and railroads galore.

Yet the money these connections bring him is secondary in his estimation.

One year his factories turned out eight billion sticks of gum. Next year he expects to produce at least 10 billion sticks.

Employes Off Saturday.

He always keeps a box of gum on his desk. He chews it continually.

Wrigley is 63, but looks no more than 40. He plays as hard as he works.

Each day finds him down with the shadows in his office atop the Wrigley Tower Building. He is one of the last to leave.

His employes get Saturdays off.

"The high-priced executive usually cleans off his desk by Friday and prepares for a week-end vacation," he says. "Let the girls and men in my offices do the same. Let them go window shopping and have a good time."

"The rich man should play the part of the good citizen," he insists.

"He should help where he can. He should be interested in his fellows, in his community.

"And no amount of money can remove him from this obligation."

HISTORIC MONUMENT.

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 14.—Extensive repairs are being made to the old tower on the property of Dr. R. E. Webster, of Ottawa, at Maitland, which will ensure its preservation as an historical monument. It was originally attached to a distillery which went out of existence many years ago. The property of Dr. Webster was also the site of a French naval dockyard which existed in 1760.

"KAISER" ESCAPED FIRE OF OMEMEE CARNIVAL

Burning of Effigy Forbidden Because of Danger From Gale.

OMEMEE, November 14. — Armistice Day was duly celebrated in Omemee on Tuesday evening, but the older boys did not join in the celebration as in former years.

Early in the evening the younger boys could be heard blowing their horns and whistles to collect their army together, and before long a procession of about twenty-five youths were seen in various costumes parading on King Street.

Soon the notorious "Kaiser" appeared on a waggon drawn by several mules, and an amateur band brought up the rear, with the beating of tin pans, etc.

After several trips on the main streets, the parade proceeded to the remains of the old Armouries, where the cremation was to take place, but owing to the strong wind blowing, they were not permitted to burn him.

Disappointment reigned supreme on the faces of all those who had participated in the affair, but the expressions soon turned to pleasure when the information was received that the cannons would be fired off at a later hour.

Accordingly at about 10.30 o'clock three loud reports were heard, and the annual celebration was brought to a close.

Division Court.

Division Court was held in Omemee on Thursday. Only one case came up for trial, that of George English vs. Palmer.

Lawyer O'Conner pleaded for the defendant, while Lawyer C. Frost of Lindsay, acted on behalf of the plaintiff.

Judge Swayze reserved judgment.

AFTER LONG SERVICE.

J. W. Bickle Retires From Cobourg Customs House.

COBOURG, Nov. 11.—(Special.)—Mr. J. W. Bickle has retired after thirty-seven years' continuous service in the Customs and Excise Department of His Majesty's Customs here. It is understood that Mr. Bickle is placed on the retired list for six months, dating from the 1st of November and that at the end of that period he is to be superannuated. It was on Nov. 1st, 1887, that Mr. Bickle was appointed deputy collector of inland revenue. On Nov. 1, 1887, he was made inspector of gas meters and has performed these duties at Port Hope and Oshawa as well as here. When the department of customs and inland revenue were united in April, 1922, under the name of Department of Customs and Excise, Mr. Bickle was given the position of customs and excise enforcement officer, which he has held up to the present time.

Part of Highway Open.

The new paved highway between Cobourg and Port Hope is now open westward from Cobourg as far as the old toll gate formerly was located, and is proving a great convenience to farmers and others. From this point there is now a detour north to the Telephone road and then west until the Peterborough road leading into Port Hope is reached.

County Poultry Show.

At a meeting of the Cobourg Poultry Club held here, it was decided to hold the annual poultry show for Northumberland and Durham counties here in December.

Shower For Prospective Bride.

The Hulls Corners Sunday school and the people of that locality held a very enjoyable shower a few days ago, for Miss Myrtle Benedict, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benedict, whose marriage to Mr. Russel M. White, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. White, Campbellford, is to take place shortly.

THE J. C. TURNBULL CO. LTD.

GET ACQUAINTED WITH W.M.A.F.

(SO. DARTMOUTH, MASS.—363 METERS)

By WILLIAM J. FAGAN

radio party for from 500 to 1,000 guests every night from July first to November first makes WMAF the most unique radiophone station in the world. Colonel Green, son of the late and generously philanthropic Hetty Green, genuinely interested in experimentation and an enthusiastic devotee of radio, has erected an experimental laboratory and radio broadcasting station on his patatial summer estate in South Dartmouth, just a few miles south of New Bedford.

Here during the summer and autumn evenings, hundreds and hundreds of automobilists park their cars to listen to the music or lectures emanating from huge amplifiers erected on Round Hills Tower.

Colonel Green secures his entire programs from Station WEAF, New York. He buys WEAF evening programs, which are transmitted to South Dartmouth by wire, in much the same manner that the theatrical impressario purchases the talent appearing on his stage. And, like the impressario, he buys what features he likes. If WEAF program is a dry leacture on some topic which Colonel Green thinks his aud-ence might not like, he arranges that WEAF shall transmit to him a good dance orchestra or a vocal soloist during the period that the lecture is on the air. WEAF is probably the only station in America equipped to be of such service to "commercial broadcasters."

Of course, not only are the programs heard by listeners assembled in the vicinity of the amplifiers, but they are put on the air, just as is done by the other broadcasting stations throughout the country.

Colonel Green, in the operation of his station, has found that his listeners prefer popular music to the classical, and it has not been unusual for him to request a substitute feature when, for instance, a very excellent operatic soprano has been billed for appearance on WEAF'S program.

Of course, to-day WMAF is closed down, not to resume broadcasting until next summer when it is expected that the thousands of people who have enjoyed the open-air concerts will again have the opportunity of hearing the United States Marine Band or the Vincent Lopez Orchestra, not to speak of the innumberable solo artists who have appeared before the microphone to be transmitted to South Dartmou and there put on the air. A regular Sunday night feature of genuine importance and rivalling the famous Capitol Theatre program was the Sunday night concert direct from the New York Strand Theatre, with orchestra and soloists participating.

WMAF has a real hold on the radio lovers in its neighbourhood and those within range of its transmitter. Its individuality alone is enough to bring if fame, but it has not halted at that, being content only with the best of features, whether classical or popular, and performing a genuine service (in line with the best Hetty Green traditions) not only locally but sectionally and even nationally. The regulars must indeed be sorrowful when the first of November necessitates the closing up of the Green estate and WMAF.

BERLIN'S MUSICAL COMEDIES COSTLY

Charge More To See Musical Comedy Than To See An Opera.

BERLIN, Nov. 14—Musical reviews, comic operas and moving pistures are monopolizing so many of the well-known theatres in Berlin that the legitimate drama finds them very serious competition, and many old-time actors, who cannot adapt themselves to the musical stage or the moving pictures, are out of work.

Operattas and musical comedies charge higher prices than the opera houses which are producing grand opera. When Fritzi Massary, the leading musical comedy star of Germany, opened recently in a new production the best seats sold for $10 each for the opening performance. In all the leading musical shows the bests seats regularly bring $4, and even the cheaper seats in the four houses where grand opera is being produced nightly.

Leo Slezak and a number of other former grand opera singers have gone into Berlin comic operas because of the high salaries offered them. It is cheaper now in Berlin to hear a Wagner opera sung by artists of international reputation and ascompanied by an orchestra of eighty than it is to hear an operatta of Leo Fall or Oscar Strauss or a review by unknown composers.

Many musical critics say Berlin can never support four houses playing grand opera and predict disaster if the number is not reduced.

CHICAGO GUN MAN WAS BURIED TO-DAY

Dion O'Banion, Chicago's Arch Criminal, Shot on Monday.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press).—Thousands of persons filed past the ornate flower - bedecked casket of Dion O'Banion all night and this morning in a final tribute to florist, gun-man, rum-runner and hi-packer, slain Monday morning in his flower shop by three gunmen who called him from his task of trimming chrysanthemum stems. His funeral to-day was looked forward to as the greatest in Chicago's history, even surpassing that yesterday of Michael Merlo, friend of O'Banion, and leader of the Unione Siciliana, when one thousand automobiles, 25 of them carrying only flowers, forced the cortege from St. Clement's Church, where ten thousand persons had gathered for the last rites. O'Banion's funeral today was without the blessing of the Church, although the burial in consecrated ground was permitted.

It brought a new era in Chicago's civic affairs as well as marking the passing of the 32-year-old gang leader, termed by Morgan Collins, Chief of Police, as Chicago's arch criminal and responsible for at least 25 murders.

Incensed by the great amount of publicity and open threats of O'Banion followers to "shoot it out" with adherents of other groups of gunmen, Mayor Dever has directed that every known pistol-toter be searched on suspicion as frequently as encountered. It planned a conference today with Chief Collins to decide on measures for the elimination of pistol carrying or forcing gun-men

Greater Uniformity In Taxation Methods Sought

TORONTO, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Greater uniformity in taxation methods is to be sought by conference of representatives of all provincial governments, which is to be called shortly by the Premiers of Ontarion and of Quebec. The ultimate object of such uniformity is to make possible representations to the Dominion Government to cede to the provinces certain fields of taxation which it is now regarded as usurping. Comprehensive agenda for the meeting has already been prepared.

The decision to call this conference was announced yesterday at the Parliament buildings by Hon. W. H. Price, K.C., as result of the taxation conference which met in Ottawa, on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week at the request of Hon. J. A. Robb, acting Minister of Finance.

A BATCH OF PHRASES

"Keep your eye on Paisley" is a familiar phrase, but its origin is not generally known. It first occurs in Chapter 64 of Lord Beaconsfield's novel, "Endymion," which was published in 1880. Young Endymion receives the advice from a friend for his political sareer: "What you should do is to go to Scotland. Go to the Glasgow district; that city itself, and Paisley and Kilmarnock. Keep your eye on Paisley."

The phrase, "There's queer folk in the 'Shaws," has never been quite conclusively explained. Various theories of its origin have been held. Some have thought it came from the fact that a band of Huguenots once settled in Pollokshaws and worked in a local "shammy" mill. They never learned the English language, and as they clung to French ways, they were looked upon in the district as "queer," and made the people of Pollokshaws notorious Others have derived the phrase from a song sung at the Pollokshaws fair, which celebrated the annual races. In the song the souplet occurred—

"An', min' ye, lad, the sayin's true,
There's queer folk in the 'Shaws."

Others recall a local belief, which was very prevalent, in ghosts and goblins. The latter were said to have had the habit of throwing stones and acting in an obstreperous manner quite unusual among unsubstantial spirits.z The weavers of Pollokshaws, therefore, who harbored such frivolities same naturally to be considered as the "queer folk of the 'Shaws," And, finally, some think that the name 'Shaws does not refer to Pollokshaws at all, but that it really means "woods." The folk would thus be the gipsies were in the habit of living there.

...er interesting phrase is, "From ...nd to John o' Groats.'" ...nd is easily understood, but ...omes the designation, "John ...s?" In the reign of James IV. of Scotland, one John o' Groat and his two brothers, Malcolm and Gavin, settled in Caithness, and bought the estate of Dugisby, on the northern extremity of the mainland. In time their family increased until there were eight households of the same name. They held yearly reunions in the original O'Groats house. At last a dispute arose as to who should enter the room first and sit at the head of the table. Old John o' Groat, who was made arbiter in the dispute, promised to settle the matter to the satisfaction of all. Accordingly, he built an eight-sided house in which to hold the annual banquet. The octagonal house was fitted with a door and window on each side and a round table in the centre. The head of each family of the O'Groats could thus enter by his own door and sit at a board without any president, the table being round. John o' Groat's house became the best-known building in Britain. Its site is now marked only by some grass-covered mounds.

A curious Scots expression which was once common, but which has now become obsolete, was, "To wear a wife." The underlying significance pointed to the fairness and attractiveness of the helpmeet. A cognate phrase which has also well-nigh disappeared was, "To be cled wi' a husband." The word "cled" indicated protection. The following story seems to suggest that the idea still survives. A poor woman, the mother of a pupil, appeared one day during school hours in a very battered state. Enquiry showed that the damage had been done by the husband, a "real bad yin," who had for years made his wife's existence miserable. The teacher expressed surprise that the woman had not left such a partner. "Ah, weel, miss," returned the wife with that air of superiority usually assumed by a matron in addressing a mere spinster, "I aye think a man takes that bare look aff a wumman."

The phrase, "Ne'er cast a cloot till May be oot," has been thought by some to refer to the finish of the May blossom, not the ending of the month. This, however, is very unlikely. The name of the month is always spelled with a capital letter, and the definite article is never used with it. The phrase, besides, is probably derived from the old verse:—

"Who doffs his coat on a winter's day
Will gladly put it on in May;
If you bade (bathe) in May
You'll soon lig (lie) in clay."

Most conclusive of all is the evidence to be gathered from an abundance of European sayings testifying to the prevailing suspicion throughout Europe with regard to the month of May. The similarity of these is very striking. In Germany there are three proverbs bearing on the phrase. The first is, "Stick to your winter things till the 40th of May." The second is, "In the middle of May comes the tail of winter." The third is, "Who shears his sheep before Servetius' Day (May 13th) loves wool more than sheep." In Italy the same sentiment appears in the saying, t' May, lovely May, to thee thy roses, o me my furs." "The gentleman's winter—May." Two more popular sayings from Scandinavia shows that the month of May is intended in the familiar phrase, "Don't put off your greatcoat in May. "Who has a log of wood, let him keep it for May."

Few phrases are more commonly used than "A drug in the market," signifying something for which there is no demand, a useless superfluity. But there are difficulties regarding the phrase. Practically all drugs, from quinine to cocaine, maintain their price consistently. Perhaps the anomaly may be explained in this way: The word "drug" has somehow or other become substituted for "dreg," which, as everybody knows, indicates a useless or undesirable remnant. Thus to say that a thing which nobody appears to require is "a dreg in the market" is to speak in quite a lucid and reasonable way. It is certainly curious, if this be the solution of the difficulty, that the word "drug" should have held its ground so long.

SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

Business Meeting of Central Association Last Evening.

A business meeting of the Central Home and School Association took place last evening in the kindergarten room of the school. Reports of the recent rummage sale and paper collection were made, showing a balance in the treasury at present of over $60. Mesdames Bartlett and Spencer had charge of the rummage sale, and Mrs. E. H. Howson was convenor of the paper collection, assisted by Mesdames Bartlett, Westbrook, Lush and Morgan.

Mrs. E. H. Howson, the president, gave a short talk dealing with the duties of parents and teachers toward the child.

It was decided to purchase a set of Nature Study slides for the school lantern, for the use of the Lower School.

The association has recently completed the re-decoration o. the furnishings in the teachers' rooms in both the Upper and Lower Schools, new window hangings and cushions having been provided by them.

Several new members were welcomed last evening.

The regular monthly meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association was held last evening in the kindergarten of the school. The president, Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge, occupied the chair.

The reports of the secretary, Mrs. H. S. Huffman, and the treasurer, Mrs. D. Cameron, were read and approved. The following programme was then rendered: Vocal solos, by Miss Doris Donley and Mr. Charles Clark; instrumental numbers by Miss Gwen Donley; readings by Miss Helen Ross and Mr. M. N. Clark; address by the Rev. James Gordon, on "Co-operati n between Parents and Teachers." Miss Gwen Donley also acted as accompanist for the solo numbers.

At the conclusion of the programme, a vote of thanks to all taking part was moved by Mr. Clark and seconded by Mrs. B. L. Barns. Home made candy was served, the remaining boxes being auctioned off by Mr. Clark at the close of the evening.

MACLEOD SCENE OF INDIAN CONFERENCE

Chiefs From Canada and the United States Discuss Problems and Grievances.

MACLEOD, Alta., Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press.)—MacLeod, famed as a trading post of the early days, is the scene of a unique convention—conference of Indian Chiefs representing the black feet tribe of the North American continent. Delegates are present from reserves in United States and Canada, discussing problems and grievances. Many belonging to the newer generation are educated and well versed in the present day conditions, while there are also "veteran" chiefs in attendance, some of whom attended the signing of the Blackfeet treaty in 1877.

When their treaty was signed, the old chiefs declared yeserday, the Government promised them $12 every year until the rivers run back wards and the sun fails to rise and set. This promise, they asserted, had not been lived up to; they had suffered reduction of $7; and they urged carrying out of treaty signed in 1877.

RUSH FOR FAME AT HOLLYWOOD NOW IN SWING

The Director Takes a Much Larger Chance than the Actor.

FALL RUSH ON.

Do Not Expose Your Ears Without Wearing Ear Muffs.

By HAROLD E. SWISHER

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 14.—(United Press).—The fall crops are being harvested throughout rural America. The fall rush of sleek-haired, would-be hubandmen and bobbed-tressed farmerettes, hoping for rich pickings in Hollywood, is in full swing. All of them are praying for a plenteous yield of fame and funds. Most of them are doomed to painful disillusionment.

Throughout the year there is a steady stream of aspirants to cinema fortune pouring into Hollywood, but in the spring and again in the fall is this flow the strongest.

True, cameras are clicking merrily in most of the studios with production programs showing little sign of the usual slack season in the closing months of the year. But the host of those who would gain renown before the sputtering arcs is constantly increasing.

Each time some hitherto unknown is signed for a stellar part, the wave of those seeking similar opportunities well-nigh breaks down the studio gates. It is conservatively estimated that if all the pretty girls who hocked their rings and bought tickets for Hollywood when they read of the good fortune of Betty Bronson, a nobody in filmland, being selected for the title role in "Peter Pan," were back washing dishes in their home kitchens, half the mothers in the nation could not go out and poin Mah-Jong clubs or attend all the matinees.

"Read 'Merton of the Movies' and then bear in mind that not all young men have the luck that Merton did," is the advice of William de Mille, noted Paramount producer, and the words are blown right back into his mouth by the rush of newcomers.

Director Takes Chance.

"The amateur actor who comes to Hollywood usually thinks he is taking a great risk in spending a hundred dollars or more for railroad fare," de Mille continues undiscouraged. "But the director who engages him is taking the greater chance, because hundreds of thousands of dollars are involved in every film production.

"The producer usually selects players whose work he knows. Every hour costs money and the director who is compelled to spend time teaching the amateur how to act is loading himself with a tremendous expense, and even then he is never certain that the work of the amateur will be satisfactory."

"The actor who knows his business, who has mastered the art of acting and make-up, costs less money to the production than the inexperienced youth whose every appearance before the camera means a waste of time and film,' in de Mille's opinion.

"I have given several young men a chance to play quite important parts in my productions and the result has usually been that we have all regretted it. They were not ready for the parts and felt discouraged, and I had spent thousands of dollars for nothing.

"The worst thing that can happen to a novice is to have a big opportunity before he is ready for it. A part tha is too small for him is better than one that is too big. He will grow in the first and fail in the second.

"Some young men have come to the studios ready to do anything. This is a dangerous method of entrance unless the amateur actor has that rare spark of ambition which will not allow him to be diverted from his aim. Using another job as the stepping-stone to the next one is usually very fine, but it generally results in the young man being permanently sidetracked into something else.

"The man who is willing to do anything may end by doing nothing. He comes out here to be an actor and ends by being always a property man.."

Reading Subtitles.

Everyone in the world hates the nit-wits who read the subtitles aloud in the motion picture theatres. The public at large will rise up and cheer to learn that the first definite steps against the babblers may be taken when "The Merry Widow" is exhibited. It will not be necessary to wreak justifable homicide against the babblers may be taken when "The Merry Widow" is exhibited. It will not be necessary to wreak justifiable homicide against them. The law will take its course.

When the screen rights were purchased to the famous light opera, to be filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Eris von Stroheim directing and Mae Murray starring in the title role, the contract definitely stated that no spoken word of the original book of the opera may be used in the theatre in which it is showing. The text may be used as printed matter on the screen—the subtitles—but anyone speaking a line from the play is liable to a heavy fine. So if they read 'em aloud, the gendarmes may get 'em if they don't watch out.

Warning to Flappers

Flappers, take warning. If you plan to change your hair, dress so your ears show. Listen to Colleen Moore's experience: For the first time in years the famous flapper of the movies was called upon to publicly exhibit her ears for her role in "So Big," a new film in which she portrays the girl of 1890.

Drafts at the studio on her tender ears brough on neuralgia, according to Colleen's physician. Now she's wearing ear-muffs between scenes to prevent further suffering.

So if you plan to expose your ears, but your ear-muffs first.

SOUTH MAIN STREET, CENTER OF NILES DISTURBANCE

Klansmen, with the Mayor's permission, announced they would march down South Main Street, Niles, O., and Knights of the Flaming Circle declared they would not even get as far as that thoroughfare before the Klan ranks would be broken. The street is pictured above.

PARIS ORPHANS LIKE BASEBALL

Boys and Girls Guests of McGraw and Comiskey Show Appreciation of Game.

SOX WON 8 TO 7.

PARIS, November 14. — It remained for the children of Paris to appreciate the game of baseball when their elders had failed to do so. Lusty lunged crowds of French war orphans—boys and girls—yesterday cheered the New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox as they played their final game in Paris,and many of them were even keen enough to see the fine points of the play.

There was whistling and applause from the youngsters in the second inning, when the Giants tallied four runs, and still more of the same kind of bedlam when the White Sox during their time at bat made seven tallies. Again pandemonium broke out in the seventh when the Giants, who had scored a run in the fifth, brought in two more runs and tied up the game 7-7, and when the Sox immediately afterwards scored again with what proved to be the winning run, making the score 8-7.

The orphans attended the game by invitation of Managers McGraw and Comiskey, who had been disappointed by the failure of the grown-ups to show any interest in the sport.

Boys were Boys.

That the playing took a great hold on the French children, who were from seven to twelve years old, was made evident when the Giant shortstop failed to grab a hot ball. The urchins yelled almost in chorus "Oh, what a shame-" The little girls remained dignified throughout the game, but the boys were boys .That they were watching the technique of the play was seen toward the seventh inning, when one of the lads was overheard to remark: "Ah, now I see. If the ball arrives at first base before the batter, the batter is out." This astounding progress in comprehension of the game was hailed gleefully by all the French-speaking American fans near-by.

The cry of "death to the arbiter," shouted by some carefully coached French youths, rather nonplussed Umpires E. Walsh and Walker until it was explained to them that the words were merely the equivalent of the bleacherite shout of "Kill the umpire!"

Honor for Boy Scout.

The honor of throwing out the first ball for the game fell to sixteen year old David Genter, a boy scout, and a pupil of the Paris American high school, who because of his four and a half years residence in Paris, was impressed by Hughey Jennings into translating Hughey's "Ee-yahs" and two gentlemen out, to France's young hopefuls.

The heroes of the day were Bentley and Stengel, each of whom made three hits. The crowd, reminiscent of his wartime record, acclaimed Hank Gowdy every time that the Giant catcher came to bat.

Yesterday's game evens the overseas series, each club having six wins to its credit.

Score:

White Sox	8 8 0
Giants	7 13 2

Robertson, Lyons and Picinich; Jonnard, Hunzinger and Gowdy.

GLIMPSES OF NEW YORK.

Policewomen in Evening Gowns Raid Bootleg Joints.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Girls, if you want romance and adventure, come to New York and become a policewoman.

The other night every policewoman on the force was assigned to help in a raid of bootleg joints in the Times Square district.

These women were garbed in magnificent evening gowns. They entered cafes on the arms of gallant men in formal black and white. They sat at tables and smiled graciously at head-waiters. And head-waiters beckoned under-serfs and wine was poured—except when horses' necks and gin rickeys and such things were served.

And then these ladies and their escorts arose and arrested the head-waiters and the under-waiters and marched them out to waiting patrol wagons.

It takes a crook to catch a crook, they say, but along Broadway the saying is that it takes a skirt to catch a bootlegger. Several dozens of prohibition violators were arrested by the lady sleuths.

Here is a new field for women that promises more excitement than the movies ever offered.

* * *

The most desolate place in all New York is Times Square at eight o'clock Sunday morning.

A stray taxi....Sore-footed waiters stumbling along to the subway ....Garbage cans in front of gilded jazz palaces, reeking with odors....News vendors arranging their morning papers....Dirt and refuse littering the street....A solitary drunk or dope fiend adding his nauseating bit to the sickening picture....Gone are the lights, the shouts and murmurs, the laughter, the gold-diggers, the high-hats, the flesh pots, the greedy, lustful, searching throng.....Only drab commonplaces remain.....People who labor on Sunday....Dirt....Garbage.

* * *

A friend of Pete Havenaugh, the actor, told me a little story about him today.

Some time back Pete had quite a roll in his pocket. It was late at night and, fearing a hold up, he put some of the bills in the sweatband of his hat.

And he was held up. And slugged over the head.

He awoke in a hospital, suffering with a mild form of amnesia. He lost weight and when he left the hospital his hat was a bit large.

It wasn't until he started to stuff paper in the sweatband that he found his forgotten wealth.

GOLD IN OCEAN.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(United Press).—Thousands of millions of tons of gold are dissolved in the waters of the oceans, Captain F. B. Bassett, Navy Hydrographer, said in relating some of the revelations of naval oceanographic investigations.

"This gold," Captain Bassett said, "is concentrated in from one-half to a grain per ton of water. This represents about $10 worth of gold in every 350 to 500 tons of ocean water.

"Beneath the surface of the sea the weight of the water in the layers above naturally exerts a pressure on everything below. The weight of the air at the surface of the earth is nearly 15 pounds for each square inch of surface. The pressure in the sea increases by an additional atmosphere for each 32 feet in depth. At 16,000 feet the pressure is 7,500 pounds per square inch."

The ocean's deepest spot, Bassett said, was discovered recently by the Japanese ship "Manshu," about 145 miles southeast of Tokio. Soundings showed 6.18 miles.

USE CAUTION.

Never use a damp cloth on gilt enamel furniture or picture frames. The less they are handled the better. For spots dampen a soft sponge in warm alcohol, diluted with water, and apply very lightly. See that the sponge is merely damp, not wet.

THE UNDER-PRIVILEGED CHILD

(By J. Walter Ketterer, [illegible]er, Pa.)

Much has been said and done for the physically under-privileged child and for the child of the slums by various agencies throughout the country, but little has been published concerning another type of under-privileged child. As some children are privileged with wealth, some with wisdom, some with physical ability, so others are seemingly under-privileged with poverty, ignorance, and weakness. While others have cited the poor child as needing help, I would give a thought to a class which includes poor and rich alike in many instances.

Beauty and harmony of environment have come to mean much in the daily life of every American. The consideration of the beautiful, the good and the pure has an elevating influence upon all who have learned to appreciate idealism. As the child's first steps, words and actions are imitations of his elders, equally in later years are his efforts towards beautifying the community copied from or based upon or inspired by efforts of others along the same line. If he has never seen a building of exceptional architectural merit, if he has never seen a painting which made his heart glow within him, if he has never beheld a piece of sculpture which has touched something in his consciousness, how can he ever hope to originate or encourage the other fellow to design a beautiful building for his city or a worth-while group of sculpture for the community?

The Kiwanis Club of Butler, Pennsylvania, is originating an annual visit to the Carnegie Institute at Pittsburgh, with its interesting galleries of painting, sculpture, and architecture and its fine museum. This yearly excursion is participated in by the forty Junior High School students whose second term average showed the most improvemet over the first term marks, thus giving an incentive to scholarship. A large interurban bus capable of holding all of the forty pupils is rented for the day and an early start made so that the children may go through the zoo and eat a picnic lunch in High and Park at Pittsburgh, before reaching the Institute.

The authorities at Carnegie Institute are eager to help such a project and are prepared to have a member of the staff conduct the children on an inspection tour through the permanent exhibition or through the international exhibition if it is in progress at the time as it has been for the last two years.

Concluding the day with an uncharted trip through the museum has always found the children full of new ideas and inspiration.

It has been felt that this trip instills in many of the youngster an appreciation of beauty which is only a beginning of much future joy and good, not only to the children themselves but to the community

We who have had an opportunity to see the working out of the scheme are convinced that this is of importance to the community in many ways although the actual results may not be manifest until these children have grown up and assumed their places in the management and growth of the city. The child who has seen the beautiful, has set an ideal before him towards which he will strive and that activity must be shown in his relationship with his fellow man, shown in a happier, more harmonious and more beautiful environment, making his city a better and more pleasant place in which to live.

WHAT EVERY SUB-DEB KNOWS

(By Cynthia Grey)

You can't stop men from falling in love with us. They just will keep on doing it.

The berate us for using rouge, but they carry our vanity cases around in their pockets, lovingly.

They despise us for our weakness. And they hate us for the strength we have over them in an argument.

They loathe us gossiping; yet they listen to it eagerly.

It was this that Wise was studying—although he had long ago agreed that it was merely the impression of the right side of the right shoe worn by someone who had entered the room at some time.

Wise looked up at Lionel Raynor's chaff, and smiled a little.

"It's never too late for clues," he said, "and this print is such a good one I hate not to utilise it. To me it is exceedingly indicative, and I am pretty nearly ready to state it was left here by the murderer himself."

"Or herself," amended Lionel. "I tell you, Mr. Wise, as soon as you get away from the one who is most concerned, the most interested in the absence of my father, you get away from the truth."

"This overshoe is of too large a size for the one you have in mind," said Wise.

"Nonsense! It is just the thing a clever woman would do—put on the large shoes of a man over her little slippers. Then, she would think, the clue would be misleading, as," he looked at Wise, "as it seems to be."

"Oh, I don't know," said Wise. "Have you noticed the direction in which this points?"

"Well, it is pointed toward the place where my father fell, if that's what you mean."

"That isn't what I mean," said Wise.

And then, with a murmer of excuse, the detective left the room and went into the house. In the hall he met Zizi and drew her aside for a word.

"Come with me, Ziz, to talk with Kent. And watch him. You know when anybody is making up a yarn; if you pretend to believe him he will go on and elaborate his falsification until he defeats his own ends. Now, Kent is putting up a confession to save his sister. If we can persuade him that his sister is in no danger, he will doubtless retract; but I propose to let him think she is strongly suspected, and see him insist on his own guilt Anyway, we must learn all he knows—if he is so certain of Mrs. Raynor's guilt, he must know more than we do."

The two went to Orville Kent's rooms.

These were two sunny, pleasant rooms on the south side of the house.

Kent received them in his sitting room—which was more like a studio, not a working studio, but the room of an art lover and dilettante.

"Come in, he said gravely. "You want to see me? Take a seat, Miss Zizi."

"Thank you," and Zizi slid toward the chair indicated. "Oh," she cried, pausing en route, "what a dear face! Who is it?"

She took up a photograph, and Kent's eyes smiled as he said: "That's Dolly Fay, a neighbor, and a harum-scarum. That's only an enlarged snap-shot, but it shows her at her best."

"Now, just a few words as to your somewhat startling statement, Mr. Kent," Wise began. "I shall start out by saying that I don't believe you shot your brother-in-law, and that I do believe you claimed that you did in order to lift suspicion from your sister. It is better to tell me the details, than to rehearse them to the police—though if you prefer that——"

"No, no——" Orry's fingers were working nervously.

"Well, then, let us start by assuming that your story is true. Why did you kill your brother-in-law?"

"Because—because he made my sister's life a burden."

"But he had done that for two years——"

"Oh, it was much worse of late. He was—he was brutal to her——"

"Yes—I know—but that equally explains why she should kill him."

"Oh, she didn't—she never could. I tell you, Mr. Wise, my sister is incapable of such a deed!"

"Then she didn't do it—then she can't be convicted of it—then—then, Mr. Kent, why do you take the blame and pretend to a crime you never committed?"

"Do you mean that?" Orry looked up eagerly. "Do you mean my sister can't be convicted if she is innocent? Can't she be wrongly suspected and——"

"She is suspected, of course. And there is a strong tendency on the part of some to suspect an outsider—on account of the print of the overshoe."

"Is that really a clew?"

"It's a sort of a negative clue. I have made a most careful search and I have found in the house no rubbers that can be made to fit that print."

"Supposing I did it—and threw away my rubbers——"

"Where did you throw them?"

"Why—why—I don't know."

"All right—where would you choose to throw them?"

"In the rubbish can, I suppose," and Kent looked so blank that Zizi smiled at his utter lack of ingenuity.

"Now, as to the time, once more," Wise said. "What do you know of the time from your own observation regarding that moment of the crime?"

"What do you mean exactly?"

"I mean from teatime until after you knew that Douglas Raynor had been shot, did you look at your own watch?"

"Not that I remember."

"Yet I think you testified that you stood on the bridge with Miss Fay at seven o'clock."

"Oh, yes, I did. She said it was seven, and she must hurry home as her mother would be expecting her. So she went home, and I came back up the hill to this house."

"Reaching here to find Raynor shot and the others standing about in consternation?"

"Yes."

"Oh, Mr. Kent, you are forgetting your story of shooting him yourself!" Zizi cried this out.

Kent did not smile—he looked troubled, and said earnestly: "But you tell me, Mr. Wise, that my sister will not be arrested if she is innocent."

"I did not say arrested—I said convicted. However, I do not think she will even be arrested. So, as I said, wait 24 hours before you make public this rather bewildering story of your own guilt. We have pretty well proved that the shot was fired at five minutes before seven. You were then on the bridge with Miss Fay. Now, when you see your sister in such dire danger that you feel necessary to take over her guilt, and claim it for yourself, it will be time enough to make your confession. But, for heaven's sake, get it bolstered up into shape so that, at least, Dobbins will believe it!"

"Will you let me know, Mr. Wise, if or when you see matters so tending toward my sister that she is in danger?"

"In order that you may make your fake confession?"

Kent nodded.

"I'l promise this, Mr. Kent. I'll promise to tell you first of all, when I have learned the identity of the real criminal. And I will tell you within the 24 hours."

"I know what ails that Kent man," Zizi said, as they walked away into the gardens. "He has no sense of humor."

"My word, Zizi! Do you call this an occasion for an exhibition of a sense of humor?"

"Not precisely; but I mean he couldn't even see how funny he was, bargaining with you to let him know when the psychological moment arrived for him to commit perjury to save his sister."

"Your English is nearly as involved as his plans! Now, Zizi, the wid business must be looked into next—and settled before we can accuse the beautiful widow."

"Don't, Penny!"

"Didn't she shoot her husband?"

"No—a thousand times no!"

"Who did, then?"

"You know well enough, Penny Wise! But as to that will, we've got to get it out of Friend Lionel somehow."

"Not an easy job."

"No. Why don't you threaten him with the law?"

"He's not the sort of chap who frightens easily——"

"Not by mere words—I know. But I say, Penny—I've an idea, of course, you won't agree to it—and yet—if you should—I'm sure—I'm positive it would succeed. Oh, Penny, mayn't I?"

"Well, since you state your plan so clearly, I can't help agreeing that it is a capital suggestion!"

"Oh, I forgot! I haven't told you the plan yet. And, by the way, Pen, did you notice a most important item when you gazed on that picture of Miss Dolly Fay?"

"No; oh, seeress, what was it?"

"I'll check it up first—I may be wrong; but if it should be, and—yes, it must be—it's quite in keeping——"

"Zizi, stop that! It's growing on you, that habit of blabbing on like an imbecile——"

"Not an imbecile, dear, merely a thoughtful person ruminating aloud."

"Get back to your plan of extracting the Raynor will from the Lionel proposition."

"All right. My idea is to scare him into fits!"

"Lovely! And then?"

"Then? Why, then, he'll give up the will."

"To you?"

"Surely."

"And the scaring procedure?"

Zizi leaned toward Wise and whispered, "Ghosts!"

"You're crazy!"

"No—I'm not. I happened to learn that Lionel Raynor is more or less of a spiritualist—or, rather, that he believes in spirits, and is mortally afraid of them. Now, I'll give him a manifestation that if it doesn't persuade him to give up that will, at least will prove that he has suppressed or destroyed it."

"It might be a good thing," Wise said, meditatively. "I know your powers in that direction, Ziz—I mean, in carrying out a scheme of that sort, and I say go ahead. But do it now."

"Yes—to-night. And I don't want any help."

"Late, I suppose."

"Yes; well after midnight."

And that's how it happened that very late that night, about half-past two, a slim little figure stood in front of a mirror and draped itself with a multitude of gauzy grey draperies that floated and waved at a breath or a motion.

Zizi's head and shoulders as well as her tiny body were covered with the misty veils and the cowl-shaped hood came well over her forehead.

Her make-up box had turned her face chalky white, her lips were pale, but her eyes were not only ringed with black shadows, but a tiny touch of phosphorus on her eyebrows gave an unearthly glow that was suggestive of the infernal.

Unseen, the grey figure glided along the hall and paused at the door of Lionel Raynor's room.

Listening a moment, Zizi heard no sound save the regular breating as of a sound sleeper, and softly turning the knob she entered the door and closed it behind her.

Reaching the bedside, Zizi, so intent on her work that she felt almosy a real ghost, leaned over and lightly touched the sleeper on the arm.

When he awoke suddenly, and sat bolt upright, the ghost was in the middle of the room, and with slowly waving arms was coming toward him.

Now, Raynor was afraid of ghosts—he vowed his unbelief in them, but he always knew that if he ever saw one he should be frightened out of his wits. And he was.

He turned cold all over, a chill perspiration broke out on him, and, although he tried to scream, he found himself unable to utter a sound.

Zizi had done her work well. A more frightful ghost, even a more evident one, would have roused Raynor's suspicion of trickery; but never dreaming of such a thing in this house, and, moreover, impressed by the type of apparition—which he had always held was the real thing—he at once accepted the wraith-like figure as supernatural.

Even when the eyes turned on him, and he saw merely two small blurs of flickering light—Zizi was too much of an artist to overdo the phosphorus—it seemed that at last a true ghost had appeared to him, and Lionel Raynor gave way to paroxysms of fear.

He writhed, he mumbled, he clutched at the bedclothes, and the watchful Zizi saw that that there was danger of the man's going into convulsions.

In the faintest of tones she said:

"Fear not—fear not—no harm shall touch you—if—if—if——"

Realizing the need for haste, lest her subject become too satisfied of his safety, she murmured:

"If you are right—if you are ready to do right—to restore the will—the will— the will——"

Even as she whispered the words, Zizi knew her ruse had succeeded. She had already sized up Lionel Raynor as no villain at heart; she was convinced that he had suppressed the will because of a sudden greed, and because of the opportunity afforded him by the peculiar conditions of the case. Moreover, she knew he truly thought that Nancy Raynor had killed his father, and believed that therefore she had no right to the inheritance. But she knew, too, that he was frightened and apprehensive at what he had done, and that this ghostly warning would, in all probability, bring about the restoration of the will.

"You promise?" she breathed, her grey draperies wavering through the air, as her hidden arms moved them, and her gleaming eyes fixed on him in the darkness.

"I promise!" he returned.

"And you will keep that promise—or"—the faint voice grew fainter—"or—to-morrow night—to-morrow night—" And she was gone.

As a matter of fact, Zizi merely sank to the floor, but it gave all the effect of a supernatural disappearance.

She crawled to the door—which was in an alcove—and noiselessly let herself out into the dark hall.

Again in her own room, she removed her phosphorus and powder, and slipped out of her multitudinous layers of fine tulle.

"A wonderful frock," she said, admiringly, as she folded it carefully into a surprisingly small compass and laid it away. "I doubt if there's a better ghost effect possible. That man was literally scared stiff. Penny will be pleased. And I'm sure he'll keep his promise; if not——"

And she tucked herself into bed and slept soundly till daybreak.

Sure enough, Penny Wise was pleased the next day, when he found what a perfect success Zizi's plan had been.

Early in the day Lionel Raynor went to Nan with the news that he had found the will in question.

It was in all respects like the carbon copy Dolly Fay had unearthed, but it was signed and witnessed.

"Where was it?" Nan asked.

"It had slipped behind a drawer in father's desk," the son declared; and Wise never knew whether that was the hiding-place Lionel had chosen or whether he had produced it from his own room and made up the desk story.

Nor did any one care. The will, a true document, gave Nanty Raynor the larger portion of the fortune and his sister; it left a goodly sum to Grimshawe Gannon and to the household servants, and was, in all respects, a satisfactory will—to all concerned—unless an exception might be made of Lionel.

CHAPTER XVII.

One More Confession.

It was no secret that the detectlve Dobbins was no friend of Pennington Wise. The local sleuth was jealous.

But Zizi had a notion that there was something to be gained by a judicious quizzing of Dobbins, and with her feminine tact she flattered him until he was ready to tell her anything he know.

To be sure, it wasn't much, but Dobbins had been on the case from the beginning, and he migh have scraps of information that might be of value.

"I think," Zizi said to him, as she found him in the sun room, gazing at the still visible print of the overshoe; "I think, with you, Mr. Dobbins, that the whole secret rests on that footprint."

"Yes—yes—it does—it does, I'm sure. But how to get at it—that's the thing."

"I suppose you've raked the shoe shops hereabouts."

"Oh, yes—but that could bring out nothing. Rubbers are all alike—and I couldn't find any shoe dealer who had sold rubbers to any member of this family or any of the servants lately. Most likely it was bought in New York, and, of course, it's impossible to trace it."

"Of course, and it would do no good to learn that rubbers had been bought. The thing is to find out what has become of the rubber that made this print. It can't be the property of one of theservants——"

"Now, why can't it?"

"First, because it's too large for any of the maids. And, too, girls don't wear rubbers nowadays. But, anyway, this is the print of a man's rubber."

"I can, and I hold that it was Douglas Raynor's rubber, and that Mrs. Raynor wore it that evening when she came in and shot him, because it would be a sort of disguise—a false clue, you see."

"You mean she purposely put on that overshoe, and purposely made that footprint——"

"I mean just that, Miss. She's a deep one, that Mrs. Raynor is, and, though I thought first off she was trying to poison Mr. Raynor, I see now she wasn't—it was that nurse who did that. And, Lord knows, no jury would ever convict that nurse—even if she'd succeeded. But, Mrs. Raynor, now, that's another thing. She only wanted to be rid of her husband that she might marry anoth r man—a young man, and one who would be kinder to her. I don't wonder at her hating old Raynor—he was a brute if ever one lived—but she had no right to shoot him. No, ma'am, that she hadn't."

Zizi looked at Dobbins meditatively.

"You've never flinched from your suspicion of her, have you?" she asked.

SULPHUR IS BEST TO CEAR SKIN

Any breaking out of skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.

Mentho-Sulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment or disfigurement. A little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream.

JOFFRE RETIRES TO COUNTRY

Like Cincinnatus of old, Marshal Joffre, one of the World War's greatest heroes, has retired to a simple country life. He and his wife are living in the Chateau "La Chataigneraie," outside the village of Louveciennes, not far from Paris. The place was designed according to Madame Joffre's suggestions from a postcard of the historic Chateau de Cardignan near Bordeau. The upper picture is the latest one of the marshal and his wife (at the left in the front row) and the lower one shows their new home.

ALDERMAN WINS IMPORTANT CASE

Court of Appeals in Britain Reports Bailhache Decision

CONTRACT ISSUE

Shareholder in Company Doing Municipal Business No Disqualification

Alderman Albert Braithwaite's appeal against the famous Bailhache judgment was allowed by the Court of Appeals today.

The case raised the question of whether a member of a Municipal Council is disqualified upon the ground that he is a director of a company having running contracts with the council.

Mr. J. B. Lapish, an accountant, had claimed penalties under the Municipal Corporations' Act, 1882, from Mr. Braithwaite.

Lord Justice Banks, in the course of his judgment said that the appeal raised a short but important point of one section of the Act of 1882, namely, Section 12. Mr. Lapish's case was that Mr. Braithwaite was by virtue of the section disqualified from being an Alderman of the City of Leeds and from acting as such, and, secondly, made himself liable to a fine which Mr. Lapish sought to recover. Mr. Justice Bailhache decided in favor of Mr. Lapish.

At the material times Mr. Braithwaite was an alderman of the city of Leeds and also the managing director and a large shareholder in a company carrying on business at Leeds, and which did an extensive business, and had a large contract with the Corporation of Leeds for the supply of earthenware goods.

The question was whether the case fell within Section 2, which was divided into two portions, a disqualifying portion, sub-section 1, and an exempting portion, sub-section 2.

The necessary inference from a historical survey of the legislation seemed to be that the Legislature recognized that, having regard to municipal life, to the importance of securing the services of the prominent persons in a municipality as members of the local authority, to the conditions affecting businesses and business people in the municipalities, it was necessary, in spite of the opportunities which might be given for malpractices, to relax to a very considerable extent the stringency of the original disqualifying provinsion.

In his opinion the appeal succeeded, and judgment for Mr. Lapish must be set aside and entered for Mr. Braithwaite, with costs.

Lord Justice Bankes added that his decision was confined to cases where the facts were similar to the present case, and where no charge of misconduct or bad faith was made against the councillor or alderman.

Special arrangements were made as to the payment of costs with a view to a possible appeal to the House of Lords.

WEALTHY BARBERS ON BIG STEAMERS

Income of $5,000 in Few Cases—Does Many Odd Jobs

Although his nominal salary is only a shilling a month, the income of a barber afloat in some cases runs into nearly four figures.

The $5,000-a-year barber, however, is not to be found on any but the biggest liners, and, given a good season with full saloons, says the "Ship Stores Gazette," he frequently earns more than the commander of the ship, so liberally are his services remunerated, and so many-sided are his appeals to the pocket."

He is a silent artist, with no time for gossip, and scorns the word "tip," but is prepared to accept a high standard of "professional fees."

COCKTAIL ADVISER.

"The barber of an Atlantic liner which was chartered to convey troops to the Cape estimated that through the withdrawal of his vessel during a portion of the passenger season, he was out of pocket £250, although the ship carried a large number of military officers."

Hair-cutting and shaving are not the barber's only jobs on board. He acts as: Chiropodist, Cocktail Adviser, Racing Specialist, Confidante, General Storekeeper, Entrepreneur.

It is reported that one of the owners of an Atlantic company visited one of the barber's saloons, and noted that the man was something of a general trader. "This is a ship, not a store," said the owner. "I think I shall have to make a change."

"I wouldn't do that if I were you," retorted the barber. "I've been with you 15 years, and if you dismiss me I'll start an opposition line right away!"

Of two large salmon killed in the Cumberland Derwent, one of 28 lb. was caught by a Cockermouth angler, Mr. Joseph Walker, who is 82.

Over 100,000 letters written by children in Australia to school children in this country have been handed over when the children have visited the Australian Pavilion at Wembley.

Buys Mansion

Lord Leverhulme, head of famous soap manufacturing firm, has added Grosvenor House to his collection of priceless old-world treasures.

Preacher and Grocer Who Walked 12,000 Miles in Lifetime

Though blind and 68 years of age, John Wenlock, of Selby, ran a grocery business, walked nearly 100 miles weekly, and was a Wesleyan circuit preacher.

After sitting up late preparing his weekly sermon, Mr. Wenlock slipped in going downstairs, and he has died from injuries.

He estimated that he had walked 12,000 miles, and preached over 3,000 sermons.

Before starting in business he once walked 430 miles, unaccompanied, through six countries, in search of work. On this tramp he passed his mother's house at Wolverhampton, but rather than grieve her with his ill-fortune, he refrained from calling.

BANK OF ENGLAND SUED FOR £60,000

An action against the Bank of England has been brought in the Court of Session, Edinburgh, by the executors of the late John Wilson, an Edinburgh merchant, who died in 1922, aged 92.

The object of the action is to compel the bank to register the executors as owners of £48,591 worth of stocks and bonds which belonged to Wilson. The executors also claim interest and dividends or alternatively a total payment of £60,000.

OLD FRENCH NOTE IN CHEAP PICTURE

A 50-livre French note, 250 years old, has been discovered by an Oxford shopkeeper.

Having bought a number of pictures for a small sum, he hung one of them, a picture of a cat, in his shop, and priced it at 3d.

The picture fell down, and the back casing came apart, revealing a small piece of wadding, inside which the shopkeeper found the old French note in perfect condition.

The note has been sent to France for valuation. It bears a notice that anyone attempting forgery is liable to the death penalty.

(The livre was superseded by the franc in 1795.)

TWO DOZEN BALLS LOST IN LIVERPOOL

The American baseball teams, the Chicago White Sox and the New York Giants, played the first match of their English tour at Goodison Park, Liverpool. The result was: White Sox, 16 runs; Giants, 11 runs. There were many thrills. From the top end of Bullens Road the ball landed on the roof of the grand stand at Goodison road, at the other end of the field, putting in jeopardy the nameplate of the Everton club. At least two dozen balls were lost during the game through being sent outside the grounds.

IRELAND FLATTERS NATIONAL ANTHEM

A Dublin evening paper which some months ago offered 50 guineas for the best Irish national anthem, and asked Messrs. W. B. Yeats, Lennox Robinson and James Stephens to adjudicate, has received a report from these judges stating that not one of the poems submitted was worthy of 50 guineas or any portion of it.

They suggest that the competitors be asked to try again. They should study the national songs of different countries, for most of the verses submitted were imitations of "God Save the King." The offer is therefore repeated.

SOMEWHAT TOUGH ON ARTHUR CLOUGH

Arthur Clough, Middlesborough, cricket star, has a double who has been making love to most of the girls in Middlesborough in Clough's name. Dozens of letters are arriving at Clough's house from young women, promising to meet him "as arranged." Clough has asked police to trace his double.

EDUCATION IS CURE FOR BOREDOM

"The education you get at school is an inoculation against the boredom of life," said the Bishop of Plymouth at the prize distribution of the Henrietta Barnett School for Girls, Hampstead.

They had no right to be bored with life, he added, as God had put them in an extraordinary world, and boredom was a symptom of hardening of the mind.

Education, in the right sense of the word, was the remedy for boredom.

SCOTTISH GIRL AN ALIEN AT HOME

Forced by Regulation to Report ovements to Police

MARRIAGE SEQUEL

Living in her own country, yet an alien in the eyes of the law, and forced by regulation to report her every movement to the police, a 25-year-old Scots girl who has stayed for varying periods at Glasgow, Edinburgh, and Inverness, has had ample reason to rue her short-lived war-time romance.

In the last six years she has suffered fines of £5 and £2, and has spent two terms of forty and sixty days in prison, as the result of a hasty marriage with an American navyman in 1918. Automatically she became an American subject, and her various misfortunes have fallen on her head through repeated failures to register with the police, as an alien, her movements in her native Scotland.

The sequel to her luckless marriage was told by the "American" wife herself — Angusina M'Laren or Perry, alias Iris Coyne—when she made yet another Court appearance the other day before Sheriff Jameson in Edinburgh. Her husband was an American naval man, she said, whom she met in Edinburgh towards the end of 1918.

ONE DAY WED.

She was working at that time as a clerk in a shop in the city. The friendship between the two led to their marriage in the Capital in October of that year — and 24 hours after the ceremony her husband had left her! She had never seen him since their wedding-day six years ago.

Her appearance before the Sheriff, she explained, was not the result of a further dodging of registration. Only that morning she had been released from the Calton Prison, where she had been serving a sentence for another offence, and she had intended to go straight to the aliens' registration department at police headquarters.

At the gates of the prison, however, she found herself bundled into a police van, which took her, again under arrest, to the police station. The charge against her was one of leaving Glasgow in August last without reporting her departure to the police, and the Sheriff imposed a fine of £1.

Born in the Isle of Skye, she came of a highly-respectable family, her father at one time holding an official position in the Highlands. Her schooldays were spent in the best schools, and Iris Coyne was a cultured and intelligent girl, but her roving spirit led her into the first adventure of her career while she was still in the middle of her education. She disappeared without warning from her home one day.

For the time being, Angusina M'Larn had vanished completely, and even an official description circulated throughout Scotland seemed as if it was to produce no result. At last, however, she was rediscovered dramatically by the Edinburgh police.

The exploit resulted in Angusina being sent to a boarding school in Dundee, but her taste of city life had not increased her desire for further schooling, and she did not remain long in Dundee. Smuggling a rope into the dormitory one night, she tied it to her bed, and slipping it over the window, slid down into the grounds, and was once more on the road to adventure.

LEVERHULME BUYS GROSVENOR HOUSE

Duke of Westminster's Magnificant London Home Changes Hands

Viscount Leverhulme is the purchaser of Grosvenor House, the magnificent town residence of the Duke of Westminster, in Upper Grosvenor-street, Park-lane.

No statement has yet been made as to the purchase price.

Lord Leverhulme has left London on a six months' business visit to West Africa, but it is believed that he has not yet come to any final decision regarding the use he will make of the property, except that he has no intention of using it as a residence for himself or his family.

The new owner of Grosvenor House, who started work at the age of sixteen with his father, a Bolton grocer, and is now one of the richest men in England, has already included among his purchases a ducal mansion, Stafford House, for many years the home of the Dukes of Sutherland.

He paid £60,000 in 1912 for the twenty-eight year Crown lease of Stafford House, which he renamed Lancaster House, and presented to the nation as a home for the London Museum. Stafford House and Grosvenor House are, with the possible exception of Devonshire House, the two largest and finest of London's old mansions. Queen Victoria once, when visiting a former Duchess of Sutherland, remarked, "I have come from my house to your palace."

The ballroom is the largest in any mansion in private hands in Lndon. The rooms and galleries have housed many priceless art treasures, including Gainsborough's "Blue Boy."

CUT OFF SWITCH BUT WAS KILLED

"There is nothing to be afraid of in electricity as long as you are careful."

One minute after this remark was made by Frederick Sheasby, the electrician in charge of the power house of a Birmingham factory, to allay a fellow-workman's fears, an explosion occurred and Sheasby was burned to death.

He managed to turn off the switch while his clothing and hair were blazing, and thus saved the factory from more serious damage. "It's all right. The switch is off. Quite safe now," were his last words.

The coroner, who paid a tribute to Sheasby's courageous act, returned a verdict of "Accidental death" at the inquest.

Man Chewed Grass And Died; Warning To Straw-Suckers

The habit of nibbling blades of grass while on walking tours probably caused the death of a man in one of the London hospitals. He suffered from actinomycosis, and it was discovered that he was a great walker, and often used to eat grass as he went along. During the last year he underwent five operations, but without avail.

Actinomycosis is an infection by a fungus. It especially affects horned cattle and pigs, and, in humans, causes abscesses, inflammation, and the formation of tumors. A great deal is known about it, and cases are fairly common in hospital.

It does not follow that infection will always take place when a blade of grass is nibbled, but, given the right bodily conditions, chewing raw grain or straw, inhaling dust in threshing or chaff-cutting are known modes of infection.

FALSE TEETH FOR DOGS PRACTICAL

Pet dogs can now be fixed up with false teeth, artificial eyes and limbs.

"It has been done more than once successfully," said a Gray's Inn Road veterinary surgeon.

"I do not say it is very practical in the case of a worrying dog, but I have known cases of dogs fitted up with teeth and eyes lost through age or accidentally, and they have lasted for years.

"Dogs always bolt their food. They do not use their teeth much, except with a bone or a very hard biscuit, and therefore it is possible for them to be fitted with false teeth. Cows and sheep could not be so treated, because they are ruminants, and use a lateral motion of the jaws."

In one case, Professor F. T. G. Hobday, a Kensington veterinary surgeon, fitted a Schipperke with a double set of false teeth, which lasted 18 months.

YOUNG ASQUITH PAYS TWO FINES

Mr. Asquith's youngest son, Anthony Asquith, was fined £2 for motoring over a crossing at dangerous speed at Cheltenham, and ignoring a constable's signal to stop.

It was tated he was so intent on reading the guide-post that he did not see the signal.

While waiting in court he paid a fine imposed on a poor man for keeping a dog without a license.

CHESHIRE MAN IS KILLED BY FALL

While at work on a scaffolding, George Sproston, a foreman builder, fell 60 ft. into the main street of Sale, Cheshire. He died later in hospital.

Sporston was placing a coping-stone in position when it slipped and fell on to the scaffold.

The scaffold gave way.

BLUE SHOES LUCKY IS NEWEST IDEA

Blue shoes for luck will be fashionable for autumn weddings. White fox and ermine furs are being used as trimming for gowns and trains, and bridesmaids and mothers of the bride and bridegroom are wearing tones to match the floral decorations.

FRIENDSHIP BROKEN AFTER LIFETIME

Godfrey Hallows and Harrison Riches were friends for 63 years. They were playmates at the age of 3, and their first breeches were made from the same piece of cloth. Both went to school together and were married at the same time in the same church. But now their friendship has come to an end when Hallows refused to wear a red necktie like Riches'.

COW DECORATED IN CHELTENHAM

A cow being driven through the streets of Cheltenham suddenly chased its driver and then attacked two men on bicycles. Both hurriedly dismounted and the cow, with the two bicycles on its horns, dashed down the road and charged a bill-board. The machines were totally wrecked.

WINDOW BREAKS THIEVES' TRICK

Members of "Left" Haumel's notorious gang of jewel thieves drove up before the Peterson jewelry store and hurled a brick at the show window. The window withstood the shock and the brick fell shattered to the sidewalk. When they made ready to hurl a second missile, a squad of police surrounded them with drawn guns.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Murby, of Markfield, Leicestershire, have celebrated their golden wedding. For 50 years without a break Mr. Murby has conducted the singing of the Sunday school children at the Congregational Church anniversary.

ESKIMO VISITS CITY OF LONDON

Native Baffinland Completely Bewildered by Trams and Motors

INVISIBLE DOGS

Trees His Chief Marvel—Mistake Horse for Cow

Nowabee is in town. And who is Nowabee?

Nowabee is a five-foot, lone Eskimo all the way from Yakafiord, somewhere in Baffin Land, where the Polar bear sports himself on perpetual snow.

Nowabee—call him John for short, he is just as pleased—had heard of the great Exhibition at Wembley, so he donned his bear coat, put on his big seal boots, pulled on his heavy fox cap well down over his eyes, and set sail in the mighty kayak with wings, otherwise the 200 ton Rosie, laden with pelts, for Peterhead.

Captain Pearson, of the Rosie, took Nowabee in hand, and when he landed at Peterhead he was equipped with three magnificent words:

"Yes." "No." "Good."

His real idea of a train never will be known till he returns home to Yakafiord. The dogs that pulled the sleigh must have been hounds of Hades. He could not see them, try as he might.

But London! Mr. Nowabee gripped tightly his guide's arm, and stood trembling on the brink of that ever-flowing river of vehicles and men. He was taken across the roads at a run, dodging the invisible dogs that drew the motor-cars.

After various adventures he went to the great temple of the Great White Spirit of the missionary, Westminster Abbey.

MONUMENTS.

He had no interest in the monuments to the dead. John's people do not bother about ancestors. Again his guttural machinery worked, and he explained Baffin Land's method.

"Big man he die. No good keep. Put in box. Dig in snow. That all."

What held him spellbound, though, was a growing tree. You do not see a tree in Baffin Land. Mr. Nowabee was transfigured whenever he saw one.

But he was plucky, was John. He was persuaded to the top of a motor-omnibus, and looked on London from this eminence.

He made a succession of gear-changing sounds.

"This igloo," he said, "is tremendous."

A queer four-footed beast harnessed to a box on wheels also excited him.

"That," said he, "is the animal you get the milk from."

He was wrong. The thing was a horse, not a cow. It was excusable. The only cow John had ever seen was on a condensed milk tin.

It is a pity John has shed his furs for the reefer coat, trousers with a crease, and a peaked cap that leaves long straggling black hair sweeping down his neck. He is a laughing babe, aged twenty-seven. He took his roast beef, potatoes, and pudding at a Strand restaurant like a perfect gentleman, though, and never asked for a handful of blubber.

MAD MAJOR IN ASYLUM THRILL

Thought Prussians Were Attacking Him and Started Fire

WAS ACCIDENT

Took Night Light to Window to See Enemy Faces

A major who suffered from hallucinations that he was being attacked by Prussian Guards was the author of a fire which caused great damage at Halliford House Private Asylum, Shepperton.

He was allowed to have a night light owing to his imaginary fears, and during the night thought he saw his enemies at the window.

He went with his night light to chase them away and accidentally set fire to the curtains.

Apparently he himself did not notice the flames at once, but an attendant, who sleeps between two rooms, heard a clattering, and later went into the major's room. He found the bed bed alight and the room empty. The man was discovered outside in his pyjamas watching the fire.

The building has been used as an asylum for forty years. The patients were the calmest people at the fire, and did not seem to realize what had happened. Most of them were shell-shock cases.

They were taken to an empty mansion near by, to which bedding had been taken from London during the day.

Prominent Doctor of Northampton is Jailed; Sequel to Collision

Dr. A. J. D. Cameron, a prominent Northampton doctor, was found guilty and sentenced to nine months' imprisonment in the second division, at the Northampton Assizes, on a charge of the manslaughter of John Rowlatt Corner, a farmer, who died from injuries received when the motor-cycle and sidecar he was driving came into collision with the doctor's car at Kelmarsh, on Whit Monday night.

There were astonishing scenes outside the court. Dense crowds surged round the entrance, and stretched hundreds of yards down the narrow streets.

"NEGLIGENCE."

"I am not going to assume, and I do not believe, that you were aware of the harm you caused," said Mr. T. Holles-Walker, K.C., the Commissioner of Assize, when passing sentence. "Nor do I think that you were what is popularly known as drunk. Still, it is obvious that you drove your motor car with gross negligence. These cases of death on the road due to such negligence have become all too tragically frequent."

May Be Duchess

Baroness de Styrcea, international beauty, who it is stated may become the Duchess of Westminster. The baroness is the daughter of a Lutheran minister, and was formerly an actress.

Asquith's Grandson Almost in Movies, But Mother Refuses

American movie fans have just been robbed of the thrill of being able to see the grandson of a former British Prime Minister in the films. The boy in question is Master Herbert Anthony Asquith, the four-year-old son of Lady Cynthia Asquith and grandson of ex-Premier H. H. Asquith.

Negotiations were under way to have him go to the United States to take part in the filming of Barrie's "Peter Pan." His mother, however, who is Barrie's private secretary, nipped the plot in the bud. "The suggestion was made by the producer," said Lady Cynthia, "but I don't let him to. After all, he's only four years of age and it would mean a long journey to Los Angeles."

WEALTHY TENANTS OF CIVIC HOUSES

Three M.P.'s Reside in Places Built Under Glasgow Municipal Scheme

DRIVE MOTORS

Corporation Takes Steps to Make Rich People Give Way

The Glasgow housing committee propose taking drastic action to ascertain whether certain tenants of municipal houses built for the working classes under the Government subsidy scheme are entitled to such lets.

The convener of the corporation housing committee stated there are so many stories of people with incomes of £1,000 or £1,500 a year having obtained corporation houses that the department now desires to ascertain the facts.

It was also stated, further, that of these houses no fewer than 172 municipal employes, eleven town councillors, and three members of Parliament resided in one particular lot.

In the same garden suburb of municipal houses 179 persons held licenses to drive motor-cars and, it was added, permission had been granted for the erection of forty-six motor-sheds and eleven for motor-cycles.

The housing committee now seek power to ensure that occupiers of their houses have incomes not exceeding £250 per annum. Richer tenants may be dispossessed.

Woman Illuminator's Enchanting Books on Riches and Poverty

In a room high above the shops of Oxford-street a woman mediaevalist sits all day illuminating words of wisdom from the works of all ages.

She is Miss Helen Reid Cross, who lives in a fourteenth century farmhouse at Wells, Somerset. For the time being she is at work in a room placed at her disposal by a firm of Oxford-street booksellers.

"I think I was first encouraged to try illuminating by my wish to paint the flowers in our garden near Windsor as a child," she told a press representative. "I was a delicate child, and could not do lessons in the ordinary way, so I painted a great deal."

Hanging on the wall are what Miss Reid Cross calls her version of the Beautitudes.

"Blessed the the Meek" becomes in this version "For them that be perfectly meeked nothing can befall, neither bodily ming nor ghostly." This is taken from an unidentified writer of the fourteenth century, much valued today, who wrote "The Cloud of Unknowing."

"That's the book people ought to be reading nowadays to help them with their modern problems," said Miss Reid Cross enthusiastically.

Miss Reid Cross has made up and illuminated on vellum two books which she will not sell at any price. One is called "Poverty" and the other "Riches." "Poverty" has been made up from the writings of Da Todi, a fourteenth-century Franciscan, who wrote "The Ascent of the Soul Through Poverty."

One text is illuminated solely with the Little Friends of St. Francis, the little field flowers which the Saint of Assisi loved.

At the bottom of each page is a text from a modern writer, put in to shew how the thoughts of great men leap to meet each other after time.

The Italian writer on the joys of poverty is annotated, for example, with a phrase from Charles Dickens's "Barnaby Rudge." "So do the shadows of our own desires stand between us and our better angels."

"Riches" is based on great thoughts from the work of Thomas Traherne, the English mystic of the 17th century, and the motif is, "Never was anything in this world loved too much."

WEALTHY RECLUSE WAS EX-GOVERNESS

Taught German Royal Children Nearly Forty Years Ago

QUEER HOUSE

Fear of Daughter's Poverty on Her Death Made Her Penurious

The bundles of Treasury notes and the gold and silver coins which were found in the house in Parrock Road, Gravesend, when Miss Agnes Clark, the seventy-year-old recluse, was removed to hospital, were the savings, it is understood, from a quarterly allowance made to her mother by the keeper of the German Royal Purse.

Mrs. Clarke, who, it is believed by local people who knew her, was a governess to the ex-Kaiser and his brothers and sisters, came to Gravesend when she retired with her daughter. The story is that her daughter had been a playmate of the German royal children nearly forty years ago. Although Mrs. Clark's allowance is believed to have been large, she saved every spare penny, avoided expenditure on renovation, did not keep a servant, and lived in only part of the house.

"The motive for her economy was her fear of death," a former neighbor explained. "Her allowance, I understand, was to stop when she died, and she was apparently frightened about what would happen to her daughter when that occurred.

"This fear would account, perhaps, for her decision not to build a chicken house when she started to keep fowls. She gave them the run of her drawing room for more than a year.

"In later years, when she started keeping pets, apparently for company, she kept them indoors.

"Though I always knew the daughter as 'Miss Clark,' I did hear that she was once married to a German officer. If that was so she left him soon afterwards.

"She told me that she was Scottish, and I always understood that her mother was connected with one of the best known Scottish families.

"They dressed in old clothes which, even twenty years ago, excited comment. The local boys soon came to realize that they were eccentric, and used to climb over the wall at the end of the garden and plague their lives. The mother died just before the beginning of the war."

RITUAL OF RENT 700 YEARS OLD

City of London Pays With Six Ancient Horse-shoes

With a blow from a hatchet, the City Solicitor cut a bundle of faggots into a hundred pieces in the Law Courts.

The fragments were eagerly gathered by the few people present as souvenirs of one of the most interesting ceremonies which has survived the change of years.

Although the annual rendering of Quit Rent Services to the Crown by the Corporation of the City of London was performed in Court A, which is housed in a temporary wooden structure, the ceremony in essence is as picturesque as it was 700 years ago.

The King's Remembrancer, Sir T. Willes Chitty, explained to those present the meaning of the ancient rent service, recalling how hundreds of years ago rent was paid in services or kind.

RENT OF THE FORGE.

Even more interesting was the second service, in respect of a tenement called "The Forge." The original grant of the forge was made to Walter le Brun, a farrier in the Strand, who was to have a piece of ground in the parish of St. Clement Danes on which to carry out his work, giving in payment six horse-shoes.

The horseshoes, which were placed with great solemnity on the table in Court A, are believed to be those used for the big Flemish horses employed in England 700 years ago.

The City Solicitor gravely counted the shoes, and then proceeded to count the 61 nails belonging to them.

"Why the City pays rent no one knows," the King's Remembrancer observed.

Kid Lewis Found The More He Put Down The Less He Picked Up

"Everything I touched I put my foot in," said Kid Lewis, the boxer, otherwise Gershon Mendeloff, at his bankruptcy examination.

He estimated that his income from boxing amounted to £16,950 during the last three years, while his expenditure had been only £10,000, but he admitted that he lost £1,500 on a revue entitled "Hallo, Swettie!" and £500 on contests at Premierland.

He had also lost money on the purchase and sale of a public house, and £1,000 on an Australian boxing venture which fell through. Lewis returned his liabilities at £3,032 and his assets at £1,200, and attributed his insolvency largely at gambling losses.

He said that he had lost about £5,000 in three years by this means; he had put as much as £500 on a horse. He had also gambled at cards, but found that "the more you put down the less you pick up."

The examination was concluded.

STOWAWAY GIRL IN BOY'S DRESS

Little Scottish Lassie Made Long Journey from New Zealand

TO HELP FAMILY

Crippled Father Died Leaving Younger Children to Her Care

A girl stowaway has just arrived at her home in Edinburgh from halfway across the world. Romance and pathos attach to her story, for she made her desperate adventure, dressed as a boy, so that she could take the place of her dead mother and look after her crippled father — who has now died, too—and his young family.

Bessie Chalmers, the heroine of this story, was seen in her little one-roomed home in College street, under the shadow of Edinburgh University. It was a humble home, but scrupulously clean and tidy. She is a bright, intelligent girl who is showing a brave face to a black outlook.

"I TOLD NO ONE."

"I never told anybody here about it," she said, "except, of course, my father, and I don't want it talked about about among the neighbors."

She was doing well in New Zealand, she told me, earning good wages and having a good time, with prospects of doing much better than she could have done at home. Yet when news of her mother's death came to her, and she thought of her invalid father and the motherless family, she never rested until her returned home.

"I tried at first," she said, "to save out of my wages enough to take me back. But I was always sending home as much as I could spare, and you cannot send home money and also save. So I gave up the idea of paying my passage, and turned next to attempting to work it."

She made her way to Lyttelton. At first she thought of obtaining a post as stewardess in a homeward-bound liner. From that the idea of playing the role of stowaway occurred to her. She bought trousers, a jersey, and a cap.

She received temporary employment at an hotel, and applied for a post to the captain of the Port Hunter, a cargo boat belonging to the Commonwealth and Dominions LIne, Ltd., which was carrying a few passengers home, but he said that there was no accommodation.

"It was a terrible disappointment when he refused," she said. "I was desperate then, and I determined to sail as a stowaway.

"So, changing into my boy's clothes, I stole on board and hid in an empty cabin.

NO FOOD.

"For three days I never touched food. Then a storm came. I was sick and so miserable and ill that I did not care what happened. I crawled out of my hiding-place, having first changed back into the girl's clothes, which I had brought with me in a small brown paper parcel, and gave myself up to the captain.

"When we landed in London after a voyage of nearly 12,000 miles by way of Cape Horn, I had just enough money to pay my train fare home to Edinburgh. The owners of the ship were very kind. They did not prosecute me. And here I am," she concluded.

Her father, an old soldier of the Regular Army, who served in the Scots Greys, was a crippled invalid for eighteen years. He died last week and was buried with military honors.

CYCLONE STRIKES SOUTH OF ENGLAND

London Got 32,000 Tons of Rain to Square Mile in Day

A large cyclone, which arrived off our south-western coasts from the Atlantic, gave the southern half of Britain the worst soaking it has had since the early days of October.

In London the rain began soon after 6 a.m., and continued practically without a break until evening, by which time over half an inch, or 32,000 tons of water to the square mile, had been registered.

The fall was still heavier in other parts of Southern England.

In the North, however, conditions were under the influence of an anticyclone lying to the north of Scotland, and mainly dry but very chilly weather prevailed. There were nine degrees of frost on the ground in Eastern Scotland early, and afternoon temperatures were generally more suited to Christmas than October.

Further rain in the South will probably be followed by temporary improvement in the course of today (writes The Daily Chronicle Weather Expert), but there is little hope of much sunshine, and cold, easterly winds are likely to sweep the whole country for the next day or two.

Very wintery conditions, with keen frost and heavy snowstorms, have set in over a large part of Scandinavia and the neighboring districts.

"People often die through not having enough work to do," said Dr. Waldo at a London inquest.

The freedom of Mansfield, Notts, was conferred upon the retiring mayor, who has served the town for 50 years.

ALL SOUTH WALES IS FLOCKING TO MERTHYR TO SEE CHURCHYARD GHOST

Large crowds are flocking to Cefn Cemetery, near Merthyr, after nightfall to look for a ghostly light that has been seen on one of the monuments.

Investigators visited and inspected the churchyard, and crowds gathered day and night.

There are innumerable conjectures as to the real character of the "ghost." The sexton declares that in his opinion the light is reflected, and others say that a man in the hedge with an electric torch could produce the phenomenon.

People have forced open the gates of the cemetery, and some of them entered it to pursue investigations in the darkness. Others took with them electric torches, which were mistaken for fresh "ghosts."

Police had to be summoned to keep the crowds from forcing the gates.

Traffic was congested by motor-cars, which brought sightseers from Cardiff and other towns in South Wales.

BRIDE WALKS PAST CHURCH AT MARRIAGE HOUR AND ENDS SOLDIER'S ROMANCE

A pretty romance between an officer of a crack regiment and a tall, handsome mannequin came to an end at a church in Piccadilly, London.

The clergy were there, the verger, and ultimately the bridegroom. Alas! the bride, although she came as far as the church, contented herself with walking past it. There had been a rift in the lute.

Explanation was brief.

"The wedding is postponed," said the would-be bridegroom, and left without further enlightening the officials.

"I changed my mind," said the mannequin to a "Daily Express" representative. "I simply decided, for reasons of my own, that I did not wish to marry him. He is a fine, attractive man, but I am not marrying at present.

"So on Friday night I packed my trousseau, sent it round to a friend, and left my rooms. I let him know it was 'off.' Just for the fun of it I thought I would walk past the church.

"And so that's that."

WITH STEFANSON IN THE ARCTIC

Harold Noice, Canadian, Tribute to the Famous Explorer.

CRAZY ARCTIC FOX.

"With Stefansson in the Arctic" (Harrap), is the story of Mr. Harold Noice's first two years in the Far North.

Haroid Noice is a Canadian, and in his book he tells of his experiences (he was then only 20) with the famous explorer, when together they travelled regions hitherto uncharted. A few extracts from an interesting and well-illustrated book are as follows:—

"Full speed ahead." I had seen the little Bear smash her way through ice before—would she do the trick for us now? Crash! But the barrier did not yield.

"Full speed astern." She backed off to gain momentum for her second charge. Again she drove at the ice. Another crash that shook her from bow to stern—we rocked on our feet and the dogs howled. Still she could not break through. Night was falling, and we tied up to a heavy floe.

During the night the floes had massed and shifted, caught us fast, and carried us about four and a-half miles north. Unbroken ice stretched as far as we could see. There was to be neither advance nor retreat for us; we were held fast.

The commander came on deck and looked about. "Evidently this is where we winter," he remarked calmly. In a few hours the young ice round the Bear was hard enough for us to walk upon. Our ship was no longer of any use to us.

I did not realise at the time how serious a setback we had received; and no one could have guessed it from the equable demeanour of our commander. Stefansson was once more accepting a terrific handicap, and relying on his own resourcefulness, plus chance, to offset it.

A Crazy Arctic Fox.

I felt lonesome sometimes in that little tent out on the ice. On one ghostly night I heard a scratching on the tent. I looked up from my reading. The flap shook and parted. A small white face was thrust through the opening. Two yellow eyes glared in the lantern flame. Sharp teeth attacked the canvas and tore at it. It was an Arctic fox.

I threw my book at him and he vanished. I went outside to see if he was still about. Holding a lantern high, so as to cast its glow at a distance, I started to walk round the tent, when suddenly something bit me and hung on, giving a shake that sent the shivers running up and down my spine.

I jumped about ten feet before I realised that the fox I could not find had found me.

He released his hold as I swung the lantern. After backing off a little he made at me again. This time I saw him coming and swung the lantern at him. He leaped at it, hung on to the metal rim with his teeth, snarling and shaking it; and then ran off in the darkness. I went back into the tent and waited with my gun. As I expected, the fox returned in a few minutes, and I shot him.

I had heard many stories of "crazy foxes," but this was my first experience with one. The common belief is that foxes which act as this one did have gone temporarily insane.

1,000 Miles' Preliminary Trip.

It was lucky we had pushed on until we reached the land, for the following day brought the worst blizzard I have ever seen. It was impossible to face it. The wind even undercut the lower tiers of our house (snow), and made a hold right through the wall, sending in the driving snow to sift and scatter over everything.

In a few minutes our house would have been cut in two had not we donned out outer coats and long mittens and managed to plug up those holes with snow blocks.

Northward! Forward march! Our dogs were in good trim, and when we started off the teams galloped along with their 1,200lb. sledgeloads. But the novelty of pulling such loads soon wears off, and it was not long before we had harnessed ourselves to the sledges and were helping.

In the six months since our ship had been frozen in we had travelled by sledge and dog-team 1,050 miles—a mere preliminary to our main trip, which was just beginning.

YOUR BODY

Scientists now assure us that all matter is nothing more than combinations of positive and negative particles of electricity. For instance (without going into cpmlmcolpo (without going into complicated technical phraseology), your body is solidified electricity.

Is is not, fundamentally, an electrical disturbance?

The body is like a battery generating current or power. The drain on it is steady. In sleep, it partly recuperates or recharges. But gradually the battery is "giving out," like the battery you use in your radio.

Finally the radio batter is dead.

So, too, the body lies, its power exhausted.

Max Rubner's theory again comes to mind. He believed: "For every pound of weight of his body at maturity, the average man produces and consumes 362,900 calories of energy before he dies. Death comes when he has consumed that amount. Nothing that he can possibly do will make the body produce more energy; and nothing can prevent his death when that amount of energy is produced."

Some of us burn our current up fast, and die young.

It a way could be found to recharge a radio storage battery, the elixir of youth would be in man's grasp at last.

If the human body is really nothing but an electrical defect— short circiut, 'low batteries,' poor insulation, inductive troubles, and so on.

Following this line of reasoning, you picture a future physician who, instead of pills and tonics, might treat his patients electricaily. To a run-down person he'd say: 'Sit down in that chair and I'll start the battery-charger to fill you with new pep.'

The nerves are "wires," through which flow mysterious currents.

And whats beyond? The theory has often been advanced, that electricity is not power, but rather a carrier of power.

ARTICLE No. 5

Most card players are superstitious but very few will admit it. They have various reasons for their fancies but seldom admit that the fancies are really superstitions. One of the pet superstitions is always to take the winning seats; but in doing so, the reason is: "I follow the run of the cards." Of course, sometimes there are "runs" of winning or losing cards in certain seats but these runs are not based upon any ascertained or proven fact. Under such circumstances, to take the winning seats must be classed as a superstition.

There are all sorts and conditions of superstitions. One well-known player always takes the pink cards and likes his back close to the wall. Still another will not accept anything, such as a drink, a match, or a cigarette, from his adversary. To do so he considers unlucky, but he will do so from his partner. There are many players who consider a certain suit or tie or article of jewelry as lucky or unlucky and it is impossible to argue with them. They don't know the why or wherefore but they are sure they are right and nothing can convince them otherwise. In changing seats, some players insist that you always should go to the left. Or if they are unlucky, they walk around the chair. One player never will put his hat on a bed if he expects to play cards. "To do so," he says, "is most unlucky." In cutting the cards, some players consider a careless cut lucky for the dealer and unlucky for the cutter.

One of the most peculiar of superstitions is that of carrying mascots. Some players do it in jest but most of them with the implicit faith that their particular charm or mascot will bring them good luck. Such mascots are weird and wonderful: black cats, ivory elephants, little gods, charms, religious amulets, lucky pencils and many other strange devices. Players who carry such mascots really believe that they have a strong influence on the mysterious thing called luck. Such childlike faith is surprising but true and all card players realize it. Such superstitions are simple and foolish and without rhyme or reason but they will endure as long as card playing itself.

There is one superstition, however, that saves many an old card player. He senses in some mysterious manner that his luck is bad and either plays more carefully than usual or stops playing altogether. Such players are warned by the "break" of the cards. Nothing they do is right, they may make the soundest of bids and yet it may go wrong because of some weird and unexpected distribution of the cards. Every finesse goes wrong. If they have a good hand, their partner has a "bust" and so on. When such things happen, and they do happen every once in a while, sit tight. Never try to "force" your luck for it cannot be done. To try to "force" your luck under such conditions is suicidal and the player who does, suffers unjustifiable losses. Such "breaks" are unexplainable and no one yet has been smart enough to figure out the why and the wherefore. Luck either favors or deserts us and the only thing to do is to be philosophical about it. The best advice is: "Take your luck with a grin. The player with the smile wins."

The writer witnessed a most unusual "break" of luck the other night. One pair held sixteen aces in four consecutive hands and yet only scored one game. In the first hand, the dealer held 100 aces and made two odd at no-trump although he could have made game. In the second hand, the dealer's partner made five odd at no-trump, holding 40 aces. In the third hand, the dealer made four odd at clubs and he and his partner held all four aces. In the fourth hand, the dealer again held 100 aces and bid no-trump. His partner bid two diamonds and the dealer now bid two spades. His partner bid three diamonds and the dealer now bid three no-trump and failed to make his contract by one trick. His hand was as follows:

Hearts — A, 4
Clubs — A, K, 10, 7
Diamonds — A, Q
Spades — A, Q, J, 7, 6

Needless to say he should not have overbid either the two or three diamond bid by his partner. At diamonds they would have scored game and rubber but instead their opponents got started on the next hand and eventually won the rubber. It's not often, if ever before, that two players held sixteen aces in four consecutive hands and only scored one game. It was certainly a most unusual "break."

Problem No. 3

Hearts — K, 8, 7, 3, 2

Spades — 9, 5, 4, 2

There are no trumps and Z is in the lead. How can Y-Z win five of the seven tricks against any defense? Solution next week.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

Franklin Escher Says it Will Return to Par Next Year.

NEW YORK, Nov 14.—Speaking at November luncheon of uptown Banker's Association, Franklin Escher, economist and member of Dresser and Escher, yesterday expressed opinion that Sterling Exchange was likely to return to par before middle of next year. Change in feeling abroad since the sweeping Conservative victory in England, Mr. Escher pointed out, was such that very large amounts of foreign capital were being withdrawn from United States for home employment. To his fact, or more than any other Mr. Escher described recent rise in exchange.

DON'TS FORCOLDS

In this season when the first colds of the year are likely to make their appearance, it is a pretty good idea to give the youngsters a list of "don'ts" and be sure they heed them.

The Manns of Anytown were a bit careless, like most people, but its a good plan to follow these rules with either little Mary or Billy if they have colds:

Don't let them kiss anyone.

Teach them to cover their mouth and nose when they sneeze.

Don't let them sleep with any of the other children.

Make a gargle from one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and the same amount of soda mixed in hot water.

Give them a hot footbath before they go to bed and a hot lemonade after they get in.

And, of course, a good cathartic.

Don't let them eat meats or heavy foods and, if confined to bed, a little hot broth or milk several times a day.

BROADWAY STREET OF "FALSE ALARMS"

Toronto Girl's Dreams of Success Faded—Took Poison in Despair.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—From the rear windows of 117 West Forty-ninth street one can look out upon the twin spires of St. Patrick's Cathedral. They stand there like bright sentinels of God on the fringe of the devil's stamping ground.

A block or two up Fifth avenue stands St. Thomas's. And there are several other churchly edifices in the neighborhood.

Of a Sunday morning one can lie in bed at 117 West Forty-ninth street and hear the chimes. There is at times something exalting, soul-lifting in the pealing of those bells, at times something disquieting, melancholy. "Te Deum!" "Hosannah!"

And on Saturday night one may look out upon the fiery lights of Broadway that blot out the heavens like a blast from Hades. In that scene there is something insidiously depressing, something symbolic of lost souls shuffling about aimlessly, restlessly under the incandescent canopy above.

Madeline Heath, 20, has lived at 117 West Forty-ninth street for five months. She came from Toronto, aspiring to be a singer. She worked in the cloak room of a restaurant on upper Broadway and used part of her meager wage for singing lessons.

Last Sunday she heard the ringing of the chimes. She looked out upon the crosses that reach toward Heaven, symbols of man's spiritual yearning. That day she quit her job in the restaurant.

They took her to Bellevue Hospital and saved her life with an antidote for iodine poisoning.

On her dresser was a note, "Tired of the humdrum life of false-alarm Broadway."

There are thousands of young girls and young men who come to New York, as Madeline came, hope beating high sure of the strength that is within them.

They envisage themselves in fine clothes magnificent homes and clever society. They count their nickels for lunch. They do their own mending and pressing. They brew tea over a gas jet. They live from hand-to-mouth.

Some plod along never getting out of the rut becoming just another infinitesimal cog in this gigantic machine grinding on to the end. Some few climb to greater heights than they would have reached in their home towns. And some end it all in the gesture of despair that almost concluded Madeline's troubles.

This town is full of rooming house tragedies, tragedies of thwarted ambitions, of heart-eating loneliness.

You cannot quite explain this loneliness of being isolated in a city of six million souls. You cannot feel it unless you have lived as Madeline lived in West Forty-ninth street, just off "False-Alarm Broadway."

DREAMS WHICH EACH HAS ITS' OWN MEANING

Snow will soon be falling and many will dream of seeing themselves out sleighing.

Deception can readily be noticed in some of these dreams which will give you ample warning to beware of false friends. Unless your companions are jovial and show good cheer be on your guard. All other visions are bad omens.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

BY S. STANWOOD MENKEN

Head of National Security League, Who Demands Deportation of Countess Karolyi.

BY BOB DORMAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The arival of the beautiful Countess Karolyi, erstwhile member of the world's most rigid aristocracy, that of the Austro-Hungarian court, has given rise to a storm of dissension.

S. Stanwod Menken, head of the National Security League, has asked for her deportation on the ground that the countess is a Red—an undesirable alien.

The countess' friends, most of whom are among New York's Four Hundred, have rallied to her defense.

Mr. Menken had prepared a list of questions for the countess to answer, and through his courtesy, they were presented to her by the NEA and Examiner representative.

The questions and her answers follow:

Q. What passport did you use in reaching the United States?

A. A special Juglo-Slavian passport. After our exile from Hungary by the monarchist forces of Admiral Horthy, we took up our residence in Ragusa, Dalmatia, Jugo-Slavia, and as our native land refused us passports we were grnted same by Jugo-Slavians as political refugees.

Origin of "Red Catherine"

Q. Were you not known as "Red Catherine"?

A. The name was given me even before the war and Bolshevism had been heard of. It was given to me by my relatives and friends because I had taken up the cause of woman suffrage and the improvement of the lower classes. In Austro-Hungary the aristocracy to which I belonged recognized no other than itself and anyone that tok thought for those who did not belong was a "Red.'

Q.—Did you not visit Bela Kun (Bolshevik terrorist who ruled Hungary for six months, when he was in prison during the time your husband was president of Hungary, and did you not take him flowers

A.—No, never.

Q.—Did you not, while wearing red hat and collar, state, in substance, after Bela Kun had started his red reign of terror, that "Hungary had never been so happy?"

A. I never wore a red hat in my life and I certainly do not remember making any such remark. Hungary was not happy then, or is she now.

Q. Is it true that you and your husband have been associated with the Communists?

A. Never.

Q. If not so, how was it that your husband negotiated with the "Mission of the Entente" in the name of the Bolshevik?

BY COUNTESS KAROLYI

Hungarian Noblewoman Who Denies She Is Affiliated With "Reds" and Defies Menken.

S. STANWOOD MENKEN

COUNTESS KAROLYI

A I dont remember that he did so.

Q. Do you know that the Hungarian minister protested your entry into this country last year and that the Department of State then refused to allow you a visa?

A. I undersood that there had been some trouble.

Q. Did you know that both the Hungarian minister and the Charge d'Affairs were absent when you sailed for America?

A. I did not.

Q. Do you claim that Cecile Tormay, president of the National League of Hungarian Women, is guilty of false statements in her accusations against you?

A. She certainly did not tell the truth.

The countess says she is 29, and though she has passed through much suffering since the time she and her husband, Count Michael, left their native land as refugees, she still has a ready smile that lights up her usually serious face.

With her straight, bobbed hair and rosy cheeks, she resembles many of the American girls that one sees on the streets of New York.

When the Karolysis reached Jugo-Slavia after leaving Hungary, they had seven kronen (about 25 cents) to their name.

Countess Ran a Ferry

The count was a cripple and unable to work. Their three children, one of them a babe in arms, must be supported.

The countess went to work. They were at Ragusa, and the countess obtained a motor launch on credit. This she used in ferrying people across the water. She made money—until the boat went on the rocks.

Then they depended on the sale of jewels for their living. Finally they made their way to London, getting free transportation to Cardiff, Wales, on a coal steamer.

There they lived on the proceeds of what they could get for the few remaining jewels of the countess, and on what little money she has been able to earn by lecturing.

Her trip to this country she claims is for the purpose of adding funds to the exchequer.

And in farewell she told me:

"I am not a 'Red', but I do believe that social conditions in my country are wrong, terribly wrong. I have always believed so, and both my husband and myself were hated for our opposition to the German war-lords and to the wrongs perpetuated on our poor peasantry in the name of patriotism.

"I was always hoping for the betterment of the peasants of my country—in fact I named my first children Adam and Eve as a symbolic hope that they would live to see a new race under new conditions.

"Adam is seven, Eve is nine. Little Judith, who was born the day that Bela Kun established his Bolsevik government in Hungary, is five. I still hope that they will live to see Hungary as peaceful and prosperous as this America."

HOME-MADE WINE OF ANY STRENGTH LEGAL, SAYS JURY

Maryland Common-sense Gives Blow to Volstead Act.

HILL WINS CASE.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 14. — The manufacture of wines and cider of ordinary alcoholic content in private home is permissible, a jury in the United States District Court here decided yesterday.

The jury dismissed all the counts of the indictment against Representative John Phillip Hill of Maryland, which had charged him with unlawful manufacture of 11.64 per cent wine and 2.7 per cent cider in his home. Hill provoked the trial to test the power of the Volstead Act over home-brewing.

The jury reported to Judge Morris A. Soper after 20 hours deliberation that it had found Hill, the defendant not guilty on each of the six counts in the indictment found against him.

The counts of the indictment charged Hill specifically with the manufacture and possession of intoxicants, and with creating a public nuisance by having intoxicants in his home.

The exact wording of the dismissal was: "We, the jury find the defendant not guilty of the mater of which he stands indicted."

The jury was composed of a grocer, a coal dealer, two insurance men, a clerk, a printer a produce broker, an engineer and three business executives. Robert H. Stevens, a commission merchant, was foreman.

Judge Soper, in charging the jury told them that their verdict must be considered as passing upon the question of whether the beverage manufactured by Hill was intoxicating. He said the issue of intoxication must be decided on the question of whether or not "a practical amount" consumed by any man would produce drunkenness.

Hill, who has been long opposed to the prohibition laws, shouted with glee when the verdict was returned. "Well, boys, you can make all the wine you want now," he said. "I always did have faith in the common sense of these Maryland juries."

WILL NOT APPEAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The Federal Govrnment will not appeal from the Soper ruling holding home manufacturer of cider and fruit-juices in excess of one half of one per cent. alcoholic content to be permitted in the Volstead Act, Attorney General Stone, said to-day.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

The Examiner has received a request from a reader to publish the following letter, which appeared in the Toronto Globe:

NORTHERN ONTARIO AND CHURCH UNION.

To the Editor of the Globe.

In several issues of the Globe recently letters have appeared urging organic Church Union in the interests of the needy fields of Northern Ontario. But why organic Union in order to solve these problems of overlapping? Could not every one of them have been solved through a wise system of co-operation? Were not many of them already solved in this way before the Union Bill ever reached Parliament? Why then rend the Presbyterian Church in Canada in twain for the sake of organic Union? Was the action not a hasty one? Would it not have been better to have adopted a system of Federal Union and allowed organic Union to come as a growth instead of forcing it, and thus splitting the Church? Dr. Morrow in his book, "Church Union in Canada," says: "Organic Unionists are obsessed with the organic Union ideal as the only solution. They have deliberately shut their eyes to any other plan." I fear he is correct. But why discuss the question now? The act passed by Parliament gives these churches in scattered settlements organic Union if they want it, while it allows churches that don't want it the privilege of remaining Presbyterian.

TORONTO MAN IS ON LONG PADDLE

To-day Started Across English Channel—Plans 2,000 Mile Trip.

LONDON, England, November 14.—P. C. Smythe, the Toronto man, who is attempting to win a bet that he could paddle alone in a canoe from Sydney, Nova Scotia, to New York, and from London to Rome, and cover the distance in two months, left Dover this morning on his perilous trip across the English Channel to Calais, France.

The start from Dover was made at 7.30, in cold weather and the sky was overcast. The channel was somewhat choppy and the atmosphere hazy, but Smythe made excellent progress. He headed westward from Dover on the ebb tide.

Smythe proposes keeping to the coast after crossing the English Channel, then around the Bay of Biscay, and proceed along the Mediterranean to Rome.

Smythe arrived in New York on Oct. 8th after a 42 days' canoe trip from Sydney, N.S., about 900 miles. He sailed for England on the Lancastria on October 25th.

If Smythe reaches Rome in his canoe he will have paddled more than two thousand miles since leaving Sydney.

ARM OF THE LAW TO EXTEND NORTH

Police Detachment Will Be Established at Bache Peninsula.

OTTAWA, November 14 (Canadian Press). — The long arm of the law will extend itself further in the direction of the polar region by the establishment of a police detachment at Bache Peninsula, on Ellesmere Island, according to information obtained to-day at the headquarters of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police here.

At the present time the farthest northern post is located at Craig Harbour, on the north end of Ellesmere Island with the temporary provision depot slightly further north at Cape Sabine.

The intended step is part of the present plan, which is being vigorously carried into execution, to protect Canada's northern islands, and is due to the growing importance of these islands; for the purpose of establishing actual possession, and to protect the Dominion's mineral and fishing rights.

MAY RECOVER MONEY.

Action May Be Brought Against Peter Smith, Now of Kingston.

TORONTO, Nov. 14. — Action may be brought, the Toronto Telegram understands, either by the Home Bank liquidators or by the Provincial Government, or both, to recover the $58,000 which Peter Smith, former Provincial Treasurer, is said to have unlawfully received from the late Col. J. Cooper Mason, of the Home Bank.

On his way to Portsmouth Penitentiary, where he went yesterday to begin a three year term, Smith said that he had not received the money and that he had been "made the goat for others."

G. T. Clarkson, liquidator for the Home Bank, declined to-day to state whether or not he would bring action on behalf of the bank.

"It is under advisement by the solicitors," he added.

$60,000 FIRE IN CITY OF HAMILTON

Building Occupied By Dominion Stores, Sterling Meat Company and Upstairs Shoe Company Destroyed.

HAMILTON, November 14.—Fire early this morning did damage amounting to $60,000, to 193 King street East, a building occupied by the Dominion Stores, Sterling Meat Company, and the Upstairs Shoe Company.

The occupants of neighboring apartments were sent scurrying to the street in their night attire when smoke invaded their premises, and fire threatened to follow.

The fire however was confined to the building in which it started.

The building is owned by Morris Geller, proprietor of the shoe store, who places his loss at $25,000.

The remainder of the loss falls on the other tenants.

The fire broke out suddenly. A constable passed the rear of the building about one o'clock, and saw no sign of fire. Five minutes later he saw flames mounting from the building. It is not known how the blaze started.

Who Started Big Probe Threat To "Get" The Men

MONTREAL, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Threats to "get" the men responsible for the present sensational local police probe have been made by members of an alleged "gambling trust" in Montreal, according to a statement made this morning by Alderman Dubreuil, whose motion at the City Council meeting started the investigation.

According to the statement, the men who have been threatened are: Aldermen Dubreuil, Theodore Laurence and Jules A. Jabocs.

HE ANNOYS YOU AT MOVIES

The pest who reads the captions or sub-titles aloud at the movies is not easy to explain. He is an intricate study in psychology, the science of why men do as they do, is this annoyer of his neighbors.

Always there is some one with him. In fact, he wouldn't think of reading the titles aloud if he were alone.

So, then, his motive is most apt to be to create a favorable impression on his companion. He is vain; feels superior; fears that the party he is with is not as quick and alert as he is—than the printed words will vanish from the silver screen before his companion can read and grasp them.

Hence, in his vanity, he calls the neighbors' attention to his companion's dull wits by reading title aloud for him.

Quite unconsciously though. Does it by instinct, often without realizing. But it is by such acts that men betray their real selves—their repressed emotions and opinions of themselves.

Again, there may be another motive. When man are alone, as in the woods, for any length of time—or women alone a lot doing housework—they are apt to form the habit of speaking to themselves. Even carrying on a conversation with an invisible presence—a sort of twin or second self.

A spectator at a movie is not alone....as he learns by the growls when he feels his way through the dark to a seat, stepping on others' feet, tripping over sprawled-out legs or sagging onto hats.

But the movie may so interest and fascinate him that all else vanishes except the plot unfolding on the screen.

His mental attitude is that he is not alone in the universe, watching a drama or comedy staged for his special benefit. He forgets that he has neighbors. And, like the man actually alone in the wilderness, he talks to himself— occasionally a comment to the screen players, but more often a repeating of sub-titles.

Behold him, temporarily hypnotized.

A third explanation is that he repeats aloud as he reads, unconsciously expressing his approval or pleasure. His is the attitude of the man who, hearing a wise saying, turns and repeats it, giving it his endorsement, pleased that he has had the same identical thought playing tag in the back of his head and now recognizes it.

Or it may be, as Rodger Dolan claims, that he's merely proudly exhibiting his ability to read.

Complicated motives are behind some of our simplest acts, just as simple motives are behind many complicated acts.

MAKE GOOD FRONT.

Another Phase of the Home Bank Case Revealed To-day.

TORONTO, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Judge Coatsworth has refused to grant a "certicate of reasonable doubt" in the case of the Lieut.-Col. Clarence F. Smith conviction as a Home Bank director, for approving and concurring in a false bank return to the Government. Sentence has not yet been passed. The judge stated, however, he would do anything to facilitate any appeal motion.

During the trial this morning of J. F. M. Stewart, another director, Fred. W. Reynolds, a former manager of the Home Bank at London, Ont., told how he was instructed by the directors to go to Vancouver and establish an office there with "prosperous looks and with a splendid big furniture and gold letters on windows," to make good impression. This was the formation of the Reynolds Timber and Insurance Company, with the Home Bank directors as the chief shareholders. This concern afterwards failed, owing the Home Bank $100,000.

SMALL FIRE IN EAST CITY TO-DAY

Hot Iron Left on Ironing Board Set Fire to Clothes —No Damage.

At ten minutes after three this afternoon the Fire Department made a hurried call to a small fire in East City at 565 Roger Street. The fire was caused by an ironing board catching on fire. The lady, who had been ironing, left the hot iron on the board, setting fire to the clothes which were around it. She then carried the board into the woodshed and stood it in a corner against the wall, the paper on the wall taking fire and causing a dense smoke that filled the house. The Fire Department arrived on the scene shortly after the call was sent in, and the fire was soon extinguished by the use of chemicals. No damage was done. The Fire Chief wishes to warn citizens of this city to be more careful when ironing, and states that they should have a proper stand made of metal to set their iron on.

TIMES EDITOR'S STORY IS DENIED

Both Lloyd George and Clemenceau Say There Is No Truth In His Account.

LONDON, Nov. 14. — (United Press).—Both Georges Clemenceau and David Lloyd George to-day declared there was no truth in Wickham Steed's account of how the two ex-Premiers nearly fought a duel in the days of Versailles.

The former editor of the Times was not disturbed by their denials. "Naturally, I should not have written what I did if I had not been sure of my facts", Steed said. His book "Over Thirty Years", is creating a sensation. Besides describing an alleged row between Lloyd George and Clemenceau in which Steed says the Welshman had the Tiger by the collar and Woodrow Wilson had to intervene, the author makes his book intriguing by the casual way in which he tells of giving advice to cabinet officers and kings.

SAO BORJA ABANDONED.

Brazilian Rebels Are Retreating Toward Interior of Rio Grande.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press). — Brazilian rebels in the State of Rio Grande have abandoned the city of Sao Borja on the River Uruguay, and are retiring toward the interior, probably intending to take refuge in the hills in the centre of the State, according to advices from Santo Tome.

La Nacion's correspondent at Porto Alegre says rebel column proceeding toward Uruguay Ana, in the belief that the town was still held by the rebels, and routed by Government forces under Flores Da Cunha. Many of the rebels escaped by swimming their horses across the River Uruguay to the Argentine shore.

Elect Montague Norman.

Directors of Bank of England Recommend Governor of Bank.

LONDON, Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press).—The directors of the Bank of England have unanimously decided to recommend that the proprietors re-elect Montague Norman, governor of the bank, for the ensuing year, this to make his sixth consecutive year in office. Such an honor is unprecedented. The governorship generally is limited to two years, the previous rare exception being Lord Cunliffe, who served five years.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

Fathered and mothered by a lead pencil in the hands of George McManus, Jiggs and Maggie, with their attendants in Dinty and the Gang, have been bringing mirth and relaxation to thousands of people for years past. Some years ago, they came out of their first home in newspaper pages and walked and talked on the stage. Since then, every year has seen a new "Father" show launched with unvarying success. "Bringing up Father in Ireland" is the latest and said to be one of the best of the series.

It seemse quite appropriate that "Father" should be at his best in Ireland. He is a real Celtic type himself and so are Maggie and Dinty, and they have a real son of the Old Sod for their creator. So Jiggs should feel perfectly at home in Ireland, where he is represented as having a gorgeous time among all the pretty colleens of Dublin.

Peterboro's own son, Danny Simons, comes back for his annual appearance in "Father," and will be welcomed heartily. Danny makes a wonderful Jiggs and is said to give one of his best characterizations in this particular show. "Bringing Up Father" is an American institution that has made the whole world laugh and take on a new humour, different from the old stereotyped idea of comedy. For the reason that it presents no intricate problem, but is all plain fun.

New faces, new scenery and costumes and jokes, new music and new dances, a new show with the old familiar principals, a snappy and well gowned chorus, are all elements that go to make "Bringing UP Father in Ireland" one of the best of the popular series of Jiggs' shows.

AT THE CAPITOL.

RIN-TIN-RIN THE DOG AT THE CAPITOL TODAY AND SATURDAY

If you are fond of dogs, if you like good acting, if you appreciate beautiful scenery, if you like a clever story, full of action, thrills and unusual episodes, don't miss "Find Your Man," which is being shown at the Capitol Theatre.

Rin-Tin-Rin, a dog with unusual intelligence, whose training cannot be compared to that of any other dog, plays the leading role in this production. He is seen as the courageous hero, risking his life to save his master, as the sympathetic friend, the bitter enemy. He feels and displays all the emotions of a human being. In fact, he seems to do everything but talk. Rin-Tin-Rin is an ex-soldier. It is said that he spent part of his puppyhood on the firing line of France. Perhaps that its what accounts for his fearlessness.

The story, which is laid in a beautiful lumber country, deals with a plot to steal Government timber, in which Paul Andrews, his dog and his sweetheart become involved. Buddy displays some marvelous athletic stunts when he aids in his masters' escape from prison and then rescues him and his sweetheart from drowning. Eric St. Clair and June Marlowe show exceptional skill in their portrayal of Paul Andrews and Caroline Blair. Others in the cast are Charles Mailes, Pat Hastigan, Fred Stanton, Lew Harvey and Charles Conklin.

AT THE ROYAL.

AT THE ROYAL. WILD HORSE FILM EMOTIONAL TREAT.

Give up Wondering How they Did it, and Enjoy Roach Novelty Film.

"The King of Wild Horses," which thrilled and entertained yesterday's audiences at the Royal theatre, where the Pathe picture remains until Saturday, contains a plot with a villain and a love affair, but the people and their doings are merely a background against which is played out the capture and winning of The Blank, king of the wild horses, by Leon Bary, the cowboy hero of the play.

The Black is a magnificent stallion, and a short time ago was the undefeated leader of a band of wild horses in Colorado. And there he is shown on the screen, the wild and wily ruler of an immense and picturesque range country. He fights to retain his supremacy, too, and leads his herd in triumph after beating off an invading white rival.

One wonders how this action was ever staged—how it was kept within range of the camera, or how the camera ever kept in focus with the action. One sees this wild horse, riderless and untethered, galloping down the side of a mountain; two horses fighting, breakin, apart, running, then returning to the battle—here, there, everywhere — and the camera-man right there in the thick of the fray. But you soon become so thrilled and enraptured that you cease wondering how they got it and abandon yourself to an emotional spree.

"The King of Wild Horses" cannot be classified as an "animal picture," nor yet as a "western." It is boht of these things, and superior to each. In fact it is an unusual and beautiful production, never without sustained interest, and chock-ful of sensational thrills and amazing achievements.

EXCELLENT PROGRAMME FOR KIDDIES AT ROYAL SATURDAY MATINEE

It would be hard to pick a more suitable programme to entertain and instruct the children than the selection at the Royal to-morrow afternoon. Opening with a See Canada Scenic, Buddy Messenger, famous boy star, in his latest comedy, William Duncan, in the Steel Trail, and the King of Wild Horses. The kiddies will go in raptures over Rex, the horse that plays the lead in this remarkable novelty.

BELASCO PLAY BRIMMING WITH SPARKLING FUN.

"Daddies" Starring Mae Marsh Contains Novel Situations.

When "Daddies" comes to the Royal Theatre next week as the feature attraction, you will have an opportunity to see one of the very finest of stage productions presented in motion pictures by a hand-picked cast of brilliant stars. Picture producers for years have been dreaming of the time when they could produce Belasco plays on the screen. The dream of the Warner Brothers came true. This will be the third Belasco success produced by the Warners this year.

"Daddies" is one of the very best of the Belasco plays, a clean, sparkling comedy that will chase away the glooms and the joy-killing blues. It is a picture that combines comedy, pathos and drama in just the right proportion for maximum entertainment quality. Advance reports indicate that this picture is already enjoying success as one of the very best pictures of the year.

A bachelor club and the problems of its members who, in a moment of weakness, decide to adopt a war orphan each, gives rise to the very funny comedy situations. There is a very pretty love theme in the case of the bachelor who finds his "orphan" is a very pretty girl of seventeen. And there is some pathos in the case of the man who finds his "orphans" to be triplets. But every one is happy when the extremely pleasing ending shows the bachelors all getting married and making comfortable homes for a number of fine women and children

A splendid cast has been selected for this picture. Mae Marsh and Harry Myers are the stars.

AT THE REGENT.

"THE BANDOLERO" IS FIERY PICTURE.

Tom Terriss Film of Spanish Adventure, Scores Hit.

Tom Terriss not only has been considered one of the outstanding directors of the motion picture field for some time, but also he has been more or less noted for two particular attributes. One of them is his eagerness to develop new players; the other is his love for taking a company to authentic locations in distant parts of the world to get real atmosphere in his productions.

"The Bandolero" ("The Bandit") which came to the Regent Theatre for a 3-day engagement yesterday, is an excellent example of both of Mr. Terriss's theories. Manuel Granado, a young Argentine who plays the juvenile lead, is a discovery of Mr. Terriss, and makes what mildly may be termed a most auspicious debut in the silent drama; and the fact that exterior scenes were taken in Cuba and Spain give this presentation of a dramatic story of vengeance and love an authenticity of atmosphere which, it seems to this reviewer, cannot be praised too highly.

Beauty and Thrills.

In fact, if the story itself were not so full of suspense, the sheer beauty of scenic effects — among them the bullfight on a great Spanish holiday with thousands of merry-makers as volunteer extras photographed against the romantic background of the snow clad Sierra Nevadas—would linger long in the mind of the observer.

MARION DAVIES' BEST ROLE IS IN "YOLANDA."

Cosmopolitan Star Again Appears in a Charles Major Romance of Ancient France, Supported by a Great Cast of Stars.

The first Marion Davies picture to be released since "Little Old New York," in which she achieved one of the biggest successes in the history of motion pictures, is a screen version of Charles Major's romance of the daughter of Charles the Bold, Prince of Burgundy, "Yolanda." This photoplay has been booked for a 3 days' showing at the Regent Theatre and will have its initial screening on Monday next. It was in another picture made from a novel by Charles Major, "When Knighthood Was In Flower," that Miss Davies made her big leap into the front rank of picture stars of the day. In "Yolanda" she reveals a charm of personality, a resourcefulness in technique, a mastery of pantomime that even surpasses her work in "Little Old New York" and "Knighthood."

The production of "Yolanda" is the most lavish yet made by Cosmopolitan Productions for its series of photoplays starring Miss Davies. The life, the color and the romance of medieval France are transferred to the screen with remarkable artistry.

In this romantic masterpiece of the cinema art, Miss Davies is said to achieve new heights in her subtle characterization of the charming Princess Mary of Burgundy, daughter of Charles the Bold, who whimsically impersonates the character of Yolanda, a burgher maid, in order to test the sincerity of the love of her impetuous admirer, Maximilian of Styria.

TOOK HIS OWN LIFE.

NEWARK, N.J., Nov. 14—(United News). — An unidentified man who killed himself by breathing illuminating gas, here, Thursday, has shown that it is possible to be a gentleman at all times.

The body of the man was found lying in his bed in a rooming house. A note addressed to the landlady was as follows:

"Dear Madam,—I am exceedingly sorry to have caused you this trouble and hope you will forgive me. I enclose something for compensation."

A ten dollar note was attached. The man had taken a bath before he turned on the gas.

JURY DISAGREES.

WELLAND, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—After being four hours and fifteen minutes with no hope of reaching a verdict the jury in the case of John Trott, charged with the murder of Constable Joseph Truman at Thorold, early in morning of December 17th, 1922, reported to Justice Mowat late last night, that they were unable to agree, and the prisoner was remanded until next assizes.

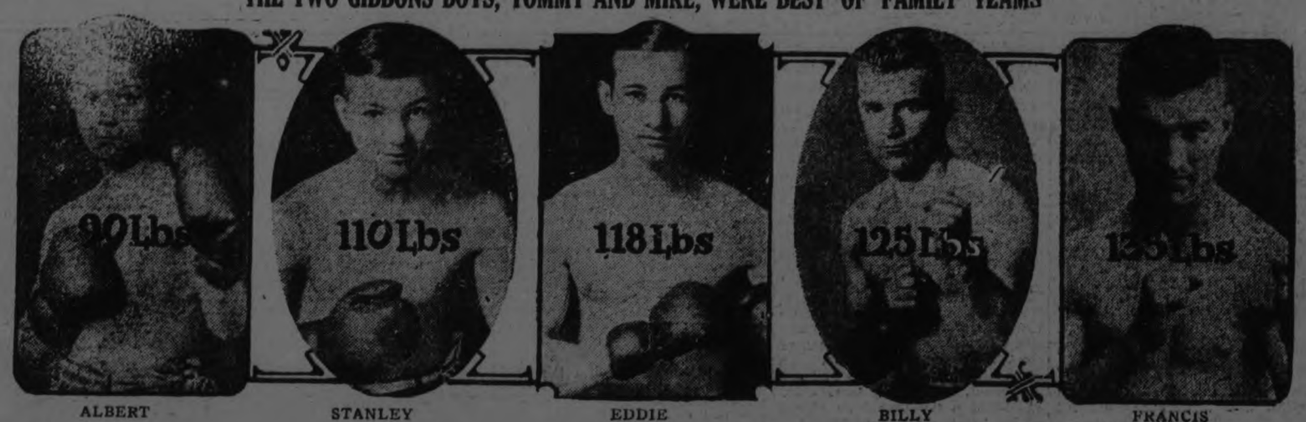
FIVE BROTHERS AND ALL FIGHTERS

THE TWO GIBBONS BOYS, TOMMY AND MIKE, WERE BEST OF FAMILY TEAMS



ALBERT STANLEY EDDIE BILLY FRANCIS

BY JOE WILLIAMS

It takes a lot of jack to keep the Williams family of Wheeling, W. Va. in gloves.

Boxing gloves, we mean.

There are five boys in the family and all of them are battlers.

In this family a black eye is as common as feather on a humming bird's tail, and a tin ear excites no comment whatever.

Taking them at their graduated weights the Williams wallopers are Albert, 90 pounds; Stanley, 110; Eddie, 118; Billy, 125, and Francis, 135.

This is not merely a fighting family were boxing gloves are distributed on birthdays. All the boys are real punchers, either with professional or semi-profesional experience. Billy, star of the lot, has had something like 7 hard fights, and has never been beaten at his weight.

Sets Family Record

These five brothers represent the largest family drive for professional ring honors in the history of the game. Brother fighters are not rare ocurrences. Many families have had two boys in the ring at once, some three, and the Cross family, with Leach, Phil, Marty and Sam hit the four-brother mark.

If one of the five Williams battlers attains to real fistic class the family should be satisfied. There have been, but few cases where brother fighters reached stardom simultaneously, or at different intervals, either. Generally one brother is a real star, the others just so-so.

The three McGovern boys were all scrappers, but Terry was the only one who got anywhere. Leach was the only one of the four Cross boys who had real ability. Pal was easily the best of the three Moore boys of Philadelphia. (A different family from the Pal Moores of Memphis.)

Jim Jeffries had a brother named Jack, who thought he was a fighter. Thought is the correct word. Abe Attell had two brother fighters. Monte was fair. Caesar has an inspiring name, and that was all. Philadelphia Jack O'Brien's younger brother gave promise of developing but fizzled.

Gibbons Brothers Best

The two Chip brothers, George and Joe, were pretty fair. George was good enough to win the middleweight championship, and bad enough to lose it on a sucker punch to Al McCoy, one of the worst fighters at any weight the world ever saw.

Mike Gibbons, cautious as he was in offensive tactics, was a great fighter, and Tommy, who came along later, displayed more than ordinary ability. Tommy stayed 15 rounds with Dempsey and murdered Carpentier. At the moment we are willing to say the Gibbons boys were the greatest of fighting brothers.

The two Mitchells of Milwaukee met and whipped some good men. The Brocks of Cleveland were hard hitters, both. The Ertles of Minnesota were better than average.

Charley Beecher could never quite reach the standard set by his older brother, Willie, and Dave is the only one of the three Shade brothers the good Marquis of Queensbury would be interested in watching, were he with us today.

GORDON FINAL ON SATURDAY

Woollens and Thistle Meet on Nicholls Oval Grounds.

KICK OFF 2.30.

The tid-bit in soccer annals takes place on Saturday afternoon between the Canadian Woollens and the Thistle, at the Oval, for the Gordon Cup which was donated by G. N. Gordon a few years ago and is considered one of the finest pieces of silverware in the district. The G.W.V.A. won it last year.

Mr. G. N. Gordon will be in attendance to present the trophy to the captain of the winning team. Mr. Jack Chambers is captain of the Woollens and Mr. Alex Anderson, captain of the Thistle.

None of the teams have ever won the trophy, although the Woollens have been in the final, also the Thistle, so one or the other will be sure to get their name engraved upon it now.

The kick-off is scheduled for 2.30 prompt at the Oval under the jurisdiction of Referee Jack Clark who has been adjucator in many a final. He will be ably assisted by Referee Alex. McKinley and Mr. Wyllie as linesmen.

According to previous history these two teams have given a splendid exhibition of clean and fast soccer, accompanied with many thrills. The Canadian Woollens team will be: Hillman, goal; Cridland and Chambers, backs; Read, Monkman and Blowers, half-backs; Clark, Gaskill, Mitchell, Hodgson and Sayers, forwards. Reserves: Ward and Roberts.

The team selected by the Thistle will be: Curtis goal; Anderson and Rae, backs; Hotston, "Newman" and Dawson, half-backs; Hutton, McPhail, Richmond, Williams and Burgess, forwards. Reserves: Ross, Young and H. N. Other.

SOCCER NOTES.

Mr. Murdock McLellan the Quaker player, will in all probability lose his left thumb through the accident he received at his employment. The fans wish him a quick recovery.

An interested spectator at the game on the holiday was Mr. Alex Mitchell, referee, who is progressing favorably after his serious operations.

BILLIE BURKE'S DAUGHTER ON PRINCE'S PONY

"Jakinto," once the favorite mount of Princess Mary of England and brought to America with the Prince of Wales string of polo ponies, now is owned and ridden by little Patricia Burke Ziegfeld.

OLD COUNTRY VERSION OF MATCH

Mrs. Bertha Wilson of Keene who is on a vacation in England attended the White Sox versus Giant baseball game at Chelsea. The following is a newspaper clipping of the game:

In the presence of the Duke and Duchess of York, the American Ambassador and Mrs. Kellog, Mr. Bernard Shaw, Lord Wodehouse, and other celebrities, and on a day which seemed to have been stolen from summer, the two renowned exponents of baseball, the New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox, opened their London season yesterday with a game at Stamford Bridge.

There was a crowd of some 8,000 spectators. Of these possibly 10 per cent. were Americans, who talked blibly of "pinch hitters" and "three baggers," and had one and all shaken hands with Babe Ruth (a famous player without any apparent damage, but the rest were seekers of new thrills. They were there.

It was worth the journey to Chelsea to see the weird garb in which our visitors play their national game. Flannelled jerseys, plus-three trousers, and Steve Donoghue caps were sported by one and all, together with a boxing-glove on one hand, but the "catcher," or wicket keeper, has his head enclosed in a strong cage, and a palliasse of tested strength and was employed as a chest protector. Nor did the umpire who stood behind him take any more risk. Umpires are evidently a valuable race in the U.S.A.

The Game.

So far as the game was concerned, the pitching chiefly aroused attention. From a distance of twenty yards the pitchers sent in furious deliveries which not only curved considerably but also dipped several inches. For all that the batters, wielding a sort of Indian club, smote it cheerily, and several times caused the spectators on the far side of the ground to scatter in an undignified way.

The catching was accepted, as not remarkable in view of the padded glove protecting one hand, but the throwing in to the bases was deadly, inevitable, and wonderful. Frankly, after watching these Americans, my hopes of starting successfully an Aunt Sally show in the basement of the Woolworth Building have sagged to zero. One coconut per pot shot per person would make my balance-sheet a ghastly tragedy.

Again the spectators were treated to a rare piece of fielding on the part of the White Sox, when on one occasion they perfromed the feat of "triple play," which means that by rapid flinging of the ball from base to base three opposing player were dismissed simultaneously.

But greater interest was evoked by the antics of the coaches, who, standing by the bases, gave forth cheerful or sardonic comments on the opposite team in a language that appeared to be pure Choctaw. Between them and the catcher a voice duel was in constant progress.

The stand spectators, too, insisted on saying their piece in the accomplished art, known as "Rooting". Intermittent cries of "Attaboy"—the American national slogan—rent the air ,as well as the ear of the adjoining spectators, and many of the onlookers appeared to take the affair to heart in the most clamorous fashion. One even, evidently a delegate to the League of Nations, called earnestly and racously to the batsman, "Never mind him! he swings like a rusty gate," meaning the pitcher. It was all very strange.

But it was murch cry and little run. The White Sox scored two, the Giants three, and the verdict therefore, went to the later. A.P.G.

Bowling

LADIES' MERCANTILE LEAGUE.

At the Water Street Alleys last night, in their first scheduled game in the Ladies' Mercantile League, the Examiner took two out of three from the Law Ladies. Some good bowling was the result of last night's meet.

Miss M. Collins had the high three games of the evening with a nice score of 397. Miss Lynch was next with 384, and Miss Esson had 366, Miss Cadd 342 and Miss McCarthy 324. Miss Lynch had the high single of 192, while Miss Collins had a high single game of 162.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

At the Water Street Alleys last night in the K. of C. League Phelan's team took three straight from Carson's outfit.

Phelan was the big noise throughout, having the high three games of 543 and also the high single of 207.

Following are the scores:

MERCANTILE LEAGUE

At the Water Street Alleys last night, Cressmans took two out of three from the Post Office and are still well up in the league. Some exceptionaly good rolling was in order last night.

Racher came through with the high three games of the evening with a good score of 646, while Ballard hit them for 616. Racher had the high single with a score of 251.

Following are the scores:

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

Players who have used both say there is no difference between wood and iron-shafted clubs.

Jimmy Bronson is one fight manager who specializes in boxers developed in army camps.

It is debatable whether Tommy Gibbons or Harry Wills is the best defensive battler in the game today.

A professional golfers' league may be formed in Florida this winter, with pros stationed at the larger resort cities making up the league.

Gene Tunney, light heavyweight champion, thinks he can beat Tommy Gibbons at golf. Gibbons is said to be the best fighter-golfer in the land.

Leon Flynn says Jack Renault is twice as good as Bill Brennan ever was. Flynn managed Brennan and now handles Renault.

The records of the football games to date show that the team that scores first is about a four to one favorite to win the game.

Only four pitchers in the National League, Vance, Mays, Grimes and Cooper, won 20 or more games.

The veteran Walter Johnson scored more victories than any other American League pitcher with 23.

Jesse Barnes of Boston, former star pitcher of the New York Giants, suffered the most defeats in the National League, 20.

Catcher Wally Schang says Beall, the Yankees' rookie pitcher, has a better curve ball than any right hander in the American League.

Second Baseman Marty McManus of the St. Louis Browns is said to be dissatisfied with his berth and wants to be traded.

Notre Dame has been playing the Army since 1913 and the best showing West Point ever made over that period was the score tie of 1922.

Two eastern elevens will invade the coast late this season. Syracuse will play Southern California and Pennsylvanian will meet Andy Smith's great California team.

Jesse Guilford uses one of the narrowest putting blades known to any first ranking player.

Jack Britton lasted longer than the average fighter because he knew how to conserve his energy.

Charley Paddock expects to tour the world shortly engaging in competitive sprints against various foreign athletes.

On form the Army should have no trouble decisively defeating the Navy this year. West Point showed great strength in tying Yale and losing to Notre Dame only 13 to 7.

The direction of Michigan football is almost entirely in the hands of Assistant Coach George Little, who is certain to be Yost's successor.

Georgia Tech, in the days when it was turning out great teams, was known as the "Golden Tornado." This year it has been little more than a zephyr.

One unexpected reverse often gives some "dark horse" the big chance. Michigan's defeat by Illinois led to the uncovering of Halfback Friedman, who is now going great for Yost.

The NUT CRACKER
BY JOE WILLIAMS

California has revived the fight game, but it's the fighters who need reviving.

Kid Boots is a musical comedy and not the nickname of the Mr. Miller who played third for Washington during the series.

Getting guys to play Willie Hoppe must be something like getting the Big Three teams to play Notre Dame.

Ash, British flyweight, has returned home after being knocked out in one run .....It is suspected his last name is Can.

Red Grange is training to be a public speaker ....At present he is content to say it with touchdowns.

Only three steeple-chase riders were killed last year ....If the boys don't start doing better the promoters will have to abolish the event.

It is said Harry Greb now weighs 178 pounds ....If he keeps on growing he'll soon be able to make the lightweight limit.

It is probably just as well that Coolidge doesnt play golf ..... Dawes cusses too much as it is.

When Walter Camp started the vicious practice of assembling an All-America eleven he bought a commuter's ticket between Cambridge and New Haven with a 10-minute stop-over privilege at Nassau, N.J.

One year a player appeared on Walter's All-America who had not twisted a vertebrae or pulverized a molar for one of the Big Three. This created a bigger sensation than the stage debut of Eva Tangnuay in flesh-colored tights.

Back in 1906, about the time when the plain people in the hills were getting reconciled to modern plumbing someone decided to cross the football with basketball, the result of which was the forward flip.

This piece of pigskin Burbanking did more to put the big and little colleges on an even footing than all the high-salaried halfbacks, non-studying tackles and free-board ends that ever loafed through a winter semester.

WALK GREASY POLE

The black men of Nassau, Bahama, in a greased pole contest. The winner gets four shillings and a smoked ham, and the loser gets a ducking.

After being out of the game for well over a year, George Hoggarth signed up again with the Thistle a few weeks ago. He played many a good game in the half-back line.

Injuries to soccer players during the last two months have been many. Jackson, Thistle, has been out of the game since the Plenty Cup fixture. Tom Wyllie, Quaker Oats, sustained an injury to his spine and is unable to attend to business. Then Bobby Carmichael received the most unfortunate of all in three broken ribs.

The P. and D. regular meeting will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms on Monday evening at 8 p.m. Executive members and representatives please note.

KIWANIS WON FROM BOWLERS

C. G. E. Tool Room Defeat Lockworks and De Laval Wallop C. N. R. Last Night.

SCORES WERE BIG.

Numerous errors on the part of the Bowlers and loose base-running was a big factor in the Kiwanis win last evening when they defeated "Tim" McArthur's lads by 15 to 6. The game was exciting throughout, but it was jammed full of loose baseball. The Kiwanis soon got to Fox for a number of hits, and Gimblett, who relieved him, got the same reception. McLean fanned nine of his opponents, but he was far off color, the seamless ball bothering him considerably, while his teammates fielded loosely. Green, White and Webber did the heavy hitting for the winners, while there wasn't any outstanding player on the Bowlers' line-up.

TOOL ROOM VICTORS.

Tool Room last evening brought the Lock Company team down a notch when they won the opening game by the score of 10 to 6. The game was fairly close throughout, but loose fielding on the part of the winners slowed it up a great deal. Although "Abby" Rose was wild at times, he held the heavy hitters from the Lock factory to 9 scattered hits. Thorndyke, on the firing line for the loosers, was hit rather hard. He also pitched unsteady ball at times, issuing 5 walks that figured in the run column. His team-mates played a snappy game, having but few minor offences against them, especially some dumb base running.

C.N.R. BATTERED.

Fourteen to two was the score of the game between the C.N.R. and the De Laval, the Senarator gang getting the 14 runs. The game was a poor exhibition of softball, and the C.N.R. were always down and out and hopelessly weak on the defence as well as at bat. To make the game slower than ever, the C.N.R. outfit loped around the bases as if they were twenty runs ahead. Although they did not have their regular line-up to start with, they should have made the game more peppy and interesting to watch than they did. De Laval had everything their own way throughout.

Score by innings:

De Laval	0	7	3	1	1	2	1	14	19	2
C. N. R.	0	2	0	0	0	0	0	2	6	7

There's many a feller who goes to the cellar and eyes it with pleasure these days. He knows, in a minute, that certain things in it are only there now in a haze.

A nail on the wall holds a shovel and all that this shovel's expected to do is hang in its place until once more the trace of winter approaches anew.

This shovel has worked and it never has shirked as it gently scooped coal off the floor. It's black in the face, but it hangs in its place, 'cause the coal isn't scooped any more.

And near where some trash is a bin that held ashes is empty, and looks spick and span. There's barely a trace of what filled up the space that's been cleaned through the efforts of man.

The old furnace door does not creak any more and the heating pipes uselessly yawn. And thus winter grief turns to wondrous relief when you know that the coal days are gone.

CLOSE RACE IN FIRST DIVISION

Only Four Points Separate Twelve Teams in English Soccer League.

SATURDAY GAMES.

LONDON, Nov. 14.— (Canadian Press Cable). — With four points only separating the first twelve teams in the first division of the English league, the battle for the title is now assuming an absorbing aspect, and of these dozen clubs it is safe to say that anyone of them might win. All have excellent chances .At the moment Notts County, who have been playing sterling football and who accomplished a feat last week when they defeated Arsenal at Highbury after Cook, the County's centre forward, had been ordered off, lead the table, their position over Birmingham being obtained by a much better goal average Birmingham, Huddersfield Town, Bury, West Bromwich and Sunderland complete the sextet crowning the standings. Huddersfield climbed into third place from eighth by virtue of their mid-week triumph over Liverpool, a jump whicvh indicates how easily at present clubs can slide up and down the ladder as the result of single games.

Saturday Games

On Saturday Notts County are confronted with stiff opposition when they entertain Aston Villa. The latter appear to have now recovered their stability, alhough their draw with Bolton a week ago should have been turned into a victory. However, standing as they do seventh place in the table, they may be expected to do their utmost to advance. A the same time the County having a precarious hold on the title, will do everything to tighten it. At all events an excellent contest is in prospect.

Birmingham, who were able to defeat West Ham away from home last Saturday, should have little trouble with Sheffield United on the Midlander's own grounds. The Yorkshire men have been a tremendous disappointment to their supporters who are speculating whether the club will be able to avoid going the way of the Wednesday. They have won only two games out of fourteen played and are among the three teams that have not yet acquired double figures in the aggregate of points, Burnley and Preston North End are the others.

Huddersfield Town, who rallied somewhat in mid-week, are slated for a tilt with Bolton Wanderers and it is certain that the Town will put forth every ounce of energy to re-establish themselves in the leader ship which was lost to them a few weeks ago back.

Bury at Cardiff

Bury, the last year's second division champions, travel to Wales where they will take on Cardiff City. The creditable three to nothing win of Bury over Sunderland a week ago inspires their fans with the hope that even at Cardiff they might be able to emerge with full points.

Other scheduled games are: Liverpool at Burnley; Arsenal at Everton; Newcastle United at Leeds; Notts Forest at Preston; Manchester City at Sunderland; Blackburn Rovers at Tottenham; and West Ham at West Bromwich.

Scottish Feature

The feature tourney of Scottish football on Saturday will be the battle between Rangers, the league leaders, and Hibernians, who follow them two places down. Just how well matched the teams are may be indicated by their respective standings;—

Goals	F	W	D	L	F	A	Pts
Rangers	14	10	3	1	32	10	23
Hibernians	14	10	1	3	33	16	21

The leaders have become somewhat erratic as revealed by the fact that a week back they could only split the points with Third Lanark.

The odds are in their favor on Saturday, however, for the venue of the game in Ibrox Park.

Adrionians, who succombed to Cowdenbeath a week ago, are down to play Falkirk, a combination that is capable of putting up a very creditable display. Here again the Airdrionians, have the benefit of ground.

Celtic are likely to advance in their encounter with Queen's Park and a victory for them would establish them very seriously in the league race.

Other scheduled games are. Partick at Ayr; Cowdenbeath at Dundee; Third Lanark at Edinburgh, (Hearts); Hamilton at Greenock, (Morton); St. Johnstone at Motherwell; Kilmarneck at Kirkealdy (Raith Rovers); and St. Mirrem at Aberdeen.

California Octogenarian Can Wrap Foot Around His Head.

COST DETROIT PENNANT

So Cobb Says Over Failure of Southpaw Joe Pate, Veteran Texas League Star, to Join Tygers.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 14.— "If you hadn't acted so bull-headed and refused to join my club, Detroit would be playing New York, in place of Washington."

It was Tyrus Raymond Cobb, manager of the Detroit Tygers, addressing Joe Pate, veteran southpaw star of the Fort Worth Panthers, five-time Texas League champions, who recently beat Memphis for the Dixie title.

Pate was brought by Detroit from Fort Worth early in the 1924 season, but Joe refused to join the Cobblers

"My battery business here needs me and I'll stay with the Panthers," Pate told the management of the local club.

Recently, Pate and Clarence Kraft, minor league homerun king and star first baseman of the Fort Worth team, who knocked 55 four-baggers during the 1924 campaign, attended the world series.

And Cobb didn't overlook the opportunity to tell Pate about it.

Joe won 30 games in the season just closed and starred in the Dixie series with two victories and a tie.

JOE PATE.

He has been pitching for Fort Worth for seven years and has not won less than 25 games in any one season.

FIRPO'S STOCK AT LOW LEVEL

Lacing By Charley Weinert Attributed to Lack of Training and Condition.

SLUMPING FAST.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—The pugilistic star Angel Luis Firpo appears to be settling with the sort of meteoric rapidity which marked its rise.

On top of his decisive defeat in September at the hands of Harry Wills, the setback given Firpo Wednesday night at Newark by Charley Weinert has put the famous Argentines fistic stock at the lowest ebb it has been since he made his sensation debut here in 1922.

Critics who saw Weinert, an acknowledged second rater, batter the big South American with ease generally attributed his poor showing to lack of condition. They gave credit to Weinert for the skill with which he completely outboxed and outguessed his giant opponent but were unanimous in declaring that Firpo was not the same fighter whose terrific right blasted a path through heavyweight ranks in 1923 and had the title within his grasp when he knocked Jack Dempsey, the champion out of the ring at the Polo Grounds.

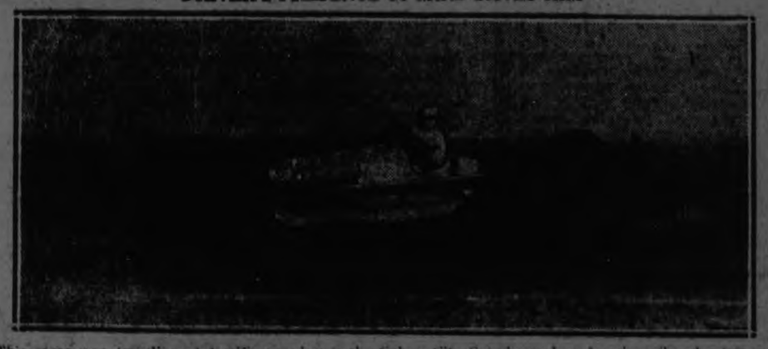
A variety of factors figure in the downfall of the erstwhile Argentine idol, according to observers, but chief among them are his failure to condition himself properly or to put himself in the hands of a competent trainer.

ALOFT.

Thoret, French aviator, remained soaring in the air over nine hours in a glider, drifting around like a sea gull. He had a motor and propeller aboard for emergency, but they were sealed and not used during the gliding.

These little gliders, operated on the principle of a kite, may become "the craze" within a few years. Properly handled, a glider is about as safe as playing football. You'll own a flying machine of some sort before many years.

DRIVER'S PRESENCE OF MIND SAVES HIM



This racer was traveling at terrific speed over the Culver City Speedway, Los Angeles, when his left front wheel came off. The wheel is seen here hurtling through the air. But the driver didn't lose his head. He brought his car to a standstill before it had a chance to turn over.

OTTAWA HOPES TO TIE ARGOS

Victory in Toronto Saturday Would Boost Rugby in the Capital.

ARE WORKING HARD.

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—(By Canadian Press).—Pounding along at top speed there has been no let up in the practice workouts of the Ottawa rugby team all week. The boys are working hard for their game with Argonauts in Toronto Saturday, and a casual observer might infer that they were practicing for the league opening instead of the league closing

A victory for the locals on Saturday would mean much to rugby here. They have taken two games in succession, as direct result of hard work which brought about gradual improvement in their play .Starting the season as the weak link in the Big Four chain, Ottawa is now astounding the critics with a whirlwind finish that may land them in a tie for second place.

Great local enthusiasm has been aroused and a number of supporters are expected to accompany the team to the Queen City to-night. The whole squad has been hard at work and with the exception of Ellis Thomas, they are all battling for positions in the curtain engagement. Thomas is through for the season on account of a bad ankle.

With the return of Doc Pritchard and Honore Chevrier the team will be at full strength, stronger than at any time since the first game here against Argos. The line-up will not likely be changed from that which was used against M.A.A.A., here last Saturday.

DICK KERR'S CAREER A TRAGEDY OF DIAMOND

Baseball Owes Much to Real Hero of 1919 World Series.

In the world series of that year with Cincinnati, the pitching of Kerr was the one bright spot in the play of the Chicago White Sox.

Baseball fans will recall that series as the one that was "fixed."

Kerr won two games in the 1919 event, despite the efforts of some of his teammates to throw them away. His courageous pitching added the flavor of competition to the event. Otherwise it would have been a rout.

The next spring Kerr, believing that his work meriten a substantial raise, asked for it. He didn't get it.

So the pitcher to whom major league baseball ,the American League in particular, owed much, was allowed to drift to the outlaws over the matter of a few paltry dollars.

Kerr has applied for reinstatement and is sure Judge Landis will grant it. He then hopes to hook on with some big league club.

The little southpaw is still the property of the White Sox but is as emphatic as ever against playing with that club.

CHALLENGES DEMPSEY.

Erminio Spalla, European Title Holder, Posts 5,000 Lire Guarantee.

MILAN, November 14 (Canadian Press). — Erminio Spalla, Italian heavyweight, yesterday deposited 5,000 lire with Giacomo Grassi, the vice-president of the International Boxing Union, as a guarantee of the authenticity of his challenge to fight Jack Dempsey for the world's championship.

NEW YORK, November 14 (Canadian Press). — Erminio Spalla, who has challenged Jack Dempsey to a world's title match, holds the European heavyweight championship. He has twice invaded this country, the last trip being made last summer after a stopover in the Argentine, where he was knocked out in fourteen rounds by Luis Firpo.

He challenged Dempsey while in this country, but neither promoters nor Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, displayed any interest in prospects of such a match.

BUMPERS

If his first pair of roller skates slide out from under him, Roy Haller aged 4, of Washington, D.C., won't worry. He is equipped with pillow shock absorbers for emergencies.

GREAU BALL

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 14. — George Burns, outfielder, passed out of the National League Wednesday with a record of never having been banished by an umpire in the twelve years he was a big leaguer—ten years with the Giants and two with the Reds.

In forwarding to Burns his unconditional release, President August Herrmann wrote: "I desire to express my appreciation of your services to the Cincinnati club. They have always been more than satisfactory, and I wish you the greatest success in the future."

It is understood Burns has two or three managerial propositions under consideration, Portland, Oregon, being among the clubs seeking his services.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.
God not only knows how to work out the difficult problem of man's redemption, but will accomplish this in His own time; and only those who wilfully continue in wickedness (not on account of Adam's disobedience) shall be utterly destroyed (die the second death). According to the false teaching of the orthodox creeds, namely mans' probation ending in this age, endless torments, false meaning of judgment day, etc., the outlook is dismal and hopeless. The gospel of the Lord Jesus, instead of being glad tidings of great joy to all people, would be a misnomer. The gospel, notwithstanding all the false teaching is and will be a glorious success. Jesus shall see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied. Every tear shall be wiped away, no mourning, crying and pain any more, and death shall be destroyed. Rev. 21:4.

OBITUARY.

MRS. LEWIS WHITFIELD.
The death occurred at 5.30 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 11, of Alena Ingram Hunter, wife of Lewis Whitfield, at her home in North Monaghan. The late Mrs. Whitfield was born 54 years ago in the Township of Cavan, but has lived the greater part of her life in North Monaghan, where by her kindly disposition, wide sympathies and hospitality, endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact.

She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her sorrowing husband, two daughters, Vera and Hazel, and one son, Stanley, at home, two sisters, Mrs. Robt. Dodd of Prescott, Mich., and Mrs. C. W. Byers of Moose Jaw, Sask.; four brothers: Thos., Albert and George Hunter of North Monaghan, and Joseph of Portland, Oregon; one brother, Robert Ingram, of Marlette, Mich., predeceased her almost a year ago.

The funeral was held on Thursday afternoon, interment taking place at the Little Lake Cemetery. The service at the home was conducted by the Rev. M. A. McKinnon, of Knox Church, of which Mrs. Whitfield has long been a member, assisted by the Rev. G. I. Craw, of Springville.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Wm. Fisher, Joseph Ingram, Joseph Bell, David Johnston, Bruce Johnston, David Wood.

The many floral tributes testified to the high esteem in which the late Mrs. Whitfield was held by a very wide circle of friends.

MRS. SAMUEL SMITHSON.
The death occurred at Bailieboro on Thursday, November 13th, of Mrs. Samuel Smithson, widow of the late Samuel Smithson, aged 82 years.

She is survived by a family of three sons, Wilfrid of 266 Sherbrooke street, and George F. of 107 Rubidge street, Peterborough, and Albert of Port Colborne, and two daughters, Mrs. John Creba, of Kerrobert, Sask., and Mrs. William Lunney, of Bailieboro.

The funeral will be held on Saturday at 1.30 p.m., from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. William Lunney.

Rev. Canon Allan, of Christs church, Bailieboro, will officiate.

FUNERAL ON TUESDAY.
The funeral took place on Tuesday of Madeline Victoria Lomax, nine months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Lomax, 405 London street. The little girl died on Sunday last. Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, of St. John's Anglican church, officiated, and interment was made in Little Lake cemetery.

"FENCES" SOLD LOOT OF THIEVES WITH THE PERMISSION OF POLICE

Mr. Justice Coderre, Presiding at Montreal Police Investigation, Convinced of Collusion Between Second-hand Dealers and Thieves For Sale of Stolen Property.

SOME REPURCHASED BY OWNERS.

MONTREAL, November 15.—That the police knew the partners of thieves and permitted them to exist was the denunciation of Mr. Justice Coderre, investigating commissioner, who is enquiring into Montreal police affairs, yesterday afternoon following evidence which showed that second hand dealers had received stolen property, when there was good reason to believe that such had been stolen, and had sold it back to its original owners, some of whom in repurchasing it, were acting under the advice of the police.

His Lordship listened to many revelations centreing on the business affairs of two second hand dealers named Mendelson, and called the attention of the chief of police to these men in emphatic terms, declaring that he was absolutely convinced they were in collusion with thieves

$3000 Jewel Robbery.

Mrs. Albert Drouin testified yesterday that she had been robbed of jewelry to the value of $3000. On reporting the theft she was asked by Detective Gauthier, she said, to go to the store of Simon Mendelson to identify some jewelry there. She found only a small part of her own property and Mendelson told her she could have it for $35, and on the advice of Detective Gauthier she consented to re-purchase it. She gave Mendelson a post-dated check.

In the course of conversation Mendelson advised her to buy a new lock for her apartment, which she did, discovering later that this was one of a number that had been stolen from a hardware store.

Following her check to Mendelson, she saw Inspector Egan, who advised her to stop the check, and she left her re-bought jewelry with him.

She notified Mendelson of what she had done, and the latter phoned her that the individual who had sold him the jewels had been in the store and that he (Mendelson) could have located the rest of her property.

Constable Rebuked.

Constable Jolin, one of Montreal's "speed cops," told at the police inquiry yesterday morning how he had stopped Ald. Desraches and reproved him politely for exceeding the speed limit, and had been rebuked by the Alderman in terms which he did not consider polite. The Alderman had called him "good for nothing" and told him he was not fit for the service, and that there were too many men like him around. A little later he had been removed to a different station.

Captain Sauve told the court how, after he had taken a great many actions against a certain club in the city in 1922, for running a dance hall without a license, most of them entirely unsuccessful actions, a license had been issued without any report having been asked from him.

Captain Sauve declared that Ald. Sansregret told him he was interested in the club.

Chief Belanger testified that he knew very little about the dancing club in question. He remarked that it was only a case of a license for dancing being transferred.

A son of former Chief Campeau, gave evidence that he had obliged certain officers by placing bets for them, but the bets were inconsiderable, and as a matter of fact, the place where the bets had been made had been raided.

Captain Sauve said he had seen some quite good and important people there. He had once met Judge Murphy, a western woman judge, there. No effort had ever been made to hamper him in the various actions he had taken against that club in the courts.

SAW NIGHT LIFE.

EDMONTON, Nov. 15. — "Yes, surely, Captain Sauve saw me in the Plaza Club. He took me there himself," said Magistrate Emily Murphy, of Edmonton, yesterday, commenting on the mention of her name in the Montreal police probe despatch. "I think I saw every night club in Montreal, and my visits were in practically every instance made under the direction of Captain Sauve. This officer is the head of the narcotic squad in Montreal, and when I was in the city some two years ago and wished to learn something of the night life there, Chief Belanger detailed Captain Sauve to show me around. Captain Sauve impressed me as a very fine officer, upright and sincere in his work. He seemed to have thorough knowledge of conditions in Montreal, especially in regard to what may be called its night life.

"I was only there as a visitor, and it was not for me to make any comments at that time. The only suggestion I made to the Police Chief was that the children should be removed from the night clubs and a few days later I saw by the papers that this had been done.

"Yes, the Plaza Club wasn't the only night club Captain Sauve saw me in. The Venetian Gardens was another, and there were many others of descriptions and kinds."

GREAT RECEPTION TO GEN. BRAMWELL BOOTH

Golden Jubilee As Salvation Army Officer Celebrated.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press Cable.) —A great reception was tendered to General Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation Army, by a large gathering of Salvation Army workers, last evening in Albert Hall. The occasion was the celebration of the general's golden jubilee as an officer of the organization. General Booth, in reminiscent mood, referred to the days when the army was not only little known but disliked and when the fondest dreams of its founder could not have embraced the hope that the flag of the Salvation Army would fly in upwards of seventy countries as it does today.

Bramwell Booth was born in 1856 and was educated privately. He commenced his public work in 1874 and was chief of staff of the Salvation army from 1880 to 1912 when he succeeded his father, the late General William Booth, as head of the organization.

HEAVY SINGERS BANNED TO PIT

While Songless Beauties Would Act in Ethel Leginska's Opera.

NOVELTY AT LEAST.

BERLIN, Nov. 15. — (Canadian Press). — The Tetrazzini, Destinns and Leo Slezaks will have to sit modestly in the orchestra pit, singing their parts as though they were solo flutes or bassoons, while the Pickfords, Talmages and Valentinos will act on the stage, when the new opera by Ethel Leginska, New York pianist composer, and orchestra conducted, is produced.

Miss Lekinska, who within the past two months has surprised prejudiced critics by conducting world-famed orchestras in Munich, London, Paris and Berlin, in a manner acknowledged to be superior to many males, insists that the fact that a prima donna is gifted with an unusual voice does not necessarily make her a good actress.

"Why should a big fat man be exhibited on the stage, throwing out his hands dramatically in the stilted fashion of bygone times, just because he sings well? I want good actors on the stage for my opera and good singers in the pit to make a perfect ensemble with the orchestra."

Miss Leginska's opera has for its libretto Thackeray's story, "The Rose and the Ring."

OPIUM SMOKING DENS ARE STILL OPEN TO WOMEN

Far East Quotes Ideals of Western Civilization in Ironic Argument.

RIGHTS OF WOMEN.

International Opium Conference Decides to Omit Women From Excluded List.

GENEVA Nov. 15—Whether women should be permitted to enter public dens in the Far East formed the subject of a lengthy debate at Friday's session of the international opium conference and before the question was settled various speakers brought in the French revolution, the league of nations covenant, women's rights and the leadership of France and Britain as exponents of perfected civilization. Eventually the conference decided to omit the word "women" from the list of persons who should be excluded from opium smoking dens.

Incidentally M. Van Wettum, of Holland, president of the conference ruled that it was undesirable in an agreement being framed by the conference to refer to opium smoking houses as "dens' because he thought the word den implied something inquitous. He requested that places authorized in the convention be known as "public smokers" as a more proper term for such establishments which are under government control.

Racial Discrimination

The French draft of the convention originally provided that entry to public opium smoking houses should be prohibited to Europeans, women and minors. China succeeded in having the wrod Europeans deleted by contending that reference to Europeans involved racial discrimination against Asiatics because it implied that Europeans should not mix with Asiatics. Alfred Sze, Chinese minister to the United States, thought that each country could exclude Europeans but that it would be best not to put the exclusion in cold type.

Japan led the campaign to remove the reference to women basing its stand on the idea that the prohibition of women involved sex discrimination. Supported by the Chinese delegation, M. Sugimura, chief of the Japanese delegates declared that when the French revolution proclaimed the rights of man it subsequently proclaimed the rights and equality of women.

Moreover he said, the covenant of the league itself insisted on equality of treatment for men and women and that while he did not want women to enter opium dens, it seemed to Japan most unfair in principle to exclude them.

The European delegates seemed non-plussed, and M. Sugimura appealed to the Chivalry of France and Britain to stand for womens' rights.

Question of Propriety

Replying to Japan, M. Clinchant of France, declared he merely wanted to remark as a Frenchman that there was no historic relation between the French revolution and opium smoking. The question of excluding women was simply one of public decency and propriety and whatever the conference decided France would continue to bar all women from smoking houses in Indo-China. Britain made similar announcement for the British colonies.

The Chinese who contended that Chinese residents in Far Eastern colonies outside China can obtain opium too easily, argued for complete suppression of opium dens because they breed crime and make new opium addicts. Authorization of opium dens, however, remains in the convention.

Supervision of Sales

Another main topic of debate of this convention to curtail opium smoking was whether the sale of opium should be entirely in the hands of government employees. Britain favored this system insisting that all opium agents should be prohibited from accepting commissions on sales and be paid fixed salaries.

France objected to the appointment of state employees because their official status would make it more difficult to discharge them when the government found them negligent or culpable, but agreed to a system of strict governmental supervision of all opium agents.

OPPOSITION TO LEADERSHIP OF LLOYD GEORGE

Captain Benn Declares He Will Not Recognize Him As Party Head.

WANT OF TRUST.

No Other Prominent Liberal Has Approved Incipient Revolt—Survey Defeat.

LONDON, Nov. 15. — (Canadian Press).—An incipient revolt against former Premier Lloyd George holding joint leadership of the Liberal party with H. H. Asquith was Friday's development in the plain-speaking which has surrounded that party since its poor showing in the recent elections.

Mr. Lloyd George was rejected by the Conservative party in the famous caccus in October, 1922, which put an end to the Coalition Government and brought Stanley Baldwin into leadership of the Conservatives. The Labor party never would have anything to do with Mr. Lloyd George. Now, while Mr. Asquith "is journeying to Egypt to consult the Sphinx on the Liberal riddle," as Austen Chamberlain, the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, facetiously remarked in a speech on Thursday, Captain William Wedgewood Benn, an influential member of the Liberal party, has written a letter to a prominent Liberal organ, declaring he cannot in any way, directly or indirectly, acknowledge Mr. Lloyd George as his leader in the House of Commons.

Captain Benn declares it was not defective party organization that brought about the Liberal disaster.

"The vital fault," he says, "is want of trust. The people have no confidence, and rightly so, in Mr. Lloyd George."

It is pointed out in political circles that of the few Liberals elected to the Commons, most are strong adherents of Mr. Lloyd George, and that, if the movement against the former Premier should grow, it would not be among the Liberal parliamentarians, but among the Liberals outside.

Thus far, no other important Liberal has come out in support of the protest of Captain Benn who was re-elected to Parliament in the elections, but it is known that strong differences exist in what remains of the Liberal party, and that there is some division respecting allegiance to Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Asquith.

REFER BRITISH DISPUTES TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS AS A GUARANTEE TO DOMINIONS

Proposal Of Viscount Grey Designed To Avoid Recurrence of Friction in Imperial Relations Like That Of 1922.

LONDON, November 15. Canadian Press. — Viscount Grey of Fallodon, in a speech here on Friday, which was widely broadcasted, suggested the employment of the league of nations as a safety valve in connection with imperial relations in foreign affairs.

Viscount Grey made the suggestion when dealing with the problem of developing the independence of the self-governing dominions, yet maintaining the unity of the whole. He emphasized the need for frequent consultations between the Dominion and Imperial premiers, in order to secure a united British front.

In order to guard against embarrassment and perplexity on the part of the Dominions on any occasion of an unforseen crisis, like that in connection with the Near East in 1922, when an intimation was given Dominions that if Great Britain had to go to war she would like assurances of help from the Dominions, Great Britain might promise the Dominions to refer any dispute with a foreign power to the international court of justice of the league of nations, or other arbitration, as a guarantee that the Dominions would not be called upon suddenly to take a hand in a dispute the merits of which they had not had time to consider.

Lord Grey expressed the opinion that the Dominions then would know where they stood and would agree to regard any power that refused arbitration in case of a dispute, as the aggressor, and would give support in upholding the principle of arbitration, which was endorsed at the Imperial Conference in 1923.

TOBACCO 'CURSE' NEXT EVIL FOR DRYS' ASSAULTS

The "Weed" To Be Tackled After Liquor Has Been Mopped Up.

SPENCE'S PROBLEM.

Asks Whether Canada Is Nation or Series of Provinces —Quebec Convention.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—"Whether Canada is a nation or merely a series of provinces 'is the problem that perplexed the Rev. Ben. H. Spence, Canadian secretary of the world's league against alcoholism at Friday afternoon's session of the Quebec prohibition federation.

If Canada is really a nation Mr. Spence believes that the slogan of the temperance worker should be "On to Ottawa, On to Ottawa—a nation of prohibition law".

Mr. Spence was not willing to believe that the autonomy of the provinces should govern in this matter and he further believed that it would not be necessary to read the province of Quebec out of confederation on account of a nation wide prohibition campaign. The convention closed yesterday and the workers were happy at the thought that it was the biggest and most successful convention of its kind yet held."

Officers for the year were elected as follows: President, Rev. J. G. Potter; Vice-Presidents, H. S. Ross, K. C., and W. A. Kneeland; Treasurer, W. S. Jones; secretary Rev. E. I. Hart, the honorary officers as: President, Dr. J. R. Dougall; vice-presidents, E. I. Rexford; A. O. Dawson, Dr. F. W. Hamilton, Mrs. David Scott and Mr. J. Oliver.

Col. The Rev. Dr. S. L. Brengle a Salvation Army worker of New York declared that people such as the temperance workers will clear the world of all its evils. When the liquor traffic is got rid of the tobacco curse will be tackled and obliterated.

Rev. Mr. Spence said:— "We want a nation wide prohibition law. It does not matter about on Quebec's toes—Quebec is capable of looking after itself and we will not read it out of confederation on account of prohibition".

He regretted the border situation with so many bootleggers and smugglers in the traffic, and concluded by declaring that all the provinces should combine and march on to Ottawa for a national campaign.

POLICE POSTED ALONG THE SPANISH BORDER

Vigilance By French Against Smuggling of Arms.

PERPIGNAN, France, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press).—French Customs and gendarmerie posts along the Spanish border have been strengthened and the Spanish police are exercising the utmost vigilance in view of unconfirmed reports that groups have been gathering in the Pyrenean regions and that a number of automobiles have been seen going back and forth with passengers, arms and ammunition.

ANDERSON ARREST STIRS VANCOUVER

Went To San Francisco As Solicitor For Vancouver Exporters.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press).—No small sensation has been created in local legal circles by the arrest of F. R. Anderson, a leading attorney of this city, in San Francisco, where he had gone as a solicitor in the interests of his clients.

The Vancouver Bar Association is watching the proceedings closely and stands ready to offer assistance in case Mr. Anderson should require it.

Protest, in fact, has already been made to Ottawa, and it has been learned here that the Minister of Justice is making a full investigation of the circumstances. What adds to the complications of a case that threatens to become an international "cause celebre" is the fact that Mr. Anderson's first connection with the Consolidated Exporters was at the instance of the British Columbia Government, which insisted on the export houses forming a single concern in order better to control the situation.

The connection was merely that of legal advisor and such it has remained.

ROYAL TO-NIGHT TWO SHOWS

VETERANS DOCKED FOR ARMISTICE DAY PAUSE

Six Hundred Express Resentment at Manchester City's Action.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Much feeling was evinced by six hundred ex-service men employed in the gas main department of the Manchester corporation when they opened their pay envelopes Friday to find they had been docked two shillings and three pence for two hours compulsory stoppage of work on Armistice Day, Nov. 11.

AUSTRALIAN WANTS RECIPROCAL TRADE

Canadians Must Buy More Australian Produce Sydney Merchant Says.

VICTORIA, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press).—The Canadian public will have to buy Australian produce more than at present, if the reciprocity trade agreement is to be a success, stated Sir Mark Sheldon, well-known Sydney merchant, and formerly Australian Commissioner to the United States, who passed through here on the liner Niagara Friday morning for Vancouver, en route to England.

"You must," he declared, "show Australian firms that you mean business, so that the serious adverse balance of trade between Canada and the Commonwealth may be adjusted. Canadian exporters can not expect Australians to favor reciprocity while the balance is overwhelmingly in favor of the Dominion against Australia. There is also the fact that the future of this principle, now very limited in its scope, is capable of indefinite expansion if the department of trade between the two countries is conducted vigorously."

JUST BANQUET JOKE.

Fake Telegram Started Rumor That Reached Premier Baldwin.

OTTAWA, Nov. 15. — (Canadian Press).—Premier King received yesterday a cable from Premier Baldwin of Great Britain, denying the press reports carried in Canadian papers to the effect that he had sent personal congratulations to Grote Stirling, M.P., who successfully contested the constituency of Yale, B.C., for the Conservative party at the recent by-election.

"No truth whatsoever in press report," reads the cable from Premier Baldwin. "Would be grateful if you would give emphatic denial on my behalf." The table is signed "Stanley Baldwin."

SIX REPORTED DEAD IN FLORIDA WRECK

Ground Undulated Like Sea —House of Dutch Officials Razed.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Six persons were reported killed and 29 injured early last night when a Florida East Coast train was wrecked at Wabasso, near Vero, Fla., according to telephone information received by the Miami Herald.

The wreck, according to the report, was caused by the derailment of passenger train No. 29, southbound.

Physicians and nurses were called from Sebastian and Vero to care for the injured. There were said to have been 25 persons in one coach that was wrecked. The injured are being taken to hospitals at Fort Pierce. Coroner Sumner at Fort Pierce went to Wabasso to hold an inquest, it was reported. The accident occurred at 6.10 o'clock.

FARMER AND TWO HIRED MEN KILLED BY TRAIN

Driving Car and Didn't Notice Train—Boy Escaped.

TILBURY, Ont., Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press)—George Morris, sr., of Tilbury East township and his two hired men, Allie McCausland and James O'Boyle, were instantly killed by a Michigan Central Railway flyer the Wolverine while crossing the track in the Morris automobile, a half mile west of Fletcher, about six thirty last night.

Robert the 11-year-old son of Mr. Morris was in the car with the three men and he escaped with slight injuries. Robert declared no one noticed the train until it was on them.

GIRL MISSING.

Last Seen With Stranger In Coupe at Tilbury.

CHATHAM, Ont., Nov. 15. — (Canadian Press).—Margaret Phalcox, a sixteen-year-old Port Alma girl is reported missing. According to the information in the hands of the county police the girl left home about a week ago to take care of an aged woman in Wheatley and on Monday night left that town to attend a dance in Tilbury. It is thought she went to Tilbury in a coupe carrying a Michigan license driven by a stranger. The couple were seen in Tilbury during the evening but no trace of them can be found since that time.

POWER.

Scientists says one pound of matter or material, has 600,000 million horsepower locked up in its atoms.

He doubts if man will ever learn how to unlock that power. Unlocking it would be easier than handling it once it were released. Man's not ready yet for the discovery. Giving him control of atomic power would be like handing a loaded shotgun to a strong, inquisitive baby. The first and prompt result of harnessing of atomic power would be another World War.

THE GUMPS—BLAMELESS ANDY

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

CAMPBELLFORD, November 15. —The first six boys coming in at the Marathon races on the morning of Thanksgiving day were given their prizes on Friday night, at the Regent Theatre. Mayor A. J. Meyers called the boys to the platform and spoke a few words of congratulation to them and presented the different prizes. These prizes are given from contributions in money donated by the citizens of Campbellford, principally the business men.

The citizens' cup was won in 1920 by James Dickson, Ranney street; in 1921, by Roy Loucks, and for the last three years by Leo Bush, who retains the cup.

The other boys to receive prizes were: Thornton Ibey, John Poulton, Percy Bland, Berthold McPherson and James Heptonstall. Leo Bush also received a prize.

The Campbellford Cloth Company have placed large signs, one on the north side, and the other on the south side, painted on the high water tank. The letters are very large and painted in white and can be seen plainly all over the town. Even at night the signs show up clear.

Mrs. Herbert Beattie, Sebastopol street, had a pretty reception on Friday afternoon. Mrs. James Beattie of Toronto, and Mrs. H. O. Richardson, Queen Street, received with her.

The reception room and dining rooms were nicely decorated with pink candles and shades. Miss Enid Richardson attended the doors. Mrs. A. L. Malcolm invited the ladies to the dining room, where Mrs. G. A. Payne and Mrs. E. F. Richardson poured tea and Misses Helen Wood and Lily Weston served the dainty lunch prepared by the hostess. A great many ladies availed themselves of the pleasure of attending this reception.

November Meeting.

The November meeting of the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Church met on Thursday afternoon in the ladies' parlor. Miss Buchanan, president, was in the chair. After the business part of the meeting a short programme was given: A splendid reading, "The Value of the Church to the Community," and a solo, "Consolation," by Mrs. R. W. Scott.

The next meeting will be held on the second Thursday in December. This will be the annual meeting when the election of officers will take place.

Mrs. Bert Stephens, Rear Street, and Mrs. Cecil McCullogh, of Seymour, held a supper on Thursday night at seven o'clock for the Mission Circle of St. Andrew's Church. About thirty were present, and a nice sum of money raised. Each member of the Circle is expected to raise a special offering in some special way, and this is the way these two members took of raising theirs.

The supper was given at the home of Mrs. Stephens, and all enjoyed the splendid supper and social evening.

Seymour West Institute.

The November meeting of the Seymour West Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Macoun on Thursday afternoon, 13th November, 1924, at half-past two, fifteen ladies being present.

Mrs. Robert McCullogh, the first vice-president, was in the chair.

The Institute ode was sung and the Lord's Prayer repeated.

After the minutes were read by the secretary and signed, the names on the membership roll was called.

There was considerable discussion as to the way prizes be given to the schools.

On the motion of Mrs. Marown and Mrs. Thomas Dunham, and carried, a committe composed of Mrs. Robert McCullogh, first vice-president, and Miss May McArthur, secretary, be appointed to look over the prize-list and decide which schools would get the prizes, and that the prize money be given to the teachers by the secretary.

The secretary read a letter from the Department of Agriculture about holding demonstration courses on canning fruits, vegetables and meats.

The Institute decided that as it was so late in the season they would not do anything. A barrel of fruit has been packed, to be sent to the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto, as soon as possible.

The secretary received a parcel of Christmas seals from the Muskoka Hospital, asking the Women's Institute to sell them and the money to be donated to the Hospital. The Institute decided to send them back, as the school children are selling them.

A reading entitled, "A Might Have Been Expected," was given by Miss Jessie Brown.

A lunch was then served by the girls of the Institute, and a social hour spent.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Mr. A. Winters and his daughter, Miss Minnie, Wellington street, entertained Mr. and Mrs. George Lucy and the Sunday school choir at their home on Friday night. A most enjoyable evening was spent with singing and games and at the evening's close refreshments were served. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Miss Winters for their hospitality.

Mr. D. A. Mitchell, Grand Road, has rented part of the house in which he lives to Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Innes, who moved in on Wednesday.

Mrs. Walter Scott and little daughter, of Orillia, who has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bateson, Victoria street, returned to their home on Saturday.

Mr. Harry Atkinson, River Road, who has been away deer hunting, returned on Friday night. He was successful in getting a deer..

Mr. Roy Bell, Balaclava street, left on Friday morning to visit his mother at Frankford, who is very ill. Not much hope is entertained for her recovery. She has been very ill for some time.

Mrs. J. C. Anderson, Queen street, had her tonsils removed the first of the week and is slowly regaining her usual health.

Mrs. James E. Johnston, Queen street, is visiting in Peterborough this week, with her son, Mr. Thos. Johnston.

Miss Henry Baker, River Road, leaves for Peterborough on Saturday night, to visit her husband, who is in the hospital with a very sore eye. She received word on Thursday that it is not getting any better, and it is feared he may lose the one eye. She will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Gash while in Peterborough.

FAVOURS LEAGUE.

Viscount Grey Suggests Use of League as Safety Valve.

LONDON, Nov. 15. — (Canadian Press).—Viscount Grey, of Fallodon in a speech here yesterday, which was widely broadcast, suggested the employment of the League of Nations as a safety valve in connection with Imperial relations in foreign affairs.

Viscount Grey made a suggestion when dealing with the problem of developing independence of the self-governing Dominions, yet mantaining the unity of the whole. He emphasized the need for frequent consultations between the Dominion and Imperial Premiers in order to secure a united British front.

SHIMMYING BANNED.

New Britain High School Issues New Set Rules.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., November 15. — Shimmying and dancing on a dime is banned in dances at the New Britain high school by a written code issued by the faculty of the school. It requires that—

1—The young woman is not to have her arm around her partner's neck.

2—The young man's arm must be above his partner's waist.

Three—The posture involving the concave appearance of the young woman's back is to be averted.

4—The practice known as "shimmying" is forbidden.

5—Dancing that is confined to a small portion of the floor is forbidden.

6—The practice known as "cutting in" is forbidden.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Impressive Service Held at the Soldiers' Memorial —Personals.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 15.—An impressive service was held at the Soldiers' Memorial on the morning of Armistice Day, Rev. J. Wilks being chairman. About fifty of the citizens gathered for the occasion and the pupils from the school paraded to the monument where the adresses were given.

Rev. F. H. Howard led in prayer, and Rev. G. S. Gervan read the Scripture lesson. Rev. Canon Allen was the principal speaker eulogizing in his remarks the memory and sacrifice of the men who died on Flander's Fields that liberty and democacy might be preserved.

A wreath was placed at the base of the Memorial before the gathering dispersed, the evergreen being typical of the obligation resting upon those at home to keep perpetually in remembrance those who have gone, and what they fought and died for.

The Memorial to the "Soldiers of Millbrook and Cavan who fell in the Great War, laying down their lives for World Freedom", was unveiled on Thursday June 23rd 1921, by Brigadier General W. B. King, D.M.C., D.S.O. General Officer Commanding Military District No. 3. The names inscribed are:

Millbrook: T. W. Allen, H. E. Bennewith, W. L. Carveth R. J. Cochrane, J. C. Campbell R. J. Huffman R. J. Hogan T. G. McCorry, J. R. McBride, W. H. Orr, J. P. Sloan.

Cavan: C. Bennett, A. Ball, T. Dee N. B. Elliott, N. M. Fair, B. Fisher W. Grist, E. Guest, A. Hawkins, E. R. Hodges, A. Hann, J. Hardy, G. Jendin, A. Jardine, D. James, G. F. McKnight, F. A. Newton, J. A. Sisson, A. E. Shaw T. Whalley.

Rev. Cannon and Mrs. Allen motored to Toronto, on Thursday, expecting to return Saturday evening. Mrs. L. H. Winslow accompanied her parents and will visit her daughter, Miss Audrey, who is attending Bishop Strachan School.

Mr. I. E. Needham was a visitor to Peterborough on Thursday.

Judge L. F. and Mrs. Clarry expect to leave for their home in Calgary on Saturday. Their stay in the East has been extended owing to the recent death of their only son, the late Trevor Clarry.

Grace Presbyterian Church, Millbrook, will observe its 91st anniversary on Sunday, November 23rd, Rev W. A. Beemer, of Cobourg, being the preacher of the day. An outline of the church history will be given and the list of former ministers read. Special music is being prepared for the occasion. The annual thankoffering will be taken up.

D. H. Ellis has returned from his annual deer hunt in the Nipissing District with two fine deer as trophies of the chase. A large timber wolf shot by the doctor's brother, W. Ellis of Toronto, which the doctor also brought home, has attracted much attention among local sportsmen. It was shot while chasing one of the hounds—a difficult feat and one taxing skill of the marksman to the utmost.

Mrs. G. Locke Mr. and Mrs. J. Mc Knight were visitors in Peterborough on Thursday.

The School Cadets will attend divine worship at the Methodist church on Sunday, November 16th., at 7 p.m. Rev. F. H. Howard will preach. The afternoon service is at the Zion appointment at 2.30 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham motored to Peterborough, on Thursday Mrs. F. W. Burnham accompanied them.

Poppies were sold in the village on Armistice Day, under the auspices of the local branch of the Great War Veterans' Association. The sum of $12.00 was realized which will be remitted to the Christie tSreet Hospital, Toronto. The thanks of the G.W.V.A. are extended to those who assisted in the sale of the flowers and to the general public for their support of a worthy cause.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JAMES DUNLEY.

HASTINGS, November 15. — The death occurred in Percy, on Friday, of Bridget Burns, widow of the late James Dunley, in her 64th year.

The deceased had been in excellent health up to Wednesday, when she suffered a paralytic stroke.

Six children are left to mourn her loss: three sons, John of Detroit; William of Hastings; and Daniel at home; and three daughters: Elizabeth and Mary at home, and Mrs. James Perrault, of Hastings.

The funeral will take place on Monday. Requiem mass will be solemnized at the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel. Interment in the Roman Catholic cemetery.

BONES IN CELLAR.

A New Discovery Made in Neighborhood of Windsor.

WALKERVILLE, November 15 (Canadian Press). — The collection of human bones dug up in the cellar of a Walkerville home by Mrs. Alice Cooper, who say that, prompted by a dream, she got up in the middle of the night and conducted her eerie explorations until dawn with nothing but a small fire shovel, was turned over to the Walkerville police yesterday for investigation.

A preliminary examination of the bones by a reputable physician has revealed human knee, hip, spine, arm and finger bones.

The police will try to determine why they should have been buried in the particular cellar where they were found, and who put them there.

MURDER TRIAL OPENS.

Mrs. Rosalie Evans' Murder Recalled in Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, November 15 (Canadian Press). — The trial of Francisco Ruiz and Alejo Garcia, charged with the murder of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, the widow of a British subject, last August, in the vicinity of her home in Hacienda, in the State of Puebla, began in Puebla before Judge Gamboa.

Francisco Perez, who is charged jointly with Ruiz and Garcia, is still at large.

This murder has been the subject of protest by the British and United States Governments.

TO RETURN LIQUOR.

Liquor Seizure Disposed of by Whitby Magistrate.

WHITBY, November 15 (Canadian Press). — Magistrate J. E. Willis, in a decision handed down in the Police Court, ordered the return by the Ontario Government of 621 cases of ale valued at $3,370, seized by License Inspector C. A. Mason at Port Whitby on 19th of September.

The seizure was made on the ground that the same was being sold, kept for sale, or otherwise disposed of in Ontario, in violation of the Ontario Temperance Act.

The Magistrate found there was no evidence to prove that the liquor, which was shipped here from the National Breweries, Montreal, to James McGuinnis, Havana, Cuba, and transferred by him at Port Whitby for Oswego, N.Y., was sold or intended for sale.

The car containing the liquor remained here for about a month, and two shipments were taken therefrom by consent of the local Customs officers, who had sealed and locked the car and shipped by boat to Oswego.

A BOILER EXPLOSION.

Twenty-five Persons Said to be Missing as Result.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, November 15 (Canadian Press). — Twenty-five persons are missing and are considered as having probably been drowned in consequence of a boiler explosion on board a steamer on which they were returning to their homes.

Sixty persons were making the passage, and in addition to those missing twenty-two were severely injured.

TROOP MOVEMENTS ON ITALIAN FRONT

War Veterans Tired of Fascisti Control and Would Welcome Change.

ROME, Nov. 15.—(United Press). —Reports of movements of troops and battleships to the frontier are absolutely without any foundation whatever, said an official statement issued to-day to the United Press by the Italian Foreign Office to-day.

Government officials expressed regret at the dissemination of highly colored and imaginative accounts of Italy's preparations to move a revolt which were circulated Thursday night from foreign sources.

Events in Italy are being closely followed by strong anti-Facisti organizations which are organized on the Riviera and in Paris. "If the King remains in his constitutional role, nobody thinks of a revolution, but the Facisti must bear the responsibility for their untoward acts," Colonel Ricciotti Garibaldi said in an interview. He is a grandson of the famous patriot. He declared that the Italian Association of War Veterans was tired of the Fascisti control, which it originally supported, because "Fascism has now been revealed as being merely a handful of demagogues who are incapable of realizing peace."

Four million veterans stand ready to be called out for action to redeem their country and they will be supported by the nation in its entirety, Garibaldi said.

OFFICIALS ARE ASKED TO QUIT

Hamilton in the Market for New Flock of City Officials.

HAMILTON, Nov. 15.—Resignations of the heads and three deputies of the city treasurer's, city auditor's and tax collector's departments were called for by the board of control at a meeting this morning. The resignations are to be effective when accepted.

The resolution adopting this course, in compliance with the suggestion at the special meeting of the council last evening, came from Controller Tope with Controller Treleaven as seconder. Controller Davis voted in favor, and the one dissenting voice was that of Controller Morrison, who persisted in his claim that resignations of all employees in the three departments should be asked. Mayor Putten did not vote on the the motion.

Officials involved

The six officials involved are: W. H. Davis, city treasurer and Eric C. Bower his assistant; W. A. Kerr, tax collector and R. B. Griffith collector of arrears; E. A. Dempster city auditor, and J. A. MacDonald chief clerk of his department.

Plans were also made for the appointment of new officials to fill the six positions. Advertisements calling for applicants will be inserted in the two local dailies and in the Toronto morning papers.

When the meeting opened, members of the board protested against the suggestion made last evening that a joint committee of the board and council consider appointments. "We can't pass our duties on to the city council" said Controller Treleaven.

"I don't feel that it is right for us to broadcast information as to who apply here for jobs," Controller Morrison added. "In most cases the applications are confidential and if we spread the information among the council it is almost sure to be passed on. We should pick out five or six men from among the applicants and submit their names and qualifications to C. S. Scott & Co. and let the firm send in its report for the council. This method would be the proper one for choice of a city auditor, but I don't think C. S. Scott & Co. is in any better position to choose a treasurer and tax collector than we are."

The mayor turned the discussion to the matter of resignations. In his opinion it would be better to arrange that the present officials carry on until their offices are filled. Controller Morrison objected, declaring that if he were placed in a similar position to the officials, he would reply that he would quit his post as soon as he liked. He moved that the resignations of all employees of the department be called resignations to be subject to acceptance, but the motion was not seconded.

All or the Six

Controller Treleaven opposed this view, on the grounds that many valuable employees would leave their positions if forced to tender resignations. It would mean that the whole of the staffs would be besmirched, added Controller Davis.

"We are not getting any further with this," interposed Controller Tope.

FIRST EXECUTION CANTON SINCE '61

Murderer of Young Girl Was Yesterday Beheaded With Guillotine.

ALTDORF, Switzerland, Nov. 15. — (United Press). — After several weeks of search for a volunteer executioner for the murderer of a young girl, the district authorities of the Canton of Uri succeeded in securing the services of a mechanic, who agreed to do the beheading with the help of a gas worker.

This was the first execution in the Canton of Uri since 1861, so the guillotine had to be borrowed from the city of Lucerne, which still had one in stock from the olden times.

The execution caused the authorities sleepless night. First they found a railroad worker, the descendant of an old hangman's family, but the Railroad Union objected to a member of their profession becoming a headsman. They threatened to expel the man from their ranks, and he therefore finally resigned from his new job.

OUT OF POLITICS.

The U.F.O. Will Pay More Attention to Agriculture.

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press).—While the U.F.O. is taking no part in the coming Progressive party convention, J. J. Morrison, secretary, said that farmers' organization was in no way opposed to the formation of a new party. As far as he knew, he said, none of the U.F.O. organizations had been invited to attend the convention.

Mr. Morrison expressed the belief that organized agriculture in Ontario was out of politics for good. Since the movement had decided to withdraw from direct political effort he had not heard a single wish to organize the U.F.O. into a political party.

"O CANADA."

Premier McKenzie King's suggestion that Parliament might commission a committee to decide upon a standard verse of "O Canada" so that the same words might be used whenever the Canadian national song is sung, will be popularly received.

Although there are those who find various faults with "O Canada," the air is being more and more generally adopted throughout Canada, and the critics cannot hope to make a stand against its growing popularity.

Unfortunately, however, there are a dozen versions so far as words are concerned, and the usual result when a gathering attempts to sing "O Canada" is that at least half of these are used, while others play safe by humming until the refrain is reached.

It is magnificent—but it is not singing.

The Premier ran across this kind of thing so often during his trip through the Canadian West that he has returned convinced of the necessity of establishing a standard version.

If "O Canada" is to be the Dominion's national song—vice "The Maple Leaf Forever," superannuated—then by all means let us get a verse and chorus the words of which may become known throughout the country, so that no matter when "O Canada" is sung the singers will be in accord in the words.

The present faltering style of rendering the national air must create a rather poor impression upon visitors.

THE INDIFFERENT CITIZENS.

The old problem of the indifferent citizen is to the fore again, and various Ontario journals have been discussing possible remedies.

Thus in London the electors are to be notified by mail of the date of the election and the location of the polling booths, while the Brantford Expositor says that the only cure for the indifference of many electors is the "disfranchisement for a reasonable period of those who value the franchise so little that they do not take the care to use it."

It is doubtful whether the way out lies in that direction.

In fact, it is a most difficult matter to think of any means of arousing the large percentage of the electorate that usually neglects its duty.

Peterborough has its fair share of such non-voting voters and would be glad to learn that some of her neighbors had hit upon a solution that promised success.

Indifference is manifested in its worst form in municipal affairs; but even in Provincial and Federal elections there is a surprisingly large number of people who do not consider the franchise of sufficient importance to use it.

Such a condition of affairs does not lead to the acme of efficiency in public life, and it is notorious that the people who complain the most about the weakness of their civic or Provincial or Federal Governments are usually those who have not even taken the trouble even to vote.

A SERIOUS SITUATION.

The judgment of a Windsor court turning back to its owners large supplies of liquor consigned to United States points and seized by the Ontario Government is of great importance.

It establishes the fact that the Province is powerless to prevent liquor being stored in her lake ports and kept there awaiting a favourable opportunity to be smuggled into the United States.

Although it is known that such liquor is to be sent across the border, contrary to our neighbor's laws, and it is suspected that some of it finds its way to Ontario consumers, the Attorney-General can do nothing to interfere in the light of the Windsor verdict.

There is no limit apparently to the quantity of liquor stored under these circumstances, and thus Ontario faces the situation that not only is she forced to sit down and watch her ports being utilized for the purpose of carrying on a traffic that violates the laws of the United States, but the Government has reason to believe that under the cloak of this same traffic a Provincial trade of large proportions is being built up.

There is nothing that Queen's Park can do to cope with the situation.

The remedy is in the hands of the Federal Government, and it is at Ottawa that those who realize the seriousness of the present situation and believe that it should not be allowed to continue must look for relief.

MUNICIPAL CANDIDATES.

Peterborough's municipal elections are nearly two months away so that the usual campaign gossip has not begun to circulate as freely as in those many Ontario centres in which the voting will take place early next month.

The customary articles in regard to the necessity of securing the most able candidates and making a selection from the best citizenship have begun to appear.

Most of the newspapers are a bit indefinite as to how this is to be accomplished, but one excellent suggestion is noted by the Examiner and that is that the citizens who realize the importance of having a live, alert, efficient and economical civic government should begin at once to think about the question of candidates and not leave the whole thing until nomination day.

It is pointed out that there is no necessity for having an organization to do this work, that any citizen who gives a little thought to the matter can think of some good man well qualified for municipal election and can make sure that he is nominated.

The St. Catharines Standard, in urging its readers to adopt such a course, hits the nail on the head when it says that "the haphazard last-minute nomination of a group of men just thought of at random generally results in a weak field."

The difficulty, of course, lies not so much in thinking of suitable candidates, but in securing the consent to be nominated.

It is along this line that the Examiner believes that Peterborough citizens, anxious to see their city well governed, should operate, and there is no need of deferring action until the last week or two.

It is not too soon to begin sounding out likely candidates and to endeavour to secure their presence in the field.

The chances are that if the attempt is not made until the eleventh hour the majority of such men would refuse to consider the matter.

WHAT YOU EAT IN A YEAR.

If you have just an average appetite, every year you eat 1,400 pounds of solid food and almost as much liquids.

The "liquids" include the water that forms a natural part of all vegetables and meats. Celery, for instance, is almost entirely water.

In a lifetime you eat enough food to fill a train of freight cars several miles long.

So estimates a scientist. Mother, who carries the heavy market basket, is apt to claim the estimate is too low.

There was a time when people ate what they could get. In primitive days food was largely a matter of chance.

The prowler in the jungle or forest might kill a wild turkey one day and a cave bear the next. He might find berries, again it would be roots or leaves. There was no telling in advance what the day would bring forth in the matter of food.

In time, man learned to domesticate animals and cultivate the soil. The element of chance grew less. Diet became more certain. He could grow the things he liked best.

Then men began to specialize. Food raising was left to a definite part of the population. Families had a wider choice. They could buy what they preferred—and get variety.

Came the age of advertising. Publicity has been applied strenuously to foodstuffs, inducing people to buy certain foods—helping them make up their minds instead of leaving the choice entirely to the eater.

Now we have still another method—propaganda to entice people into using certain specific foods in preference to others.

Thus the raisin growers unite in an advertising campaign to increase their sales by educating people to a knowledge that they need iron, found in raisins. Orange growers do the same, playing up the vitamines that bring health with this delicious fruit. So on.

In the long run, however, these propaganda campaigns tend to counteract and neutralize each other.

For instance, bread eating is a fifth below normal, as a result of food conditions during the war.

We are urged to eat more bread, to help the wheat grower. While, admittedly, it would help the wheat grower and we do need more flour in our diet, if we eat more bread we certainly are going to eat less of something else. What helps one branch of farming by increasing demand also injures other branches by decreasing their sales.

We can eat just so much—1,400 pounds of solids a year and about the same amount of liquids.

FAIR RESTITUTION.

No court sentence in recent times has created so great a sensation as that imposed by Chief Justice Meredith on Peter Smith and Aemillius Jarvis; the stiff terms of imprisonment, coupled with the fine of $600,000, were certainly well calculated to make a strong impression on the public. It is felt by many that a very salutary principle has been introduced by the justice, namely, the necessity for restitution as well as the necessity for paying the legal penalty for crime committed. Too often the delinquent gets off with a jail sentence or an inadequate fine, which, in the case of the seasoned criminal, is not a sufficient deterrent. Even if the punishment awarded is adequate for the offense, the criminal's victim is seldom reimbursed for the damage inflicted. A thief steals property, is caught and committed to prison; if he has spent the stolen money or disposed of the stolen goods, the owner is that much the poorer. But if, in addition to his prison term, the culprit was made responsible in every case for the return of stolen property, or its equivalent, the ends of justice would be better served.

The subject has been brought prominently to the front by Rev. Father Minehan, in a letter to the Toronto Globe. "A jail sentence has come to be regarded as 'paying the penalty,'" he writes. "It does this to a greater or less extent as far as society is concerned. But the question of restitution remains in abeyance. The 'joy-rider' who steals and wrecks a motor car does not in the least indemnify the owner by serving a jail term. This is merely a deterrent, a preventive against future mischief on his part and that of his imitators. It is not reparation for the loss he has inflicted on an innocent individual. If he were held down to remunerative work until the latter received full compensation, then, and then only, would justice be satisfied and in addition a very salutary lesson taught." In the case of wealthy criminals, there should be no difficulty in adopting the policy suggested. It is manifestly right that a rich convict should indemnify his victim to the full as well as work out his punishment. But the matter is not so simple when dealing with indigent prisoners. It would not do to grant the latter immunity on this ground, and so introduce discrimination into the administration of the law.

The question is, by what method could the pauper convict be enabled to make suitable restitution? The small income he is able to earn, under the plan by which prisoners are permitted to work during the period of their jail sentence, now goes to the support of his family. To divert that money to other hands would mean the creation of new social problems. In spite of such difficulties, however, there is no gainsaying the soundness of the principle. To the limit of his ability the culprit should be made to compensate the innocent victim of his misdeeds. It may be difficult to work out an equitable and practicable scheme along these lines, but the attempt ought certainly to be made.—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

And now do we have or have we had our Indian summer?

The truth of the poet's claim that "Hope springs eternal in the human breast," is shown in the fact that Westerners are still talking about the Hudson Bay Railway.

Strange to say, the Examiner did not receive a single letter yesterday asking why the snowploughs had not been out.

As more deer are being shot this year than hunters, the season must be regarded as a success.

A THOUGHT.

AS THE SUCCESSFUL SEE IT.

If you realise that marriage increases responsibilities about to the same extent that it enlarges the possibilities for happiness you will have comprehended a great truth.

The fluctuations of love in matrimony are like the actions of the sea; there are high-tide periods that are as conducive to disaster as there are low-tide periods that produce wrecks.

Neither party to the contract should ever "carry too much sail"; nor should either rock the craft called "Wedded Bliss,' no matter how calm the sea.

Give and take is a good principle to work on if the things exchanged are kindliness, consideration, patience, solicitude, helpfulness, and faithfulness, but this principle works differently if applied to the reverse of these.

Marriage does not literally mean the oneness that permits the domination of one over the other, but it does mean a oneness of desire and determination to live honourably, decently, comfortably, respectfully, and lovingly together.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 14.—The Union Stock Yards had the heaviest run of cattle for the week in the last two months, the receipts being nearly 9,300 head. In addition to this, the holiday curtailed the trading to three days and these two factors accounted for some carry-over at the week-end. Prices were not much influenced, however, and some buyers complained that they did not buy butchers' as cheap as the week before. On Wednesday some bulk of common and poor medium butchers' were forced for sale, and in these instances the cost was probably down 10 to 15 cents a cwt. There was no change in the best butchers', and choice handyweights would have brought $6.50 a cwt. if offered.

Although the top for choice heavy steers in loads this week was only $7.25 a cwt. plus freight, other loads were taken, which was figured would bring the price up to $7.50. The balance of finished steers were bought from $6.50 a cwt. up. On Wednesday one extra good steer cost $8 a cwt. For export feeders prices went from $5.50 to $6.25, and heifers were bought at $5.50 to $6.75. The cows taken for overseas were bought from $4.50 to $5, and bulls from $4 to $5.

Late purchases this week have accumulated about 200 exporters for next week, but an additional 1,000 can be used as 500 choice steers will be wanted for Liverpool and 500 feeders for Glasgow and several loads of bulls for Antwerp. Heavy steers not quite in the export class sold at $6.00 a cwt. and western fat steers over 1,200 lbs. each will go into beef at a cost of ¾ a cwt. Very few handyweight butchers touched $6 a cwt. The major part of the week's handyweights was not above medium quality and these sold at $5 to $5.25. Average light killers were $4 to $4.25 and some of the poorest killers were below $3 a cwt.

The largest business of the season was done in stockers and feeders. Specialists differed as to whether there was any change, but in any event the difference, if any, was not as much as 25 cents a cwt. lower than the previous week. Good loads of breeder 800-lb. stockers sold around $4.50 and 900-lb. feeders at $5.00. The market in milchers and springers was quiet during the week. The most active end of the butchers market is still in cows. Good cows at $4 to $4.50; mediums $3.50 and common cows $3.00 a cwt.

The calf market easily retains its strong undertone. Choice calves are 11 to 12 cents, good calves 10 to 10½, mediums 8 to 9½, and heavy calves 6 to 7 cents a pound. Grassers are firm at 3¾ to 4 cents.

Lamb prices have not varied very much. The top has been about 12 cents for the 85 to 90-lb. finished lamb, and the week end price is 11¾ cents. Heavy lambs running up to 110 lbs. are under discrimination and a dollar or more a cwt. lower. Sheep have held close to the quoted prices.

Plenty of hogs are coming in and the drop of 25 cents a cwt. to $8.75 f.o.b., had to be taken by the shippers. Packers will try to repeat the cut next week, and without competition this will likely be effected.

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, November 15 (Canadian Press). — There continues to be a good demand for supplies for domestic consumption. Reported one car of Ontario storage extras offered at 43 delivered Toronto.

Toronto decidedly firm. Jobbing fresh specials 67, fresh extras 63, storage extras 47 to 48, firsts 43 to 44, seconds 37 to 38.

MONTREAL PRODUCE AND GRAIN.

MONTREAL, November 15 (Canadian Press).—There was a moderate inquiry from foreign buyers for Canadian grain here yesterday, and sales of odd lots of wheat and oats were made for December shipment, but the market on the whole was quiet. There was some demand for Canadian Western oats and sales of odd round lots of No. 2 Canadian Western and No. 1 feed grades were made at c.i.f. prices here, the latter grade being for November shipment from Fort William.

The car lot trade was quiet and prices were unchanged with Ontario No. 3 extra malting barley quoted at $1.08, No. 3 grade at $1.07, Ontario No. 2 white at 60 cents, No. 3 grade at 58 cents, and No. 4 grade at 56 cents per bushel, ex-track.

Prices were well maintained for rolled oats.

A firm feeling prevailed in the local egg situation, although no actual change occurred in prices.

Owing to the falling off in the demand for potatoes and the fairly liberal offerings the tone of the market was easier and prices ruled 5 cents per bag lower with sales of Green Mountains at 80 to 85 cents per bag, and Quebec varieties at 70 to 75 cents per bag of 90 pounds in bulk ex-track.

Owing to the limited demand for butter and the liberal supplies on hand, a weaker feeling developed and prices were dropped 1-2 cent per pound on all grades. No change of any importance occurred in the cheese market.

A fair amount of business continues to be done in new crop beans, and prices were quoted at $2.65 to $2.75 per bushel for one and three pound pickers, delivered to Montreal.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, November 15 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

Demand ... $4.62 5-8
Cables ... $4.63

ONTARIO CHEESE AUCTION.

MONTREAL, November 15 (Canadian Press).—At the United Dairymen Co-operative auction sale of Ontario cheese held here yesterday the offerings amounted to 1,206 boxes of which 536 boxes No. 1 white sold at 17 1-8 cents per pound, and 17 cents per pound was bid for 670 boxes No. 1 coloured, with 17 1-8 cents per pound asked.

VICTORIAVILLE, November 15 (Canadian Press). — At the meeting of the Board 700 boxes of cheese were offered and sold at 16 1-4 cents per pound.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, November 15 (Canadian Press). — With foreign buyers apparently holding off as much as possible and with many speculative holders disposed to sell out and realise profits, wheat underwent a material setback in price yestreday, especially during the last half-hour.

Very unfavourable crop reports from Argentina led to only a temporary upturn.

Closing quotations on wheat were weak 1 7-8 to 3 1-2 cents net lower, December $1.51 3-4 to $1.52 and May $1.58 5-8 to $1.58 7-8.

Corn finished 1 1-8 to 1 5-8 cents off; oats 1 1-8 to 1 1-4 to 1 33-8 cents down; and provisions varying from 37 cents decline to 12 cents gain.

POLES ILLEGALLY ESCAPE SERVICE

WARSAW, Nov. 15.—(Associated Press).—Walter Fuchs, reputed to be a millionaire, his son and 70 others, including Colonel Zaplanynski, have been arrested, charged with having unlawfully liberated young Poles from compulsory military service. It is said that more than 400 were thus enabled to escape service.

Historic Ring Is Now In Versailles Museum

PARIS, Nov. 15. — (United Press).—Houdon Museum, at Versailles, has been enriched by a historical ring, the gift of Georges Clemenceau. It is a simple gold monogram ring and originally belonged to Jules Favre. When Favre and Bismark met on January 28, 1871, to sign an armistice after the Franco-German war, it was necessary that proper seals be attached to the document. They were at Versailles, and the proper French seals were in Paris. Bismark objected to the delay necessary to get the seals, so Favre used this ring to stamp the documents.

Exactly forty-eight years and five months later M. Clemenceau, Prime Minister of France and President of the Peace Conference, wore this ring when he entered the Gallery of Mirrors in Versailles to tell the Germans where to sign. The ring will be preserved with a sacred collection, which includes the pen that signed the treaty for France and the inkstand used on that historical occasion.

The Logging Bee

IN Canada's early days the logging bee organized the co-operative power of our pioneer communities in the generous spirit of mutual helpfulness. There was no other profit looked for.

In the same spirit to-day, Mutual Life Insurance organizes mutual co-operative helpfulness for the protection of the widowed and the fatherless or the aged.

Mutual insurance is not organized for profit. All profits go back to the policyholders. Each contributes to the strength of all, and the strength of all is used for the protection of each.

Our nearest agent will be glad to give you details about our different policies. Write to our head office for our booklet on Mutual Insurance.

Polyglot Waiters Are Necessity In Europe

LONDON, November 15. — Swiss hotel waiters ,called upon to deal each year with an increasing number of English-speaking tourists, will in the future have an opportunity for a thorough training under famous English master of the profession, while English waiters may have a similar training in Switzerland, under an exchange agreement just made public by the Ministry of Labour.

Two hundred Swiss waiters will be sent to certain approved London and English resort hotels with the definite idea of learning the English language and methods, and a similar number of English waiters will be sent to Switzerland.

It is possible that all classes of hotel servants, including cooks and chambermaids, will be included in this year's quota.

CIVILIZATION HAS DEPLETED GYPSIES

To-day There Are Less Than 600,000 Gypsies in the World.

BUDAPEST, November 15. — The gipsies of the world are said to be dying out. This is especially true of the nomadic tribes which have roamed about Europe since the beginning of the fourteenth century. They have not been able to keep pace with modern civilisation.

While definite figures are lacking, it has been estimated that to-day, in all countries, there are less than 600,000 gipsies, while 25 years ago there were more than a million scattered about the earth's surface.

Hungary and Roumania have to-day over half the gipsy population of the world. Of these approximately 100,000 speak only the gipsy language.

There are gipsy settlements in both Hungary and Roumania, as well as other European countries, where the gipsy has settled down, entering trade in the villages, tilling the soil ,or serving as musicians and singers.

But there are still many thousands wandering over the continent and eking out an existence by fortune-telling, giving musical concerts, or making minor repairs for the housewife encountered on the way.

The war is responsible for the decrease in the number of nomadic gipsies in Europe, it is declared.

During the years that the armies fought across one country after another the wandering gipsy was driven from his favourite fields of travel and he has never "come back" in numbers anything like those which existed prior to 1914.

FASHIONS & FOIBLES

BUTTERICK 5595

AT ELEVEN in the morning the elegant Parisienne alights from her motor on the Avenue Bois du Boulogne or at the entrance of the Allés des Acacias in the wood itself and walks briskly for an hour before lunch. If she has no luncheon engagement, she wears a gray tailleur, but if she is going to the Ritz and from there to her dressmaker, she wears one of the new tailored frocks. The redingote line which one arrives at by way of a long-vest front is smart and makes a very correct costume for the fore-and-after éron engagements of a non-social nature.

NEWS TRENT RIVER.

Cleveland Visitor Passed Away in Havelock Hospital.

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 15.—The death took place at Havelock Hospital Wednesday of Mr. Gibson, of Cleveland, after a ten days' illness. Mr. Gibson was en route from Cleveland with a party of friends, including Mr. Hills, who have been guests at "Cedar Isle," at Trent River, for a number of years. They were due here on a fishing expedition, but on the journey Mr. Gibson became suddenly ill with heart trouble, and was rushed on to Havelock, where Dr. Holdcroft had been wired for. Mrs. Gibson was immediately sent for, and all medical aid and good nursing was of no avail. Deceased passed away in the early hours of Wednesday. The remains were taken on the afternoon train to Cleveland for burial.

Dr. Michell left yesterday for the deer hunt.

The fowl supper and entertainment at Havelock was a great success, and the beautiful moonlight night brought an immense crowd. Trent River was well represented. The young ladies' amateur theatrical, consisting of the Misses Ethel Rose, Mabel Inkster, Laura Wight and Elgan Ruttan, were present and repeated their playlet, by request, each one doing their part in good style.

Miss Bessie G. French and Mrs. Jas. Cook went to Campbellford on Thursday to attend Mrs. D. E. Tait's reception.

REMOVE LIQUOR SCOWS.

Sarnia Prohibitionists Draft Resolution to Federal Government.

SARNIA, Nov. 15. —(Canadian Press).—Local temperance workers were preparing yesterday a resolution to be sent to the Dominion Government, seeking the removal of liquor scows from the St. Clair river, this action being based on an appreciation of the fact that the control of the scows lies beyond the provisions of the O.T.A.

R. E. Leseur, secretary of the Plebiscite Committee said that no steps would be spared to try and force export operators out of business. The export agents have been advised by the Federal authorities that they will no longer be permitted to store liquor on the river but may have warehouses ashore with a right of way from the warehouse to the river front. Several scow operators were hunting suitable buildings yesterday.

SWEDISH-AMERICAN TRADE INCREASING

Both Countries Are Making Very Large Profits.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 15.—(Associated Press).—American imports to Sweden have increased from about 10 per cent. of the country's total before the war to 25 per cent. for 1923. The 1923 imports amounted to 213,700,000 crowns.

Among the largest imports from the United States are automobiles, which last year amounted to about 23,000,000 crowns in value, while petrol and tires imported represented twice that sum.

The Swedish exports to the United States have also increased from about 4 per cent. of the total Swedish exports in 1913 to 11 per cent. last year, amounting to 128,000,000 crowns. Paper, the principal item of export to the United States, is now eight times as much as exported in 1913.

NEWS OF COBOURG

John Machlin Succumbed To Blood Poisoning—A Forgery Case.

COBOURG, Nov. 15.—Word has been received here of the death in a Hamilton Hospital of John Machlin, who only two years ago moved from Fenella, Haldimand township to Burlington. Mr. Machlin succumbed to blood poisoning from which he suffered for some weeks, the disease resulting for an injury. He was born at Fenella, where two brothers and other relatives reside, and where the funeral was held. Mr. Macklin leaves a widow and family.

Lord BYng Coming Here.

Cobourg is to be honored on Nov. 25 by a visit from Lord Byng and party. A special meeting of the Town Council was called upon receipt of the letter by Major Boggs and it was decided to hold a public reception in Victoria Opera House. Cobourg citizens are much pleased at the honor shown the town by the expected visit of His Excellency, the Governor-General.

Pleaded Guilty.

In the County Judge's Criminal Court here on Tuesday before Judge Cameron, Claude Visburg of Castleton, pleaded guilty, it is alleged, to a charge of forging the name of J. S. Edwards to a cheque for $55 at the Standard Bank Cobourg.

Percy Bound of Castleton is stated to have pleaded guilty to receiving the sum of $30, the property of J. S. Edwards, knowing the same to have been unlawfuly obtained. Restitution has been made to the bank clerk who suffered the loss, and their counsel, F. F. Hall, K.C., made a strong plea for leniency alleging a first offence. They were remanded on bail for a few days and character evidence will be submited it is stated.

DO SOMETHING.

Do something for somebody, somewhere,
While jogging along life's road;
Help someone to carry his burden,
And lighter will grow your load.
Do something for somebody gladly,
'Twill sweeten your every care;
In sharing the sorrows of others,
Your own are less hard to bear.
Do something for somebody, striving
To help where the way seems long;
And the sorrowful hearts that languish
Cheer up with a little song.
Do something for someboay always,
Whatever may be your creed—
There's nothing on earth can help you
So much as a kindly deed.

DEPRESSION RULES SHIPPING CIRCLES

Great Caspian and Black Sea Regions Have Suffered the Most.

BAKU, Azerbaijan, Nov. 15.—(Associated Press).—Of all the areas in Russia which have suffered economically since the Bolshevik revolution, perhaps none has experienced such profound commercial depression as the Great Caspian and Black Sea regions. Baku, Novorossisk, Batum, Sevastopol and Odessa, which once were among the busiest and most prosperous ports in Europe, are now mere graveyards of derelict and abandoned merchant ships. Soviet Russia is neither exporting nor importing goods in any considerable quantity, and the consequence is that her shipping trade, like most of her other industries, is paralyzed.

In the harbor of Baku at this moment is a great forest of cargo botas, rotting at their moorings for want of use. A tragic touch is imparted to the picture by a number of rusted torpedo boats, submarines and cruisers which are relics of the old Russian imperial navy. The same situation exists at Batum, Sevastopol and Odessa.

Even the oil industry, which the natives call the commercial pearl of the Caspian, is dead. The oil-wells are there, to be sure, but Russia has neither the capital nor the machinery to develop them properly. A single American oil company is operating at Baku, and their activities, which are on a small scale, are confined to drilling and prospecting.

Baku at one time was one of the richest and gayest cities in Russia, but is now a dull, dirty, uninviting place that draws only those who have business or official relations with the Azerbaijan Government.

The stores exhibit a fair amount of stocks, but the goods are of a cheap, flimsy character and high in price. The people seem somewhat more cheerful and better dressed than those in Moscow, but they do not appear to be wholly satisfied with life under the Bolshevik regime. Here, as elsewhere in the Soviet union, there is much unemployment. The streets are overrun with half-naked and famished beggars and children. One cannot enter a restaurant, hotel or a public garden without being assailed by starving men, women and children, who beg for black bread.

HEALTH FABLES.

FOR CHILDREN'S COLDS.

A little camphorated oil or oil of eucalyptus are handy things to have about the house as the winter season approaches and the youngsters are likely to come in with colds.

If little Mary or Billy begin to sneeze, heat a little eucalyptus oil and let them inhale the fumes for several minutes.

If the cold appears in the chest, and there is any pain, a mustard paper plaster is a good home remedy. Or mix a small spoonful of turpentine with lard and rub on the chest.

Camphorated oil, rubbed on after the chest has been washed with hot water, is another simple preparation.

In case a cough develops, this remedy can be tried:

Put a couple of teaspoons of tincture of benzoin into a bowl of boiling water. Have the child lean over this with mouth open, inhaling the rising fumes. To get better results, throw some covering over the head and bowl, to keep in the steam.

Keep this up for fifteen minutes, adding fresh hot water and benzoin from time to time.

Neuritis

Neuralgia, Sciatica and Sciatic-Rheumatism

Had Neuritis Several Years

Mr. John Woodward, Lucan, Ontario, writes:—

"I was a sufferer fron neuritis for several years, and tried all kinds of remedies, yet never seemed to get any better. At last my nerves and whole system seemed to give way, through not being able to get any rest or sleep at nights for pain which mostly used to take me in all parts of the limbs and feet. My nerves would twitch till my whole body would seem to jerk right up as I lay in bed. Almost at the point of despair, I thought of Dr. Chase's Almanac and after reading different testimonials, I decided I would get Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which I did, and I feel it my duty to tell you of the benefit I derived. I am more than proud to say that after taking over twenty boxes I believe myself almost normal again, and for the past year I seem to enjoy my usual health."

Neuralgic Headache

Mr. Earnest Clark, Police Officer, 388 King St., Kingston, Ont., writes:—

"For three years I suffered from nervousness and sleeplessness. I believe my condition was brought about by overwork. I had frequent headaches, neuralgic pains and twitching of nerves and muscles. I had indigestion, was short of breath and easily tired. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and seven boxes of this medicine relieve me of all my symptoms. I am now feeling one hundred per cent. better than I was, and have to thank Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for the good health I am now enjoying."

Neuritis in Hands

Mrs. A. MacNeill, St. Marys, Ont., writes:—

"For some time I suffered from neuritis, which affected me mostly in the hands. The pain used to be severe at times. I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and five or six boxes of this treatment broke it up. Since then I have not been troubled with those severe pains in my hands, and can cheerfully recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to anyone suffering as I did."

NEURITIS is inflammation of a nerve. The pain is burning and tearing, not darting as in neuralgia, and is increased by movement.

There may be swelling and sensitiveness to touch, and sometimes redness of the skin.

Your experience will tell you that neuritis, like neuralgia and sciatica, only bothers you when your nervous system gets run down.

Restore energy and vigor to the nerves and you remove the cause of these torturing ailments.

Your experience with external applications has not been satisfactory. Drugs taken to deaden the pain are used at tremendous expense to the nervous system.

The nerves must be nourished back to health and vigor by the use of such restorative treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Rest and a course of treatment with this great nerve restorative is the most certain way to entirely remove the cause of neuritis and similar ailments arising from a depleted condition of the nerves.

It takes a little time to rebuild the wasted nerves. You will need a little patience. But you can use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food knowing that with each dose you are supplying to the system certain ingredients which go to instil new vigor and energy into the tired, starved nerves.

A few letters are quoted here to tell of the benefits others are obtaining from the use of this restorative treatment.

Ask your friends and neighbors about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for there is scarcely a community but can produce lots of evidence of its remarkable control over diseases of the nerves.

Neuritis and Neuralgia

Mrs. Wm. Mapletoft, Mount Forest, Ont., writes:—

"For about three years I suffered from neuritis in my right side. I had pains through my back and twitching of the nerves and muscles. I had also been operated on for appendicitis, and it left me a nervous wreck. I was very restless and uneasy, and bothered with frequent neuralgic headaches. My appetite was poor and I sometimes took weak spells. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and in a very short time I found relief. This medicine has done me the world of good and I can recommend it to all suffering as I was. One Spring, also, my husband was all run down and hardly able to work. I bought six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which he took, and he has felt fine ever since."

Rheumatism

Mrs. C. H. Christoffer, Greenbrier, Sask., writes:—

"It is a pleasure to me to write you in praise of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I suffered for over twenty years from rheumatism, neuralgia, violent headaches and palpitation of the heart. My back ached, I could not sleep, and was always tired and nervous. I had taken a great many medicines of one kind and another, but never got anything to help me until I used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This did me more good than all the medicines I ever took, and I cannot say enough in praise of it."

Neuritis in Back

Mrs. George Taylor, 53 Malokof St., St. Thomas, Ont., writes:—

"I had been in the hospital for an operation, and afterwards found my system in a run down condition. I had also contracted neuritis in my back. I got a box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found benefit from them, so I continued the treatment until I had taken about 24 boxes. This has made me much stronger, and built up my whole system. I also found that as I got stronger my back ached less. I certainly am pleased with the results I have obtained from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and am glad to be able to recommend it."

150 HEAR TALK BY MR. RIDDELL

Elimination of Venereal Diseases Would Decrease Hospital Expenses—Five Hundred Sufferers in Military Hospital in Toronto at One Time.

"From an examination of the public accounts of this province, it can be proved that if we could eliminate these two venereal diseases, gonorrhea and syphilis, and their attendant diseases, seventy per cent. of the money that this province spends on hospitals, asylums and houses of refuge could be saved. In the war, venereal diseases were discovered to be the most serious problem in the army. So large a percentage of the young men were affected and so many of them contracted fresh infections that a British general is authority for the statement that the efficiency of his army was reduced by fifteen per cent. because of them. In one military district alone in Toronto, in District Number Two, five hundred men were in the hospital at one time suffering from these diseases. To educate the men in the ways to avoid infection, army officers had to lecture to them on subjects that should have been dealt with by their parents years before."

Hon. Mr. Justice Riddell, LL.D., F.R.S.C., of Toronto, president of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council, gave a paper on "The Aims and Objects of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council" before about one hundred and fifty people in the G.W.V.A. Hall last evening. Explaining his use of a written address, Mr. Riddell said an extemporaneous speech on this subject by him would occupy too lengthy a time, as he would become carried away by his own interest in the subject.

Dr. Ray Scott, president of the local branch of the Council, explained the objects of the movement, and His Honor Judge Huycke introduced the speaker of the evening as an old and close personal friend of his own.

Mr. Riddell spent some time in relating the progress of scientific investigation during the past half-century in combating infectious diseases of different types. The four greatest causes of death at present, he said, were tuberculosis, pneumonia, cancer and syphilis. The late Sir William Osler at one time made the statement that tuberculosis was the greatest enemy of mankind in the way of disease, but prior to his death, he realized his mistake and substituted syphilis in its place. It was not until 1906 that much attention was paid to these so-called social diseases. In 1910, the Wasserman test was discovered and it was now known that energetic action was necessary to combat the spread of an evil which a commission sitting for three years in England to investigate conditions had declared was responsible for infection of ten per cent. of all dwellers in urban centres and also was responsible for 850,000 fresh infections every year in Great Britain, or more every year than there were casualties in the Great War.

"These diseases are the two great sterilizers. They are responsible for more than half the blindness in the world to-day, for fourteen per cent. of all male admissions to asylums, for abortions and miscarriages in women, for the appalling infant mortality which ravages our country. They are the only cause of paralysis in the insane, the only cause of locomotor ataxia, and the cause of nearly all the cases of apoplexy in individuals under forty-five years of age."

Speaking of the relation between the mental balance of the individual and the spread in the community of poverty and disease, Mr. Riddell said: "The stupid child is a problem. Many are incapable of education beyond a certain point. One-third of the money which you spend on education could be saved if every child up to nineteen years of age was of normal mentality."

The speaker went on to illustrate this point by citing the case of two families, traced back to their origin, one the product of the illicit union of a Civil War soldier with a feeble-minded maid, whose descendants were in nearly every instance criminal and feeble-minded persons, with anti-social traits, and the other the family traced from the marriage of two people of a contrary type, whose descendants occupied positions of honor and importance.

Referring to the inauguration of the Social Hygiene Council in Canada, and of the desire of the Government to do as much for its citizens as for its horses, pigs and sheep, Mr. Riddell spoke of the present tendency to slacken up the work on grounds of economy. "Canada is spending millions to obtain a healthy immigration by the steam ion of Canadians now suffer-rom syphilis. One-third of them out of every eight admitted to the Toronto General Hospital is a syphilitic. It is all very well to tell us that he who sins should suffer and that the wages of sin are death, but we are looking toward the help of the innocent ones, the wives and children of these men, who may be infected by the sinner."

Mr. Riddell recommended a physical examination at least once a year as a precautionary measure, and said: "The Biblical admonition to be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth had not the addition, 'with disease.' Syphilis was not known in the days of Adam."

"There is one agency that we need above all others to help us. That is the parent. The parent is the true instructor. The facts of life, its inception and transmission, vice and its awful effects, virtue and wisdom, self-control and resistance of temptation, all these come with most effect from the parent. It is the parent we must reach and stir up. The gift of life may be a blessing or a curse, according as the parent acts."

In conclusion, Mr. Riddell said: "Our boys in the war fought to keep Canada free. Shall we not fight to keep Canada clean?"

F. D. Kerr, K.C., who occupied a seat on the platform, moved a very hearty vote of thanks to the speaker, which was seconded by Mr. A. Mowat.

Dr. Ray Scott, closing the meeting, spoke of the forthcoming visit and address by Mrs. Olive Neville Rolfe, general secretary of the British National Council for Combating Venereal Diseases, which will be given here on December 4th, and asked those present to keep it in mind.

A pleasing musical introduction to the address was given, in an instrumental solo, played by Miss Agnes Logan, and a vocal solo by Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland. A group of white-robed nurses from Nicholls Hospital acted as ushers for the occasion.

FARMERS' MARKET.

Potatoes Stiffening Up In Price—Produce Plentiful.

The basket section of the farmers' market overflowed with produce of dairy and chicken run and roost. There were dozens and dozens of fowl to be had and the tables at a late hour groaned with the surplus that still remained unsold.

There were plenty of buyers, but they had developed that attitude that comes with too large a stock for choice, and went from one dealer to another looking for bargains.

Hens sold anywhere from 16 to 20 cents a pound, chickens were priced from 22 to 28 cents, turkeys were 35, geese 25, and ducks from 25 to 28 cents.

Butter and eggs were also very plentiful, the former selling from 37 to 40 cents a pound, the latter from 55 to 60 cents a dozen.

Meat dripping in tin pails was priced at 20 cents a pound. Pressure from a customer whose lifted eyebrows questioned the price brought it down to 15 cents. There were many sales of home-made cooking in the basket section this morning. The scope of the upper section seems to be expanding weekly. One may buy fruits and vegetables from the dealers who come here with their products, there is tea and coffee and candy to be had, with dried herbs and home-made socks and embroidery needles of a certain make.

Downstairs in the entry, a quartette of baby spaniels, deep cream colour, were offered at $2.00 and $1.00 apiece, and across the way was a solitary little collie pup, well marked in black and white, at $2.00. "I sell you one and give you another," was the offer of a gentleman demonstrating the excellent qualities of china cement.

Honey, dark amber, light amber, and basswood, was selling at 65, 80, and 90 cents respectively, in five-pound pails. The dealer remarked that the favourite honey of buyers this year appeared to be the dark amber quality.

Potatoes were 80 cents a bag and turnips 50 cents a bag. Big white onions—"one of those would make a meal"—were 60 cents a peck.

A rival to the regular fish man had white fish at 25 and 30 cents a pound.

Live Barred Rocks in crates were $1.50 each and Rhode Island Reds were $1.00.

Apples were plentiful and had a brisk sale. Russets were priced at 45 cents a peck. Wealthies at 50, Peewaukies at 40, Baxters at 25, and Snows at 50 cents a peck. Little green pears were 50 cents a peck also.

A little boy on one of the carts fed his horse a round red apple and patted his shaggy mane.

Pork was 16 and 18 cents a pound on the open market this morning. One of the dealers remarked on the comparatively low price when the high price of grain is considered.

GOLDEN LINK BAZAAR.

The Golden Link Rebekah Lodge No 81, held a dainty little bazaar in the U.F.O. Rooms, Simcoe Street, on Thursday and Friday of this week. The rooms were decorated in gay white and red for the occasion, and the ladies had quantities of pretty things on view. Mrs. Bert Watts acted as general convenor; Mrs. P. Fuller and Mrs. C. Wiley had charge of the sale of fancy work; Mrs. Wm. Hartley and Mrs. W. H. Morton of the pillow covers and towels; Mrs. Joseph Henderson of the parcel post; Mrs. R. Murduff and Mrs. F. Reid, children's wear; Mrs. F. Mesley of the cooking sale; Mrs. T. Sproat and Miss B. Brealey of the dolls; Mrs. Freeburn and Mrs. Kelsey of the aprons; Mrs. F. Reid and Mrs. H. Turner of the sale of groceries; Mrs. A. Jones and Mrs. Freeman of the candy, and Mrs. Bruce McLean and Mrs. James Price of the tea room, where supper was also served.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET AT KNOX

Tuxis Square Boys Held Successful Affair With Varied Programme.

"The kind of thing a boy or man ought to do is live his life just as hard as he can," declared Rev. J. W. Gordon of St. Andrew's church, last night in his address, which featured the Father and Son banquet in Knox church, under the auspices of the Invincibles Tuxis Square. "He must keep expecting things to happen; he must not be easily satisfied; he must keep out of ruts."

Mr. Gordon's address was virile, and strongly inspirational. He set up a high standard to be aimed at by the lads and dads who sought the best in life. "Live life to the full," he continued. "Get something out of it, and as you grow old you will grow young. I know of no way of living life to the full except by having new ideas come into your head. If you would read a great biography; a great novel, a great history, and a great classic novel every year for ten years, you would be the most notable man in Peterborough. You can't keep young in any other way. The only man who is really young is the man who is young mentally and is experiencing new things."

Varied Programme.

Mr. Gordon's was the last address in a varied programme that was arranged in all its details by Mentor Arthur McLeish and his Tuxis boys. Rev. M. C. Mackinnon paid a splendid tribute to the leader and to the boys, and in his response to the toast to the Church, declared the old spirit, that boys should be seen and not heard, has been cast aside. He pictured the Church as the most powerful institution in civilization, and the greatest organization in the world, and said the whole Christian Church is behind the lads in their search for the most useful manhood.

Dr. D. W. Clark presided and led the programme in happy fashion.

The following toasts were given: "To our Dads," Orville Martin and M. Clarke; "To our Lads," Andrew McKenzie and William Archibald; "Our Church," Harold Smith and Rev M. C. Mackinnon; "Our Country," Vern Fuller and H. J. McCannon; "The Ladies," Charles McLeish and Mrs. Martin, president of the Ladies' Aid.

Musical Selections.

Artists who contributed to the success of the evening were W. Hughes, soloist; Ray Derrick, guitar soloist; Stewart Widdes, violinist; and the orchestra, composed of W. Hodson, W. Miller, S. Widdes, Y. Paterson, Miss Ruth McLeish and Miss Olga Fowler.

N. Porter, chairman of the Boys' Work Board, expressed his appreciation of the success of the first banquet to be held in Peterborough under Tuxis auspices.

P. C. SMYTHE SWAMPED.

Toronto Canoeist Picked Up By Boat On English Channel.

LONDON, Nov. 15.— (Canadian Press).—P. C. Smythe of Toronto, who left Dover, yesterday morning in canoe alone to cross English channel on his way by canoe to Rome, was caught in bad weather on channel last night, after great difficulty he reached South Goodwin Light Ship which picked him up. English channel was choppy and atmosphere hazy when Smythe started from here on his paddling trip to Italian capital, but he faced situation courageously and made good progress for sometime.

Channel, however, proved too much for him, he aimed to land at Calais.

WRONG KIND BEER GOT TO PETERBORO

Agent Fined $200 and Costs For Having 10 p.c. Beverage.

Some 10 per cent. beer that evidently got side-tracked from the ocean route to Cuba and came up the Trent Canal by mistake, got a city vendor into trouble this morning, who was fined $200.00, and costs, on a charge of having liquor illegally.

The prosecution was taken by J. F. Strickland, and James Haverson, K.C., of Toronto, appeared to plead guilty for the accused, who was absent through illness.

The case was heard by Magistrate O. A Langley.

It was shown by an invoice that the beer received and vended was within the provisions of the O.T.A., so far as he knew. Two bottles were taken from the premises by Inspector Stewart, acting on a search warrant, and analysed. There was no evidence that the remainder of the cased goods ran over 2 per cent.

The Magistrate remarked that jobbers must assure themselves that the wholesalers and brewers are sending them the proper stuff.

COLLEGIATE BEAT KINGSTON 15-11

Local Squad Won Right to Represent Eastern Ontario in O.R.F.U. Semi-Finals.

KINGSTON, November 15 (Special by Staff Reporter). — Peterborough Collegiate Institute Rugby Club won the right to represent Eastern Ontario in the Interscholastic O.R.F.U. semi-finals by beating Kingston Collegiate at Queen's Stadium here this morning 15 to 11, thus winning the round by 28 to 16.

The Peterborough team got the jump on Kingston to-day by scoring seven points in the first period, and running the score up to 13-0 before K.C.I. tallied.

The latter finished the second period strong, getting nine points before half-time, leaving the figure at the half, 13-9.

It was a stubborn battle throughout the last half, each team adding two single points.

Bookhout ran 55 yards for a try in the first period, and Killaly converted.

In the second period the Petes carried the ball from centre on a series of successful plays, and Cole plunged over for a try which Killaly again converted.

Then Kingston got going, and Harkness scored a touch on an onside kick and McKelvey converted.

A safety touch and a rouge for K. C. I. made the figures 13-9 at half-time, and Bookhout's plunging, running and kicking featured for Peterborough.

Rye, Cole, and Pogue were also in the limelight, while Buck, Lovett and Stoke were prominnt for Kingston.

Score by priods:
P. C. I. 7, Kingston 0.
P. C. I. 13, Kingston 9.
P. C. I. 15, Kingston 10
P C. I. 15, Kingston 11.

WEEKLY CARD PARTY.

There were 42 tables of cards played last evening at the weekly card party of the Immaculate Conception Parish held in their hall. Prizes were won by Mrs. Michael English, Mrs. Jas. McMartin, Mrs. Joseph Huard and Messrs. F. Condon, D. Hennessey and J. O'Reilly.

PETERBORO MAN FORGED SCRIPT

Clifford Nattrass Fined $200 and Costs In Ottawa Police Court.

UNIQUE CASE.

(Special to the Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., November 15. — Admitting that he forged a doctor's name on a scription for a bottle of whiskey, from the Ontario government liquor store, Clifford Nattrass, of Peterboro, Ont., was fined $200 and $2 costs, or three months in jail, by Magistrate Hopewell in the police court, for attempting to obtain liquor illegally.

"A friend of the doctor's, whose name is Rankin Cooper, of Dundila, Ont., told me that it was no harm for me to sign the doctor's name on the blank scription," said Nattrass."

"You know perfectly well that it is wrong to sign another man's name" returned Magistrate Hopewell.

"This is a more serious offense than having liquor, but I will fine you $200 and costs, or three months in jail."

Nattrass was arrested last night by Inspector William Russell, of the Ontario Provincial police.

It was found that he forged the script, gave it to a friend, who went to the Government store on Kent street, and presented it. The script was discovered to be a forgery, and no liquor was given out. The police were advised, and Nattrass was arrested, when his friend confessed.

The case, the police say, is one of the most unique here in prosecution under the Ontario Temperance Act.

SOMETHING NEW AT WINTER FAIR

Kiwanis Club Will Have a Novel Event For Youngsters.

From Monday to Thursday, inclusive, of the last week of this month, November 24th, 25th, 26th and 27th, the Kiwanis Winter Fair will be held in the Market Hall. "Something new, something novel, something nice," is the slogan of the Kiwanis' event, which it put on for the little lads and lasses of the city. The large hall will be crowded with booths displaying Peterboro goods, sold or manufactured by members of the Club, and there will be amusement booths, a refreshment booth, a sale of home-made cooking and candy. Under direction of M. B. Chenhall, a free stage entertainment will be put on each evening, an orchestra will be in attendance, and ample space reserved for dancing. Three prizes will be given each evening to lucky holders of winning tickets.

This Winter Fair takes the place of the usual dramatic offering made by the Kiwanis Club each season.

KIWANIS CELEBRATE THIRD ANNIVERSARY

Ladies' Night at Empress Hotel Was Big Affair—Out-of-town Guests.

Last evening saw the celebration by the local Kiwanis Club of the third anniversary of their inauguration in the city. The commemoration of the event took the form of a ladies' Night held at the Empress Hotel with about eighty people present, for an interesting programme, followed by a dance until midnight. Guests present from out of town included several Kiwanians from Barrie, Belleville and Lindsay. Dr. Bill Lewis, president of the Barrie club, with his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Bryson and Mrs. Merrick of Barrie, Bert McLean, president of the Lindsay club, and his daughter, Dr. and Mrs. White, and ex-Mayor Carew of Lindsay, Rev. Dr. Malott and Mr. and Mrs. Smith of Belleville, were among those present.

The speaker of the evening was Kiwanian M. B. Tudhope, B.A., of Orillia, who spoke in brilliant fashion on "Service and Responsibility," in one of the best addresses yet delivered before the club.

As a mark of appreciation of his special services to the club, Mr. J. John was presented by his fellow-Kiwanians with a Ford coupe which occupied a small space on the table.

Vocal numbers during the evening were provided in excellent voice by Mrs. Walter Byers and Mr. Hugh Nevin.

Boosters for the occasion were Walter Oke, who supplied the entire party with some very fine grapes, and Wilfrid Huycke, whose prizes were won by Miss McLean of Lindsay and Mrs. Merrick of Barrie.

Notice the pens in the hands of the veterans—the men who have been using fountain pens for twenty and thirty years.
Usually, it's a Waterman's
A lost or damaged pen, perhaps an unsatisfactory one, led them to Waterman's. They became pen-wise. With Waterman's they stayed. It is their pen to-day.
History repeats itself. Sooner or later, a Waterman's will come your way.
You will appreciate its "fit" in the hand; the larger ink container; the smooth, steady flow; the easy-writing, everlasting tip.
And when you come to veteran years, you will be a veteran Waterman's user too.

by CAROLYN WELLS

"No, ma'am, not really. I've been swayed—yes, swayed— one way and another, but I always come back to her—'cause why, who else could it be? It's got to be somebody—the idea of an outsider is too ridiculous—it's got to be somebody in the houser—somebody interested—desperately interested in old Raynor's death. Now, excepting Mr. Finley, who is so interested as Mrs. Raynor? And after the man became a drug fiend he was just about impossible to live with."

"But—if you argue that Mrs. Raynor killed him impulsively—after a quarrel or after he had abused her beyond all limit, I might agree; but for you to say she put on the overshoes and deliberately planned the murder—it's too much to believe."

"Not a bit too much. I tell you she's a deep one—she planned it most likely long before she carried it out—then waited her chance."

"Having th overshoes with her all the time—in readiness?"

"Oh, them overshoes might have been a sudden freak—say, she happened to see 'em sitting around and stuck her little feet in 'em as an additional precaution."

"Sounds fishy to me. What did she do with the overshoes afterward?"

"Ah, that's just it. If we could find those—but you see, whoever shot Raynor hid those overshoes—why, there's no doubt that the murderer wore them—the print is right near where Raynor stood—it's pointed right toward him; the shoe must have been on the foot of the murderer. There's no getting away from that."

"Just like leaving a visiting card."

"Just exactly. And if we can find the rubbers—they may not give away the criminal—but I'll say they will."

"How about the nurse—she'd have big feet'nurses always do. And she'd be as likely to shoot Mr. Raynor as to poison him."

"Miss Turner? Why, she was in the north door pushing on the lights."

"She says she was. Can she prove it?"

"They all saw her—Mrs. Raynor, Mr. Finley, Miss Raynor—why, all of them saw her in the doorway——"

"Yes—but that was after the shot. Why couldn't she have fired the revolver, dropped it, and then have gone to the door, and turned on the lights?"

"No, no—that won't work."

"Why not? It's as likely as that Mrs. Raynor did it—or Mr. Finley. You must admit it as possible."

"Well, no, miss. You see, Miss Raynor, now, she was on the stairs behind where Miss Turner was——"

"But that was after the shot. Miss Mattie didn't leave her room until after she heard the report, then she started; hen Mr. Finley started from the east veranda; then Mrs. Raynor started from the west terrace—all these people started because of hearing that shot. Now, I say it could have been fired by Miss Turner—she could have hurried back into the house, and standing in that north door between the house and the sun room, she could have turned on the lights—just as we know she did do—after she had killed her man."

"Well, well—now, come, you do make it sound plausible; but, no, if she had murdered Raynor, Miss Turner would never have come back here. She would have disappeared entirely yes, ma'am, so she would!"

"It does seem likely," admitted Zizi, "but I wanted to show you that there was—there is a possibility of her being the criminal."

"Oh, Lord, there's a possibility of any of those people who stood at those various doors."

"And each one so agitated, so shocked, that no clear account can be got from any of them."

"That's so. There's Miss Turner now—want to talk to her?"

Zizi did, and Dobbins called the nurse to them.

She was taciturn but willing to answer questions. She admitted her attempt to poison Mr. Raynor, but said she didn't mean to kill him, only to make him ill and then promise to restore him to health if he would give her a large sum of money. This he had done, and the bonds she had received from him were, she said, compensation for her past ills at her hands.

She had no fears for herself, for though she had poisoned Mr. Raynor, his wife was in no position to cail her to account—nor was his son, who had stolen the will. Miss Raynor was not a person who would take definite steps, and Miss Turner felt sure the law would not harm her even in the event of an accusation.

"But, look here," Zizi said, "if Mrs. Raynor's tablets that she gave to her husband secretly were harmless, what were they?"

"Atropine—to counteract the effect of the morphine he was taking."

"Well, why wasn't the morphine discovered at the autopsy?"

"Because the atropine and the morphine so counteracted each other that all traces of both disappeared. Then they found only the arsenic."

"And you put the arsenic that you had left in a vase in Mrs. Raynor's room to incriminate her?" Zizi's black eyes glared at the tranquil nurse.

"Not for that. I hid them there to get them out of my possession, and I thought they'd never be discovered. I'd no idea the detectives would make such a thorough search."

"Miss Turner"—Zizi looked straight at her—"who do you think fired that shot?"

Eva Turner looked puzzled.

"Honestly, I don't know," she said; "I can't help thinking it was Mrs. Raynor, yet it may have been Mr. Finley. It was surely one or the other, as I've said all along."

"You didn't do it yourself?" asked Dobbins.

Eva Turner stared at him.

"Gracious, no!" she said; "I'm scared to death of a pistol—I wouldn't touch one. I don't know how to handle firearms at all."

Zizi looked at her suriously. All this might or might not be true.

"Besides," Miss Turner went on, 'I was in the pantry talking to the cook when the shot rang out. Cook will tell you this. Then I ran to the door and turned on the lights."

"And saw?" said Zizi. "Tell me again."

"And saw," Miss Turner said, "and saw Mrs. Raynor going out and Mr. Finley holding the pistol. Is@more needed to convict either one of these two—or both?"

"Yes," Zizi said. "I have timed it, and I know it must have taken you at least a full minute to get from the pantry to that door and to push the light ut . In that minute much coul hav happened."

"A t," said Eva Turner, "then you ought to get those two off with a 'not proven' verdict. There is no possible doubt, but if it can't be proved, then they can go free, I suppose."

"As you put it," Zizi said, slowly, "it would seem that those two, at the east and west doors, were the actors of the drama, and you two at the north and south doors—you and Mr. Kent—were the audience."

"Mr. Kent didn't come till three or four minutes later."

"What did you all do in the meantime?"

"I don't know—nothing much, I think. I found Miss Raynor at my side, and I think I grasped at her—rather clung together. Mr. Finley continued to stare at the pistol—and he kept on rubbing it with his handkerchief; Mrs. Raynor didn't do anything, just stood and stared——"

"You said she was going out."

"She turned and came back, and stood in the doorway. Then Mr. Kent came and he flew to her side."

"Without looking at Mr. Raynor?"

"He didn't seem to—as I recollect. He rushed to Mrs. Raynor, and put his arm around her—for she looked as if she would faint."

"You like Mrs. Raynor?" Zizi asked this quite casually.

"I don't know," Eva returned, slowly. "When I first came here I hated her. She was Raynor's wife—she had everything that he had long ago promised to me. You can imagine what a jilted girl feels toward her successful rival. I came prepared to hate her—but I meant no wrong to her. I came here to get satisfaction of one sort or another out of Douglas Raynor. I wanted to make him suffer as much as he had made me suffer. I wanted money, but I also wanted to make him suffer mentally and physically—both. I gave him the arsenic in sufficient doses to scare him and to make him ill—but I didn't mean to kill him. I proposed to stop short of that. Well, then, when Mr. Finley came, I found I could hurt him by suggesting that Mrs. Raynor still cared for Mr. Finley.

"All in all, I made Douglas Raynor pretty miserable, and I'm glad of it. He vented his anger on his wife—but I couldn't help that. If she did shoot him—it was no more than could be expected of a woman who had borne all she could bear. No one but myself knows what awful misery that man heaped on her head. If Nancy Raynor is accused—if she is tried—I will go on the stand and testify to cruelty she received, to ignominy and scorn that was heaped on her, and to brutality unspeakable that she endured, until no jury in the world would give any verdict but full and entire acquittal. Yet, even with all that, even though I pity her from my heart, I can't say I like her. We are not congenial, she doesn't like me—but my sense of justice will make me witness for her—if it ever comes to that."

"Good for you, Miss Turner," Zizri cried. "Now, will your sense of justice go so far as to answer a few questions?"

"Certainly."

"Then, knowing Mrs. Raynor fairly well, as you must, do you think she is a woman who would take her husband's life—no matter what he had done to make her miserable?"

"No, I do not. But——"

"You're going to say we can't vouch for a desperate woman. But I want your honest opinion. Aside from the facts of seeing Mrs. Raynor fleeing cut of the sun parlor that night, aside from any thought of evidence—you would be surprised to learn that Mrs. Raynor was a criminal."

"Very much surprised. She is of the martyr type. She suffered in silence."

"She gave me that impression," Zizi said.

"Nancy Raypor is a woman who loves very few people. She adored her father, she worships her brother—and she is passionately in love with Mr. Finley. She is friendly with Miss Mattie, but there is no real affection there."

"Nobody could be very fond of that old maid," Zizi said, in a tone of pity rather than reproach. "And it's her own fault—she's so prying and curious. Well, now, Miss Turner, here's another question. Do you think Mr. Finley could have committed that murder?"

"Yes, I do."

"I thought you were sure it was Mrs. Raynor who shot——"

"I've told you again and again I don't know which one it was! I've thought it over and over; I've pictured out the scene with both of them, and all I can say is—it was certainly one of them."

"What about a man from outside?"

"That man from outside is all very well—if you can find him."

Zizi had caught sight of Pennington Wise walking down the path and she ran after him.

"Where are you going?" she asked as she caught up with him.

"Down to the Falls," he replied patting her thin little hand as she pushed it through his bent arm.

"It's true," Wise said, "any jury would exonerate Nancy Raynor if she had shot her husband—but I want to prove that she didn't."

"And that Mr. Finley did?"

"That would be almost as bad, wouldn't it?" Wise smiled, ruefully.

"And so you're going to make up a criminal to put in their place?"

"No; he's already made up—he's the man who wore the rubbers."

"And we're going to the Falls to look for the rubbers?"

"We are."

"Because that's the hiding place Mrs. Raynor chose for the morphine bottles, you think the rubber man chose the same hiding place?"

"True, oh, Queen."

"Well—take it from me, you won't find them there."

Wise stopped stock still. "Then there's no use going on."

"Oh, come along—I might be mistaken—of course, I never am, but there has to be a first time."

"You're an impertinent young thing. But, Ziz, I've got to find those rubbers!"

"All right—we'll find 'em. You see—wait a minute, Penny, was the criminal one of the house people—or not?"

"Yes—I think it was."

"Then it was either a man, or a woman wearing a man's rubbers. Now, he or she—we'll say he, meaning either sex—he must have hidden the rubbers, because he couldn't destroy them. You can't burn rubbers—they make such a smell—and you can't throw them down a waste pipe. I think they're hidden—they are easy to hide, you see—and if they are, we ought to find them. So, all right, the Falls first, and after that all other possible places."

But the most careful examination of the Falls failed to disclose a discarded pair of rubbers.

Malcolm Finley approached them as they stood there.

"A curious case, Mr. Finley," Wise said, in the colloquial tone of one who addresses a fellow enthusiast.

"Where are your clues leading you now, Mr. Wise?" Finley asked.

"Nowhere, for the reason that I have few or no clues. Except for the new overshoe, I can find nothing to call a clue."

"You call that one?"

"Most assuredly. If I can find those rubbers——"

"You will convict somebody?" Finley looked alarmed.

"It may be so." Wise watched him closely, without seeming to do so.

"Then, Mr. Wise, give up your search. It is unnecessary. I will tell you now what I'm going to tell the police later—I confess to the crime myself. I shot Douglas Raynor, and I give myself up."

Wise restrained his smile.

"It is most interesting, Mr. Finley—how people love to 'give' themselves up.' It would seem that to confess to a crime is a positive pastime of lat . If many more confess to this one, we shall have to arrest them in bunches. Why are you confessing to it, Mr. Finley?"

"Your amusement is decidedly ill-timed, Mr. Wise. I cannot feel a solemn confession is an occasion for mirth."

"Yours is," and Zizi's uncontrollable dimples came into play as she openly grinned at Finley.

"You don't believe me?" Finley said, quite taken aback at the way his confession was received.

"I do not," Wise returned; "on the contrary, you have removed any lingering doubts I may have had as to your entire innocence."

"So a confession convinces you of a man's innocence, does it?"

"Yes; in your case." And then Wise became very grave. "You are making this confession, Mr. Finley, to shield Mrs. Raynor—to save her, if possible, from further suspicion of having killed her husband. Answer me truly, is not this so?"

Finley looked at the detective, and seeing his earnest face, suddenly felt that candor was his best policy.

"Yes," he answered.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Man Who Wore the Rubbers.

"Now, Mr. Finley," Wise said, "you must know that what you suggest is impossible. You certainly know what compounding a felony means, and you are not so ignorant as to think you could put such a thing over, or that I should allow it. I think you speak honestly when you say you are not sure Whether Mrs. Raynor fired the shot or not—and, of course, that lets you out. If you had really done it, your attitude would be very different. Also, you must agree that from all the evidence we can get from the people on the scene at the time, it looks as if either you or Mrs. Raynor did the shooting. With you out—by the way why did you clean off the pistol so quickly?"

Malcolm Finley looked troubled. Then, "I will tell you," he said. "I think I'd better be perfectly frank. I picked up that pistol and whipped out my handkerchief and rubbed off any finger-marks that might be on it, because—because I did think Mrs. Raynor had fired it."

"Why did you think so?"

"Because as I entered I saw her going out of the opposite door—just as Miss Turner said she did. There is no doubt about it—she was fleeing, as Miss Turner expressed it, out of that west door. So I assumed she had shot him, and it came to me like a flash that her fingerprints would be on the revolver, and I must remove them. So I did. That's all. Now, I tell you this for I want your advice. If you think Mrs. Raynor is going to be arrested—I'm going to take steps to get her away. I tell you frankly, because I want your help."

Wise stared at him.

"My help to get a criminal away?"

"Yes," said Finley, coolly. "You know as well as I do that she'd never be convicted, so why drag through a trial? Why not spirit her away?"

"Mr. Finley, you talk nonsense. Now, I propose that we go—you and I—and have a little talk with Mrs. Raynor. Have you and she talked frankly about this matter as yet?"

"I have tried to," Finley said, looking troubled, "but Mrs. Raynor seems to want to avoid the subject—"

"Yes—she would. Well, I think we'll have to ask her to talk."

The two men started toward the house, and Zizi drifted off by herself.

She watched the men for a moment, then, turning, she strolled down to the bridge and across it toward Dolly Fay's house.

Zizi had already met that vivacious young person, and since seeing the photograph of her in Kent's room had desired another talk with her.

The two girls seated themselves comfortably in the swing, and Zizi came to the point at once.

"You want to help Mrs. Raynor if you can, don't you, Dolly?" she asked.

"Oh, yes, indeed—what can I do? I'm a born detective—and I've read—"

"Never mind that," Zizi smiled 'but just tell me a few things. Where's your wrist watch?"

"Now, how did you know I had one?"

"I saw it on your arm in a photograph of you that Mr. Kent has—a snapshot—and a good one."

"Yes, that is a good one—the one in that mauve organdie—though, of course, it doesn't show mauve in the picture——"

"Yes—where is your watch?"

"Busted."

"I knew it!" Zizi nodded her black head in satisfaction. "I saw from the picture it was one of those cheap things—forgive me if I am rude—but this is important."

"My watch important!"

"Yes. Now, tell me, when you did wear it, did it always keep the right time?"

"Never!"

"Then—think now— then when you stood on the bridge that night with Mr. Kent, and you told him it was seven o'clock by your watch—was it?"

"No—I guess not—for when I got home I was awful late, and mother gave me a wigging. But, yes, it must have been right, too, for when I said it was seven, Mr. Kent looked at his watch and agreed."

"What do you mean agreed?"

"Why, he said, 'So it is,' or 'Yes,—seven,' or something like that. What has my watch to do with it?"

"Maybe a lot—maybe nothing at all, I say, Dolly, you know that old Gannon man, don't you?"

"Oh, yes, very well. He teaches me natural history."

"Well enough to go to his house and browse around—and take me?"

"Oh, yes. Want to go now?"

"Right now."

The girls started at once, and reaching Gannon's house they found that worthy, as usual, sitting on his porch, smoking.

"Hello, Grim," cried Dolly. "we're going in to see some butterflies—Zizi wants to see 'em."

"All right. Be sure to shut the cases after you."

The girls went into the room where the specimens were, where almost all the rest of Gannon's belongings were also.

"What a mess!" said Zizi.

"Yes. Here are the butterflies."

But Zizi was after something other than butterflies. After a cautionary glance outside at the old man, she shook a warning forefinger at Dolly and began to poke around among the litter that was piled in corners or on tables and settees.

Then she opened the cupboard door, and with a look of disgust on her face, grabbed an umbrella and poked among the shoes and slippers that were flung in there in an untidy heap.

With the umbrella she dragged out one old shoe after another, and, at last, with a suppressed cry of triumph, she pulled out a shiny overshoe.

It was a man's rubber, and a new one—of the type called slip-ons. That , it had almost no upper, it was little more than a sole, with a narrow rim of rubber to hold it on the foot.

A little more poking brought forth its mate, and Zizi kicked the other rubbish back into the closet, and picked up her find with eagerness.

"The rubbers," she whispered. "The very ones!"

"Oh, my!" Dolly said, clasping her little hands in dismay. "Then old Gannon is the murderer after all! I'm so sorry"—and the child broke into tears.

"Hush up," said Zizi, shaking her "don't let him hear. We must take these to Mr. Wise at once. Come along."

She didn't especially want Dolly's company, but still lesss did she dare leave her there where she might divulge the secret of Zizi's find, and which Zizi was determined should remain a secret until she could tell Wise about it.

The finding of the rubbers was merely the last resort of a long hunt. Zizi had looked everywhere. They must be proved up by the print on the sun room floor—and then——

Zizi easily concealed the rubbers in her capacious coat pockets, and beckoning Dolly, they left the room.

She paused on the porch to speak to Gannon, with intent to learn if he had any suspicion of her real errand to his room.

Apparently he had not, for he only said, "Well, girls, see the butterflies?"

"Yes," Zizi returned, "and they're wonderful. Shall you collect more, or is your stock complete?"

"I'll get more from South America, when I go down there. I'm going to get off as soon as I can get my money from those lawyers."

Dolly looked at him, open-mouthed. How could this man, who had killed his benefactor, speak so casually of getting away with the money he had so fearfully come by?"

"You must miss Mr. Raynor," Zizi said.

"I do," Gannon returned, and his glance at her was equally sharp. "He was a life-long friend, almost——"

"Yes, an uncertain friend."

"Uncertain is the word, ma'am," and Gannon looked reminiscent. "Now, Raynor'd be as nice and friendly as one could wish, and then again he'd be the very dickens and all—yes, ma'am the very dickens, and all!"

"Was he ugly to you—as well as to his wife?" Zizi went on.

"Was he! Well, he was! Why, the things Douglas Raynor has said to me and done to me, I wouldn't stand from any other mortal man! That I wouldn't! He was a bad man—it's all very well to say speak only good of the dead—but that man don't deserve a good word even in death!"

"You're not sorry he's gone, then?" Zizi said.

"Not I! He was my benefactor, some say. Well, he gave me this house, he gave me a sum of money in his will—but, what did I do for him?"

"What did you?" Zizi prompted him.

"I kept his secrets for him—that's what I did! When he married that lovely lady—when he persuaded her to marry him, he did it by a lie! He made her think her father a blackguard, when he was that blackguard himself——"

"And what were you?" cried Zizi, her eyes blazing. "What do you call yourself to stand by and see the lovely lady sold—and sold by fraud—to a blackguard and a brute? What excuse do you give for your own conduct?"

"Only that Raynor made me."

"Ah, he had a hold on you, then?"

"That he did! A strangle-hold—as he had on many others. And when he lied to the lady, when he pretended that she must marry him or disgrace her father, her brother and herself—my hands were tied—I could do nothing."

"When did Mrs. Raynor learn of her husband's deceit?"

"Only a few weeks before she shot him."

Zizi looked at him curiously. Dolly stood staring, her face the picture of perplexity. 'She wanted to speak, but Zizi's warning looks restrained her.

"Yes," Gannon repeated, "she never knew about it till a month or so ago. Her brother, now, he never knew of it—I should say, until after Raynor was dead. You see, Mrs. Raynor she'd suffer anything, and everything, rather than any sorrow or trouble should touch her brother. They're a devoted pair."

"And you think Mrs. Raynor killed her husband?" Zizi said.

Gannon shifted uneasily.

"I ain't got no opinion—for publication, miss," he said, "I'd rather not tell what I think."

"I should say you wouldn't!" exclaimed Dolly, unable to keep silent another instant.

Whereupon Zizi dragged her away.

"You go home, Dolly," she said, "And don't you mention one word of all this to a single soul. If you do you'll make more trouble than even Pennington Wise can clear up. Do you promise?"

"Yes, I promise, Zizi. Oh, whoever thought that old curmudgeon did it? Just to get his money to go to South America!"

"Never mind all that now, Dolly. You just run home, and go about your own affairs. And if you love Mrs. Raynor, you keep still—for her sake."

"I will, oh, Zizi, I will," and Dolly obeyed orders.

Zizi went slowly on to the Raynor house.

Now! Asbestos Roofing at the same price as ordinary roofing!

Re-roof for the last time
—right over the old shingles

THE new Johns-Manville factory at Asbestos, P. Q., pictured below, has made it possible for us to bring the cost of Johns-Manville Asbestos Roofing down to the same price as ordinary roofings.

This is good news for home owners. For now, with the low cost of Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles, you can take advantage of the Johns-Manville Method of laying these shingles right over the old roof and you can have a new, beautiful, fire-safe and permanent roof at a cost that you never thought possible.

A money-saving method from the start

By laying Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingle right over the old roof you save the cost of tearing it off. There is no litter of broken shingles around your property, no dirt in the attic. It is a clean, quick job from start to finish.

A permanent roof

Best of all, when the job is done, you will have a roof that will protect your home from weather and fire for many years to come. Asbestos Shingles are permanent. When you re-roof with them, you have re-roofed for the last time.

Asbestos for every roof

Besides several types of Asbestos Shingles, Johns-Manville makes Asbestos Ready Roll Roofings for all kinds of buildings with sloping roofs, and Asbestos Built-up Roofing for flat roofs. Coupon below will bring you further information on any type of Asbestos Roof in which you are interested.

RICHARD HALL & SON

JAPANESE WIN IN CHINA

By J. W. T. MASON.

Under Japanese influences, the unifiction of China is now beginning. Two of the Big Three Tsuchins of China, Chang Tso Lin, War Lord of Manchuria, and Tuan Chi-jui, leader of the Anhu party, have joined their interests and are working for China and Japan. The third leader, Wu Poi Fu, has been defeated and eliminated from national politics by the desertion of his chief assistant, the Christian General Feng Yu-hsiang.

Feng wants to succeed Wu Pei Fu, making with Chang Tso Lin and Tuan Chi-jui a new Big Three. Feng is friendly to Japan, as are the two others. The recently appointed Japanese Minister at Pekin, Kenkichi Yoshizawa, and the new Japanese Foreign Minister, Baron Shidehara, formerly Ambassador at Washington, have scored personal triumphs on account of this success of their diplomacy.

If they can carry through along the lines they have begun, and if they can prove that China is reaping benefits from pro-Japanese unification, Japan's power at Pekin will be superior to any combination of foreign rivals. The Japanese, however, may be caught between the rival Chinese factions which they succeeded for the time being in reconciling.

Chang to Keep Hands Off.

Chang Tso Lin has agreed not to lead his army into Pekin and not take personal charge of the direction of the central Government. He will remain in Manchuria, and will not object to the power at Pekin passing into the hands of Tuan Chi-jui or one of the latter's henchmen. How long this division of glory will last depends in part on the future skill of Japanese diplomacy and in part on the personal prestige which Tuan Chi-jui may be able to create for himself, as the real ruler of China. If Tuan collapses Chang Tso Lin will look longingly toward Pekin, while the foreign powers again secretly will have their favorites among fresh contestants.

Tuan Chi-jui, on whom for the moment the hopes of China rest, is the ablest military strategist among the Chinese generals and surpasses both Chang Tso Lin and Wu Pei Fu in ability. He is the most popular figure in China because the people have more faith in his disinterestedness than in any of his rivals. Tun has been working for a number of years for the unification of China; and from the time of the outbreak of the civil war now ending, he has been frequently mentioned as the only leader who could hope to reconcile the various factions.

Tuan is Honest.

Tuan, however, has a number of unpopular men among his immediate subordinates. They do not share Tuan's rather austere ideas about purity of the public service. Tuan cannot replace them because any others he might choose would have the same taint. Tuan is unique in his desire to watch the public treasury as a public trust. It will be very difficult for Tuan to control the rapacity of his lieutenants, who are in rivalry among one another to secure the best pickings.

If Tuan discovers a way of suppressing corruption at Pekin and in the principal provincian centres, he will make himself very unpopular with his subordinates, however popular he may become with the people. He will then have to guard himself against treachery. Tuan is thus in a very difficult position. Chang Tso Lin, returning to Manchuria and leaving the control of Pekin to Tuan, has calculated all the difficulties which are waiting for Tuan. If Tuan's troubles are too much for him, and he is eliminated, then Chang Tso Lin's turn may come to enter Pekin, himself, assured that his principal friend and rival is out of the way.

POPE PUTS OK ON POLISH PACT

Pope Pius XI. Has Approved Work of Achilles Ratti.

(By Thomas B. Morgan.)

ROME, Nov. 15.—(United Press.)—Achilles Ratti, as Pope Pius XI, has approved the work of Achilles Ratti, apostolic nuncio to Poland. This is the first itme that the Polish republic has made a treaty with the Holy See and it gives the Sovereign Pontiff the opportunity of endorsing the relations he advocates while he represented Benedict XV in the Polish capital.

M. Grabsky, brother of the Polish foreign minister, came to Rome to draw up the final draft of the concordat between the Vatican and Poland. Conferences have been held between Cardinal Gasparri and M. Grabsky in which many of the subjects discussed had already been settled by Monsignor Ratti, an apostolic nuncio. Arrival at full agreement was therefore easy for there was almost identity of views between what the Polish government wanted and what the Vatican proposed.

The Pope, ever since his short assignment in the diplomatic service in Poland, has always retained the tenderest feelings for the Polish people. It is learned in Vatican circles that he regarded with usual interest the progress of the peurparlers and looked forward to the signing of the concordant with no uncertain pleasure as it crowns the work he performed in Northeastern Europe with success.

The problems during his Polish mission were complicated. Besides having the remnants of three civil administrations, such as the German, Austrian and Russian, he was confronted with the intricate demands of the three rites—Catholic, Greek and Orthodox. He kept on equally friendly terms wtih all and besides won the admiration of the then newly-formed Polish republic for his tact and skill.

When he was elected Titular Archbishop of Naupacte, he chose to be consecrated in the Cathedral at Warsaw.

NEWS FROM CAVAN.

CAVAN, Nov. 15. — The Cavan Women's Institute held their November meeting at the home of Mrs. J. W. Perrin on Wednesday evening, November 13. There were nine members and nine visitors present. Five of the visitors joined the Institute. In the absence of the president, Miss B. McNeil, the meeting was conducted by the vice-president, Mrs. F. M. Staples.

The meeting opened by singing a verse of "The Maple Leaf."

The roll-call was answered by those, who could, giving quilt patterns. Three new quilts were shown and admired.

Miss Helen Syer contributed a reading, "Down the Concession," which proved quite interesting. It was followed by a discussion on the theme of the reading "Being Neighborly."

A paper on the result of the recent plebiscite was read by Mrs. F. M. Staples.

Mrs. H. Lang and Mrs. Lloyd Sutton were appointed to provide the programme for the January meeting. The December meeting, following the usual custom, is withdrawn.

After the meeting had adjourned, lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

One of the series of meetings being conducted in the interest of missions was held by the Cavan Circuit in Fairmount Church on Wednesday evening, November 12.

The members of the Quarterly Board, with their wives and a few others, were present. After supper, which was served in the Sunday School-room, all adjourned to the church, where they listened to a splendid inspiring address given by the Rev. Mr. Earl, missionary on furlough from China, on his work there.

Rev. A. J. Langford, of Trinity Church, Peterboro, presented a chart showing the financial contributions of the churches of the Peterboro district towards missionary work, showing the need for even greater effort along this line, this year, if the work is to be sustained.

The meeting was brought to a close by a few remarks from Rev. C. S. Reddick of Lakefield and Rev. R. T. Richards of Cavan.

Miss L. Telford, Bridgenorth, is the guest of Mrs. Lloyd Sutton.

Mrs. C. McNeil, Janetville, visited her father, Mr. J. McNeil, during the past week. Mr. McNeil is seriously ill.

Mrs. V. Rowen is visiting her son and his family in Peterboro.

"DEVIL DOCTORS" THRIVE IN CHINA

Make Fat Livings Practicing Among Superstitious People in Canton District.

HONGKONG Nov. 15.— 'Devil doctors," who profess to be able to drive evil spirits out of people possessed with them, still practice in Canton and the neighboring districts. They make fat livings off the more supersitious of the people, who aften engage them when either physical or mental illness fails to yield to the treatment of family physicians.

A remarkable story is being circulated of one of these "devil doctors" being called in to treat a girl who had become insane. This girl, about twenty years old, had got utterly out of hand, and she caused great distress to her parents by tearing all her clothes to pieces and saying all manner of strange things. At length the mother was persuaded to engage the services of a "devil doctor" named Chung, and when he arrived at the house he was permitted to remain closeted with the girl for about an hour, during which time he performed all manner of mystic rites.

Then, according to Chinese press reports, the girl assumed the voice of a man and stated that he had become possessed of the spirit of a military officer who had been killed in fighting. This spirit, she added, had, during its wanderings come to the girl's house and had fallen in love with her and wanted to make her his wife. The "devil doctor," however, now made that impossible and the spirit would go away if certain sacrificial offerings were made to it. The mother compiled with the request, and, to use the phrase of a Chinese newspaper, "the girl is now 80 per cent normal.

NEWS HAVELOCK.

Several Social Events in the Town—Personal Mention.

HAVELOCK, November 15.—The High School held their first "At Home" on Thursday night last, since the year 1919. About two hundred guests enjoyed the splendid evening.

Games and cards were played until nine o'clock, when a programme was given by the High School members. Mr. Fletcher, Principal of the High School, acted as chairman, and gave an interesting address. Miss Velma Davidson rendered a beautiful solo, followed by a reading by Miss Myrtle Seeney. Rev. Mr. Stanton, rector of St. John's Church, was then called upon, and as usual, responded in his genial style. Miss Leta Saunders gave two splendid readings, and was encored each time. She was followed by a reading by Miss Margaret Clarke and a solo by Miss Marjorie Post. Mr. Wallace Denike played a saxophone solo, and Miss Winnifred Barlow and Miss Nelly Thompson played piano solos, followed by a solo from Miss Margaret Clarke.

After the programme a dainty lunch was served. Each one found a partner for lunch by matching a slip of paper on which was written part of a proverb.

After lunch dancing was enjoyed until twelve o'clock.

Music was furnished during the evening by the Havelock Board Walk Orchestra.

Fowl Supper.

The annual fowl supper was held in the basement of the Methodist Church on Wednesday night last. A good crowd was in attendance, and everyone enjoyed the bountiful supper.

After supper was served a splendid programme was given. In the absence of the pastor, Rev. E. O. Seymour, Rev. G. R. Clare, of Norwood, acted as chairman.

The programme was as follows:
Address by Rev. G. R. Clare.
Organ solo by Miss Gladys Haig.
Reading, Miss Leta Saunders.
Solo, Miss Olive Haig.
Quartette, McBurney, Chiles, Wilkinson, and Campney.
Solo, Miss Velma Davidson.
Reading, Miss Burgess ,Norwood.
Male quartette.
Reading, Mr. Went, of Norwood.
Playette, given by the young people of Trent Riv : Church.
Solo, Miss Norma Haig.
Reading, Miss Leta Saunders.

The proceeds of the evening amounted to $170.00.

A flock of wild geese were seen flying south on Thursday morning last.

Mr. A. C. Denike attended the Rexall convention at Kingston this week.

Miss Della Carter of Smith's Falls, was the guest of Miss Evelyn Hooper on Thursday last, and attended the High School "At Home."

Mrs. Jean Moore visited friends in Toronto on Friday.

Mrs. G. Ball and children, of Lakefield, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wood.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

LOSE WEIGHT.

One-half grapefruit, 1 poached egg on 1 cup spinach, 1 large fig stuffed with 5 almonds blanched and shredded, 2 lamb chops, 4 tablespoons string beans, 1 cup shredded cabbage, 2 thin pieces crisp whole wheat toast, 1 thin slice gluten bread, 1 gluten roll, 1 pint skimmed milk.

Total calories, 1185. Protein, 243; fat, 370; carbohydrate, 372. Iron, .0244 gram.

Would you believe that two innocent tablespoonful of lemon ice would add 158 calories of carbohydrate to your menu? They will, for I planned a treat for you and then had to retract after figuring.

Stew dry figs until tender in water to cover. Do not sweeten. Drain and fill with chopped nuts and serve with a little of the liquor in which they were cooked.

The spinach is cooked in its own juice, finely chopped and seasoned with salt and pepper. Form into a nest-like shape and drop a poached egg in the hollow.

The cabbage is seasoned with salt and pepper and lemon juice. A few celery seeds scattered through the dish make a change.

The beans should be served for the reducing diet before seasoning with butter for the rest of the family.

GAIN WEIGHT.

One-half grapefruit with 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 large mashed potato cake, 2 slices broiled bacon diced in ½ cup white sauce on toast, 1 poached egg on 1 cup spinach with 1 tablespoon melted butter, 2 large stuffed figs with 2 tablespoons whipped cream, 1 cup cream of corn soup with 1 tablespoon whipped cream, ½ cup well buttered popcorn, 2 tablespoons diced potatoes in 4 tablespoons cream sauce, 2 lamb chops, 1 medium sized sweet potato (baked), 4 tablespoons string beans in 4 tablespoons cream, ½ cup shredded cabbage with 1 tablespoon chopped nuts and 2 tablespoons oil mayonnaise, 2 bran muffins, 1 cinnamon roll, 2 dinner rolls, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons lemon ice folded into 2 tablspoons whipped cream with 2 tablespoons hot thick maple sirup poured over the whole, 1 pint whole milk.

Remember that much depends on your height and occupation when figuring the required number of calories. If you are active in outdoor sports (including house-cleaning) you will need all of these fat calories even if you are short in stature. But if you are leading an inactive life, with just enough outdoor exercise to keep you fit, my suggestion is to decrease the whipped cream.

One-half cup stewed rhubarb, 2 tablespoons hash with 1 poached egg on toast, 4 tablespoons stewed tomatoes, 2 thin slices boiled cottage agus on 2 ounces lettuce with lemon juice, 1 small meringue filled with 1 tablespoon strawberry ice, 1 toasted bran roll, 1 gluten roll, 1 pint skimmed milk.

The kale is boiled with the ham, drained and finely chopped. Then it is put into a buttered baking dish with enough of the ham liquor poured over to make moist and reheated in a hot oven.

MERINGUES (10)

Whites 3 eggs, 1 cup granulated sugar, 3 tablespoons water, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Beat eggs on a platter with a wire whisk until stiff and dry. Add water when beginning to beat. Beat in half the sugar and add the rest carefully with as little beating as possible. Season with vanilla. Drop from a spoon onto an inch board covered with heavy letter paper and bake in a slow oven for half an hour. Scoop out the soft inside and fill with ice to serve.

Total calories (without ice), 950. Protein, 50; carbohydrate, 900.

One-half cup stewed rhubarb, 1 cup rolled oats with 1 tablespoon sugar and 1-2 cup cream, 2 tablespoons hash with 1 poached egg on buttered toast, 4 tablespoons stewed tomatoes, 2 ginger bread sandwiches, 1 cup cream of corn soup, 3 slices boiled cottage ham, 3 new potatoes in 1-2 cup cream sauce, 1 cup baked kale, 8 stalks asparagus on 2 ounces lettuce with 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 1 whole meringue filled with 4 tablespoons strawberry ice masked with 4 tablespoons whipped cream, 1 toasted bran roll, 1 tablespoon fig marmalade, 2 Parker House rolls, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 egg-nog, 1 pint whole milk.

The egg-nog is suggested for the mid-morning lunch as the breakfast is quite light.

Cut ginger bread in thin slices and make into sandwiches, using a mixture of Neufchatel cheese, chopped nuts, dates and a few grains of salt with enough sweet cream to make moist for the filling.

The soft part of the meringue is used with the ice and whipped cream for the gaining and normal diets.

Add sugar and butter to the stewed tomatoes for the gaining diet to increase the calories. When you realize that every 500 calories means about two ounces of fat for you it behooves you to aid and abet their increase.

MANY CASUALTIES IN JAVANESE QUAKE

Passenger Train Derailed — Twenty Persons Injured Near Miami.

ROTTERDAM, Nov. 15. — The Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant today published further details of the earthquake that shook Java last Wednesday. The newspaper states that earth-shock occurred at 1:10 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and was most severe at Wonosobo.

The quake appeared to run from north to south and the ground was said to have billowed like the sea. The houses of several local Dutch officials collapsed and other stone buildings like the post office and railway station were badly cracked but remained standing.

At a Wonosobo hotel, the ceiling is said to have collapsed while the guests were at luncheon, but only one European woman was injured. There were numerous casualties among the natives, however, and many families were said to be sleeping by the roadside following the destruction of their homes. The Sereja river was declared to be choked with thousands of dead fish.

The Javanese authorities have gone to inspect the damage. The district where the earthquake occurred is highly volcanic and it was surmised that the neighboring volcanoes, Sindoro and Sumding, had erupted.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

WHY RHEUMATISM OFTEN COMES BACK

The Usual Treatment Does Not Reach the Root of the Trouble.

Most treatments for rheumatism do no more than aim to keep down the poison in the blood and enable nature to overcome that particular attack. Then when the system becomes run down from any cause the disease again gets the upper hand and it all has to be done over.

Sufferers from rheumatism who have found their condition unrelieved or actually growing worse while using other remedies, would do well to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The tonic treatment with this medicine has proved in thousands of cases that it builds up the blood to to a point that enables it to cast out the rheumatic poisons through the regular channels, the bowels, kidneys and the skin. When this is done rheumatism is banished, and as long as the blood is kept pure and rich the patient will be immune from attack. This is fully proved by the case of E. E. Davis, J.P., of Dinsmore, Sask., who says:—"I feel it my duty to sufferers from rheumatism to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Some years ago I was a sufferer from this trouble and was confined to my room. I tried two doctors without relief and had become despondent. Then I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills recommended for this trouble and got six boxes. Before they were all gone I was able to get around on crutches, and when I was on the eleventh box I started to work. I have not missed a day's work since on account of rheumatism. On two occasions since I have had light touches of the trouble, but a box of the pills soon put me right. I strongly recommend rheumatic sufferers to give Dr. Williams Pink Pills a fair trial."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a bo from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BOILER EXPLODED.

Twenty-five Persons Missing From Steamer—Probably Drowned.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 15.—Twenty-five persons are missing, and are considered as having probably been drowned, in consequence of a boiler explosion on board a steamer on which they were returning to their homes. Sixty persons were making the passage and in addition to those missing twenty-two were severely injured.

ART SALESMAN JAILED.

Jean Vigoroux Sentenced For Breach of Trust To Dealer.

PARIS, Nov. 15.— Jean Vigoroux, who had been on trial for several days, charged with breach of trust in connection with his duties as representative in New York for the late Joseph Demotte, an art dealer, was found guilty Friday by a jury in the assizes court. The jury in its verdict found there were extenuating circumstances. Vigoroux, who had charged that various art objects he had sold in the United States for Demotte were spurious, was sentenced to one month in jail. The court also decreed that he should pay a fine of 25 francs and $3,775 as damages to the Demotte family.

INFLICT HAIR CUTS ON A HIGH SCHOOL

Louisiana Freshmen Seize Teachers, Boys and Girls, and Clip Off Their Locks.

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 15.—Three hundred Louisiana State University freshmen, whose heads were shaved by upper classmen, went on a rampage to-day and being things had quieted down had invaded the Baton Rouge High school, dragged students and teachers from the rooms and cut the hair of three women instructors, a number of girl students and scores of boys.

The wholesale shearing process at the University last night was an annual event, but the invasion of the High school was not on the fixed programme.

The freshmen visited the High school last year, but confined their activities to yelling and interrupting the classes. Members of the High School Faculty to-day, in anticipation of another visit, instructed pupils to remain in their seats. The freshmen invaded the school and finding doors locked in some instances proceeded to force them. Girls and boys were dragged out of their seats, many of the girls in tears, and taken into the halls and schoolyard, where freshmen armed with scissors and clippers went to work on them. Five of the teachers were surrounded, but two of them waded through the freshmen ranks

The feminine victims were not treated ruthlessly, their hair was not "ruined," as one of the girls termed it, but the tatches of the boys were butchered so badly all of them had to visit barber shops and have it clipped to the scalp.

CHRISTMAS "CHEER."

Two Canadian Government Boats Coming With 150,000 Cases of Liquor.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 15. — The Canadian goverament boats, the Canadian Highlander and the Canadian Skirmisher are on the way here from the United Kingdom with about 150,000 cases of liquor between them.

The first steamer to arrive will be the Canadian Highlander, due November 28, with eighty thousand cases of liquor, much of which is for interior provinces, Christmas stocks, English plum puddings and other goods for the festive season are coming on these ships and will be shipped to all the western Canadian provinces.

NEW COMPANIES LAUNCHED.

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press.)—The following incorporations are given public notice in this week's Canada Gazette:

Governor Radio Specialty Co., with a capital stock of $35,000 in the City of Montreal; Hearal Securities, $50,000, Toronto; Keates-Mitchell Co., $50,000, Montreal; United Livestock Growers, $100,000, Winnipeg; McPhee Publications, $50,000, Toronto; Baldwins, Montreal, $50,000, Montreal; Rose Oil Co., $100,000, Calgary.

SPECIAL SALES SPUR BUSINESS

Toronto Merchants Stimulate Trade—Colder Weather in West Quickens Demand.

COLLECTIONS FAIR.

WINNIPEG, November 15 (Canadian Press). — The weekly trade report of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association, Limited, states:

Halifax — Business conditions continue satisfactory and are generally showing a slight improvement.

St. John — Wholesale trade fairly satisfactory. Retail trade very good, weather being cooler and more seasonable. Collections fair.

Montreal — Boots and shoes are showing a good volume of business moving. A slight improvement noticeable in drygoods and collections fair. Groceries remain as previously reported. Hardware showing no marked improvement, but better conditions in all seasonable lines are looked for with the advent of cold weather.

Toronto — Wholesale trade inclined to be a little spotty, but on the whole fairly brisk. Better conditions in some lines looked for with colder weather. Retail trade: Merchants are still resorting to special sales in order to get the required volume, and trade on the whole is satisfactory.

Winnipeg — Improvement noted in wholesale trade last week in seasonable lines has been well advanced. Boots and shoes, clothing and drygoods feeling greater benefit. Similar conditions reflected in retail business. Collections fair to good.

Regina — Wholesale conditions are fair to good and colder weather has made a great improvement in business generally. Collections fair to good.

Saskatoon — Wholesale trade remains about the same and improvement noted in retail seasonable lines due to recent cold weather. Collections slow.

Calgary — Conditions in both wholesale and retail business continue to show signs of improvement. Collections are also better than for the last few months.

Edmonton — The trade generally reports good demand for seasonable lines. There is, however, considerable grain still in stock, and if this cannot be threshed till spring, the reduction in grade will seriously affect ultimate returns.

Vancouver — Wholesale trade all lines report business keeping up well. Retail trade fairly good. Collections fair to good.

ORILLIA CLUB ADDRESSED BY MR. J. WEARING

Peterborough City Solicitor Speaks at Weekly Kiwanis Luncheon.

NATIONAL OUTLOOK.

Ontario Is Generally Protestant, While Quebec Is Mostly Catholic.

ORILLA, Nov. 15.—At the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club yesterday the special speaker was Mr. Joseph Wearing, city solicitor of Peterborough, who gave an address on "The National Outlook for Kiwanians." After a few reminiscences of his early life between Orillia and Barrie, when he recalled, among other things, passing through Orillia hidden on top of a coal car when "beating his way" down home from the north country, Mr. Wearing spoke as follows:—

The geographical and historical situation in the country is full of complexities which, if not peculiar to us as a people, in any event create a problem which must be faced. For example, one of our provinces is separated from another by almost 3,000 miles, farther than Norway is from Spain, and while Nova Scotia looks to the Atlantic with all that the Atlantic means in British culture and connection, British Columbia looks to the Pacific with all the possibilities and problems and Oriental tendencies which the Pacific implies.

Then, too, we have a barrier of a different nature separating the two greatest provinces of the Dominion, which, by the circumstances of fate, happen to lie geographically side by side. Ontario, on the one hand, is generally speaking, British and Protestand, while Quebec, on the other hand, is, for the most part, French and Catholic, and here, of course, I use the terms in a racial and not a national sense. Quebec has an unique historical position, with certain constitutional rights guaranteed by treaty for all time, which give her somewhat of an advantage of the other provinces, and we may as well admit that Ontario occasionally looks at her sister province with a jealous eye resenting these rights. The fact is perfectly manifest that the racial and religious difference creates a very wide gulf between this banner province of Ontario and what, no doubt, the people there believe to be the even greater province of Quebec.

We also have a wide divergence between what we call the prairie provinces and all the rest, and particularly between the prairie provinces considered as a grain-growing unit, and Ontario and Quebec considered as a manufacturing unit. This chasm between the east and the west, I may say, too, shows every sign of growing wider as the years go by. The western provinces, situated on an immense alluvial plain and isolated by great snow-crested mountains on one side and the Great Lakes and the Algonquin chain on the other, are realizing more and more that they are bound to have probably for all time certain economic interests which are clearly and, perhaps, irrevocably antagonistic to the economic interests of the East. Experience shows, too, gentlemen, that no kind of divergence is perhaps so bitter and so fraught with danger as a divergence of economic interests, for these may be, and, indeed, frequently do, become matters of absolute life and death.

These, gentlemen, are some of the fundamental conflicting interests which divide us as a Dominion, interests which are fixed and peculiar to our situation. But, besides these, there are many other interests which, to a large extent, are incidental to every country, and especially to a new country such as ours. The stream of our national life has many cross currents which call for continual study in a sympathetic and intelligent manner on the part of public-spirited men and women. We have the producers of materials who want no protection for they sell all they produce in the world's markets, and the producers of goods which want protection, conflict here. We have the British Canadian and the European Canadian. We have the newly arrived immigrant and those Canadianized and well established—irritation there. We have conflicting interests in education, conflicting interests in religion, the ever-prevailing conflicting interests between capital and labour, and now the conflicting interest which, shall I say, is, so far, in a very liquid form, between the wets and the drys. Gentlemen, the wise mariner is guided by his chart, which indicates prevailing winds and cross currents. He does not shut his eyes to the markings upon his chart; neither does he ignore the winds and currents. So, too, the wise business man, the wise citizen, the wise statesman, will not ignore the eddies, the cross currents—yes, and the cataracts in the stream of our national life—but will seek for the guidance of some chart which will indicate the course of safety and progress.

It may be taken for granted, I think, that no country can ultimately succeed and continue without developing a homogeneous national life. Seeds of national discord ripen into civil strife. The nation built to splendour and power long ago by David and Soloman forged its fetters for the foreign invader when its people quarrelled among themselves and broke the kingdom in half. The supreme obstacle to the continuance of ancient Greece was the unconquerable habit of fighting between its own city states. The downfall of Rome can be distinctly traced, among other things, to the warring elements which came into the later Empire, and Austria collapsed in the last war because, even in the days of her glory, the authority of force alone held together a heterogeneous people. The ancient maxim, "United we stand; divided we fall," is as applicable today as ever, and the apple of discord will predicate the fall of nations in the future as it has so often in the past.

In the few minutes that remain to me, I would like to indicate three guiding stars which every wise citizen, mindful of the disturbing elements in our national life and eager for his country's good, can never afford to lose sight of, and I give these stars three magic names.

The first, Education, and I mean by education the leading out of real knowledge—the truth. They say our first parents ate of the tree of knowledge. Judging from subsequent history, do you not think that it may have been the tree of ignorance? What greater curse has come down through all the ages of man? Ignorance and blind folly, double-headed guardian of the gates of hell. And attendant upon ignorance you will always find prejudice, distrust, suspicion, envy. And the child of ignorance is hate every time. What I mean by education is the diffusion of the knowledge that most of the conflicting interests I have spoken of if properly considered have common factors far more important than the elements that are diverse; that in the last analysis the interests of capital are the interests of labour, that the city cannot exist without the country, nor the country prosper without the city; that Quebec can learn from Ontario and Ontario from Quebec; that even the east and west, by adopting a policy of give and take, can become welded together into a great and harmonious whole. I pray for the diffusion of knowledge because knowledge gives vision and without vision the people perish.

The second word I give is Fraternalism—the recognition everywhere that, whether we be French-Canadians, English-Canadians, or foreign immigrants, whether we be professional men, manufacturers, farmers or labourers, whether we be Protestant, Catholic, of Jew, we are brothers engaged in the common occupation of earning our daily bread, raising and educating our families, struggling with the common viscissitudes of life, and trying to establish homes and a competence for old age in this our adopted or inherited country. In great crises like war, we speedily recognise the kinship which a common country creates and we are ready to fight together for the preservation and integrity of our national home. The real need to-day is the spirit of co-operation which comes from the recognition of kindred ties to make this country a home to be worth while living and working for, and to be proud to really fight for if unfortunately the provocation should arise. The main reason that I joined the Kiwanis Club is because I believe it to be one of the greatest agencies at the present time for achieving this end.

The final magic word to be our guiding star I have just mentioned—Co-operation—and I couple with this—imagination, the harmonious working together of men and women with individual problems, but with a common aim—to make this land that God has given to us a nation "greater than has been." On this day of glorious memory, when we are thinking of our honoured dead, consecrate ourselves anew to the service of the country for which they gave their blood, it might be well to recall that this Dominion had its birth in the self-abnegation of one great leader and the generosity of another when they joined hands for the common weal. Out of the deadlock between MacDonald and Brown, leaders of opposing parties in the years preceding Confederation, the olive branch was extended by the Conservative leader, but for a time, Brown, the man of granite, remained hostile and unmoved. Then in 1864, one day in June, the love of country proved too great, and in open parliament, to the astonishment of those assembled, George Brown walked across the floor of the House and shook hands with John A. MacDonald. As truly as ever love gave birth, this act of love gave birth to this Dominion, and there we have an example of the co-operation of opposing forces wrought by the imagination of two men who saw in the future the greatness which this country is able to achieve.

So, gentlemen, let us, as true citizens and Kiwanians, strive for that diffusion of truth which shall tend to a sympathetic appreciation of the problems of the other man in another calling of life—perhaps of a different creed, perhaps of different blood, perhaps of another province, recognizing that he is a fellow-citizen and a brother, that we, in all parts of this broad land of plenty, in the only gifts men have a right to expect, the raw materials lying in the bosom of Mother Earth awaiting the brains and brawn of earth, sons to recreate into boundless wealth, that we join hands to make this country that we love so great, both in wealth and culture and in the character of her people, that she shall stand among the nations of the earth

"Like some tall cliff that rears its awful form,
Prone from the vale and midway cleaves the storm.
Though round its base the rolling clouds are spread,
Eternal sunshine settles on its head."

After the chairman had thanked Mr. Wearing for the address which had been delivered, stating that it was not the custom of Kiwanis Clubs to tender votes of thanks, Mr. M. B. Tudhope arose, stating that he wished to break the rule and express his appreciation for the amount of scholarship and inspiration contained in such a short speech.

NEWS OF HASTINGS.

A Good Crowd Present at Euchre Party—Personals.

HASTINGS, Nov. 15. — A good crowd was present at another of the euchre parties given by the Women's Catholic League on Wednesday night. The ladies' prize, a china biscuit jar, was won by Mrs. W. F. Barry, and the gentleman's prize, a live duck, was won by Mr. J. J. Jones.

About fifteen men left Hastings by the early morning train on Tuesday for Algoma District, where they expect to spend the winter in a lumber camp.

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Simpson have returned home after spending a few days in Toronto.

Rev. A. L. Brown, of Lindsay, will have charge of the services in the Methodist Church on Sunday.

The evening train was about four hours late on Thursday, the cause for same being a wreck down east of here, near Hoard's Station.

Messrs. Allan Simpson and E. S. Fairman and Misses Mabel Mitchell and Ena Atkinson, of Campbellford, were in Hastings on Friday.

Mrs. J. H. Hess is in Toronto visiting friends for a short time.

Miss Agnes Herniston has returned after visiting friends in Campbellford.

Mr. R. Powers spent Thursday in Peterboro.

Miss Marie Keogan, nurse-in-training at the Hotel Dieu, Windsor, is spending some time at her home here on account of ill-health.

Mr. William Boyle was in Peterboro on Thursday, where he visited his son, who has been ill in St. Joseph's Hospital, but who is gradually improving.

Mrs. Sherman Scriver, who has been visiting friends in Toronto, has returned home.

YOUNG MEN FOR WINTER FAIR

KEENE, Nov. 15.—Mr. McCrae, district agricultural representative, is taking a team of young men to the Winter Fair in Toronto to represent the county in judging.

Those going are—Earl Doris, Otonabee; Peter Mather, Otonabee; and Harry Webber, of Cavan. Everyone wishes them the greatest success, and hope that Peterborough County may bring home the highest honors of the Winter Fair.

Judging will be in horses, cattle, swine and sheep. Earl Doris and Peter Mather are students of last year's winter school held in Keene. The people of Otonabee will be well represented by these two highly respected and talented young farmers of this community. Great praise is due Mr. F. C. McCrae for his untiring efforts in coaching the boys.

Wells are Dry.

Rain is badly needed again for the farmers to finish up their fall ploughing. Some are already complaining about some of the wells going dry.

Mr. W. A. Anderson is busy with men and teams stumping and cleaning up some more land on the main road.

MAKE JUNK PILE

The junk-pile is an eyesore to many farmers, but my experience last summer taught me that it can be turned into a source of income if rightly handled.

On the farm where I worked, there was a large bin partitioned off into six compartments and labelled thus: "IRON," "COPPER," "BRASS," "ZINC," "RUBBER," "PAPER & RAGS."

This bin was used to accommodate the waste material which came continually from the barn, garage, and dwelling-house, and when any utensil or implement was discarded by a member of the family, it was assigned to the place prepared for it.

When a dealer came by there was no time lost in gathering up the material. A pair of scales was hung to a rafter and the sale was made in a business-like manner, without guesswork or argument. Sometimes, when a little money was needed quickly, the farmer loaded his wagon from this bin and made a trip to town. The load often sold for $20.

It cost only a little time and a few pieces of waste lumber to construct the bins and the habit of depositing the material therein was quickly learned. The collection consisted of everything marketable, from zinc fruit jar covers to brass lamp burners and automobile tires. Aside from the money value, this arrangement gave the farmer a neat appearing farm.—F. R. Cozzens.

UNSUCCESSFUL WIVES.

The Gorgeous Girl, Her Rouge, Mud Packs, Etc.

By CYNTHIA GREY.

Had anyone but me knows that, Catharine will be 36 her next birthday. You'd guess her age at about 25. She's as slim as a silver birch tree, and there isn't a line in her face. I never have seen a Follies girl who is any prettier than Catharine when she's dressed for a party. And her clothes are wonderful.

So I was not prepared for the shock I had about a month ago when I stopped in at her house on my way down town. George, her husband, was just leaving. He looked gloomier than usual.

Her door was open and I went in. Catherine was sitting up in her lace-trimmed bed, having her coffee. But I hardly recognized her.

Her head was tied up in a white cloth, there was a rubber strap under her chin, and her face and neck were smeared with a sort of gray plaster. She was wearing a large pair of white cotton gloves.

"My word, what's happened to you?" I asked. "Automobile wreck?"

"Nothing," she said. "But don't make me laugh or the mud will crack. Sit down and have some coffee, and I'll tell you all about it."

"Mud?" I repeated. "Mud?"

"Don't pretend you haven't heard of a mud-pack for the face," Catharine said. "You know it's supposed to remove lines and wrinkles. The rubber under my chin is only a strap I wear at night to keep from having a double chin, and the cloth tied around my head is just to hold the water-wave combs in."

"Why the gloves?" I asked. I simply had to know.

"Just to keep the cold-cream on my hands from soiling the coverlet," Catharine explained.

I went over to the dressing-table. Beside the cream was a smaller box labeled "Nose Cream" and a bottle of "Muscle Oil." There was a large white tray filled with rouge and lipstick and long eye-brow pencils. There were five bottles of French perfume, and a great jar of hair pomade.

"What does Jack think of all this?" I couldn't help saying.

"Oh, he's used to it now," Catharine said lightly. "When we were first married, he couldn't bear to see me with cold cream on my face even. But I just told him I was going to keep young."

"How can he kiss you goodby through that mud-pack?" I went on.

"Oh, he doesn't any more, anyway. I hardly see him in the morning. You know, yourself, how matter-of-fact married people are.

But I know that not all of them are matter-of-fact. And that if they are, something's wrong. And it's easy to see that Catharine has failed as a wife because she doesn't care how she looks when her husband's around as long as the rest of the world thinks she's beautiful and young.

"DIAMOND DYES"

COLOR THINGS NEW

Beautiful home dyeing and tinting is guaranteed with Diamond Dyes. Just dip in cold water to tint soft, delicate shades, or boil to dye rich, permanent colors. Each 15-cent package contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint lingerie, silks, ribbons, skirts, waists, dresses, coats, stockings, sweaters, draperies, coverings, hangings, everything new.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind and tell your druggist whether the material you wish to color is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.

LONESOME.

Are you ever lonesome? Prof. Goetsch of Munich studies ants and finds that, if isolated from other ants, they die even though they get the best of care. Goetsch says they don't die of lonesomeness but because they are unable to satisfy their instinctive desires to make homes and raise families. Such is the main function of all forms of life. When people fail to fulfil their natural functions, nature begins to destroy them—usually by maladies for which the doctors can find no material reason. The real environment is psychic.

STIMULATION.

If you have an exceptional craving for candy or liquor you can get rid of it by eating more vegetables, according to Lucy Gillett, the nutrition expert.

However, sugar and liquor are Siamese twins. And the desire for them is more mental than physical. If there is any mental or emotional stimulation in vegetables, it has yet to be found. People stimulate their pancreatic gland by sugar or alcohol to get mental exhilaration rather than physical.

A HAPSBURG.

Little Otto Hapsburg, elder son of the former Empress Zita of Hungary, already imagines himself ruling a nation. Playing with his soldiers, he leads his armies against those of his brother Robert, at his mother's villa in Requfeto, Spain.

EARLY LIFE OF JESUS CHRIST

The Reported Discovery by Professor Martino-Fusco, Italian Scholar.

Great interest has naturally been aroused by the discovery of the long lost books of Livy, but a far more world-wide interest attaches to the report that an early life of Christ has been brought to light by the Italian scholar, Professor Martino-Fusco. Outside the Gospel narratives no contemporary account of our Lord has ever been found, so that if this manuscript should prove to be genuine its discovery is an event of the first importance. It must, however, be added, that our leading authorities are more or less sceptical on the subject and await fuller information, which it is to be hoped will not be unduly delayed.

All that has been permitted to transpire concerning the book is that it was written about the year 38 A.D. So, at least, it is claimed. The date, of course, is all important. If the claim can be substantiated, we may have here a piece of first hand evidence of inestimable value. On the other hand, if the work should turn out to be a second century production, it might be only another of the many apocryphal writings of that time like the so-called gospels of St. James and St. Thomas. How the date given has been arrived at is a subject of considerable speculation. Professor Martino Fusco's success with the books of Livy suggests that it would be unwise to assume hastily that his judgment has been led astray.

It is worth remarking that if the date referred to should be substantially correct, the book must have been written when Tacitus and Josephus were young men; but it evidently had no influence on them if indeed they ever saw it. All the world knows how the great historian of ancient Rome dismissed Christianity in a single paragraph as a dangerous superstition. He confused the Christians with the Jews, as most Romans did in that age, and put them down as a mere sect. That paragraph is famous; it is one of the most celebrated paragraphs in all literature, for it is known to tens of thousands of Christian people who never read a line of the Annals, nor even the Agricola. It furnishes the most convincing proof that could be imagined that the world had no conception of the spiritual forces that were at work in its midst. It was not until the second century that the scales commenced to fall from men's eyes. Then the fashionable ladies of Rome began to be interested in the new faith, and every author who could write a book on the subject was sure of a public. It is to be hoped the volume lately discovered by the Italian professor is not one of these books.

Josephus was the very antithesis of Tacitus, but he had at any rate one redeeming feature. He was very human, and many of us have a sneaking regard for the old man, whatever may think of the historian. He also considered that Christianity was worth a paragraph and no more. But apparently he could not quite make up his mind which side to take, so he compromised and worked out a sort of literary equation. Jesus had done wonderful works, he wrote; He was the Christ. And then he hastened to add that "the tribe of Christians is not extinct at this day." It is a delightfully characteristic touch which sufficiently illustrates the Jewish historian's point of view.

THE STAFF OF LIFE

A proverb that is familiar to most of us on account of its noteworthy aptness and truth is the one which tells us about "One man's meat being another man's poison." It does not take much probing and searching of the memory before we can recollect some particular case which would serve as an admirable illustration of this well-known saying.

Who has not met Mr. Fidge, who detests beef, butter, bacon, and buns, but delights in fish, fruit, farola, fowl, and his neighbour, Mr. Fudge, who "can't abide" fowl, farola, fruit, or fish, but goes into a state of ecstasy over the merits of buns, bacon, butter, and beef? Just as we rarely find two people who think exactly alike about all things, so it is we never find two persons with precisely the same palate. Fudge will never be able to understand the peculiar tastes of Fidge, and vice versa. There is one important article of diet, however, over the merits of which every one is in complete accord—namely, bread.

Yes. Not taking into consideration certain savages, we all more or less depend on the "staff of life," and "give us each day our daily bread" is one of our most earnest prayers.

Yet such a familiar object is the household loaf to our eyes that we very seldom give a thought to its composition or to the principles embodied in its manufacture. We know that its main ingredient is flour, and that flour is derived from grain, but generally our knowledge extends no further than this.

Now, the chief constituent of flour is starch, which is absolutely indigestible in the raw state, and the main purpose of baking is to break up the starch contained in the flour into such a form that the digestive juices of the stomach are enabled to act upon it and convert it into a variety of sugar known as dextrose, which We absorbed into the blood stream, and forms a valuable source of energy and bodily heat.

Besides flour, bread contains, among other things, small quantities of water, milk, salt, lard, and yeast, and the process of baking consists in first mixing all the ingredients together which go to compose the bread "batch." In modern bakehouses the mixing is performed by machinery, after which the dough is put into bread "pans" and allowed to remain for a specified length of time. It is during this time that the first chemical change takes place, and the dough "rises."

This is the most important period in the manufacture of bread, for should the "batch" fail to "rise," owing to faulty yeast or some similar cause, the result is a sodden, heavy, indigestible loaf, which is utterly unfit for human consumption.

Good yeast is most important to the baker, for it is this by-product from the distilleries which induces fermentation in the "batch," the gas set up by the fermentation causing the dough to "rise," or swell. The particular gas that is generated is carbonic acid gas, the same gas that is contained in soda water, lemonade, and all the so-called "aerated" waters.

When the dough has risen sufficiently it is ready for the second part of the process—that of the actual baking. The "leavened" dough as it is placed in the oven contains, as we have stated, imprisoned carbonic acid gas. The heat of the oven causes great expansion of this gas, with the result that the loaf increases greatly in size. But, at the same time, the heat causes a "crust" to form on the outside of the loaf, composed chiefly of dextrin (a substance formed when flour is exposed to heat), and this crust prevents the imprisoned gas from escaping.

The internal pressure caused by the expanding gas enables us to have a loaf which is "light," palatable, and easily digested. The holes and flaky layers which can be seen in a slice of bread represent cavities which contained carbonic acid gas.

Though the principle of baking is the same in all cases, slight alterations in detail are necessary in the baking of various "fancy" breads, &c. Rye bread is made from rye flour, wholemeal bread from wholemeal flour, while malt bread is specially prepared bread with the addition of refined extract of malt, and so forth.

In the baking of cake and pastry, however, yeast is seldom used, "baking powder" being preferred. The heat decomposes the chemicals contained in the "baking powder," generating carbonic acid gas, which "blows up" the "batter," or "sponge," in the same manner as bread, ensuring a light and dainty product.

HAIRDRESSING

Since the hair, from the earliest times, has ever been woman's pride and crowning glory, each age has a new style of hairdressing peculiar to itself. In England, when the Anglo-Saxons came over and settled, we learn that the women always admired long hair, the Angles allowing it to hang loose on their shoulders, while the Saxons twisted the strands into long curls. They were intensely particular about its color. If they had not been gifted by nature with yellow locks, they took sufficient care to acquire a golden hue themselves. When the Norman ladies took up their abode in Britain, a fashion somewhat similar to "bobbed" hair was introduced. This was known as the "short cut."

Cutting off several inches from the hair, absurd as it may appear to some, is surely not so ludicrous as the customs of the hairdressers were in the merry Stuart days. At that time curly "love-locks" were cunningly pinned on the head, to patch up the too apparent paucity of a lady's natural stock.

Queen Elizabeth was in the habit of adorning herself with wigs of most eccentric hue and form. Not content with choosing a color and adhering to her choice, she had several sets of wigs, all different, so that often her own scanty locks were hidden by hair sometimes red, sometimes brown, and at other times black.

Her Scottish cousin, Mary, when shut up for nineteen years in prison, ordered fresh additions to be made to her hair, so that her maids, the "Three Marys," were kept busy with devising and practising new styles of hairdressing. Of Mary Seaton, the unhappy girl-queen said, "She is the finest busker (dresser of hair) that is to be seen in any country."

In the Augustan age, perhaps, the most extravagant fashions of hairdressing were followed. The society butterflies had to endure hours of weariness and torture before they were fit to appear in public. Their hair was first thickly greased and covered with fine powder, then drawn tightly back over a high pad and kept in place by means of tiny, concealed hairpins. The whole coronet of hair was then adorned with artificial curls, and graced with all kinds of flowers and precious stones.

In the mystic and romantic eastern countries the hair is just as important a factor in the ladies' life. The fashionable women in Japan make their hair very smooth and glossy, and weat it in the form of a large plait. To keep their hair in perfect order they sleep at night on a wooden pillow, on which they rest their neck. The Chinese damsels have their hair dressed by means of bamboo, by which an adequate framework is constructed for their high coiffures, which sometimes are twisted into the form of flowers, vultures, or some other fantastic designs. A few of the Moslems shave their head, leaving only a tuft of fairly long hair on the crown. This, they believe, serves as a handle to lift them to heaven when they die.

Amongst the savages we find various styles. Sometimes the hair is frizzed and curled until it sticks out all round the head. In other cases, it is worn hanging lank over the shoulders, its only ornament consisting of a band of feathers. On most occasions, among the higher ranks of uncivilized women, the chief adornments are bones, pieces of shell, beads, nuts or flowers.

Hairpins, nowadays, are not the same as they were in the days of our forefathers. The old Saxon word is "hair-needle," which seems to have been an instrument of torture. Later, the meaning became slightly removed, and the pin or "needle" was regarded as a thing for curling the hair, process being also a time of torture. Hairpins seem to have been in use from the earliest times. In the Bible itself, we find Isaiah denouncing the vanity of the women and saying that in time to come the Lord will "smite with a scab the crowns of the head of the daughters of Zion," and in that day will "take away the headbands and the earrings, the wimples and the crisping-pins, and it shall come to pass that instead of wellset hair there shall be baldness."

Such an awful fate must have struck terror into the hearts of the dusky Hebrew maidens.

The lady usually conceals her hair pins as carefully as possible when binding her tresses, but her Japanese sister, on the other hand, considers them the most important part of her toilette; and, in consequence, makes them as conspicuous as possible.

SKYWARD.

Skyscrapers 750 feet high are coming in great numbers, it's predicted at a meeting of National Association of Building Owners and Managers. This is made possible by recent improvements in express elevator service, operators handling the cars by push buttons. Stops will be made every tenth floor. There'll be local elevators for each deck of 10 floors.

High land values are compelling man to resort to inventive ingenuity that is magical. The high building and the elevator are simply attempts to escape from land rentals.

INDEPENDENT WOMAN USELESS AND HOPELESS

Never Amounts to a "Hill of Beans"—Dabblers Where Men Excel.

Charles Eliot, former president of Harvard University, in addressing members of an organization called Harvard Dames, said:

"Marriage is the most important thing in life."

And he added that the desire for feminine independence is a delusion entertained only by the extreme minority. He said a mouthful.

You've got to hand it to those college presidents. Every once in a while they stumble on real wisdom.

Marriage is necessarily the most important thing in life because, in our present state of civilization, it is the only recognized source of life. Very few people seem to realize this. Marriage is a joke to many. Only the other day a woman of wealth took her sixth husband. Marriage is merely a hobby with her.

And the silly way in which one marriage after another ends in the divorce court shows that this institution is held rather lightly by a great many people.

The idea of feminine independence, which is one of the fads of this era, is one of the big, contributing causes of the lowering of the marriage relation in the public mind.

The truly independent woman is as useless as she is hopeless. She might just as well be a man for all the good that her womanhood does her. The woman who is "emancipated" from her husband, her home, her children or the children of other women, never amounts to a hill of beans in this world, excepting as a dabbler in some pursuit in which men usually excel or as a mischief-maker.

As to this dabbling business. When you hear women talking about their yearning to develop their souls along the line of art or music or literature, you can put it all down to common bunk. No woman has ever accomplished anything in any of those lines, compared with what men have done. And they never will. Maybe it's the fault of Eve.

The best they can do is to act what men have composed, or to arouse men by their faith and intuition. And in 999 cases out of a thousand they are happier when they do their arousing at home.

Whenever you hear the vociferous ladies of the platform and the clubs and the "organizations" and the "movements" clamor for the liberty of their down-trodden sisters ask them for their credentials. Every sweet, honest and happy housewife will tell you that she never authorized them to speak for her.

Unfortunately—most unfortunately—all women are not born to a happy married life. Any more than all are born beautiful. But no form of independence can ever make them really happier.

GLIMPSES OF NEW YORK.

Sunday Morning Wash Lines On East Side—Radio Discord.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—You can see through the walls of New York homes by looking at the clothes lines. The Sunday morning wash is more eloquent than that of any other day.

On an East Side or Harlem line you will see a pair of faded overalls and a denim coat, the only working suit of a laborer. Consequently Sunday is the only day his wife may wash it.

At another tenement window, one suit of men's heavy underwear, diapers of a young baby, rompers of an older baby, school dress for an older girl.

Then atop some of the apartment houses where working girls live. One line with one pair of silk stockings, one each of undergarments. Another line with half-a-dozen pairs of stockings and no undergarments. There is only one deduction to be made. The young lady who hangs out no undergarments wears silk ones. They would fade if hung in the sun.

This clever observation is not original with your modest correspondent. A young lady read between the wash lines for him.

She's a pretty waitress in an up-town restaurant. She tells me that every day she finds notes and telephone numbers under plates where flirtatious gentlemen have eaten. She never answers any of them.

But she gives them to her sister and her sister passes them around among her girl friends.

At Forty-sixth Street and Fifth Avenue an auto dashed up on the sidewalk and pinned a man against its fender. A plate glass window crashed and cut off the man's leg.

When a policeman ordered the driver of the car to rush the man to a hospital he answered, "I don't think I ought to get my car all covered with blood."

No sooner had he uttered that noble phrase than a bystander stepped up and smashed him full in the face and gave him a bloody nose.

One of my neighbours was up on the roof, pounding a hole in the wall and disturbing early morning sleep. He was installing a radio aerial.

After a time I heard another neighbour open his window and shout, "Hey! Move that wire so it does'nt dangle in front of my window."

The man on the roof readjusted the wire and remarked, "Now, I guess you'll be happy."

The man below angrily slammed his window shut.

The two do not speak now.

All of this exterior paraphernalia is not installed by radio experts. More than one man has fallen out with his neighbour because of crossed wires of their so-called wireless sets.

A SMART COSTUME

A few interesting touches rescue this frock from the commonplace. They are the wide, lace-trimmed linen collar and cuffs, and the large square buttons of black with white circles mounted on a strip of white braid that trim the waist and skirt and the pleated section inserted in the front. The material is black moire. The smart little hat is of white felt.

WEALTH.

The old saying, "Shirtsleeves to shirtsleeves in three generations," is about ready for the ash heap. Tendency increases to put big estates "in trust" so heirs can't squander them.

Take the estate left by the late J. Pierpont Morgan. He created trust funds of about 10 million dollars. An accounting in court shows that these funds have yielded almost five millions income in seven and a half years. And the principal remains intact.

The basic purpose of the inheritance tax is to break up huge fortunes. This purpose will be frustrated until "trust funds" are taken into account. A trust fund is a scientific method of perpetuating wealth.

THE WHITE INDIAN NOT A DISCOVERY

Dr. Wissler Expresses His Opinion.

"Just as among plants and animals, new species are infrequently thrown off without apparent explanation, so it it, I believe, with the white Indian who is causing such a hubbub among anthropologists of this country," said Dr. Clark Wissler, curator of the New York Museum of Natural History, according to an American paper.

The white Indians were sent recently from the Panama by the Marsh expedition.

"I should attribute this form of Indian to mutation or an accident in pigmentation," continued Dr. Wissler, "rather than to say that the type results from 'intermingling of African and native American whites after an age of degeneration.' Purely accidental—just as it is the case persons born with six toes or fingers!"

"White Indians! Why, they're not a new discovery. As far back as the time Columbus discovered America—and, yet, even before that, they have been known to exist. Among the Zuni Indians in New Mexico, the San Blas in Panama, the Amazons, and, in certain regions near the Missisippi, blond Indians of the type described by despatches from the Marsh expedition have been found. Never to my knowledge, however, has a whole community been discovered before.

"The white Indian heretofore known is somewhat Albanian in type, although his eyes are rarely pink, usually blue or brown. He has a round face, straight blond hair, light skin, high cheekbones, thick lips, and flat nose. His eyes are often almond-shaped like the Chinaman or Finn. The piebald or spotted skinned Indian is not uncommon. This type is also found frequently among the negroes."

FUNERAL.

A pet black poodle dog was poisoned and buried in the same casket with his owner—a woman, 57, of Ferndale, N. Y. This she provided for in her will. The Hereafter will not satisfy her unless the dog has a soul and it can accompany her. For complete satisfaction, there'll have to be a separate heaven for every individual. No two would agree on specifications. One would want dogs present, lots of them, another no dogs at all.

HOT WATER AND CALOMEL

Cleans and Tones Up the Whole System.

You need not fear any bad aftereffects, no salts or Seidlitz are needed when you take the new tanol calomel. It is the best medicine in the world for headaches, indigestion, gas on the stomach, constipation, high blood pressure, bad taste in mouth, rheumatism, poisoned system, etc. One tanol calomel tablet before meals or two at bedtime and a cup or two of hot water first thing in the morning will wash all the previous day's wastes, gases and toxins from the system making you feel better, and better, work better, digest beter, and be 100 per cent. better in every way. Get a few of these simple tablets from Webber's Drug Store, and you will be surprisd how effective they are.

WATCH FOR THE MONEY

Far beneath the dredge boat sh own here lies the British ship Lutine sunk in 1799 off Holland with $15,00 0,000 in gold and silver. Dutch salvage engineers now hope to see that treasure come pouring up with the sand through their suction pipes.

VOICES FROM THE GRAVE

Next—There's no other business where customers have to wait as long for service as in the barber shop. This worries a reader. He writes, urging barbers to work out some sort of system by which customers could make definite appointments and do away with the delay.

Doctors do it. So do dentists.

Going to the barber shop for shave or haircut, however, is more than a business transaction. The barber shop has almost magical powers of rejuvenating a man's mental and physical condition. A haircut, a shave, a shampoo, a scalp tonic—all these refreshen the spirits. We may have rushed nervously in. But usually we stroll light-heartedly forth.

Give a down-and-out tramp a clean shave. Trim his hair. He is 50 per cent. rescued back to the ranks of respectability.

Even waiting for our turn in a chair has its advantages. Maybe the delay is annoying to keyed-up nerves, but it calms us down, rests us.

Men, they have taken away the livery stable from us, and the "poor man's club" at the corner saloon. Of all ancient gathering places of the bewhiskered sex, only the barber shop remains.

For centuries men have gathered there to exchange gibes, hear the latest gossip and, in later generations, peruse the racier sporting publications.

It's altogether a myth, that customers object to the barber's endless flow of conversation. Where else could we get the "low down" on politics, the whispered word about high steppers, the "dope" on ponies?

Few come more intimately into our lives than the barber. He holds the secret that our hair is turning grey or a bald spot enlarging under a wave of hair carefully brushed to conceal it. To him the customer confesses the reason of a "big head."

Barbering lost much of its human atmosphere when electricity took hold of the clippers and massage. But there's still a lot of the ancient and traditional around the barber shop and its customs. In it we make our last stand against the forces that have broken up the other genial congregating places. As for putting it on a scientific service basis, let us at least wait until we learn whether the invasion of ladies coming to get their hair bobbed and necks shaved is permanent.

NICE COMBINATIONS

Blouses of white kasha or broadcloth are combined very beautifully with skirts of black satin or velvet.

HOW YOU CATCH COLDS

Epidemics of colds are beginning to go the rounds. Their season has started. A doctor writes, urging people to do away with the handkerchief and use, instead, squares of cheesecloth which can be burned later, along with germs.

The use of the handkerchief is the most unsanitary and unhealthful practice of civilized man.

Going into the family wash, it is apt to spread its cargo of germs. Few people boil clothes long enough to kill germs. To kill the tuberculosis germ, for instance, requires as much as 20 minutes of boiling.

Cheesecloth is cheap. It's easily burned. Common-sense suggests its use at all times, certainly when we have a cold.

A person with a cold expectorates in the street. The sputum dries up and the germs are blown around in the dust. Inhaled, they transfer the cold to other victims. Safety wouldn't be assured even if we wore gas masks over nose and mouth, for germs can enter the body through the eyes.

Diseases cannot be curbed unless every one of us is decent enough to do his part to safeguard others. And the common cold is easily the worst malady we have. The average person has several colds a year. He feels wretched. His work suffers. Probably he's confined to the house a few days. Nationally the thing mounts up into a tremendous economic loss.

We are constantly being attacked by germs. Whether we are able to hold them in check depends largely on our powers of bodily resistance. Plenty of sleep; moderation in eating; regular exercise and lots of fresh air; all these help.

"Colds" are improperly named. They might be better known as "hots," since they usually bring fever. Apparently they got their popular name because they're most prevalent in cold weather.

Above all, we should mark and remember this false notion—the popular saying, "Feed a cold and starve a fever." This saying originated more than 2000 years ago when Hippocrates, the Greek "father of medicine," said: "If we feed a cold, you will have to starve a fever." This time has twisted his words and thereby falsified their meanyon. Hippocrates was right. Starve regi ucold.

MENUS FOR A FAMILY.

Dinner—Pot roast of beef with dumplings, mashed potatoes, creamed cauliflower, hearts of lettuce with French dressing, canned peaches, sponge cake, milk, coffee, whole wheat bread.

Of course the kiddies under school age will not have the cheese sauce over their poached eggs, but except for this omission they may use the menus suggested. The question of dumplings has been mentioned before. However, just as a reminder, dumplings are considered indigestible for junior tummies.

Cream of Parsnip Soup.

Two or three parsnips, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-2 small onion, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper.

Wash and scrape parsnips and cook in boiling water until tender. Add salt to water the last fifteen minutes of cooking. Use as little water as possible to cook the vegetable and use the water in the soup. Rub parsnips through puree strainer. There should be from 1 1-2 to 2 cups puree. Melt butter, add onion sliced and cook over a slow fire for five minutes. Stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Strain over parsnip puree and return the whole to the fire to make very hot. Season with salt and pepper nd serve.

Creamed Spinach.

One pound spinach, 2 hard boiled eggs, 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper.

Wash spinach through several waters. If the spinach has much waste, more than a pound will be needed but 1 pound of fresh, clean spinach is enough. Put the well washed spinach in a tightly covered sauce pan and cook in its own juice and the water clinging to the leaves for twenty minutes. Remove cover and cook as dry as possible. Season with salt and chop. Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Season with salt and pepper and add spinach and the chopped hard boiled whites of the eggs. Arrange triangles of hot buttered toast on a warm platter and pour over spinach mixture. Sprinkle with the yolks of the eggs forced through a ricer. A dash of paprika over the yolks is attractive.

Pot Roast of Beef.

One and one-half pounds lean beef, 1 onion, 1 small carrot, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 cups canned tomatoes, 2 cups boiling water.

Wipe meat and cut in 1 1-2 inch cubes. Sear meat on all sides. Put meat, onion sliced, carrot sliced, boiling water and tomatoes into a casserole and cook in a slow oven for three hours. Add salt the last hour of cooking. The liquor can be thickened with 2 tablespoons flour rubbed into 2 tablespoons butter if dumplings are not made.

PAPER.

In the year 1939 Canada will furnish four-fifths of the newsprint paper used by American newspapers. So estimates Lord Rothermere, the foremost British publisher. Canada already supplies half of our newsprint.

This would be a dangerous near-monopoly in the hands of any but the most friendly of neighbor nations. A monopoly in newsprint would be more powerful than almost any form of political power—if it weren't that the thing that counts is the message the ink carries, rather than the paper itself.

The Declaration of Independence would fill only part of a newspaper column. But look at its power. Message, not space, is what counts. Your newspapers are going to get smaller as the years slip by.

PURPLE POPULAR.

All shades of purple are very smart indeed for the young and old alike and for daytime as well as evening.

FARM LIFE AND ITS PROBLEMS

FARMER HAS A MODERN MIRACLE IN HIS SHED AS TOLD BY THE MOON IN THIS QUAINT TALE OF WONDERS THAT FOLKS TAKE FOR GRANTED

James Whitcomb Riley, Lover of Humble Things, Sees Beauty in a Binder and Poetry in the Shadow That Sweeps Over a Wheat Field.

A NEW KIND OF FAIRY STORY.

Common Implement Has In It the Magic of the Trees, the Ore of the Mines and the Chemicals of the Hills—Welded By Man.

By MARCUS DICKEY.

Herewith is the fairy tale—I shudder to call it that. I have not had any notes "to help me over many a slippery place in my memory"—but, tale or whatever you may call it, here it is. Again and again I have said to myself that I would never try to reproduce this fairy tale. Riley told it to me one day when we were riding along the old Strawtown Road, a highway leading north to east of Indianapolis—a day of days in my memory.

"There is a mystery," Riley said while bowling along the highway, pointing to a binder at the roadside. "The farmer thinks he understands it. He is mistaken. He has not the slightest acquaintance with a million operations that contributed to its structure. He could not make one in a thousand years. Like Hiawatha's canoe, all the life of the forest is in that binder—the magic of the trees, the lightness of the ash, the toughness of the hickory, the strength of the oak; the ore of the mines is in it, and the chemicals of the hills, and the cattle of the plains.

"There is a poem, another miracle," he remarked, his eye following the waves of shadow over the wheatfield. "The farmer says he raised the crop. Did he? The shock rows around the field are his. He ploughed the ground and sowed the seed, but very soon his agency ends. Did he envelop the earth with the ocean we call the atmosphere? The little spot of ground—his harvest field—compared to the whole earth is a hundred times smaller than a pin point, yet a million wonder-working fairies—invisible forces, chemical agents we call them nowadays—have been working there for the farmer since last September, working while he slept, while he and his children went to visit old Aunt Mary.

"What part did he play in turning his little farm towards the sunrise this morning? How many clouds did he create in the tropics, and what had he to do with the currents that guided them to his neighborhood? A million billion sun waves reached his field at sunrise. They had travelled thirty or forty million miles while he laced his shoes. What part did he play in attracting them? The sunbeams, the trees, and the clouds contribute to the loveliness of his landscape, and he is a part of it, or ought to be, but he did not create it. In humility let him behold it and teach his family to love it. I have no patience with the self-sufficient man who struts about his premises trying to amaze the Almighty."

After a pause he launched into the story of "The Binder That Found Itself."

In telling the tale he was the binder naively relating incidents to the moon, just as Balzac became a tree when narrating the life of the forest.

"This is my birthday—six years old," said the Binder, glancing up at the Moon in the treetops.

"How charming!" returned the Moon. "Time rolling on for binders as it does for me and the stars! Where were you born?"

"In Ohio," answered the Binder; "that is, I was finished there ready for shipping. Then they sent me to a drowsy Hoosier town where men put me together. It was a joyous day when I began to chatter. The sun smiled and children stood around and clapped their hands gleefully, their little hearts bobbing up and down like corks on the water. And well they might, for I was told there was no end of perplexities in my development. There were many blue days in the factory; men put their heads together twenty years or more, I guess, while at work on my knotter and trip finger. My elevating apron looks simple enough, but it made the man crazy who invented it. When I was ready to be of use in the world the farmer came, and they detached my reel and tongue and other parts, which made me tremble, for I was in doubt whether the farmer could put me together again."

"I congratulate you," said the Moon, "that all ended so well. I presume you kissed the town and the children good-by?"

"Heartily," was the answer.

The binder had behind it a sturdy line of progenitors, and the Moon, being an old-time observer of such things, was in every way glad of it. The way those two cronies gave the present moment wings and sought spectres in the deeps of eternity was a marvel of the first order—just as if they had gleams of remoter worlds and had the magic power to find things in the light of them.

"Your ancestors," remarked the Moon roguishly, on entering the world of phantoms, "did not have to fish for compliments."

"True enough," returned the Binder. "Have you seen traces of my family line? They run back, I am told, to the first century, back to the reaping cart in Gaul."

"I remember it," said the Moon, "and the old brown ox that pushed it into the grain. He was a miserable ox—the Tantalus of his time—all day his nose in smelling distance of food but never near enough to eat it. He had to feed at night. He bellowed a great deal about his troubles, and seldom recalled them without becoming sultry in body and mind."

(This is a two-part story to be concluded on the next Farm Page.)

STORING POTATOES FOR BEST RESULTS

Ventilation Is Necessary Just As For Other Root Crops.

Potatoes of only good quality should be stored over winter. They should be allowed to dry a little in the field, after digging, before being put into storage.

They may be stored in open bins in a cool cellar, or buried in the ground. If in bins, they should be only a foot deep, to prevent loss from decay.

For burial, a shallow hole, about 6 to 12 inches deep with a two-inch layer of straw, serves the purpose. Place the potatoes on the straw, cover again with straw and about four inches of soil.

Be sure to provide ventilation, just as for other root crops.

Irrigation Of Farms Becoming Widespread

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Nov. 15.—The gospel of fall irrigation is being followed, thousands of acres having been thoroughly soaked this fall. It has been repeatedly demonstrated that fall irrigation practically means a crop the following season, the reservoir of moisture tiding the crop over the critical period of germination. In the Lethbridge northern tract, the farmers have taken hold of the water and applied it both to stubble and summerfallow. The same is true on the C.P.R. southern tract. Here large areas of sugar beet land have been treated, as it is virtually certain that the Utah-Idaho Sugar Company will build a refinery in Southern Alberta next year. Six thousand acres of beet land has been pledged the big United States concern.

West In Better Shape Than For Some Years

WINNIPEG, Nov. 15.—"Although our reasons may be primarily selfish, we, in the East, are paying regular visits to the West to study the difficulties that confront the Westerner, and to try to help him solve them, but I wish sincerely that more Westerners would come East and study our problems," said H. F. Gooderham, of Toronto, president of the Union Trust, on his return from his visit of inspection to the West.

"I find the West in better condition now than for some years, with the farmers most optimistic as to the future. Although the crop may be on the small side, the high prices now pertaining will compensate for this There is another good sign, and that is that the farmers are making no attempt to avoid their liabilities, but are making every effort to get square as soon as possible."

HERE'S A RIPE ONE.

Mrs. W. (as hubby leaves for the office): "Bring me a spool of silk thread, tomato color."

Mr. W. (returning at night): "I brought two spools—one green and one red. I didn't know whether you wanted it green or ripe."

ESSAY CONTEST STARTS TO-DAY

Boys and Girls Have Opportunity To Win Money For Christmas Presents.

CHOOSE SUBJECTS.

Come on, boys and girls, all aboard for the new competition that starts on the Farm Page to-day. We've had pictures to color, and now we will try and draw word pictures of things we have seen. The subjects about which we wish you to write are named at the foot of this page—and there's a big choice for you.

Please watch the rules carefully. Read every word before you take up your pencil to write your story. Remember to write on only one side of the paper; make your writing the very best you can; don't write more than 300 words on any one subject; fill in the entry form carefully, and see that your mother or father signs it; and then, lastly, remember to have your stories in The Examiner office before closing time on Wednesday, Nov. 26th. We needn't tell you that the work must be done by you, and when your mother or father signs the entry form we will take that as a certificate. A guardian may sign instead, of course, or if you do the work at school, teacher's signature will suit very nicely.

And now here's a hint about the essay: The highest prizes will go to the boys and girls who write the most entertaining stories. Don't just say, "And then the wagons came and hauled away the grain." Tell about the horses; how quickly the work happened.

Even if your story is not good enough to win a prize, it may be so interesting that we can't lay it aside, and then you will receive 25 cents when we print it. The boys and girls who cannot write well have a chance to win too, if they make their essays really interesting.

Read the directions, take your pencil or pen and write the story, slip it in an envelope with the entry form, address it to the Examiner Farm Page, and look for your name in the paper on Saturday, November 29th.

There will be more competitions of this kind, but they will be more difficult as the weeks go on. Win some money to buy the presents you want

PIONEER ONTARIO FARMER WOULD NOT SWAP PLACES WITH KING WHEN AFTER BREAKING HIS HOME FROM THE BUSH WITH AN AXE HE ACHIEVED HEIGHT OF SUCCESS BY OBTAINING YOKE OF OXEN

One of the First Settlers Near Cobourg Had Only An Axe and a Hoe to Attack the Wilderness—Chopped Up Rich Loam and Sowed Corn.

FIRST PLOW WAS OF WOOD.

Grain Was Cut By Hand Until 1843, When Daniel McKeys Brought in First Reaper to Ontario — First Thresher Did a Hundred Bushels a Day.

COBOURG, Nov. 14.—It is stated that one of the first settlers near the town of Cobourg brought with him only an axe and a hoe. He took up a grant of land, felled the trees on a small plot, chopped up the rich loam with his axe, planted some Indian corn and raised a small crop that year. "When I owned a yoke of oxen," he said, years afterward, "I would not have changed places with a king."

An axe, a log-chain, neckyoke, drag and a home-made sled, about made up the list of implements that quite a number of early settlers brought in within with them. But as the land was cleared and made ready for the crop other implements were needed besides these primitive ones, and wagons, plows, etc., had to be secured.

The First Plow.

The first plow that came into the Midland District was the old Bull Plough, with only one handle and a wooden mould board. These clumsy instruments were succeeded by iron plows, "lap furrows" and many other kinds. The grestest improvement was made when steel was substituted for cast metal mould boards.

The First Reaper.

The late Mr. Walter Riddell is authority for the statement that al grain was cut by hand until 1843, when Daniel McKyes brought in a Hussey reaper, which Mr. Riddell says, he believes, was the first reaper brought into the province. This proved so successful that Messrs. Wade, who resided between Cobourg and Port Hope brought in another reaper of the same kind.

In the year 1847 several McCormick reapers were brought into the township but they did not give general satisfaction. The following year, however, Mr. Helm of Cobourg began manufacturing reaping machines, which were very similar to the McCormick. About 1860 a great improvement was introduced, and this was the self-raking reaper. Now nearly all grain is harvested by self-binders.

The First Threshing Machine.

Previous to the year 1832-33 al threshing was either done by flail or the "treading out" by horses or cattle. In 1833 a small threshing machine began to travel through the township. It was driven by four horses, and could hardly thresh one hundred bushels of grain in a day.

Every year for some time afterwards saw a new and an improved thresher brought in. For years, however, all threshing machines sent out the grain and straw together, and the next job was to obey the scriptural injunction to "separate the wheat from the chaff." But in the year 1843 a Pitts threshing machine was brought in, and this separated the straw and the grain, and so was considered a great improvement, as after previous threshings a great amount of wansieving was required, and consequently a large amount of barn room. Soon afterwards a straw carrier, as it was at first called, a stacker was added to these machines.

The First Mowing Machine.

The mowing machine was several years later in coming into use than the reaper, in the Midland Ontario district. About 1860 John Wade, a Hamilton Township farmer brought a Ketchum mower into the locality. Previous to 1840 all hay was raked by hand, but in that year the old revolving wooden horse rake was introduced. Mr. A. Crawford, of Hamilton Township, was the first to use one of these rakes. As the cost was small they soon came into general use.

Drill cultivators were used in the forties and in 1854 the two-horse

Prizes For Best Farms.

The first agricultural society for Northumberland County in 1829 offered prizes for the best managed farms.' These were awarded as follows:

there being twelve entries—First, John Burnham, Hamilton Township; 2nd, T. Dickinson, Cremahe Township; 3rd, Elias Jones, Hamilton Township; 4th, Sisson Waite, Haldimand Township; 5th, R. Sandford, Cremahe Township. The first prize was $10 and the fifth prize was $3.00. The report of the first prize farm said that the judges were much pleased with the farms, Mr. Burnham having about 230 acres of improved land, and all in the best state of cultivation. In the year that he entered his farm for a prize he had put in a crop as follows:

An 1830 Crop.

Twenty-two acres of wheat, 20 acres of barley, 16 acres of corn, 21 acres of peas, 6 acres of oats, 3 acres of potatoes, 14 acres of summer fallow, and 50 acres of hay.

The Live Stock.

On Mr. Burnham's farm were seven horses, one yoke of oxen, 18 milch cows and 40 head of other cattle; 70 sheep and 40 hogs.

The report issued says: "The farm appears to be well managed throughout the fences, dwelling house, barns and office are all of the best description, and the crop generally was luxuriant for this year."

The Colborne Show.

The Northumberland County Agricultural Society held a show at Colborne on Oct. 19, 1831, when awards amounting to $134 were made for the best managed farms in the county. The prize winners upon this occasion were not recorded, but the judges were Ozen Strong, John Grover and Elijah Buck. This first agricultural society did not receive any government grant but depended upon subscriptions for their prize money and other expenses.

Farm Help Bought and Sold.

Farmers now have much difficulty in securing competent hired help, and if they had lived back in 1802 and the following few years, they would have been able, if their purse strings were long enough, to go out and buy a man, or a man and a woman. In the Niagara Herald of that year it was announced that a negro "man slave was for sale, 18 years of age, stout and healthy, who has had the smallpox and is capable of service either in the house or out-of-doors." Terms to be made known at time of sale and either cash or new land accepted in payment. "Mrs. Widow Clement" also offered for sale in the same paper a negro man and woman, who "had been bred to the business of a farm." It was further stated "they will be sold on highly advantageous terms for cash or land." More settlers were now coming into Ontario, and speculators were looking out for securing land grants, wherever they could get them cheap enough.

Beats Her Own World's Record.

Segis Pietertje Prospect, champion milk cow of the World, is so good she exceeded her own world's record. And that first record of the 35,550.4 pounds of milk and 1416.5 pounds of butter has not yet been surpassed by any other cow! Her latest record is 37,381.4 pounds of milk and 1448.6 pounds of butter. She has averaged more than 47 quarts of milk a day for two years. The cow, a Holstein-Friesian, is owned by Carnation Milk Farms at Seattle, Wash.

ELECTRICAL DEVELOPMENT ON FARMS IS UNBOUNDED

These are all things of the present. Any farm with connections to a power line can have them right away. But that is not, in all probability, anything like the possible use of power that we will see before many years.

Electric heating will not be one of the first, for it competes with cheap coal and cheaper wood. But electric heaters will come eventually. Where current can be had cheaply, they are already popular. Think of the drudgery they will save—the cutting of trees, the hauling of logs, the sawing and splitting of wood, or the hauling of coal and the handling of the ashes. Electricity certainly is a drudgery chaser.

There will be important changes in the barn—bright lights everywhere, water pumped for the animals, electric curriers and clippers to clean and clip the horses, electric hoists to lift the hay into the mows, and electric curing implements to cure the hay in the mows, as is now being done in England. The farmer will save much time by raking up his grass the moment it is cut, and piling it at once in the mow, where electricity will not only cure it, but at the same time make it more nutritious hay. Showers will mean nothing at haying time.

We will have an electric shredder. And there will be the electric silo filler and silage cutter, and the threshing-machine run by electricity. In the future, the thresherman may come when he will. He will plug his feed wire into an outlet and begin to thresh. That is all there will be to it. Again the farmer will have saved hours.

The hen-house will be lighted, too, to increase winter egg production. Probably the eggs will be hatched and the chicks broodered by electric current.

Even Electrical Farming, Perhaps.

Implements for tilling the fields will be devised that will run by electricity. Electricity now moves railway trains, trolley-cars, and the ponderous machines in great mills. It can turn or operate any implement on the farm. It can move the tractor that will pull plow and harrow and seeding drill and harvester. It may do even more. The other day an electrical engineer was telling me about his idea for an electric plow that should plow a field by itself. I asked him how such a plow would turn the corners. He said there wouldn't be any corners; that the plow would run in an ever-widening circle.

Maybe such a plow couldn't be made. Maybe it wouldn't be practicable if it could be made. But hard-headed men are thinking about such taings. We once laughed at the idea of talking through a wire, or flying through the air, or journeying under the sea, but the telephone and the airplane and the submarine are all practicable realities today, to say nothing of the greater marvel, the radio. We probably do not begin to have all the implements for farming that we shall some day have. We do not yet begin to have as many electrical devices for farming as have been perfected for use in other lines of work. But we shall have them. They merely await the electrification of the farms, the coming of the necessary power. And that is coming in the very near future.

Foot and Mouth Disease Attacks Deer In U.S.A.

SONORA, Calif., Nov. 15.—Deer have fallen victim to the foot-and-mouth disease.

In the Government's effort to eradicate the last traces of this plague, which has cost the lives of thousands of cattle, inspectors have followed up the germ to two deer ranges of the Stanislaus National Forest. Every animal found on these ranges has been marked for slaughter, either by rifle or by poison.

The quicker this work of eradication, say authorities, the smaller will be the number of deer sacrificed. The migration of the animals to other national parks and cattle ranges is also being closely guarded against.

SHIPPED HEFTY CALF.

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 15.—Mr. Jas. Longmuir of Havelock Road, near Trent River, shipped a calf to Robert Sedgwick, buyer at Norwood, the animal weighing 234 lbs., receiving $10.75 per hundred.

Elevators In Western Canada Lose Heavily On Wheat Grading

Local Gradings Are Not Supported on Car Inspection, Say Farmers.

AGENTS GENEROUS.

Unless Concrete Cases Can Be Cited No Action Can Be Taken.

CALGARY, Nov. 15.—Protests are being made by farmers in the three prairie provinces over the alleged stiffening of wheat grading. Commissioner M. Snow, of the Board of Grain Commissioners, has had a conference with the farmers on the subject. Farmer representatives were firm in their contentions that a tightening up on grades was evident to them as well as the local elevator men. They were, however, unable to present concrete evidence that the grading was not in conformity to type samples. The position taken by Commissioner Snow, and George Hill, Dominion government grain inspector here, was that the grading this year so far had been done on last year's samples, for the simple reason that, owing to the weather, it had been impossible for the chief inspector to produce samples from the different parts of the country whereby the commercial grades could be fixed. Mr. Snow stated that as soon as that was done, the Standards Board would be called together, and, if any farmers' organizations would like to have a representative on that board, whom the board considered had a practical knowledge of grading of grains, so far as he knew there would be no difficulty in getting him appointed.

One of the peculiarities brought to light by the protests raised by the farmers is that all elevator companies claim that they have been badly hit themselves, and have lost thousands of dollars since the commencement of the present season. They explain that all this has been brought about owing to their country agents grading the wheat when received from the farmers too high, and that when the grain reached inspection points the government inspectors reduced the grade. That did not merely apply to Calgary, but to Fort William as well, where it had been contended by some of the farmers, who had lodged the complaints, the grading was not so strict.

Elevator men aver that sufficiently close inspection had not been made by the country agents. During the past four seasons wheat has graded high, particularly last year, and the agents, it is stated, instead of securing samples of the wheat and closely scrutinizing these, had done their business on the principle that if a certain farmer had No. 1 wheat last year, his wheat would grade the same this year.

Tow show the big losses incurred, one elevator man showed documents in a case where a car of wheat had been given a No. 3 grade, but which, on arrival at Fort William, was graded No. 6. That had meant a difference of 34½ cents per bushel, amounting to just $700. In another instance, the inspection certificate of another car was produced. This was graded by the government inspector here "No grade. Rejected, No. 3 Tough, Musty, 5 per cent. dockage." In that case, the country agent had given a straight No. 3, and which will mean a difference of between 65 and 70 cents a bushel, which the elevator company will have to stand.

Unless the farmers can bring forward some concrete case, it is not expected that the Board of Grain Commissioners will be able to move further in the matter.

"HOW DRY I AM," SAYS ONTARIO LAND WHEN DROUGHT MAKES WATER SCARCE

"How dry I am!" is the not altogether cheerful cry from the soil of Ontario from all parts of the Province at this time. The prolonged autumn drought is beginning to have several serious effects. Fall wheat is not making any growth, and is even, in some places, beginning to turn yellow. Fall ploughing is almost at a standstill with less than half the usual amount done up to the present time. In some instances farmers are using a three-horse team to a single plough in order to get ahead with the work, but the result is not very satisfactory. In the sugar beet districts the digging is being seriously interfered with. Perhaps as serious as anything else is the increasing scarcity of water for farm purposes, some farmers being already forced to draw water for their stock.

It is now five weeks since there has been any rain in some sections, and in other sections only very occasional showers during that time.

On the other hand, the open dry fall has had advantages. Threshing is pretty well done and the silos are filled, with considerable corn still in the stook in some sections of the Province. The continuous pasturing of stock has also been advantageous, and the milk flow has been well maintained up till recent days when the pastures are beginning to dry up. The special rush of fall marketing of grains and live stock is nearing an end and there will be only the normal marketing in future. Hogs have been moving out very freely at prices at local points ranging from $9.00 to $10.25. Apart from potatoes, which are plentiful and cheap, ranging from fifty cents per bag at local points, upward, prices have been on the whole somewhat better than last year. Apples have been commanding a pretty good price—McIntosh being as high as $8.00 per barrel.

New Ontario reports reveal special features. Last week saw the first fall of snow of the season, as much as six inches being reported in some quarters. In the Dryden district there has been noted during the fall considerable activity in breaking up new land, and many of the settlers have added ten per cent. to the acreage which they will have ready for cropping next spring. From the Rainy River district, for the first time in its history, a car load of flax and winter wheat was shipped last week.

Canada Leads The World In Her Wheat Production

That the American wheat farmer is the high cost producer among the exporting producers of the world and is in a particularly disadvantageous position as a competitor of the Canadian wheat farmer, is brought out in the October letter of the American Exchange National Bank of New York. Continuing, it is pointed out that the restoration of purchasing power in Europe may broaden the world demand for a time and enable the American farmer to dispose of some of his surplus on a higher price level, but with the surplus producing countries giving normal yields, competitive conditions will also be normal and the American farmer cannot compete with the Canadian and other farmers who are producing more bushels per acre on cheaper land.

The American wheat farmer's capital investment on a basis of $200 per acre is nearly four times as great as the investment of the farmer in Manitoba, according to this New York bank, and is more than four times as great as the investments of farmers in Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Alberta. Although annual yields per acre vary widely in Canada the average yield runs above the average for the United States, and the quality produced in the three provinces named, it is admitted, is almost uniformly superior to the American products. Moreover, attention is called to the fact that less than twenty-five per cent. of the arable land in the three great wheat producing provinces of Canada is under cultivation. Over 25,000,000 acres of these lands, about 3,000,000 more than are now under cultivation, lie within fifteen miles of railways and can be bought on easy terms of $18 an acre or less.

All this should be reassuring to the Canadian wheat producer. The American farmer is advised to reduce his production or reduce his costs. Under these conditions it would seem inevitable that Canada's dominance of the world wheat market will be greater from year to year. Eventually—and it may not be so many years either—Canada should find an export market in the United States and that market close at hand should mean good prices for our farmers and a very important contribution to our national prosperity.

STORING HONEY BEES IN COLD WEATHER REQUIRES CARE BUT IS NOT DIFFICULT

Every spring beekeepers find from 5% to 30% of their colonies have died during the winter, or are very weak. There is no reason why the winter loss should be higher than 2% or 3% provided the beekeeper will prepare and pack the bees properly. So says Prof. Eric Millen of the Ontario Agricultural College.

Every Colony Should Have a Queen.

The first step is to make sure every colony has a queen. As it is too late to requeen now, queenless colonies should be united with those having a queen. Place a sheet of newspaper on top of a strong queen-right colony, and place the brood-chamber of the queenless colony on top. Leave them for a week, and then shake the bees into the lower brood-chamber and remove the upper brood-chamber. It is taken for granted that no American foulbrood exists in the apiary. Otherwise, colonies should not be united but rather destroy the queenless colonies and combs, if diseased.

Have Sufficient Bees.

The next step is to see that each colony has sufficient bees to cover at least three frames on both sides, if examined on a cold morning when the bees are clustered. This will insure enough bees to come through the winter, provided the stores and protection are adequate. A very important factor of wintering is the question of food. Many beekeepers give every colony ten or fifteen pounds of sugar syrup made in the proportion of 2½ of sugar to one of water, and fed in an inverted feeder over the brood frames. This is done in many cases regardless of the amount of stores the colony has. Every colony should have at least 45 pounds of food to ensure successful wintering, and an opportunity to increase in strength in the spring.

Bees should be kept in a naturally protected place for winter, or a board fence should be erected around the apiary to form a wind protection. Colonies may be packed singly, two in a case, four in a case, or in any other way desired by the beekeeper. Three or four inches of packing should be placed all around the colony, and not less than eight inches on top. Dry leaves, planer shavings or cork chips make satisfactory packing material. If the beekeeper will see that his colonies are put away for winter in good condition, the winter loss will be negligible.

ESSAY COMPETITION

PRIZES

Children 14 years and under:	Children 15 years and over:
First prize $2	First prize $2
Second Prize $1	Second Prize $1
Third prize 75c	Third prize 75c

In addition to the above prizes, The Examiner will pay 25c for every other essay it considers worthy of printing, and which it does print.

SUBJECTS:

For this week, the following subjects are set:

Children 14 and under:

Tell what happens at (1) Haying Time; (2) Threshing Time; or (3) Any other farming period you are better acquainted with.

Children 15 and over:

Tell: (1) What you consider the most interesting period in the farm year, and why.

(2) What your aim in life is; why; and how you intend to achieve it, or

(3) The story of any social function that takes place in your community between November 17 and November 24.

CONDITIONS:

Write on one side of the paper only.

Neatness and age will be considered.

Pen, pencil or typewriter may be used.

Boys and girls 14 years and under must not write on subjects given in the second class; and boys and girls 15 and over must not write on subjects given in class one.

Choose one subject from the three suggested.

Essays must not be more than three hundred words in length.

No entry fee is required.

The accompanying form must be filled in and attached to the essay submitted.

The Editor's decision is final on all matters touching this competition.

Address entries to "The Examiner, Peterborough, Ontario", and mark your envelopes "Farm Page".

This weeks' competition closes on Wednesday, November 26 and the result will be announced in the next following Farm Page.

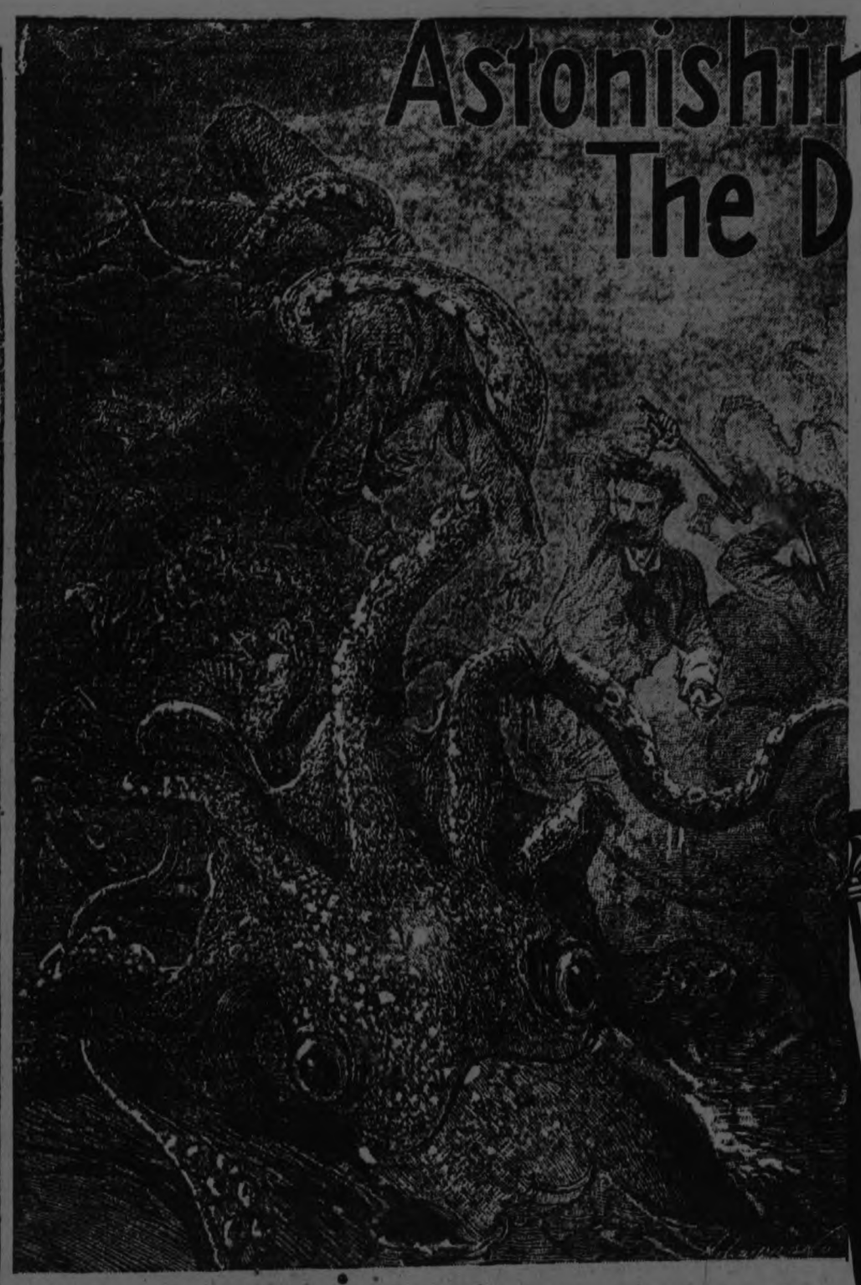
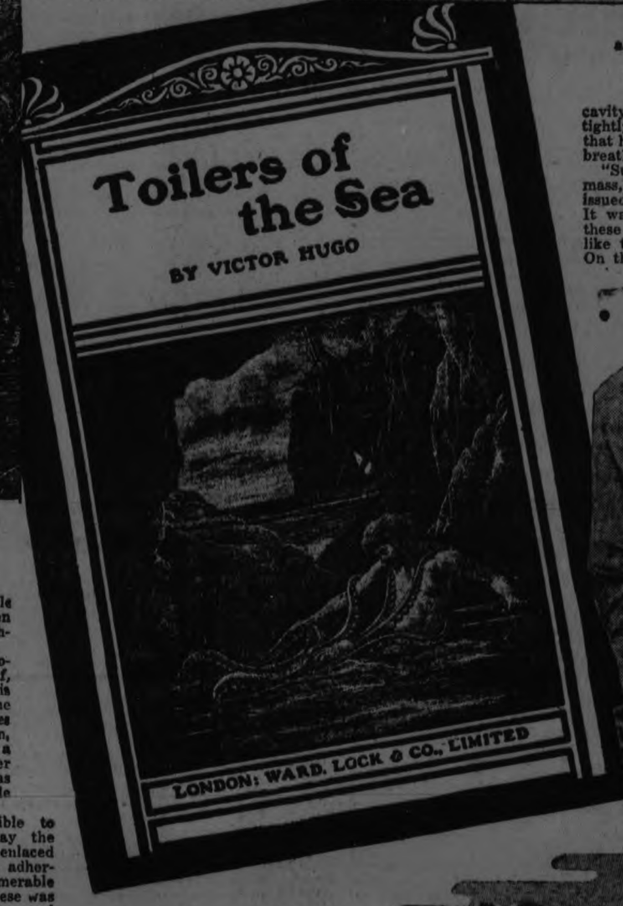
Astonishing New Discoveries About The Dreadful Octopus

Though Fiction's Deep-Sea Monsters Do Exist, Science Finds Devil-Fish No Match for a Big Lobster



An Old Illustration from Jules Verne's "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," in Which the Author Describes a Battle with a Man-Killing Devil-Fish Measuring Eight Yards from Tentacle to Tentacle.



Title Page from One of Victor Hugo's Famous Romances, Showing the Author's and Artist's Idea of the Terrific Combat Between a Monstrous Octopus and Gilliat, the Sailor.

Extraordinary Deep-Sea Photograph of a Fight Between a Ferocious Lobster and Two Devil-Fish, in Which the Lobster Won.

A RECENT world-wide investigation by scientists of the habits and nature of the octopus or "devil-fish," often described by fiction writers as a man-killing monster more terrible than shark or tiger, has disclosed the surprising fact that there are giants among them actually capable of attacking and devouring human beings.

It is surprising because science didn't believe "any such nonsense."

And once more it is proven that Jules Verne, Victor Hugo and other imaginative geniuses were a "jump" ahead of the scientists when they described dreadful battles with these monsters of the deep.

The Oceanographic Society, of which the late Prince of Monaco was the most distinguished member, has discovered and killed, lurking in dark caverns of the Mediterranean, two or three octopi measuring more than eight feet from tip to tip and quite capable of engaging in a death-struggle with a man in the water.

The W. K. Vanderbilt yacht, refitted for a scientific expedition into South American waters to study marine life, has discovered several large enough to be dangerous.

Bathers and swimmers on American beaches, however, may be comforted by the fact that no octopus has ever been discovered in American waters sufficiently large enough to constitute a real danger. And even in the Mediterranean and equatorial waters, the monsters big enough to attack man are true "giants"—that is creatures of abnormal growth which occur rarely and do not run true to type.

There are eight or ten different creatures of the same general family that are popularly called octopi. They include the cuttle fish and the comparatively harmless squid which fishermen take in nets off the North Atlantic coast and whose tentacles are a delicious food. This type has the power to exude a black liquid darkening the water around it for protection, but attacks nothing larger than crabs or small fish, and seldom grows to great size.

The true octopus, from the Greek word "okto" meaning eight, and the Greek word "pous" meaning foot, is an eight-armed creature, belonging to the zoological family of cephalapoda, one of whose distinguishing characters is that it has two rows of suckers on each arm.

Its general shape is that of a great spider, with a round, soft body, eyes, and a mouth with a horned beak like a parrot.

The average-sized octopus, measuring a foot or two from tip to tip, could be safely picked up with the bare hand, and would be practically powerless to do any injury. It feeds on crabs and small shellfish, and when not in pursuit of its prey hides itself in a hole between rocks, and partially covers up its body with stones and shells.

It covers up for protection, for the octopus is as much preyed upon as preying. Cod, conger and other big fish attack and devour the octopus, and even large lobsters have been known to give it battle and to worst it.

It is only when this creature grows into a monster of exceptional size that it becomes dangerous to man, and then it is a terrible adversary.

There is no absolutely authentic case on record of a human being who met death in such a struggle, but there are records of battles for life in which the outcome was in doubt, and in which the man escaped by a bare margin.

The British Scientific Society says on this specific point:

"The celebrated account of the octopus given by Victor Hugo in his Toilers of the Sea, turns out not to be so fictitious as some critics with a knowledge of natural history have maintained.

"It is true that the great French author made some scientific mistakes, and that his description is sensational, but it remains correct in its most important particulars, and bears evidence that the author was to some extent personally acquainted with the animal and its habits."

The account which the scientists thus commend as being "correct in its most important particulars," is one of the most thrilling and terrible passages ever written by the great Frenchman.

"What is the octopus?" he asks himself, and answers, "It is the vampire of the ocean." He describes how the fisherman, penetrating into a dark cave, with water up to his waist, was seized by the terrible monster.

"It was impossible to sever or tear away the slimy bands which enlaced his body so tightly, adhering to it by innumerable suckers. Each of these was the focus of strange and agonizing pains. He felt that numberless minute mouths were devouring him at once. A fifth long slimy object glided from the cavity, and wound itself so tightly around Gilliatt's chest that he could hardly draw his breath.

"Suddenly a huge slimy mass, round and flattened, issued from below the cavity. It was the center to which these limbs were attached like the spokes of a wheel. On the opposite side of this loathsome monster could be seen other tentacles, the ends of which were concealed beneath the rock. In the center of this slimy mass were two gleaming eyes.

"Gilliatt's last hope was in his knife. He had only his left hand free, but his open knife was in that hand. All of a sudden the monster detached its sixth tentacle from the rock and darted it at Gilliatt, endeavoring to seize his left arm. At the same moment it thrust its head sharply forward. One second more and that hideous mouth would have fastened on his chest. Bleeding from his sides, and with both his arms bound, he would have been a dead man.

"There were two convulsive movements, like two flashes of lightning. Gilliatt struck at the same instant the creature lunged forward. He had plunged the point of his knife into the flat, slimy substance, and with a rapid circular movement, like the flourish of a whip, he tore off the head as a man draws a tooth.

"The creature dropped at once; the terrible folds relaxed; it fell like a mass of wet linen; the suckers ceased their work of destruction, and relaxed their hold on rock and man. The body sank into the water."

The Jules Verne account, in "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," describes an even more terrible combat with a veritable giant which attacked several men at once in a boat.

"Before my eyes," he says, "was a horrible monster, worthy to figure in the legends of the marvelous. It was an immense cuttle-fish or octopus, eight yards long. Its eight arms were twisted like the Furies' hair."

Scientists candidly doubt that there ever has been an octopus of the size described by Jules Verne, a monster measuring eight yards or twenty-four feet from tip to tip, but except for the exaggeration of the size, a similar battle might actually have occurred.

J. Arthur Thompson, of the University of Aberdeen, author of "The Outline of Science," and a very conservative observer, declares that the octopus is the highest type of the invertebrate, that it is the strongest and most intelligent living creature without a backbone, and that it is "occasionally big enough to be formidable to man."

An effort is now being made in the Mediterranean, in connection with the great government aquarium at Naples, to capture one or two of the largest types alive and study them in captivity.

BOWLERS FINISHED STRONG AND DEFEATED ROTARIANS BY 10 TO 9

Reg. Fox Pitched Steadily and the Lawn Artists Backed Him Up.

DE LAVAL WIN.

Separators Ran Up Five In Last Frame—Triple Link Default.

The Bowlers came from behind last night to pile up a lead on the Rotarians, and to finally beat them out by the score of 10 to 9 in the closest game of the evening. The Bowlers got away to a bad start when the Rotary scored four in the first innings, but for the next two frames the Rotary went scoreless, while the Bowlers managed to register once. Rotary added 2 in the fourth, one in the fifth and 2 in the eighth, while Tim McArthur's faithfuls scored three in the fourth and two in the fifth, sixth and eighth, doing the final trick in the last inning.

Fox was on the rubber for the Bowlers and pitched a steady game, while Chief Gimblett behind the bat held him up well. The whole Bowlers' infield worked like a machine after the first inning. The Rotary turned in both good and bad ball. Gord. Matthews did the heaving for the losers, while Hap Wilgar held him up.

DE LAVAL 15, BRASS 11.

The Brass Department of the C.G.E. lost a hard fought fight in the last innings when the De Laval got to "Stuffy" Mahood's delivery and chased 5 runs across the plate to give them the verdict by a score of 15 to 11. The game was loose but close most of the way, and it looked like a victory for Killenbeck's Brass Finishers until the last inning, when "Stuffy" and his support all went to pieces, each player taking his turn of throwing the ball all around the arena, and throwing the game away at the same time.

"Scotty" Galbraith, the only south paw twirler in softball this season, did his stuff for the De Laval. He was a little unsteady at times, but managed to keep the C.G.E. crew at bay, fanning six of his opponents, while Mahood had five to his credit.

THREE-ROUND BOXING MATCHES ARE POPULAR

Denver Boxing Matches Have Now Been Cut Down to Three Rounds.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 15.—(Associated Press).—Denver is said to be the only city that has three-round boxing. Longer distance bouts, ten, twelve and fifteen-round affairs were offered until about two years ago, when District Attorney Philip Van Cise clamped down the lid on such contests. Later he granted permission for three-round matches, allowing a fourth round if necessary to determine a victor.

The district attorney warned the promoters that contestants must not be paid more than $35. Mills longer than four rounds or those where the pugilists receive more than the stipulated amount he construes as "prize fights." The others, he contends, may be termed "boxing exhibitions" and held within the State law.

Fans flock to the frequent three-round bouts.

COSY DOLAN MAKES SUDDEN DEPARTURE

Believed That Suit Against Landis Will be Dropped

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The sudden departure of Cosy Dolan from New York, combined with the failure of his attorney, William J. Fallon, to file papers in the threatened damage suit against Baseball Commissioner K. Landis has led to reports that plans for court action have been abandoned.

Dolan has given up his apartment on Washington Heights and moved all his furniture but it is not known where he has gone. Fallon would not comment on reports that suit would not be filed.

The lawyer announced recently that suit would be filed seeking to collect for Dolan a share of the world's series money and vindication of the charge that he was involved in an alleged attempt to bribe Heine Sand, of the Phmiladelphia National League club. Fulton had said that damages of not less than $100,000 would be asked.

R.M.C. WIN SOCCER.

Defeated Varsity 4-3 In Intercollegiate Match.

KINGSTON, Nov. 15.—The result of the intercollegiate soccer match this afternoon at the R.M.C. grounds between Varsity and R.M.C. was 4-3 in favor of R.M.C. Varsity scored two goals during the first fifteen minutes of play, R.M.C. equalizinug before the half time whistle blew, the score standing at 2-2 at the interval. On the resumption of play R.M.C. were the first to score, Varsity equalizing from a corner kick the score after ninety minutes play being 3-3. Extra time was played consisting of two minute periods, R.M.C. scoring the winning goal during the first period.

No substitutes were used as permitted by the intercollegiate rules. R.M.C. will meet McGill in the final game to be played at the R.M.C. grounds to-day.

COLLEGIATE PLAY KINGSTON TODAY

Winner Will Meet Toronto in Semi-Finals for Ontario Championship.

The P.C.I. rugby team is playing Kingston Collegiate in the Richardson Stadium, Kingston today. The game is for the Eastern Ontario interscholastic championship and the series will decide which team shall meet the Toronto winner in the semi-finals.

The garnet and grey downed the Limestone squad 13 to 5 at Riverside Park and thus Coach Browne's team has an eight point lead to carry with them to the "Old Ontario strand."

The team left last night confident that they can not only win the series but will also beat Kingston on their own gridiron. The squad has had several workouts since the holiday game and have changed a few of their plays. A few of the players will be hampered slightly with bruises but on the whole the regular squad will be playing, all full of pep. "Ollie" Bookhout will play in his regular berth on the half line with Cole. Henry the hard tackling right outside wing may be out of the game with an injury sustained in Monday's battle.

Kingston claims that four of their best men were out of the fray when they played here and with these additions they hope to overcome the P.C.I. lead and win the round. They are clever, well-coached squad in the best of condition and they will certainly make it hard going for the Petes.

SOFTBALL SCHEDULE.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE ON GOLF LINKS!

Kansas City's Fair Champion Revolts Against Man-Made Rules Barring Women From Course.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., November 15—Equal suffrage on the golf links as well as in the voting booth!

That's the new demand by women.

Heading the move for that kind of recognition by men, who in almost all clubs bar women from the links on holidays and Sundays, is Miriam Burns, Kansas City champion golfer, and student in Northwestern University, Chicago.

Last summer she played into the finals in the western championship in Chicago and lost eto Edith Cummings. In the National championship she got revenge by defeating Miss Cummings but neither was able to win the championship.

Miss Burns began playing at 14 and at 19 now is one of the country's most promising feminine golfers.

"To improve my game, I'd like to play more with men," Miss Burns says.

"But, being a mere woman, I am ruled from the courses much of the time when they play.

"I don't like golf club regulations one bit. They are man made rules, and unfair to the women—especially the woman who works or attends college classes.

"Why should a woman, who is as busy other days as the men be barred from the courses on Saturday afternoon and Sundays?"

Bowling

The Belmont Club was in full session at the Water Street Alleys last night and some good scores were in evidence. Owing to the fact that the club bowled tonight instead of Monday, their regular night, some of the teams were short men.

H. Cressman rolled high three games with 608, with Boyd a close second with 604. Among the high singles were Fanning 268, Metheral 244, Cressman 234, Holyman 233 and Boyd 228.

HAIR STAYS COMBED, GLOSSY

Millions Use It – Few Cents Buys Jar at Drugstore

Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to your hair— that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless; also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair. Beware of greasy, harmful imitations.

The NUT CRACKER BY JOE WILLIAMS

The baseball tourists seem to be getting their fill of the old country, and we suspect they are getting their fill of other things, too.

They say anything is possible in baseball and yet we never expect to see a close-up of Ban Johnson kissing Judge Landis on the forehead.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

Pitchers Jim Bagby and Vean Gregg, major league castoffs, aided greatly in winning the Coast League pennant for Seattle.

Erratic work by Shortstop Galloway last year makes his job as a regular for the 1925 Athletics rather insecure.

Umpire Bill Klem of the National League rates Cooper and Nehf as the most effective southpaws in that league.

Latrobe Coggswell of Baltimore is the newly elected head of the National Boxing Asociation, succeeding Richard Burke of New Orleans.

Coach "Herb' McCracken of Lafayette, only 25 years of age, is the youngest director of a major college eleven.

Hornsby far surpasses any other batsman in the National League and should hold his batting championship for many years.

Benny Tate, substitute Washington catcher, received $6000 in the world series for batting three times in a pinch, getting a base on balls on each occasion. Costly walks.

Plugging the hole at first base, due to Jake Daubert,s death is going to be a big problem for Manager Jack Hendricks of the Cincinnati Reds.

A glance at the batting average of Manush of Detroit makes it appear as if the American League pitchers had found his weakness. He slumped badly over 1923.

LOVE

Tender caresses and fervent vows of courtship days do not always lead to the expected.

In Paris, jail doors are installed between the rooms where husbands and wives wait until their divorce cases are called by the judge. The steel bars are found necessary to preevnt the ex-lovers from getting at each other with claw and nail.

The most important decision in life is marriage, "Marry in haste, reepnt at leisure."

ADMIRABLE

Meet Abraham Hershowitz, New York patriot. He is so determined to vote this year that he made a trip on a stretcher from the hospital, so he could register.

Good citizenship like this is enough to make a vote-slacker blush. If you are as patriotic in peacetime as in war, you will vote without fail. A failure to vote is, in effect, a ballot cast in favor of slipshod government and high taxes.

TUNIC COSTUMES

The tunic costume that is so much the rage now should be worn with discretion, and the woman who is larger through the hips than through the shoulders should avoid it.

GERMAN BAND RETURNS.

But Pretzels and Beer of Old Days Are Missing—New York Sketches.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Let's see —were we with the Germans, or against them, in the World War? That was a long while ago, anyway.

A four-piece German brass band is playing in lower Manhattan. I saw it the other day in Frankfort street, down in the leather and hide district. It consisted of a bass horn, trombone, cornet and clarinet.

It was playing in front of an erstwhile saloon. And it was playing "Die Wacht am Rhein."

The only things missing were pretzels and beer.

Joseph A. Caporale, of 313 Water street, was a stake-holder for $130 in election bets. He stuffed the bills in his shoe. When the shoe didn't fit so well he took it to Paul DeMatteo a cobbler. Paul, like most cobblers, is honest. He returned the $130 to Caporale and didn't charge for alterations.

Saw Ed Wynn, "the perfect fool," walking down Broadway, looking for all the world like an undertaker in a deathless city.

A new game is being played in New York. A fellow who styles himself "Reverend" walks into a Sunday School, asks the superintendent for permission to address the attendants, talks two or three minutes, takes up a collection and, before anyone knows what it's all about, walks out.

Gotham is in the throes of its annual hiccough epidemic. Roosevelt Hospital reports that hundreds of hiccoughers have been treated there within the past few weeks.

There is a certain element of humor in a hiccough, due perhaps to its association with the stage comics who project the hiccough as the chief characteristic of a drunk. On the other hand, an epidemic of hiccoughing may be the forerunner of a flu epidemic.

One man in a Jamaica hospital has been hiccoughing steadily for eight days and physicians have been unable to find any means of relieving him.

DEPUTY TO HANG.

Former Communist Deputy Temp to be Executed To-day.

REVAL, Esthonia, Nov. 15. — (Canadian Press.)—Court martial, which is hearing the cases of 1140 Communists charged with organizing to overthrow the Esthonian constitution yesterday sentenced the former Communist deputy, Temp, to death for insulting the court and delivering a seditious speech in the course of the trial. Temp will be executed to-day.

FOUR KILLED.

Eighteen Injured When Passenger Coach Was Derailed.

WABASSO, Fla., Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Four persons were killed and eighteen injured, two seriously, when rear coach of south bound Florida East Coast Railway train was derailed near here last night.

The coach travelled three hundred feet after leaving the rails before it toppled over, hurting passengers through windows or pinning them within the car.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

BRINGING UP FATHER IN IRELAND

Not because he is a Peterboro citizen but because of the faultfulness of his portrayal of the part, Peterboro playgoers are unanimous in declaring that Danny Simons is the most true-to-life "Jiggs" that has been seen here in a stage version of Geo. McManus' cartoon strip "Bringing up Father'. This year's version "Bringing up Father in Ireland", which appeared at the Grand last night and delighted a large audience who saw Danny at his best and he was given a warm welcome by his host of friends.

The rotund comedian does not merely act "Father", he is Jiggs in appearance, action and talk and in the production does his best work in the part which is saying something when his previous performances in the same role are recalled. He is the life of the party at all stages, with a new line of quips and comedy and clever speciality work that convulsed last night's audience.

The whole production is smarter, livelier and more pretentious than any previous "Bringing up Father" offering and there are few dull moments. The principals have plenty of songs and there is a lively chorus that dances cleverly. The costumes and scenic investiture are in keeping with the standard of the production generally and all in all "Bringing up Father in Ireland" is a sure cure for the blues.

The cost of principals contains some old favourites. Emma Weston frequently seen here in the role was the Maggie and her work last night was as amusing as ever. As Danny Simons is the best of the Jiggs, so Emma West on must be awarded the laurels for her portrayal of the part of Mahoney's fighting consort. Edward Morris is once more the Dinty Moore of the comedy and as usual proved a capable fun-maker. Bessie-Leonard did splendid work as Kitty, her songs being a feature, while the rest of the principals were of valuable assistance in the clever all round performance.

The plot is immaterial— but it serves to get Jiggs into his usual peck of trouble and even although he hails from here the audience seemed to enjoy seeing Danny Simons involved in one predicament after another. In view of the fun that he caused it is no wonder that they found his troubles a source of merriment.

"Bringing up Father in Ireland" is to be seen at the Grand again tonight and the combination of Peterboro's favourite comedian and Geo. McManus' cartoon musical comedy will fill every seat at this final performance of the attraction here this year.

STETSON'S "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" COMPANY

After an absence of many, many years the old and original Stetson's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company is announced as the attraction at the Grand Opera House, for two nights, with matinee on Saturday opening on Friday November 21st.

This being the first time in over fifteen years that this, the original Number One company of the Stetson Enterprises has been seen in this immediate vicinity.

This famous play, which dates back so far that some people have a vague idea that it caused the war of the rebellion, has been presented with religious regularity each theatrical season for over sixty years, but in all the seasons that it has been before the public it has never been seen in such an elaborate and expensive setting as the present seasons offering of the old and reliable Stetson organization. One of the most striking features of the production is the beautiful Transformation scene, representing as it does, Little Eva in the golden realms picturing the passing of the Angels of death and the opening and closing of the pearly gates. There are also several other note worthy scenes, some of them sufficiently novel enough to make it worth while going to see "Uncle Tom's Cabin," as present by the Stetson organization, for the fifty fourth time.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" was first presented for public approval in the year 1852 and from that date until the Stetson organization was organized by Leon W. Washburn, who is still the active owner of the attraction, in 1870 it was presented by several small and infertor companies. However after the first seasons tour of the Stetson company had been completed the citizens of the different cities visited knew they had seen a production worth while, and from that date, fifty four years ago until the present moment it has been recognized as the paramont "Tom" show of the Universe; and during the intervening period there has never been a day when one or more Stetson companies have not been appearing in some section of the English speaking world.

AT THE CAPITOL.

If you are fond of dogs, if you like good acting, if you appreciate beautiful scenery, if you like a clever story, full of action, thrills and unusual episodes, don't miss "Find Your Man,' which is the feature for the week-end at the Capitol Theatre.

Rin-Tin-Tin, a dog with unusual intelligence, whose training cannot be compared to that of any other dog, plays the leading role in this production. He is seen as the courageous hero, risking his life to save his master, as the sympathetic friend, the bitter enemy. He feels and displays all the emotions of a human being. In fact, he seems to do everything but talk.

Rin-Tin-Tin is an ex-soldier. It is said that he spent part of his puppyhood on the firing line of France. Perhaps that is what accounts for his fearlessness.

The story, which is laid in a beautiful lumber country, deals with a plot to steal Government timber, in which Paul Andrews, his dog and his sweetheart become involved.

Buddy displays some marvellous athletic stunts when he aids in his master's escape from prison and then rescues him and his sweetheart from drowning.

Eric St. Clair and June Marlowe show exceptional skill in their portrayal of Paul Andrews and Caroline Blair. Others in the cast are Charles Mailes, Pat Hartigan, Fred Stanton, Lew Harvey, and Charles Conklin.

Mal St. Clair is the director of this Warner Bros. Classic of the screen.

A really good programme for Saturday night audiences is rounded out by a Jack Dempsey "Fight and Win" episode, with plenty of comedy in its action, and a very funny Aesop Fable.

"TARNISH" A PLAY OF YOUTHFUL EMOTIONS.

An exceptionally large group of celebrated screen players are to be seen in the George Fitzmaurice production, "Tarnish," which was made by Samuel Goldwyn for First National Pictures, and which will be the main attraction at the Capitol Theatre next Monday and Tuesday.

"Tarnish" is an adaptation by Frances Marion, well known scenario writer, of Gilbert Emery's Broadway stage success. It is a story about youth, dealing with the tragedy that threatens young love when a young manicurist intrudes upon the blissful courtship of two lovers. In its structure there is revealed a fine, neatly woven drama, in which the past of the young man turns up and shakes and illumines the young girl.

How the tarnish is finally cleaned away forms the basis of a devastating chain of relationships, poignant, highly dramatic and entertaining. The leading roles are portrayed by Marie Prevost, May McAvoy and Ronald Colman, who scored so heavily in the leading male role opposite Lillian Gish in "The White Sister." Also prominent in the cast are Norman Kerry, Harry Meyers, Priscilla Bonner, Albert Gran and Mrs. Russ Whytall.

CRITICS WERE ONE IN PRAISING "YOLANDA"

Marion Davies at her best in Super-Motion Picture Which is Coming to the Regent Theatre next Week.

"Yolanda," the Cosmopolitan Corporations super motion picture starring Marion Davies, which will be the attraction at the Regent theatre for 3 days, beginning Monday, had one of the most brilliant premieres in the history of Broadway when it opened at the Cosmopolitan Theatre, New York. It received the most enthusiastic praise from the critics ever accorded to a photoplay in New York. Unanimously the reviewers of the metropolitan newspapers hailed the new picture as the biggest and most gorgeous thing of its kind ever to reach the silver screen.

The sterling acting and exquisite beauty of Miss Davies, the superlative quality of her supporting cast, the sheer splendor and magnitude of settings, the dramatic thrills, the enchanting loveliness of costumes, the interest of story and effectiveness of direction, evoked the highest praise of those who sat in professional judgment on motion picture productions.

The great scene depicting the meeting of Princess Mary and the sinister King Louis XI on the bridge spanning the Meuse while the army of the Duke of Burgundy confront the French forces on the opposite bank of the river, and that where in the Prince Maximilian rescues the distressed Princess from the palace of the King amid a stirring clash of arms on the drawbridge, particularly aroused the interest of the critics.

The scenes revealing the defiance of Princess Mary of her father who, to play "the great game of empire," has commanded her to marry half wit Dauphin; nocturnal revelry at the silk fair at Basel; the duel between armored knights on horseback in the arena of Charles' palace with thousands of spectatores forming a background are other features of Miss Davies' new picture that have elicited enthusiasm among the critics and the public.

MAE MARSH IN SCREEN VERSION OF "DADDIES."

Local Film Patrons to See Great Belasco Success.

When "Daddies" plays at the Royal Theatre Monday you will have an opportunity to see one of the best screen offerings of the season. This is a picturization of the David Belasco stage success that had such a long and successful run in the New York and Chicago theatres. It is a delightful comedy drama, redolent with pathos and heart appeal, presented by a splendid cast. It is another of the Warner Brothers Screen Classics.

In the cast of "Daddies" you will see such well-known screen favorites as Mae Marsh, Harry Myers, Claire Adams, Craufurd Kent, Claude Gillingwater, Millie Davenport and others.

Bachelor life, single blessedness, call it what you will, furnishes the motive power for "Daddies." It is the story of five Yale men who, while yet in college, form a bachelors' club. Each agrees not to marry unless he first pays a five thousand dollar resignation fee to the club. The story opens with the annual club banquet.

A suggestion is adopted at this banquet which, unbeknown to the members, signs the club's death warrant. Each member of the club agrees to adopt a war orphan. Later one member finds out his "orphan" is a beautiful girl seventeen years old. Another finds his "orphan" to be triplets. Then the bachelors each learn that adopting orphans is an easy matter but looking after them is a much different thing.

TWO SHOWS TO-NIGHT FOR "KING OF WILD HORSES," 7 AND 9, AT ROYAL.

Every lover of horses, as well as every drama lover, will respond to the tremendous double appeal of "The King of Wild Horses," the Pathepicture produced by Hal Roach and showing at the Royal Theatre. It is unique in entertainment possibilities because it presents, for the very first time, a really wild and unconquered horse in the leading role.

The horse supplies many of the thrills in the picture, one of the most amazing of them being his fight with one of his own kind for supremacy of the plains. Another thrill is a forest fire from which the horse is saved by his enemy—man. The leading roles are portrayed by Leon Bary and Edna Murphy.

Two performances will be given to-night at 7 and 9.

"DANGEROUS BLONDE" NEW LA PLANTE FILM.

The Laura La Plante picture which is booked for the Royal Theatre commencing Thursday, "The Dangerous Blonde," was directed by Robert F. Hill, the man who made "Excitement," her first starring vehicle.

When Laura La Plante played opposite Reginald Denny in "Sporting Youth," after a long series of leading roles in various Universal pictures, her work marked her consicuously for stardom. When "Excitement" was prepared, it was decided to give this new-picked star the best guidance, story and cast obtainable.

In the supporting cast are such well known players as Edward Hearn, Arthur Hoyt, Dick Sutherland, Margaret Campbell, Philo McCullough, Eve Southern, Rolfe Sedan and Frederick Cole.

The original story from which Hugh Hoffman prepared the screen version of "The Dangerous Blonde" was Hulbert Footner's "A New Girl in Town," published in Argosy Magazine.

SEVERE EARTHQUAKE.

As Many As Six Hundred Persons Are Believed to Have Perished in Java.

BATAVIA, Java, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press.)— Death toll in the earthquake which shook the central portion of the Island of Java last Wednesday is estimated in official circles at three hundred, although private reports indicate that as many as six hundred persons may have perished.

Six villages were completely destroyed by the flood. Damage to private property at Wonosobo exceeds $120,000. The earth is still trembling from slight shocks. It is believed the earthquake was due to shifting of earth layers and was not of a volcanic nature.

OWEN SOUND TOLL RAISED TO THREE

Mrs. Fred Featherstone Died This Morning From Burns She Received Last Wednesday.

OWEN SOUND, Nov. 15. — (Canadian Press.)—The number of deaths as a result of the disastrous fire here early Wednesday morning rose to three this morning when Mrs. Fred Featherstone, grandmother of the two children who were burned to death, died at the General and Marine Hospital. A transfusion of blood had been made and she appeared to be making good progress towards recovery, but a change for the worse occurred during the night and she died suddenly this morning. She had been badly burned in the fire which destroyed her home.

The Premier's Pre-Plebiscite Policy of No More Fines Should be Enforced.

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press). — Unanimous approval of Premier Ferguson's prompt acceptance of the verdict of the province of Ontario in favor of the Ontario Temperance Act was expressed by a resolution at a meeting of the north east Toronto prohibition workers last night. The resolution further gave the opinion that the Premiers "pre-plebiscite policy of jail sentences and no fines" was the only real resolution for infraction of the O.T.A. The meeting also passed a resolution asking Premier Mackenzie King and the Dominion government to with-hold further licenses for distilleries and breweries in Ontario and tighten up the customs facilities for the export of liquor from this province.

Rev. J. Verner McNeely of Port Perry, and bride, nee Miss Edna Gibson of Walkerville, visited his uncle, Mr. Robt. Morrison, Dennistoun avenue, this week.

The Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's church gave an afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. Collis, Dublin street, at which Mrs. Smyth (nee Miss Stiles) was the guest of honor and the recipient of a miscellaneous shower of useful and beautiful presents. About thirty-five members of the class were present. Mrs. Dayman poured tea, assisted by Mrs. Pitchford.

Mr. and Mrs. William Witham, of St. Louis, spent Thanksgiving holidays with his sister, Mrs. B. Hunt, 214 Wescott Street.

Mrs. George Witham, of Brantford, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. B. Hunt, 214 Wescott Street.

Mrs. J. W. Gordon was at home to a large number of her friends yesterday afternoon at St. Andrew's Manse, on the occasion of the holding of her first reception since her arrival in the city. Mrs. Gordon, who wore a gown of copper geogette, trimmed with steel beads, was assisted in receiving by Mrs. F. L. Robinson, wearing royal purple brocaded velvet with georgette, and Mrs. W. Adams, of Bowmanville, a sister of Mrs. Gordon, wearing black suede satin trimmed with jet and lace. The reception rooms and tea-room were prettily decorated with ferns, roses and small 'mums, with a number of lighted white candles. Tea was poured by Mrs. R. M. Wadden and Mrs. George Evans, assisted by Mrs. E. R. Shirley, Mrs. J. John, Mrs. J. MacKintosh and Mrs. Wesley of Norwood. Mrs. Geo. Colman and Mrs. B. L. Barns showed the ladies to the tea-room. Cakes were cut by Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge, Mrs. C. R. Banks and Mrs. Wm. Stevens. Little Alison and Annie Gordon made charming door attendants. During the afternoon, instrumental music was played by Mrs. Chas. McClelland and Miss Marion Adams.

Guests in the city to-day for the Wartman-Succe wedding, which takes place at the bride's home this evening, are Mrs. C. H. Wartman, Mrs. V. Benson, Mrs. Florence Robertson Miss Hazel Roberts, Miss Amy Bryan, Miss Viola Benson and Mr. C. C. Wartman, all of Toronto.

Miss Gladys M. Lewis of Toronto is spending her holidays at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Lewis.

TRAIN KILLED FERGUS CROUGH

Young Boy Run Over By Freight at George Street Crossing.

DIED INSTANTLY.

Fergus Crough was instantly killed this afternoon when a train on the Canadian National Belleville line ran over him at the corner of George and Romaine streets. The boy is a son of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Crough, 27 Park street south, formerly of Ennismore. He was 13 years of age.

An eye-witness of the tragedy says the boy was riding on the side of a freight car, and in getting off he slipped under the train. His body was cut in two by the wheels.

Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young, Sgt. Deannard and Constable Wheeler were quickly on the scene of the accident and the body was removed to Lane & Eano's undertaking rooms.

GREAT PROGRAMME FOR MUSIC LOVERS

Mr. Dalton Baker and Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park to be Heard in Fine Numbers.

Peterboro music lovers are fortunate indeed in the opportunity they are being given on Monday night to hear Mr. Dalton Baker, the famous city and his talented pupil, Dorothy Arms" from Handel's "Samson," Allan Park, and of hearing them too in a programme full of big numbers.

The outstanding number possibly will be the scene from Saint-Salon's "Samson and Delilah" in which Mr. Baker will sing the role of the High Priest" with Mrs. Park as "Delilah."

Mr. Baker's solo numbers will include a group of old English songs, Sechi's "Love Me or Not". Lully's "Sombre Wood", "Honour and Arms" from Handell's "Samson", the tremendously dramatic song "King Charles", four folk songs in which Mr. Baker has scored a famous success, Wallace's free booter songs, "Son of Mine" and "The Rebel" and three or four other numbers equally as important.

Mrs. Park will be heard in two beautiful Italian classics, "Caro Mio Bene" and "Nina", in the big operatic number 'Aria de Lia", and in a group of four modern concert songs, two of them by Cyril Scott.

In addition to the Samson and Delilah scene Mr. Baker and Mrs. Park will combine in two of Messagers' charmingly modern and humorous songs "Swing Song" and "Trot Here and There."

Of Mr. Baker it has been truly said that he is a musician in the full sense of the word and that such mature art as he displays can only be developed by a life time of experience coupled with exceptional gifts as an interpreter.

Monday evening's concert will be in the Conservatory Hall and Mrs. Pearl Burford Curtis and Mr. Charles Peaker will be at the piano.

MRS. FLORENCE HARDING IN CRITICAL CONDITION

MARION, Ohio, Nov. 15.—After a fretful night during which Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, her physician, never left her bedside, Mrs. Florence Kling Harding, widow of late president, was still in critical condition to-day. Lapsing into state of coma early last night, her condition seemed "dangerously alarming", but she survived somewhat and went through night with only intermittent periods of rest. Mrs. Harding is suffering from kidney trouble and her condition has been grave for about two weeks.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir, — Have read letters in your paper that women are not admitted to the ministry. That is why I will vote against church union.

The United Church does not admit us to the ministry, and I think it bad policy for women to vote for it till it does. We may overlook the past, but will have only ourselves to blame if our equality, recognised in everything else, is denied to us in future in our churches.—Yours,

Maria Clarkson.

WEDDING BELLS.

SANDERCOCK—CRANSTON.

An event that was of decided interest to a large circle, was the marriage on Tuesday, Nov. 11th, at the home of Mr. James Cranston, of his only daughter, Ethel Irene, to Mr. William Elmer Sandercock. Precisely at 11 minutes after 11 a.m., the happy young couple were made one by their pastor, Rev. C W. Barrett. After the ceremony and congratulations the entire company proceeded to the Kirby House, where all was made ready to receive them. The large dining room was very tastefully decorated and the tables lavishly spread and when the seventy-five guests were seated the proprietor, with a fine group of helpers, abundantly supplied all with every good thing that one could desire. After a toast proposed to the bride, and becomingly responded to by the groom, the young couple left by motor for Ottawa and other points amid showers of rice and confetti. After their return they will reside in Stirling on Henry street south.— Belleville Ontario.

ALLEN—WEDGE

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at Holy Rosary Rectory, Detroit, on Tuesday, Nov. 4th., when Myrtle M. Wedge of Detroit; youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wedge of Port Huron was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Thomas Allen of Detroit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen of Lakefield, Ont. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Van Antwerp. Mr. and Mrs. Allen were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Hobbs and Mr. Alfred Cole and Mrs. M. Foley

Later the happy couple left for a short honeymoon to be spent at the bride's home, at Port Huron, and on their return will reside in Detroit. Their many friends join in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

PATTERSON—MORGAN.

The marriage took place on Friday afternoon, November 7th, at three o'clock, at St. Paul's manse, of Howard A. Patterson and Miss Helen Morgan, both of Warsaw. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. Pogue.

HEADACHES

Headaches may be classed as direct and adaptative. They may be due directly to derangement of the spine at the base of the skull, which will interfere with normal nerve supply to the tissues of the head, or they may be adaptative to stomach trouble, constipation and kidney disorders.

Headaches offer themselves as symptoms rather than original conditions, and the only logical way to free yourself of headaches is to overcome the abnormal conditions which are responsible for them.

Chiropractic Spinal Adjustments have been effective in affording wonderful relief to those who suffer with headaches. Do not resign yourself to a life of suffering without first giving Chiropractic a chance to restore you to health.

OPIUM DISPUTE NEARLY BREAKS UP CONFERENCE

CHINA'S CHARGE

Great Powers Could Apply Effective Restrictions If They Desired To.

Conference Collapses

GENEVA, Nov. 17.—The international conference for the suppression of opium smoking in the Far East virtually collapsed Sunday when the Japanese delegation announced that it could not sign the proposed agreement because of the discrimination against Japan in connection with Japanese importation of opium.

GENEVA, Nov. 15.—(Associated Press).—Charges and counter-charges embittered Saturday's session of the international opium conference on Far Eastern opium problems, and although the conference should have finished its work Saturday night so that a report of its conclusions might be presented to the general conference to open to-day it seemed as far from agreement as when the sessions began a fortnight ago.

China charged that if the great powers had not adopted effective measures to reduce opium smoking in the Far East, such as rationing and the registration of smokers, it was because they did not wish to do so.

England charged Japan with attacking the British Government during the discussion over the Japanese proposal that countries exporting opium should recognize the import certificates issued by other countries and furnish opium when the documents declared that the opium is for legitimate purposes. Sir Malcolm Delevingne, speaking for Great Britain, disclosed that private negotiations concerning exportation and transshipment of opium have been going on between London and Tokio, and he expressed astonishment that Japan should raise the question at Geneva.

Replying, the Japanese delegate indicated that Japan had broken off these negotiations, preferring to bring the question before the conference. The debate became so heated it looked for a time as if the conference would be disrupted.

M. Sugimura announced that Japan would never sign an opium convention unless it was built on good faith, and he refused to vote on the question whether the next meeting of the conference should be held Sunday or Monday, saying: "I shall not vote because I have said my last word."

Officials Arrested

Sir Malcolm insisted that Great Britain could never agree to unlimited shipments of opium on the mere strength of import certificates and referred to the case of one of the Far Eastern countries where high officials were arrested for complicity in an opium scandal.

He questioned whether Great Britain could continue to have confidence concerning the export of opium under such conditions, maintaining it would be violation of The Hague opium convention.

That the country to which Sir Malcolm referred was Japan was made clear when M. Sugimura jumped to his feet and said that the guilty Japanese officials had been properly punished. He declared that Japan could produce evidence of crimes committed by officials of other Governments in connection with the opium traffic, but would not do so at Geneva because it was a bad kind of politics.

The Indian delegate declared that India as an opium exporting country would always reserve the right to re

TWO DEAD AFTER DANCE AND RIDE

Girl Burned to Death When Car Hits Pole—Two Others Injured.

STRUCK POLE

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 17. — Miss Althea Holland, aged 18, of South Glastonbury, was burned to death, wedged between a burning automobile and a mail box pole, early Saturday morning, and one of her companions, Joseph Ambrosia, aged 20, a Hartford High School student, received fatal injuries when the car in which they were riding with two others, hit the pole and caught fire in Windsor.

Miss Ruth Truax, aged 19 owner of the car of South Manchester, is in Hartford Hospital severely burned about the head and body. She will probably recover. Eugene Beyer, aged 21, of Linbury, who was driving is in the same hospital in a critical condition from burns and broken bones.

The girls, accompanied by Beyer, left a dance at the Hartford Canoe Club in East Hartford soon after midnight. Miss Holland had told her parents she might spend the night in Manchester with Ruth Truax, who was her chum in the office of the Aetna Fire Insurance Company of this city.

They picked up Ambroise at a restaurant in Hartford and drove north through Windsor, with Beyer at the wheel. Apparently the car failed to negotiate a curve in the road and side-swiped the mail box and supporting past in such a manner that the gasoline tank was punctured and ignited.

Miss Holland, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd S. Holland of South Glastonbury, fell from the car to the running board, where her body became wedged against a telegraph pole and, because of the intense flames, could not be rescued until after the Windsor firemen had extinguished the flames.

The others were dragged from the burning car by witnesses of the accident and residents of nearby houses.

LARGE MAJORITY FOR MUSSOLINI'S FOREIGN POLICY

Vote Was to 315 to 6, Although Opposition Members Were Absent.

PREMIER SPEAKS

Mussolini Declares He Has Pursued a Policy of Peace Since 1922.

ROME, November 17. — The foreign policy of the Mussolini government was sustained in the Chamber of Deputies Saturday by a vote of 315 to 6. Naturally the government expected a vote of confidence with a large majority, owing to the absence of the opposition members. Nevertheless, the anti-governmental press had so emphasized Giolitti's opposition and Orlando's uncertainty that the great majority greatly surpassed expectations.

Premier Mussolini, in his speech in the Chamber of Deputies declared the following policy of his government. He described it as an autonomous policy, which he explained did not signify that it must not be an aggressive policy of hostility, but rather towards any power or powers a policy of autonomy in the sense that to-day in the study of international problems and the taking of decisions on them, the permission of other powers was not required, as of yore.

"The foreign policy of my government since November, 1922," he declared, "has been a policy of peace."

The premier went on to say that for the past two years there had existed foci of disorder in various countries because of failure to pursue a policy designed to remove these discords which constituted a permanent peril of war for Italy. He informed the chamber of the agreement with Great Britain whereby Italy received a part of Jubaland. Thus another cause of discord has been removed. He asserted that his government's policy was to eliminate all possible causes of conflict in its relations with other countries.

THE WEATHER

While the weather Sunday morning was mild, with the appearance of more rain, the wind shifted to the northwest shortly after noon, and began to blow a gale. The temperature began to drop, and before very long we apparently were in the grip of winter. The lowest the thermometer reached was nine above zero. Those who were out, however, were firmly convinced it was much colder. The lack of snow and the high wind prevailing accounted largely for the feeling of the intensity of the cold.—W. P.

BOY SHOOTS SISTER IN PLAY WITH HUNTER'S GUN

Girl Instantly Killed—Were Left Alone By Mother.

BENHEIM, Ont., Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press). — Mary Ann Wood, the seven-year-old daughter of Mrs. Alex Wood of Erieau was killed when a shotgun was discharged by her 11-year-old brother Harry. During the temporary absence of the mother Harry got possession of a loaded gun which had been left in the kitchen by a boarder, Harry Galloway, of Chatham, who is at present in Erieau duck shooting. Bringing the gun into the living-room the boy pointed it in the direction of his sister and pulled the trigger evidently thinking the gun was not loaded.

The little girl received the entire charge in the side of the head inflicting a wound which caused instant death.

Coroner Dr. Hanks, of Blenheim was called and after a preliminary investigation decided to hold an investigation.

ARMS PARLEY AGENDA

Will Be Drafted By Experts Assisting Commissions.

GENEVA, November 17. — Preparations for the proposed international conference for the reduction of armaments were advanced a step on Saturday, when the military and permanent military commissions of the league of nations selected the countries which will furnish six experts to sit with the special commissions that are to help in framing the agenda of the arms conference.

France and Italy will each appoint a military representative, Great Britain and Japan, a naval representative and Brazil and Spain an air expert. Czecho-Slovakia, Sweden and Belgium will each furnish one substitute delegate for each of the above three groups.

The military commission also drew up a preliminary category of military and civil experts from whom will be chosen the commissions which later will conduct an investigation of the armaments situation in Germany, and other central powers, under the treaty of Versailles.

ERIE R.R. FIRE LOSS.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Fire authorities and officials of the Erie Railroad Company Sunday night estimated that the loss incurred in the blaze which Sunday destroyed two of the company's piers, fourteen barges and steamer Dayton, would reach, if not exceed, $1,500,000.

Edmonton, Alberta, recently shipped 58 head of Alberta cattle to Japan as an experiment.

A PICTURE WITH A LESSON – ESPECIALLY FOR THE BOYS

It shows two very frightened boys, Arthur Meigan and Adam Rotundo (left to right). They were two of four boys who went "exploring" with Ernest Schwer in the swamps of Long Island, N.Y. Young Schwer was missing for days. Later it developed he had been accidentally shot and the frightened boys had hidden the body.

Think of the suspense to loved ones caused by their attempted deception! In the end the truth came out.

And, now, look at their faces. Then ask yourself if it wouldn't have been better to face the truth in the first place.

NUN RESUMING CONVENT VEIL

Had Permission to Leave Order to Nurse Father in Last Days.

JUDGE'S DAUGHTER

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Garbed in the clothes of the world she had renounced, an Ursuline nun sits in a brownstone house not a block from Broadway awaiting word that will send her back to the sanctuary of convent walls. The nun is Mother Hildegarde, daughter of Supreme Court Justice John W. Goff, who died just a week ago in his home at 310 West 104th Street.

It was to nurse her father that Mother Hildegarde asked permission to put aside for a time the life of a religious recluse and to live again in the world of her youth. That was more than a year ago, and now that her father has died she is ready to fulfill the promise she made to return to the convent and the religious life.

It was in 1903 that Innis Goff surprised her friends with the announcement that she intended to enter convent walls. She was a beautiful, accomplished and popular girl. Her talents as a musician had attracted attention. Her friends were many.

The girl's decision brought sorrow to the Goff household. She was the only girl. The parents had sent her abroad to study music. She returned an accomplished harpist, and when she sat in the drawing-room of the Goff home and played on the great gilt harp they had bought for her, Judge Goff would call her "Innisvale," an ancient name for Ireland.

But to the pleadings of her parents and her friends, Miss Goff was deaf. She was determined to take up the religious life. She believed it was intended she should do that. At last the harp was covered up and heard no more.

Became a Language Teacher.

Going to Rome Miss Goff joined the Ursulines. In time she was sent back to this country. As a venerate she was sent from convent to convent teaching many subjects, but particularly languages and history. Finally, upon the request of Cardinal Farley, she was appointed a member of the teaching staff at The Castle, a Catholic school for girls at New Rochelle.

Her mother had died then and her father was alone and ageing, and his only other child, a son, John W. Goff, Jr., had married and gone to Bronxville to live. The transfer to New Rochelle brought her near her

SOVIET WAGE SCALE LOWEST IN EUROPE

Barber Gets $10.50 a Month, Carpenter $14.85, Fire Chief $31.40, Laborer $8.40.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 17. — The new official Soviet wage scale from Russia has just been received here. In that country, where the cheapest suits of clothes cost $100, shoes $20 and food and other necessities in proportion, the Soviet government has fixed a national wage scale for all artizans and professional men lower than that of any other country in Europe to-day.

The new scale establishes a working day of eight hours for manual workers, but only six and a half hours for brain workers.

The maximum scale per month as given below is in terms of dollars at the approximate rate of 51 cents for one ruble:

Accountant, $35.14.
Baker, first class, $14.18.

DAUGHTER WINS RACE TO DEATH

Reached Home First and Secured Her Father's Revolver.

SUICIDE MYSTERY

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.— A strange and dramatic story behind the death of Madeline Haverstroh, 25-year-old daughter of a wealthy family of Lynbrook, L.I., who committed suicide in her automobile near her home late Friday afternoon, became public on Saturday. Miss Haverstroh, it was learned, won a 45-mile race for death from Northport to Lynbrook against her mother, who, in another car, was trying to reach home in time to prevent her daughter doing any harm to herself. Reaching home first, the daughter went to her father's room, took his revolver, and then drove two blocks away in her car, where she shot herself.

The yopng woman was popular in Lynbrook and had many friends and admirers. Her father, Louis H. Haverstroh, head of the Mutual Beer Pump Manufacturing Company, is in business in New York, and has lived in Lynbrook with his family for the past eleven years.

On Thursday Miss Haverstroh drove to Stony Brook to attend a birthday party that evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Davis. Mrs. Davis had formerly been Principal of a school which Miss Haverstroh had attended at Malverne. She was to have returned home Friday morning, but stopped at Northport to visit another friend, Mrs. Leopold Dohna, who keeps an inn there.

Friend Warned Mother.

Early Friday afternoon Mrs. Dohna called up Mrs. Haverstroh at Lynbrook and said:

"There is something wrong with Madeline. She's acting very queerly."

"Keep her there until I can get there," replied Mrs. Haverstroh.

Mr. Haverstroh being in New York, the mother then called in Herman Herring, a neighbor, to accompany her to Northport. She drove there in her husband's large sedan, her daughter having taken a small coupe the day before. On arriving at Northport Mrs. Haverstroh asked:

"What's the matter, Madeline?"

"Oh, nothing, mother," replied the daughter, but at once burst into tears.

Mrs. Dohna told the mother that her daughter had been melancholy

PROTOCAL PLAN DOOMED TO FAIL IN DRAFT FORM

British Dominions Opposed to It and It Lacks Signature of Three Nations.

IS INCOMPLETE

Needs United States, Germany and Russia to Accept It, Says British Paper.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Attention of the Baldwin cabinet will be directed at its meeting next Wednesday to the arbitration protocol of the League of Nations, the difficulties in connection with which have not been lessened by the revival on the continent of discussion of the proposed pact between Great Britain, Belgium and France. As has been pointed out in several directions, foreign comment on relations between Britain and continental nations too often overlook the part which the British dominions must play in the settlement of Britain's foreign policy.

"There is little probability that the dominions will be able to accept the protocol," says the Sunday Observer. "It has not been shown how the British fleet could be used to uphold the decisions of the League of Nations as long as the United States remains outside it without enlarging rather than controlling the area of complication. Equally, the fact remains that the protocol is the work of an incomplete league and while elaborating the provision for the maintenance of order it has not elaborated the means of meeting the creative needs of justice."

The Observer adds the opinion that in order to bring about complete disarmament there must be a conference of the nations which will include Germany, Russia and the United States.

"Will these powers," it asks, "attend the proposed conference next June? If so the whole question of the protocol will not escape being re-opened. If not the protocol and the conference will fall to the ground.

IMPORTANT SURVEY RUSSIAN SITUATION

Rykoff Said Soviet Government Had Bent the Stick Too Far.

MOSCOW, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—At a sitting of the Federal Trades Union Congress to-day, Alexis L. Rykoff, president of the Council of Commissars, made what is considered a highly important survey of Russia's present economic situation.

L. Rykoff admitted the Soviet Government had "bent the stick too far and fast in combatting private trade." He also said that, owing to the condition of state industries, and lack of domestic made articles to meet the needs of the population, the government would be obliged this year to use its reserve of gold and foreign currency to purchase commodities abroad. The President confirmed the report that it was the government's intention to abandon grain exportation this year. He added, however, that efforts would be made to offset this by increasing exports of oil, manganese and timber.

TRIBUTE BY A BAPTIST PASTOR

Rev. C. W. Rose Says Baptists Appreciate Methodists.

Rev. C. W. Rose, D.D., pastor of Murray Street Baptist Church, speaking briefly before the regular sermon last evening, paid the following tribute to the members of the Methodist persuasion, citing the following reasons why the Baptists were in accord with their Methodist brethren:

1—Because Methodists have a 'like precious faith with Baptists.' They believe in God as we do and worship Him as we do. You cannot tell when you talk with a Methodist what particular denomination he belongs to by any thought he has of God. They believe in Christ as we do. They believe in the Holy Spirit as we do. They believe in salvation from sin through an atoning Saviour as we do. They believe in the Christian life and service as we do. They believe in a future for the good and the bad as we do.

2—Because of their Christian character. By their fruits ye shall know them and by this severe test they are revealed as followers of the Master. They have real saints in their membership and we will not stultify our own souls by denying so evident a fact. It was Paul who said that we should think of the things that are honorable, lovely and of good report and so we do. We appreciate the character of her ministers and members. That there are some among them, as among us, who are exceptions should not surprise us or lead us to be untrue in our judgments.

3—Because of their evangelical and educational work through the past generations. Their efforts in seeking lost souls and in training them for Christian service are worthy of the highest commendation. Today their missionaries are to be found in practically every part of the world. To-day in great cities their missions, like lighthouses, are sending out their light over dangerous areas. To-day men and women with the passion of the Master for the lost are seeking to win souls. If to-day they seek to do their work more along the line of education than through exhortation that is only an expression of the wisdom which adopts the most successful methods.

4—Because of their consistent and persistent leadership in moral reform movements. The voices of Methodist ministers all over the land have been clear, strong, unequivocal, calling the forces of the Kingdom of God to battle against every form of evil. The laymen and the women of the Methodist Church have also had no superiors in this work. The world to-day is their debtor. Baptists will not forget the way our Methodist associates, in the interest of the Kingdom, have ever worked.

Dr. Rose also stated that he wished it clearly understood that Baptists also appreciate the other devoted churches of our city and country.

BOYS' PARLIAMENT.

Two Candidates For Election in Peterboro—Review of Work.

The Boys' Parliament, which consists of representatives of the various electoral districts of Ontario, and has for its purpose the carrying on and improving the C.S.E.T. programme for Tuxis and Trail Ranger groups, meets this year again in the Parliament Buildings in Toronto on Dec. 26, 27, 29, 30, and 31, 1924.

Last year the Parliament voted a large sum of money for promoting the work in the province, and through their bond-selling campaign raised a great deal more than their objective. Through the success of this effort the Provincial Board has been able to give greater service to the boys of the Province.

Badge work, which is an important feature of the programme, has been greatly benefited by the meeting of the Parliament as a number of new badges have been added to the list and conditions under which the old ones can be won have been improved.

The candidate for election in this city are Orville Martin and Allen Neal. These boys have had a wide experience in boys' work and are well qualified for the position for which they are running.

Who Can Vote.

Any boy who has passed his 12th but not his 21st birthday on Nov. 29th, 1924, who is a member of an organized S.S. Class or C.S.E.T group that is duly registered with the Ontario Boys' Work Board and has had the names of its members placed on the returning officers' list by Tuesday, November 18th, 1924.

Where to Vote.

In the Y.M.C.A., George Street; in Park Street Baptist Church, Park Street.

When to Vote.

Between the hours of 4.00 p.m. and 8.00 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 29th, 1924.

The returning officer for the city is Mr. Tom. Dutton, 239 Stewart Street. 'Phone No. 684. All leaders of organized classes should see that all names are on the voters' list before to-morrow, Tuesday, Nov. 18.

Lists have been sent out to the various Sunday Schools for these names, and it is imperative that they should be in the hands of the Returning Officer before the above date.

A stick of dynamite covered with gun powder and some T.N.T. thrown in for good measure, that is the most realistic pen picture we can paint of a former Peterborough boy preaching in Bethany Tabernacle at both services yesterday.

Many of his former pals turned out, some through curiosity, others for the purpose of confirming many rumours. "Hullo Benny, you're looking fine." "Hello, Bud, when you get a change of heart you feel fine." "Jesus makes you love everybody," was Ben's reply.

The Gospel was preached at both services, with no uncertain sound, and the way of salvation through the atoning blood of Christ made so plain "that you don't need a dictionary to know what I'm talking about." "I am preaching Christ where I served the devil for 25 years."

At the evening service a touching appeal was made to many of his old buddies to which some responded, coming up to the platform and taking Benny's hand as a confession that they had accepted Christ as their Saviour.

No one who knew him in the past can deny that Evangelist Ben Wilson as he is to-day can see living testimony of the wonderful grace of our Lord Jesus Christ. Those who heard him could not but appreciate his thorough earnestness and the fact that he is a man on fire for Christ. He is connected with the Shantyman's Christian Association as field secretary and evangelist. Ben is primarily a soul winner. This work is supported by the free will offerings of God's people.

The co-operation of the workers at Bethany Tabernacle was very much to be lauded and the orchestra was of great assistance.

Many friends expressed enjoyment of the messages in song by Ben Wilson's song leader, Mr. A. L. Escoffery.

Many of the congregation expressed the desire to have Brother Wilson back for a week, but as he is booked up until the end of December this would have to be after the first of the year, probably January 4th to the 11th.

PRINCESS PATS ON WAY TO WINNIPEG

The Band Made a Stay of Six Weeks in England—Played in Theatres.

QUEBEC, Nov. 17.—The band of the Princess Patricia's Light Infantry, having concluded their special engagement at the British Empire exhibition, are proceeding to their headquarters at Winnipeg, having landed at Quebec this morning off the Canadian Pacific steamer Empress of Scotland.

The success of the band in London exceeded all expectations and so pleased were the authorities of the Exhibition with the performances given that they engaged the band for a further two weeks, making an engagement of six weeks in all.

During their stay in London, they played at the two largest theatres of the British capital when all attendance records at both houses were shattered. Not less than three million people listened in to a programme broadcast by the Princess Pats' band and from reports received from Edinburgh, Liverpool, Hull, Dublin and Hamburg, the reputation of the band was further enhanced.

The Empress of Scotland, which was delayed several hours by a heavy snow storm on the way up the St. Lawrence river, carried besides a large general cargo for Quebec, nearly 500 bags of mail for Canada and the Orient.

BELIEVE CIGARETTE CAUSED JERSEY FIRE

Investigators Advance Theory, Although Origin of the Blaze Remains a Mystery.

Employees To Be Quizzed.

NEW JERSEY, Nov. 17. — The cause of the explosion that sent fire sweeping over two Jersey City blocks and destroyed $1,000,000 worth of property on Friday remained a mystery Saturday, although investigation was begun by the Police, Fire and Buildings Departments of the city.

Directing the inquiry were Police Chief Richard Battersby and Fire Chief Roger Boyle, neither of whom would comment on the results of their investigation. Chief Battersby, however, said he had detectives out in an effort to question every employee of the Battelle & Renwick saltpeter plant, in the subcellar of which the explosion occurred. He felt confident the men who were in the building at the time of the blast must know what caused it.

One theory held by the investigators was that a dropped cigarette might have been responsible for the blaze, which, in addition to its actual destruction, drove 3,000 persons from their nearby homes and made eighty families homeless and destitute.

The investigators characterized the fire as the worst in the history of the city, although two other fires had resulted in larger property damage. These were the $2,500,000 fire in the Jarvis Warehouse Company's plant on March 18, 1918, and the $8,000,000 damage caused by the fire that followed the Black Tom explosion on July 30, 1916.

150 Refugees Still Cared For.

Carrying throughf the work o succor, which they started within half an hour after the fire began, relief agencies sheltered 150 refugees in the former Fourth Regiment Armory, now the home of the Jersey City battalion of the 113th Infantry. A total of 215 persons were fed and slept in the Armory on Friday night.

When firemen early Saturday reinforced their comrades, who had kept streams of water playing on the blaze all night, they found the fire virtually out. Here and there remained a few flames and in front of the saltpeter plant a lake of saltpeter boiled and bubbled. Within a short time these were extinguished and only four streams were held on to wet down the ruins.

Investigators, however, were warned away because of the great danger from collapsing brickwork. Several jagged fragments of wall stood at a crazy angle and firemen were afraid that the poking about of the investigators might send them crashing down. During the day several large areas of blackened wall fell with a roar into the streets.

A large detachment of street cleaners was sent into the fire area and wagon after wagon load of broken glass was removed. Then, after police lines had been removed to within two blocks of the fire area, tenants in the houses adjoining the zone were permitted to return.

Kept From Visiting Fire Area.

Many of the returning ones sought to get close to the fire, but were prevented by the police. The great piles of debris still retained terrific heat and a steady cloud of steam rose from them that might prove dangerous.

Another reason was that by the time the tenants began to come back firemen were engaged in pulling down masonry likely to topple down. A block and fall arrangement hitched to a tractor was employed in this work. Several huge water tanks remained perched dangerously on the insecure foundation of the corner of two weakened walls. These seemed likely to tumble to the street at any moment. Wreckers will endeavor to get them down today.

All of the injured who remained in hospitals were reported to be doing well, except Peter Sherry, a Jersey City fireman, of 75 Clark Avenue. He was severely burned when water and chemicals were swept by the wind into his face. Physicians at the Jersey City General Hospital said he might be blind for life, but that every effort was being made to save his sight. Only nine persons remained in the hospitals for treatment of burns and smoke inhalation last night.

Although some reports placed the number of families who lost their homes in the fire as high as 500, an official report by the Jersey City police placed the number at eighty. Sixty-two of the families lived in Essex street and Washington street, in tenements fronting directly on the fire area. Their homes were virtually destroyed by brief fires that were quickly checked, and by the great volume of water poured into them.

Eighteen Families Back in Homes.

The quarters of eighteen other families were patched up by relief workers and the tenants returned to them. Twelve of the eighteen families returned to 112 Morris street. Forty-three families lost all their household goods when the five tenements, extending from 106 to 114 Essex street, were destroyed.

The police, listing the families made homeless, reported that eleven tenements were destroyed in the fire. The other structures that were burned out were the saltpetre plant and two dismantled warehouses of the American Sugar Refining Company. The warehouses were formerly used by the Atlantic Sugar Refining Company, a subsidiary of the larger corporation, but were abandoned three years ago when the plant was moved to Baltimore.

Frank Hague, Mayor of Jersey City, who was on a vacation at Hot Springs, Va., sent a telegram announcing his intention of returning. The Mayor expressed the thanks of the city to all relief workers, naming the Red Cross, Y.M.C.A., Knights of Columbus, Elks, the Rev. Thomas Graham of St. Peter's College and Major William A. Higgins of the 113th Infantry for their aid to the stricken.

Pending the reutrn of Mayor Hague, Deputy Mayor Malone organized a municipal relief committee, which took over from the Red Cross the management of the armory relief station. Offers of aid from the New York County Chapter of the Red Cross and from the national organization in Washington were declined, as Jersey City, individually and in organization, came forward with more than enough money and supplies to take care of the refugees.

Higgins In Charge At Armory.

Major Higgins was in charge at the armory. Down the north and south ends of the big building's drill hall boards were put up and canvas stretched to form a series of compartments. On one side the men were placed and on the other the women and children. Long tables were ranged midway between the sleeping compartments, and substantial meals, cooked in the armory, were served. Hundreds of bundles of clothing and other supplies were delivered there during the day and distributed. Twelve nurses from the Jersey City Hospital were in attendance to take care of the younger children and at one end of the drill hall a playground for the larger children was roped off. Homeless or not, the children heartily enjoyed themselves.

Major Higgins said all of the refugees would probably be out of the armory by to-night. One of the functions of the Municipal Relief Committee, it was announced, would be to find suitable homes until the refugees could get back on their feet again. The committee canvassed real estate men to compile a list of houses within the means of the fire sufferers. Many of the realty men offered reduced rents for a period to tide the sufferers over the emergency.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Deer Hunters Return With Trophies of the Hunt—News Campbellford.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 17. — Seven deer which had been shot by the hunters from town, were put off the train at the station on Saturday night. Five of them belonged to the party of four Ayrharts, father and three sons, and Gerald Labrash all of Campbellford. They succeeded in shooting four in three days, and of the five they brought home, one of them was a buck weighing two hundred and twenty five pounds, the largest one taken out from the wood up to the present time. The boys were proud of the number and success of their trip.

Mr. Harry Atkinson, River Road, who returned from hunting was at the Station looking after two deer belonging to his party. The party were mostly coming home by cars and brought part of their game with them. There were in this party Messrs. C. W. and F. J. Smith, J. and P. Nesbitt, H. Atkinson all of Campbellfordand C. Maybee of Belleville.

Inspecting Bridges.

Warden Fowlds of Hastings, Geo. Greer, superintendent of Roads and Bridges, Reeve Elliott of Bowmanville, Reeve Hart of Murray, were in Campbellford on Friday and Saturday, inspecting roads and bridges.

Sebastopol street sewer is finished to Hastings road. Several of the sewers on the different streets are finished, and the residents on these streets find it a gret convenience to have the water and sewerage. Work is still being done on other streets, and will keep on as long as the weather permits.

The winter season of dances will soon be done. The twelve o'clock club are having a general meeting (the first of the season) on Tuesday night, in the public library, at seven o'clock, to appoint officers, and make plans for the winter.

Frances Peckett, who was accidentally shot, is doing very nicely, and the doctor has some hopes of him. Great anxiety has been felt by his parents and friends, but he has kept fairly well till over Sunday, which was the day the doctor expected a change. He has received some beautiful flowers. One bouquet of beautiful "mums," different shades, was sent by the band, of which Francis is a member. His parents appreciate very much the kind remembrance and thoughtfulness of teh band in sending this gift of flowers.

Firemen Called Out.

The fire alarm was run for Ward One on Sunday afternoon. The firemen had a run, but the fire was out when they reached the place, as it was only a burning chimney at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Outerson, on Rear Street, who have recently moved into the house.

The anniversary services held in the Methodist Church on Sunday were well attended. Rev. W. Elliott, the pastor, preached two very able and interesting sermons. In the morning, he preached on "The Nucleus of the Christian Church," and in the evening, "Seeing Jesus." For ten minutes before the evening service began, the congrgation, led by the choir, enjoyed a song service of old familiar and favorite hymns.

The music by the choir was of a high order and was enjoyed very much by the congregations.

In the morning service, there were three special anthems, "O Thou That Hearest Prayer," by Simper; "Ye Shall Dwell in the Land," by Stainer, and "Thou Crownest the Year," Simper. The solos were taken by Mrs. Malcolm, Mrs. Turner, Miss R. Taylor and Dr. H. O. Richardson.

The evening music consisted of an opening anthem by the choir, a duett by Mr. Bell and Mr. Collison, an anthem "Hark! Hark! My Soul," with Miss N. Hoover and Mrs. H. O. Richardson taking the solos, and a solo, "Abide With Me," Liddel, by Mrs. Parish. The last hymn, "God Be With You," was sung in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Parish, who leave on Friday for England, where they intend to live.

Mr. Elliott spoke a few words of appreciation of the help that Mr. and Mrs. Parish have given to the church, through their work in the choir.

A special thankoffering was asked for, and over seven hundred dollars was put on the plate on Sunday. More is expected as there were some who were not present, who always contribute.

Surprise and Farewell

A very pleasant surprise party and farewell was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Archer in Seymour West on Friday night, when about eighty neighbors and friends gathered together to say farewell to them before they moved from their old home to the new one which they bought in Campbellford. Mr. Archer was presented with a large arm chair, and Mrs. Archer with a library table. The following is the address, which was read by Mr. John Locke:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Archer:— We, a few of your friends and neighbors come this evening to say farewell to you. We, one and all, are very sorry that you are leaving our neighborhood, where you have spent so many years.

In the many years you have dwelt with us, you both have endeared yourselves to us all, by your many acts of kindness, your willingness at all times to give a helping hand. You will both be greatly missed in this neighborhood, and our earnest desire is that you both may long be spared to enjoy your new home.

May we ask you, Mr. Archer, to accept this chair and you, Mrs. Archer, this library table, to remind you both, that they bear with them our best wishes in your new home.

Signed on behalf of your friends, and neighbours, A. H. McKelvie, Wm. Melville, John Locke.

Mr. Archer in reply for himself and Mrs. Archer thanked them all for beautiful gifts and appreciated very much the kind thoughts and wishes expressed in the address.

After the presentation a splendid lunch was enjoyed by all. The rest of the evening was spent in music and social intercourse. The evening was a great surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Archer. They will be missed in that neighbourhood, Mr. Archer has lived there for sixty-eight years. They will be moving soon into their new home on Garry street.

A Cooking Sale.

The cooking sale and afternoon tea, held by the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, in the basement of the Public Library on Saturday afternoon, was quite a success. A good supply of home cooking was on hand, donated by the ladies of the town, and found a ready sale, everything being sold out by six o'clock.

Those who had charge of the cooking table were: Mrs. Archer, Mrs. Hume, Mrs. Haig, Mrs. Wm. Smith. Those in the tea-room looking after the six tea tables were: Mrs. Greig, Mrs. Caddy, Mrs. F. Smith, Mrs. Lowrey, Mrs. Birmingham and Mrs. R. Connor, with Mrs. Hammond and Mrs. Stewart assisting.

The proceeds for the afternoon were about fifty dollars. Mrs. Ashton, the Regent, wishes to thank those who helped and also those who donated and were present for lunch.

The I.O.D.E. are endervoring to swell the amount laid aside for the memorial fund.

Church Notes.

The Quarterly Official Board will meet on Tuesday for its November meeting.

The Mission Circle are holding a tea on Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. C. W. Turner, Queen street. The young ladies are endeavoring to make this a success and are asking both ladies and gentlemen to come and help the cause of Missions.

KILLED BY TRAIN.

Toronto Youth Died as Result of Injuries Received on Saturday.

BUFFALO, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press.) — James McCormick, 26 years old, of Toronto, died in Millard Fillmore Hospital Saturday night as a result of injuries suffered when run over by the wheels of a freight car at the end of the American International bridge in Blackrock.

According to the police he was being smuggled into the United States and was attempting to escape when the tragedy occurred.

HEALTH FABLES.

COMFORT IN BED.

"Umm—there's nothing like a comfortable bed when you're not feeling well," Mr. Mann of Anytown would grunt from underneath the covers when indispositions overtook him.

Every good nurse appreciates how important is the element of physical comfort in the psychology of an invalid.

Here are a few things that can be given attention by any woman who wants to make her hubby or children more comfortable during an illness:

Watch the light. Don't let it shine in the patient's eyes.

Be as quiet as possible and don't bring about any overexertion through argument or talk.

If the patient has been lying for any length of time, prop a pillow beneath his knees to relieve the strain on the muscles.

Don't let the covers become oppressively heavy and don't let the patient get too hot.

Have a comfortable bed and changes of sheets.

It doesn't take much to make sick people happy—a few flowers, some little presents, some wholesome article of food, or any one of a dozen things.

GARBAGE.

London (England) expects soon to be lighting its streets with power obtained from the fuel in its garbage.

We are entering an age in which economies like this will be the basis of the great new fortunes. Natural resources have made many millionaires. They are virtually cornered in every direction and the cream skimmed off Economy and shortcuts—these, young man, are the future roads to riches. Chemistry in particular is a wonderful field for the oncoming generation.

Ancient alchemists sought to turn lead into gold. Our generation in effect turns garbage and scrap heaps into gold.

OPIUM DISPUTE

frain from exporting when it had no special agreement with other countries. He continued:

"The Japanese representative has made a threat. If Japan possesses un favorable information concerning the officials of other Governmentss she should disclose it or should never have alluded to it."

M. Sugimura then charged that India's interest in the opium problem was "mainly economic," and insisted that the discussion was being carried to a low level. If Japan was to be suspected when she desired opium shipments for legitimate purposes then no accord reached at Geneva would be signed by Japan.

Too Much Secrecy

M. Sze, for China, arose and smilingly said that all the trouble came from secrecy in the subcommittees, and that the conference might be saved if what went on in the subcommittee room could be known by all the delegates.

Amid great confuston the conference adjourned until Sunday.

The National Anti-Opium Association of China presented to the conference here to-day a petition which supports the original American proposal that the production of opium and narcotic drugs should be strictly limited to medical and scientific purposes. It insists that the welfare of the whole human race is threatened by the rapid increase in the use of narcotics.

The petition, which was signed by the President and Secretary of the society at Shanghai, attributes the unhappy recrudescence of the opium evil in China to the prevalence of civil strife and the neglect of law, and to the increased importation of narcotics from other lands.

The petition declares that numerous Chinese emigrants a resratdnd ous Chinese emigrants and traders living in the Straits Settlement, the East Indies and other non-Chinese territories, have become the victims of opium and narcotics.

Limit Production

After affirming the will and intention of the Chinese nations to eradicate the production and consumption of opium in the near future, the petitioners asked the conference to obtain an agreement among all the nations to limit the production of opium and its derivatives, and of cocaine to the amount required for medical and scientific purposes. This they declare, would help greatly not only the Chinese people, but the people of other lands in the struggle to restrict the practice of opium smoking to incurables and thereby ensure the disappearance of the habit within a definite period.

The conference took no action on the Chinese petition but passed to the consideration of articles of the draft convention projects. Japan vigorously reopened her campaign to tain the registration and rationing of all smokers as the most effective method of attaining the complete suppression of opium smoking.

Representative Stephen G. Porter of Pennsylvania, as Chairman; Bishop Charles E. Brent, and Dr. Rupert Blue, former Surgeon General of the Public Health Service, have arrived in Geneva and are ready with Edwin L. Neville, already here, to represent the United States at the main opium conference which opens to-day.

HEALTH is too valuable an asset to be considered lightly. It is very essential, if you are to take a leading part in business, to get the greatest pleasure out of life. Abundant health depends upon steady nerves—nerves untroubled by poisons often unknowingly taken daily into the system.

These poisons are Caffeine and Tannin —in tea and coffee. They are detrimental to the whole nervous system—frequently cause restless sleep, excitability, indigestion and other troubles which affect health.

Keep friends with health through Instant Postum, the hot, full-bodied drink which is friendly to all. Delightful and wholesome at any time, it is made instantly in the cup with boiling water. Economical—costs half-a-cent a cup. Ask for it at your restaurant, your club and on the train. For those who prefer it, there is Postum Cereal, made by boiling for twenty minutes. Take advantage of Carrie Blanchard's offer. Send the coupon.

"There's a Reason"

INSTANT POSTUM

Children love Instant Postum made with milk!

You know how many children do not like the taste of milk. You know how they rave to have the same drink as the "grown-ups." You know, too, how good it is for them to have a hot drink!

Make Instant Postum for them, using hot milk instead of boiling water! They'll like the taste immediately! And they will get the food elements of wheat, plus the nourishment of milk, in a hot drink that is economical and so easy to make!

FINDING THE REASON.

The theory is advanced that those orators of the U. F. O. cause who used to picture the politicians of the old parties as grafters and worse are responsible for the plight of Peter Smith, inasmuch as he might have been led to believe that it was the usual thing for those in power to think more of their own financial rewards than of the good of the Province.

Those who think well of that argument can agree with it.

There, however, are many people who wonder if a better reason is not to be found in the thought that the former Provincial Treasurer merely inherited a going concern and made use of it.

There is a mystery concerning the secret commission fund of the Home Bank that has not been cleared up by the conviction of Peter Smith for the single reason that a large sum of money disappeared out of that fund before the advent of Smith into office.

The evidence is that some $39,000 was apparently paid to influence Provincial business.

The money never reached the Ontario treasury, and Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer in the Hearst regime, has sworn on oath that he did not receive it.

Who got that $39,000?

If the answer to that question were known it might be possible to more clearly understand the quick downfall of Peter Smith, who says he never should have left his farm.

BASEBALL IN EUROPE.

It is not surprising that the European tour of the New York and Chicago professional baseball clubs has been abandoned, the lack of interest shown in the games in Great Britain and France giving no reason for hoping that other European countries would be enraptured with the pastime.

The failure of the trip can no more be considered as an indictment of the lack of taste of the people across the Atlantic than it can be regarded as a black-eye for the game of baseball.

Canadians know that baseball is a good game, but a taste for it can only be acquired as is a fondness for olives.

It is difficult for Britishers at home to understand some features of the game; the noise made by the players for one thing, the uncomplimentary things they say about each other and the bickering with umpires, something unheard of in cricket, with which, of course, everybody in the old land compares baseball.

Over here Britishers gradually learn to appreciate the good points of the game, and it is undoubtedly the fact that some of the most enthusiastic fans we have in Peterborough are not very long out from the British Isles.

The point is that United States promoters cannot hope to sell baseball in Europe simply by sending a couple of teams on tour.

People won't go to see them play, and would get very little idea of the sport or its possibilities by watching a game or two, if they were attracted by curiosity.

THE COST OF GOVERNMENT.

Before going ahead with his plan to increase by 50 per cent. the salaries of the Ontario Cabinet Ministers, there are many people who believe that Hon. Mr. Ferguson should not overlook the fact that the public is certain that it is already paying a very heavy bill for its governments and legislators.

It is an astounding fact that in Canada, with a population of under nine million people, we pay 100 per cent. more for our politicians that it costs Great Britain with five times the population.

The figures are interesting.

For our Federal administration we pay every year for 18 Cabinet Ministers, one at $15,000 and the rest at $10,000, plus sessional indemnities of $4,000 each, a total of $229,000.

Our 234 members of Parliament cost us $940,000 each year, and the Senators, for whose heads so many people are anxious, take $384,000 a year out of the treasury.

The Solicitor-General receives $9,000.

Then there are nine Lieutenant-Governors whose salaries run from $7,000 to $9,000, reaching a yearly total of $81,000.

The Provincial Legislatures must be paid with totals as follows: Ontario, $218,000; Quebec, $286,000; Nova Scotia, $121,000; New Brunswick, $60,000; Manitoba, $127,000; British Columbia, $135,000; Prince Edward Island, $23,000; Alberta, $60,000, and Saskatchewan, $142,000.

Altogether the bill each year amounts to $2,922,900, while Great Britain, with a population of 40,000,000 million at home, a powerful army and navy, gets along with a Cabinet and Parliament that costs in indemnities but $1,230,000 a year.

It does not seem a very auspicious time for adding to the cost of government by boosting Cabinet Ministers' salaries by 50 per cent.

ALWAYS OUT OF WORK.

Several million Americans are continuously out of employment. Such is the report of the Russell Sage Foundation. (It doesn't include the economic parasites who live the life of ease without contributing anything to production or progress.)

The estimate of "several millions" as the total of people out of work is an average for good and bad years combined.

During hard times, as many as six millions are jobless.

Even in booms, as many as a million are out of work for weeks and sometimes for months at a time. A considerable part of this unemployment during prosperity is due to "floaters" who drift from one town to another or work a while and then loaf until their money runs short.

Striking an average, at least a tenth of the workers of the United States are out of work, year in and year out. The proportion of Canadians is probably about the same. One man may be jobless only a month in a year. Twelve like him are equivalent to one man idle the year-round.

In this situation is a tremendous economic waste, from the national viewpoint. For men consume whether they are producing or not. When a man isn't doing a tap of work, he must eat, wear clothes and have heat and shelter. And these, naturally, have to be produced by someone.

It stands to reason that the prosperity or standard of living of the people of this Continent could be raised a tenth if ways could be devised to keep the chronically-idle-tenth busy all the time.

The most sensible suggestion ever made has not been adopted, though it is so old that it's beginning to get grey whiskers. This suggestion is that the Federal Government, Provinces and municipalities should embark on big engineering projects when times are dull. Thus hundreds of thousands or millions of men could be utilized at such needed construction work as the building of roads, bridges, public buildings and parks.

Such a system would have to be elastic. Government construction work would expand when a lot of men were jobless, and shrink to next to nothing when labor was at a premium in private industry.

Eventually such a system will come into use—probably not overnight by legislative reform, but by evolution.

It would stop the economic or national loss. And it would solve the jobless man's personal problem—enabling him to produce continuously, a better way than taking care of him by charity, unemployment insurance or by eating up his meagre and hard-earned savings.

THE COLONIAL OFFICE AND THE DOMINIONS.

The London Times has taken up vigorously a complaint that is often heard from representatives of the Overseas Dominions who do business with the British Government, to the effect that "the Colonial Office is no longer appropriate as a channel" for the transaction of this business." It proposes, in a sentence, "the elimination of the Colonial Office itself as a focus for a self-governing Empire." That is, the Colonial Office may remain and government of "Colonies"; but a new organ must be established to deal with the Overseas Dominions.

There is precedent for this—and precedent is ever dear to the British heart. Great Britain does not attempt to deal with the intricate problems and weighty responsibilities of her great Indian Dependency through the Colonial Office. She long ago set up an India Office and left shamefully neglected the very important tasks of looking after Jamaica, the Gold Coast, the Malay States and the long list of scattered British responsibilities.

There was a time when the self-governing Dominions were true Colonies, and then they came properly under the Colonial Office. But they have long since outgrown this stage in their development. They are now sister-nations. The problems that arise respecting them are by no means as elusive and menacing as those which came out of "the mysterious East," but they are vitally important and—if crudely handled—may lead by degrees to dangerous complications. It is not fair to lay upon the shoulders of the Colonial Office—which is necessarily attuned to the more primitive problems of proper Colonies, usually largely "native" in population,—the burden of broad statesmanship required for handling effectively the questions that develop between nations, even if they be members of the same great family.

This is, of course, no belittlement of the abilities of our Colonial Secretaries, past and present. In fact, we have at the moment an exceptionally well-informed and certainly sympathetic incumbent in this importan office. But the labors involved are not only far too great for one office, but they are of a quite different character. Qualities which would admirably adapt a permanent official to deal with dwellers in a Crown Colony, or even a more developed "native" State, would be precisely the qualities that would irritate and antagonize the spokesmen for a great self-governing white community.

The self-governing Dominions are quite an important enough factor in the Empire to be given a Government department of their own. It should be officered by men who understand us and who realize that they are handling communities very like detached sections of the Motherland. A direct personal acquaintance with each one of the Dominions would do no harm.

But it seems to us that every tendency to look to "diplomacy", "ambassadorships", and the Foreign Office for models toward which the new development should move, is a vital mistake. The Overseas Dominions are most emphatically not foreign nations. Their contact with the central Imperial Government should not be "diplomacy," but cordial co-operation. We should not be trying to get the better of each other, but to work together for the common good. While our High Commissioners might well rank with foreign Ambassadors, they should not be regarded as even approaching their character or purpose. They are membes of the household. They, with the British representatives for a common front as against foreign Ambassadors.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

There was nothing that resembled Indian summer in that breeze that whistled past one's ears last evening.

Cross-word puzzlers may be able to guess a word of four letters, defined as a fuel, that costs $16 a ton, that was much in the mind of householders this morning.

With the radio and the cross-word puzzle, it may be truly said "There's no place like home."

It's old but still good advice—"The early Christmas shopper is always a winner."

The Ontario cities that hold their municipal elections early in December are getting the flurry over now, leaving the holiday season free for the customary festivities.

CANADA SEEKING SPANISH TRADE

Tariff War Has Wiped Out Business Between the Two Countries.

DRY LAW RESULT

LONDON, Nov. 17.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—A Reuter's despatch from Barcelona announcing the visit to that city shortly of a representative of the Canadian government to discuss the question of a treaty of commerce between Canada and Spain, says that at present there is a tariff war between the two countries and that Spain levies completely prohibitive "first column" rates on all goods produced in Canada. Consequently the trade between them has been wiped out.

Although there is a treaty of commerce between the United Kingdom and Spain to which most of the British dominions and protectorates have adhered, Canada, owing to the fact that she prohibits the importation of Spanish wines in connection with her temperance policy, preferred to act independently, apparently hoping that she would still be able to obtain the most favored nation treatment from Spain as do the United States of America, but such favorable treatment, perhaps, hardly can be expected as, despite the fact that a "dry" law exists in the United States, they possess a strong lever in cotton which is required by the Barcelona manufacturers of petrol and lubricating oil, where as Canada has very little of comparable value to offer Spain.

Consul Arrested.

The British government under pressure of the protectionists "canny" tactics while the delay in beginning negotations since the signing of the Anglo-Spanish treaty in Oct. 1922, is also thought to have been connected with an incident some months ago in Montreal when the Spanish Consul was accused of being concerned in contraband running.

There are some important Canadian interests in Spain such as a bank in Barcelona and a large hydro-electric concern which undoubtedly would be placed in far better position if the two countries came to terms on trade matters. Several firms which used to do a good trade with Canada have been ruined and it will be a long time before normal relations are resumed, a fact which appears all the more unfortunate when it is remembered that Spain used to import from Canada much more than she exported.

MONTREAL GRAIN

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—The feature of the local grain trade on Saturday was the marked improvement in the demand from spot buyers for oats and a fair amount of business was done in Canadian western grades of which No. 3 grade sold at 6 1-2 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg November option, c.i.f., Montreal.

Ontario oats were stronger and prices were marked up 2 cents per bushel. No. 2 white sold at 62 cents No. 3 grade at 60 cents. and No. 4 at 58 cents per bushel, and Ontario malting barley was 1 cent per bushel higher at $1.09 for No. 3 extra, and at $1.08 for No 3 grade, ex-track. The outstanding development in the flour situation was the stronger feeling that developed for winter wheat grades and prices advanced 10 cents per barrel, and broken lots 20 cents per barrel. This was attributed to the strength in raw material and the smaller offerings from millers.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Largely as a result of expected heavy frost in Argentina the wheat market to-day scored a material advance in price. Closing quotations here on wheat were strong at 2 1-8 to 2 3-4 cents net gain, with December 1.54 1-8 and May 1.61 1-8 to 1.61 3-8. Corn finished at 3-8 to 1 cent higher, oats half to 3-4 cents up provisions vary ing from 15 cents decline to a rise of 12 cents.

QUEBEC BUTTER

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—At the Quebec Agricultural co-operative society auction sale held here last week the offerings were 500 packages, as against 1,200 packages for the previous week, and 285 packages for the same week last year. The prices realized were 1 1-8 cents per lb., below the previous sale, No. 1 pasteurized creamery selling at 33 3-8 cents per lb., and No. 1 creamery at 32 7-8 cents per lb., which were 4 1-4 cents per lb., lower than the same day a year ago. At the country boards last week prices declined 2 3-8 cents to 2 1-2 cents per lb., with purchases at 31 1-8 cents per lb. f.o.b.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.— Sterling exchange rates were quoted here Saturday as follows: Sterling demand $4.62 3-4; sterling cables $4.63 1-8.

GET ACQUAINTED WITH K.D.K.A.

(PITTSBURGH, Pa.—326 METERS)

By WILLIAM J. FAGAN.

One of the radio stations most pleasing to contemplate mentally is KDKA, located at East Pittsburgh, Pa., and maintained by the Westinghouse Electric.

KDKA enjoys an enviable reputation. It is known from coast to coast and is regularly heard in South America, for which continent KDKA has on several occasions broadcasted special Latin-American programs.

There is a dignity about KDKA which should strike with awe some of the base pretenders to the name "broadcasting station" with which America is unfortunately too cluttered up for peace of mind. The station is one of the most progressive in the business. And it speaks the language of the science of radio terms both eloquent and homely. Possibly no radio engineers have contributed quite so much to the art as have those of KDKA. And they haven't finished yet, by any means.

The programs of KDKA are exceptionally high class. Popular music has found a place with the classics, but there is nothing "jazzy" about KDKA. Good, honest music takes preference over jazz or modern music over the heads of 90 per cent. of radio listeners. The station has been both judicious and fortunate in the choice of its artists and the KDKA Little Symphony Orchestra has been "on the air" for more than a year with four or five concert periods a week. Then, too, the Westinghouse Band, Scalzo's Orchestra and various organists have contributed to the classical side of the programs with music during dinner and at the hours set apart nightly for concert periods.

Late programs are given several times a week, beginning at 11 p.m., mainly for the benefit of distant listeners. These late programs are, of course, popular in character.

KDKA is not a commercial station. It is in existence to entertain its listeners and to advance radio science as much as it can. That it has succeeded in doing both thus far cannot be denied.

TENANTS MUST PAY

Basis of Prospective Settlement of Clydebank Rent Trouble.

LONDON, Nov. 17. — (Canadian Press). — Settlement of the trouble between landlords and their tenants in the Clydebank district of Glasgow, in which thousands of householders for months have refused to pay rent to the owners, appears to be in sight. The tenants have been given two weeks' grace to pay up their arrears, and if they show an honest endeavor to meet their obligations the landlords will be agreeable to a revival of the tribunal for considering cases of householders who are earning small wages and those who are at present out of work.

It is estimated that the amount in arrears to the landlords has reached well over £300,000.

FLOUR FOR HAMBURG

First Fall Cargo Shipment for Europe From Lakes.

FORT WILLIAM, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Twelve boats carrying an average of more than 200,000 bushels of grain cleared Saturday from the ports of Fort William and Port Arthur with 2,415,000 bushels of grain, the Royalton taking 450,000 of wheat and oats and the Morrell taking 393,000 of wheat. All five grains were represented in these cargoes. The Lisken, a Norwegian vessel, cleared for Montreal with a full cargo of flour which she will carry direct to Hamburg, the cargo being 2,000 tons. This is the first shipment of a full cargo of flour direct from the head of the lakes to Europe.

ONTARIO LICENSE BOARD'S MEETING

Attorney General Nickle and License Board Officials Discuss Enforcement of the O.T.A.

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press.)— Attorney General Nickle and officials of the Ontario License Board and Provincial Police had a long conference at the Parliament Buildings yesterday regarding enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act.

While no announcement was forthcoming from Mr. Nickle or General Williams as to campaign strategy that was under discussion, it was admitted by Attorney General that the O.T.A. was the major item. The conference is to continue to-day in the offices of the Provincial Police and new instructions in the matter of O.T.A. enforcement are expected to follow shortly. The Attorney-General stated definitely that the Provincial Police force would be strengthened immediately.

father again and made him happier than he had been for many years.

But there was to be another parting. Mother Hildegarde was ordered to Rome. She was there when news came that her father had been struck by an automobile while walking on Riverside Drive in July, 1923, and might not live. She applied at once for permission to leave the convent, put aside her habit and live with her father. The permission was granted by the Pope on condition that she would return when ready or when called.

Judge Goff was in a plaster cast when Mother Hildegarde returned. She at once took up her residence with him. From the harp she removed the cover. Her fingers touched its strings. The music of Ireland floated up to the sick man's room. To him "Innisvale" had returned.

"I found," Mother Hildegarde said "that he had been very lonely. My mother had died. My brother, with a family of his own, lived a long way off. The servants had neglected him. And he had been dreadfully hurt by an automobile that had dragged him many feet while he was walking on Riverside Drive.

"My return seemed to cheer him. There were no curtains in the house. I made them and put them up. He watched me and helped me and seemed to be glad we were together again."

Judge Goff died on Sunday, November 9.

BLIND MAN BUILDS HIS OWN BUNGALOW

His Beautiful House Was Constructed Almost Entirely By Himself.

DENVER, Col., November 15. — A dream, born when he was blinded in a mine explosion 15 years ago, has just been realized by A. R. Brandt of this city.

In an attractive residential section stands a beautiful new double bungalow, constructed almost entirely by Brandt, after years of toil, unaided by the state pension for the blind, to which he was entitled.

Now for retirement from the irksome duties in a broom factory where he worked and saved, finally acquiring the money to purchase materials for his home!

From excavating his basement to shingling the roof, Brandt toiled alone, excepting for an errant boy, and occasionally some tradesmen to accomplish those fine details of work which only an expert can perform.

With the bungalow nearing completion, many thought the blind genius had picked a partner to share his home in the later years of life.

"Not me!" was his startling answer. "I know when I am well off."

Rather sadly, though, it seemed, he added, "I would only be a burden to a wife. No, I shall never marry."

STONE BOAT ASHORE

SARNIA, Nov. 17.— (Canadian Press).—The steamer W. F. White, American-owned, ran ashore at Pointe Edward near the entrance of the St. Clair river early Saturday morning. The steamer had eight thousand tons of stone aboard and was released with much difficulty by the tug Oregon after some hours.

NEW MATERIAL.

A new material for dresses is a gabardine weave with a decidedly crepey effect.

"You don't need his Telephone Number for Station-to-Station calls"

"If I could remember his number I would make my call Station-to-Station and save money."

This subcriber had the wrong idea. He didn't need to know the number of the distant telephone.

All he needed to say to the Long Distance operator was: "I will speak to anyone at ——" (then give her the name of the person who has the telephone—and the address too, if he knew it).

Perhaps this information will enable YOU to use the lower Station-to-Station rate more frequently. The evening and night rates on this type of call are still lower.

MISS SQUIRE TELLS OF TRIP TO THE BRITISH FAIR AT WEMBLEY

The Beauty of the Buildings Alone Draws Large Crowds, Says Miss Squire.

CANADA'S EXHIBITS.

Fiji Building Was the Smallest Pavilion in the Exhibition.

The following paper on her visit to Wembley was given by Miss Squire at the Teachers' Convention here a week ago:

The first building was the Burmese Building. There is usually nothing much more attractive at Wembley than the buildings that have been contributed by Burma. The little gilded bells on the three towers that ring at the will of the wind serve to call every visitor to the corner of the grounds whence the music comes, and even if there were no music the beauty of the biuldings is sufficient to draw first the eyes and then the feet in this direction. At the entrance to the Burma Pavilion there are inscriptions in carved and lacquered teak to convey a welcome. The Bridge House was modelled in Burma in imitation of one of the entrances to one of the most famous Temples of Mandslay. The path from the Bridge House to the Pavilion is paved with bricks of Burmese pattern. The Pavilion, surrounded by a pleasant garden, is modelled on the lines of a Burmese Royal House, and surmounted by seven-roofed spires. The teak carving was something to wonder at. There is a beautiful shrine with a marble Buddha in the grounds and a rest house of the familiar kind. The whole of the shrine and its contents were made in Rangoon, and shipped over in cases and it is an exact facsimile. In the pavilion we found a bewildering display of beauty. Not only the Government but private individuals have united to present the art manufactures and natural produce of the country to the very best effect. There can be no question about the extraordinary popularity of the Burmese Pavilion, nor can there be any doubt but that this popularity has been thoroughly well deserved, because there is nothing in the world that is quite like the Burmese conception of the beautiful.

From Burma we travelled to the Gold Coast Building. This building is built on the style of one of the old castles erected along the coast 500 years ago by the Danish settlers. The massive wooden doors were carved by Africans, from African timber in Africa. The interior consists of seven panoramic courts radiating from a central court. These seven courts represent the Gold Coast, Ashanti, the Norther Territories, the cocoa industry, the mining industry and agriculture in general.

After Gold Coast we went to Canada. But I am not going to describe Canada to you here. Rather I am going to keep it for the last.

Leaving Canada we decided it was about time for lunch. The herculanean task of supplying refreshments to the millions of visitors to the exhibition was entrusted to Messrs. J. Lyons & Co., who, in the numerous restaurants under their control, had seating accomodation for 30,000 people at a single sitting. In one of their many places we lunched.

Now feeling much better we started on our journey once more, and visited the Fiji building, which is perhaps one of the smallest pavilions in the Exhibition. In the pavilion the Tappa on the walls is well worth special mention. Tappa is cloth made from the bark of the Paper Mulberry by native women. Both the making of the cloth and the stenciling of the patterns is all done by hand.

From Fiji we went to Newfoundland where we found much to stimulate our interest and gave us a better knowledge and value of the oldest British Colony. The caribou is, of course, the typical big beast of the island, and outside the pavilion there is a fine model in bronze of a Newfoundland caribou, which, after serving its purpose at Wembley is to find a resting place in France, where it will serve as a war memorial to record the achievements and sacrifices of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment.

Leaving Newfoundland we entered the British Government Pavilion. In this building are the special apartments reserved for the use of Their Majesties, the King and Queen, during their frequent visits to Wembley. Perhaps one of the most impressive sights we had in this Pavilion was that which arrested us on our entrance. It was a contour map of the world, on the familiar Mercator projection, with the seas all round the land and lights across the many waterways. Model ships, mysteriously and invisibly propelled, pursue their path from port to port, we had a sudden sense of the endless traffic of the ocean, of the seas across which day by day, throughout the years, the great ships come and go. Heedless of all impediment, secure under the protection of the White Ensign, they carry the commerce of the world, serving as a medium for the exchange of commodities between the manufacturing centres of over-crowded countries and vast agricultural area of the younger lands. It was impossible for us to spend even a few moments watching the vessels in pursuit of their lawful occasions, and the ever changing lights which indicated the growth of this mighty empire without feeling a sobering sense, not only of civilization's vast achievement, but of its still vaster requirements.

Here also we saw in miniature form some of the battlefields. Hill 60 is shown. This is all in a huge glass case. Along the sides of the case are push buttons with writing underneath. You push one of the buttons and a light comes on in one place or perhaps a row of lights. The writing tells you what the lights are for. For instance one button you press, and a row of lights come on showing you the Allied lines, or another shows the German lines, or perhaps a tank. In this pavilion everything is displayed in the quiet unobtrusive and impersonal fashion that one asociates with Whitehall, but sufficient imagination and sensational effects are employed to make the pavilion one of the most popular in the Exhiibtion.

We then entered the Indian Pavilion. The architecture, which breathers of the East, is simply marvellous. It is of the 17th century Mogul type, and the planning of the space has been carried out very harmoniously. There is a large courtyard with a fountain in the centre. Then the twenty-seven provinces represented can be entered from this. Some of the states have as much as 12,000 feet of floor space, others claim no less than 5,000. Every exhibit, whether of a province or state, expresses its own individuality, shows its own wares, and has placed its Arts and Crafts in the charge of experts, who are not only salesmen, but enthusiasts, blessed with understanding. There was sufficient there to have made an exhibition, and to have drawn all Englishmen who have known or desired to know something of the glamour of the Orient.

We then visited the Palace of Arts. This was the only building for which we were charged admittance. The plan of the Palace is simple but effective. Of the eight main sections, the first is devoted to the earlier painting from Hogarth on. Then come modern painting, sculpture, applied art, ecclesiastical art, period rooms, theatre art, and in a special gallery the Queen's Doll House. Beyond question the most popular exhibit in the B.E.E. is the Queen's Doll House. It is to be permanently established in Windsor Castle after the exhibition. The idea of the Doll's House originated with Her Highness Princess Marie Louise, and the architect to the miniature Palace is Sir Edwin Lutzens, who has been assisted in the work of the buildinb and equipment of this perfect little mansion by nearly 2,000 sculptors, artists, decorators, and craftsmen of every kind.

The idea of a Doll's House has been preserved throughout. The whole four square front of the building is lifted on electric pulleys to reveal an interior that baffles description by reason of its many beauties of design, decoration and furniture and the extraordinary attention to detail associated therewith. From the top of the parapet to the ground the height of the house is 5 feet, the length is 8 feet 6 inches and the breadth 5 feet. The weight is no less than 4½ tons.

The entrance hall is in marble, the reception rooms are reached from a stately marble staircase overlooked by a superb and arresting piece of wall-painting by Mr. Wm. Nicholson, the subject being "The Expulsion from Eden." On the sides of the hall are the dining-room and King's library, the latter being furnished with a wonderful collection of books in manuscript, contributed by leading authors. Above the library are the saloon, and the bedrooms of the King and Queen, with bathrooms, ante-chambers and the rest. On the next floor are day and night nurseries, with walls painted by Dulac in his happiest mood; here too are the Queen's sitting-room and a linen room, and every manner of up-to-date device imaginable. On the ground floor is the kitchen, with a complete installment of everything that cook desires, and below the kitchen cellars stocked with a hundred dozen of the finest wines. On one side a garage with a fleet of modern motor cars and on the other side a garden planted with flowers that came to full display on the Queen's birthday. Both garden and garage can be opened out at will.

So complete is this superb little house, which is on the scale of 1 inch to the foot, that no single item of equipment is lacking. You find golf clubs, fountain pens, shotguns, chessmen, pens, ink, stationery, tooth brushes, sponges, soap, bath salts, scent, tobacco, and matches, hot water bottles and playing cards. It is impossible to think of anything that a modern and finely appointed house might be expected to contain without discovering the very best of its kind had been reproduced.

On the mechanical side, marvels have been accomplished. Water runs through the taps and electricity moves the lift and motor cars.

The building and equipment of this marvellous house occupied 2½ years.

We then had a walk through the Amusement Park. This park, which extends over nearly fifty acres of ground, is the largest and most comprehensive pleasure park known to history. Owing to lack of time we were only able to take in two of the amusements. One was a ride on the never stop railway, and the other King Tut's Tomb.
